Lifter Wins Gold Medal ★★★★★ Crothers Finishes Fourth In 880 ★★★★★ "Just Blew It"

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

KINGSTON, Jamaica (CP)—"I just blew it."

That frank comment from Bill Crothers of Markham, Ont., explained his disappointing fourth in the 880-yard final at the British Empire Games Monday night.

The world's top half-miler allowed himself to get boxed in on the last lap and lost the race against what probably was the strongest array of 880 talent ever gathered.

BILL CROTHERS

A real darkhorse, Noel Clough of Australia, sped to the gold medal and broke the Games record with a brilliant 1:46.8.

By far, it was Australia's biggest day of the Games after a poor start last week. The Australia's went on a record-breaking spree and won a whopping eight gold medals to displace England at the top of the medal standings and add five of 11 gold, nine silver and seven bronze.

Gold medals in swimming diving and fencing boosted England's gold total to 10, while Canada was third with five gold, followed by New Zealand with four, Wales with three, Kenya two and Trinidad one.

Canada, easily making one of its best post-war Games showing, won seven more medals including a gold for weightlifting.

SET RECORD

Twenty-two years of preparation paid off for Pierre St. Jean, 26-year-old aeronautical draughtsman from Montreal, who won the middleweight weightlifting title with a Games record total lift of 905 pounds.

His father Lionel was weightlifting coach of the 1958 team and started training Pierre at the age of two with the aim of making him world champion.

While Crothers was dealt a blow to the Canadian track team, there was some measure of consolation in the fact that Harry Jerome of Vancouver entered the final Thursday of the men's 220-yard dash in his bid for a sprint double.

No Canadian has been able to win the double before, but Jerome hopes to be the first after winning his first gold medal in the 100-yard dash Saturday.

Two Canadians won silver medals in track and field Monday night, Irene Pitrowski of Vancouver taking second place in the women's 100-yard dash and Toronto's George Puce taking second in the discus.

The swimmers came up with two silver and two bronze for Canada. Ralph Hutton of Ocean Falls, B.C., was a silver medalist in the men's individual medley won by Australia's Terry Reynolds in a world record time of 4:50.8. Sandy Gilchrist of Ocean Falls was third.

FORCES RECORD

Canada pressed England so strongly in the women's medley relay race that the English girls came up with a world record 4:40.6, eight-tenths of a second better than the world mark set by a Dutch team in 1964.

The Canadian team of Louise Kennedy of London, Ont., Donna Ross of Montreal, Elaine Tanner and Marion Lay of Vancouver was second in 4:44.5.

Kathy Ealwright, 18, a bank clerk from Sydney, Australia, swam to a world record 4:39.6 in a heat of the women's 440-yard freestyle.

Seven world records have been broken in the Games so far, all in swimming.

Crothers' loss and the humiliation of Australia's Ron Clarke in the second time in the distance races took much of the spotlight as eight track and field championships were contested Monday night. Australia won five of them.

Kipchoge Keino, the amazing Kenyan who says he was born in a mud hut but doesn't know the year, crushed Clarke with a tremendous finishing kick to win the three miles in the near world-record time of 12:57.4.

LOSES OWN RACE

Crothers, silver medallist in the 1964 Tokyo Olympics, although he had run 1:47.2 in his heat, the far corner on the last lap and was still there at the turn. He tried to get through but "the hole never opened," the bespectacled pharmacist said.

Wilson Kiprugut of Kenya and George Kerr of Jamaica were just three-tenths of a second behind Clough in 1:47.2. Crothers' 1:47.3 was still good enough to equal the Games record set by Peter Snell of New Zealand in 1962.

Kiprugut got the silver medal and Kerr the bronze. Chris Carter of England was fifth in 1:47.6.

A near-capacity crowd of 30,000, the biggest yet, watched the Games' Olympic or British Empire Games competition.

He was dogged by Kenyan police force, latched on to him.

BREAKS TO WIN

They say it's held together by string for nearly a mile until Kip spurted and broke contact with the middle-distance specialist Crothers was timed in 12:59.2 and the bronze went to Allan Mulhemey, substituting from Dudley, England, who did 13:06.6.

Kip's time was an even five seconds off Clarke's recognized world record set in 1965, but Clarke has a pending world mark of 12:50.4 established just a month ago at Stockholm.

But it was speed not seconds faster than the Games record of 13:15.6, set in 1958 by now retired Murray Halberg of New Zealand.

Behind Rushmer came Temu, the six - mile champion, in 13:10.4. Fifth was Ian McCafferty of Scotland in 13:12.2. All five broke Halberg's mark.

With the exception of the three-mile run, Australia's track and field team easily grabbed the major share of honors, winning five gold medals. Australia also won the men's 220-yard breaststroke swim and the light heavyweight weightlifting gold medals.

Thus half the 16 championships decided Monday were won by Aussies.

SETS BACK DIVER

One gold note was struck for Canada in diving. Little Beverley Boys of Pickering, Ont., silver medal winner in the women's springboard, seemed well on her way to a gold in the high scorer event.

But the entire first day's program was cancelled after protests by Australia and England because of high winds during the first three compulsory dives.

Miss Boys was well ahead in points and now she'll have to start fresh on Wednesday.

Ian O'Brien of Australia captured the 220 breaststroke in the fast time of 2:30.3, beating by 15 yards New Zealand's Hamilton Graham who took the silver.

Bill Mahony of New Westminster, B.C., collected the bronze. Len Chase of Montreal was seventh.

Alberta Tops Willingdon Golf

By AL McNeil

MONTREAL (CP) — As predicted, Alberta led the way into today's final 18 holes of interprovincial Willingdon Cup play, but some highly-rated favorites for the Canadian Amateur title were having their troubles in the early going.

Led by Keith Alexander, a Willingdon Cup veteran, the Alberta foursome headed the provincial list with a 293 aggregate.

Alexander posted a 71 Monday while Doug Silverberg and Bob Wylie fired par 72s and John Kilborn a 78.

British Columbia was second by virtue of a sparkling two-under-par 70 fired by a first-year member of the team.

Wayne Vollmer, 21, a Vancouver student, was low man in the field of 149 which played the Cup match and the first 18-hole qualifying round for the Canadian Amateur simultaneously.

LEADS B.C. TEAM

The B.C. youngster, 1963 Junior Canadian titleholder, led his team to a 296 aggregate.

A strong Ontario contingent, led by veteran Nick Weslock, marked up 300 strokes for third spot. Weslock and Gary Cowan each had 73s, while Paul Williams carded a 76 and Doug Mossop a 78.

Henry, defending champion in the amateur tournament starting Wednesday, took a four-over-par in his first-half of the qualifying round. Cole came in with a 74.

Six Canadians led the way into today's second 18 - hole qualifying parade for the Amateur title. In addition to Westerners Vollmer, Alexander, Wylie and Silverberg, Gordon LaRiche of Montreal and Dubuc Doucet of Windsor Mills, Que., made the top half-dozen with their par 72s.

Three strokes back of Vollmer were Weslock, Randy Geissman of Bellaire, Tex., Terry Winter of Lafayette, Ind., and Ron Smith of Manchester, Conn., each with 73.

Quebec considered a dark horse in the Willingdon Cup race, finished 12 strokes behind Ontario in team play with a 312 aggregate. Manitoba registered 314, Nova Scotia 317, Saskatchewan 319, New Brunswick-Prince Edward Island 321 and Newfoundland 330.

Vollmer's team partners Arthur Donaldson and John Russell had 75s and veteran John Mc-Johnston a 76.

Charles Brace led Nova Scotia's entry with 77 and Ed Ross of Saskatchewan scored 75. Ernest Hachey was low man for the N.B.-P.E.I. combined squad with 76 and John Eastabrooks posted Newfoundland's low of 79.

Quarterback Hero

Eskimos Beard Lions 27-7

VANCOUVER (CP) — Before Monday night's Western Football Conference game here, British Columbia Lions' head coach Dave Skrien said his club has two trouble spots to watch.

"He called it all himself—I didn't send in one play—and he didn't make a bad call."

Armstrong pulled Kerbow out of his defensive halfback spot Monday night. "I didn't want the ball with Bill Redell," who started Eskimos' two previous games as a quarterback.

Kerbow included himself prominently in his play-calling, taking to the air 35 times for 11 completions and 228 yards passing. He also managed to break loose for a 21-yard dash the period seven times for a 38.9 average.

Then turning to defense for a spell, he recorded the only Eskimo interception of the night.

Willie Fleming, who spurred the Lions' 21-3 win over Calgary Stampeders last week, was held to 20 yards in five carries Monday night, although he managed to sprint over from the 10-yard line for B.C.'s only touchdown, early in the first quarter.

Joe Kapp completed 21 of the 31 passes he tried—included five five-for-five reception efforts by both Pat Claridge and Sonny Homer — but the Lions' 279 yards in the air had no consistent ground attack to keep Eskimo secondary wary.

Fleming's 20 yards rushing was the largest individual accumulation of an anemic net rushing total of 60 yards.

Jets Edge Leafs 4-3, Grab Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Columbus Jets used a 4-3 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs and a doubleheader loss by Rochester Red Wings to vault into first place in the International League race Monday night past Rochester.

The margin is slim, only one percentage point, after Jacksonville Suns went into Rochester to batter the Wings 6-2 and 3-0.

Belvedere Withdraws From League

The Belvedere Hotel team of the City Commercial Softball League is through for the season.

It was announced last night the club would withdraw from the league due to inability to field a team.

The withdrawal leaves City Hotel and Black Diamond Cheese battling for fourth place and the final playoffs berth.

At present the Cheesemen hold a two-point lead over the hotelmen. The teams meet tonight in a game which is a "must" for Cliff.

Read Turns Back Latta

Read grabbed their first victory in three attempts in the South Hastings League playoffs with a 7-5 win over Latta, at Read last night.

Next game in the series is slated for Latta on Wednesday. Game time is 6:30 p.m.

A grand slam homer by Ken Abrams in the first frame gave Read an early four-run bulge. They added three more in the third, and when a Latta scoreboniig rally faded after scoring five runs, Read held on for theirvictory.

Ted Abrams threw a seven-hit, four strikeout victory for Read. He had enough trouble every inning but the sixth when five runs were scored off him.

Ted Zaw worked for the losers. He pitched the first frame, giving up two hits and getting only strikeouts. Bob Smith took over Latta's pitching duties in the second, and allowed only three hits while striking out five in the final five frames.

Ken Abrams' home run and Charley Steel's two base hits led the winner's attack. Jerry Brennan and Pat Shea had singles.

Bob Smith slammed a home run and Larry Mavrey had two singles for Latta. Doug Rowsome stroked a double and Doug Chisholm, Lorne Crawright and Doug Rollins singled.

Cementmen Win 3-1, Widen Gap

Lake Side Marina Cementmen Win 3-1, Widen Gap

Last night they edged second place Stewart Warner 3-1 to open up a 13-point lead on the Queen Anne in the Consecon Softball League.

With fourth place still undecided, the two clubs fighting for that position, Black Diamond and City Hotel, go to battle tonight. Third place is held down by Lightfoot Construction.

Point Anne snatched a run in the first, another in the third, and their last in the fifth, while Stewart Warner remained within range of a win throughout after scoring once in the third.

Jamie Hunter buried a four-hit victory for the Pointers, getting relief help in the seventh from Ron Marcelo. He walked one and did not strike out a man.

Departmental Softball

Public Works rallied for four runs in the final frame to edge the Intelligencer 5-7 in the final game of the best-of-five semi-final series between the teams.

Errors proved costly for the losers in the last inning, as passed balls, throwing errors, and a timely fly ball helped the Public Works to victory.

Merv Thompson slammed a home run and double for the losers. Don Woods stroked a double and single.

Tigers Win Anyway

Ex-Dodger Buddy Not Helping Padres

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

The only thing blocking Johnny Podres' American League comeback appears to be his National League teammate's helping hand.

Podres, who joined Detroit Tigers last spring after 13 National League seasons with Brooklyn and Los Angeles, was deprived of a victory for the second time in a week Monday night when reliever Larry Sherry, his ex-Dodger teammate, failed to protect a lateinning lead.

The Tigers finally beat Washington Senators 5-3 on Willie Horton's two-run single in the 12th inning, but by that time Podres was just another name in the box score.

LOSES LEAD

Sherry, however, couldn't hold the lead in the ninth. He gave up a single to Fred Valentine and a two-run homer to Frank Howard, another former Dodger, then was clipped for a two-out single by Paul Casanova before being replaced by Hank Aguirre.

Last Wednesday night, the Tigers led Chicago 3-1 after seven innings when Podres, who had allowed five hits, was forced to leave the game with a leg muscle spasm. Sherry relieved and let the White Sox win 6-4.

In other action Monday, Kansas City Athletics completed Minnesota Twins 6-1 behind unbeaten rookie Jin Nash and Boston Red Sox downed Cleveland Indians 3-1 on a two-run homer by rookie George Scott.

Nash, who had singles off Bob Humphreys in the 12th broke the deadlock at Washington, then limited Twins to four bases on Jim Northrup's single, an error by Brinkman and an intentional walk to Al Kaline.

KALINE HAS 4 HITS

Run-scoring doubles by Horace Clarke and Mike Hershberger gave the Tigers a 2-0 lead in the second inning and Kaline, who had four hits, singled a run across in the eighth.

Nash, the Athletics' 21-year-old sensation, scattered seven hits and boosted his season record to 11-3 since coming up from Mobile of the Southern League las tmonth. He struck out six and blanked the Twins until the sixth, when Tony Oliva tripled and Russ Nixon singled home a run.

Scott's 21st homer broke a 1-1 tie in the seventh, enabling Jose Santiago to gain his 11th victory in a duel with loser Gary Bell.

Come On You Beverley !

Her coach, Don Webb, of Toronto, says his freckled protege is as good as any competitor at the British Empire Games. "It depends on who gets the breaks," he said.

Beverley got a tough break Monday when Games officials ordered a restart after three of five scheduled dives in the tower competition had been completed.

The 15 - year - old youngster held the lead when the remaining dives were cancelled because of strong winds.

But the order, complying with protests by England and Australia, washed out the dives and the competition will start anew Wednesday. The order by the Supreme Court of the Games reversed an earlier ruling by the five-man technical board in charge of diving.

HAD SOLID EDGE

Miss Boys had 177.60 points to 174.30 by her closest rival, Susan Knight of Australia, in the gusty winds that blew through all seven dives.

England and Australia claimed that the winds provided unfavorable conditions for divers in the three-man Games' appeal Jury, made up of Scottish, Jamaican and Australian officials, agreed.

Miss Boys has so far come through twice in important situations to bag glory on herself at these Games. She pulled off a clutch dive in the springboard Saturday to wrest the second-place silver medal from Miss Knight.

THE ARNOLD Palmer Method
by DOUFS 4-TIME MASTERS WINNER

AVOID CROUCHED ADDRESS POSITION

The golfer who addresses his shots from an accentuated crouched position will never achieve much shot-making consistency.

The crouched position at address (No. 1) encourages a lifting of the body and head and a straightening of the knees during the swing. Naturally, this produces mis-hit shots.

At address stand with your knees only slightly bent and your arms hanging straight with no bend at the elbows (No. 2). The left arm especially should be extended. This will give you a relaxed, more upright address position. Your body will be in more or less the same position at address that it will assume at impact. This will help you make a more solid contact with the ball.

Hank Aaron leads the National League in homers with 21 and in batting with a .328 mark. Ron Santo is not far behind with 37 and 72. Felipe Alou has the most hits in the majors, 140, and is second best average, .330. Rico Carty is not far behind at .327.

Denis Menke is very far behind all of them. He has a .241 average, nine homers and 37 runs batted in.

But as far as Los Angeles Dodgers and San Francisco Giants are concerned, Menke is far ahead of his Atlanta Brave team-mates on their hate lists.

Menke didn't have a bit Monday night until the ninth inning when he singled home the fourth run of the inning and gave the Braves a 10-9 victory over the Dodgers that dropped them into first place to third in the hectic National League pennant race.

The Giants split a double-header with Cincinnati Reds Monday to keep their lead of 1½ games, moved into second place, three percentage points behind idle Pittsburgh Pirates. The Dodgers are one-half game out.

BEAT GIANTS TWICE

Menke's game - winning hit was the third in the Braves' last seven victories. Two weekends ago the 26-year-old shortstop did the same when Pedro Ramos hit a two-run single.

The Dodgers had erupted for three runs and a 5-4 lead in the top of the ninth. John Roseboro doubled in the first two runs and scored the third on Torre's error.

Before that, Los Angeles had rallied from a 5-0 deficit behind the hitting of Ron Fairly, who added three hits to a four-hit performance the day before.

Fairly collected two homers and a double, driving in three runs and scoring three. His two-run homer in the eighth tied the contest 6-6.

TOTAL 48 HITS

Willie Mays hit the 511st of his career homers in the opener, but the Reds overcame that and other Giant homers by Willie McCovey, Jim Ray Hart and Jim Hart with five runs in the fifth, the last three on a homer by Deron Johnson.

McCovey snapped a 5-5 tie in the seventh inning of the nightcap with his 33rd homer. He added his fourth hit of the game with a single in the ninth and scored the Giants' last run.

The Reds had tied it 5-5 in the fifth when pitcher Jack Baldschun, who later gave up McCovey's homer, singled in one run and scored another on Pete Rose's single.

Not Selling Stampeders Short

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least two Eastern Football Conference coaches are not taking too seriously Calgary Stampeders' 21-0 smalling by British Columbia Lions in a Western Football Conference game last week.

The coaches are Frank Clair of Ottawa Rough Riders and Ralph Sazio of Hamilton Tiger-Cats. Their teams meet Calgary this week in the first interlocking Canadian Football League games of the season.

Clair, who sends his team against Calgary Wednesday night, suggested Monday that everyone has ignored the fact Calgary moved the ball better than the Lions.

"Look at that speed," Clair said. "They have Frank Budd, Ted Woods and Lovell Coleman and they can all go the 100 yards in well under 10 seconds."

Sazio was thinking along the same lines when he noted that Calgary got inside the Vancouver 30-yard line five times but was unable to capitalize. The Tigers meet Calgary in Hamilton Saturday.

In this week's other EFC game, Montreal Alouettes and Toronto Argonauts clash in search of their first win in the season.

TIMING OFF

Clair felt Ottawa didn't look good in defeating Montreal 10-5 last week because quarterback Ross Jackson was off in his play selection, passing and timing.

Sazio said he wants to see what Calgary does against Ottawa before he starts juggling his lines.

Montreal coach Darrell Mudra said Monday it is Alouettes "aren't through bringing people in yet." He said assistant coach Ralph Goldston is touring National Football League camps looking for new backfielders.

The Argos have reported no serious injuries.

Marlene 3rd In Amateur

SEWICKLEY, Pa. (AP) — Shelley Hamlin, 17, of Fresno, Calif., took a two-stroke lead today into the final round of qualifying for the USGA women's amateur golf championship.

Miss Hamlin fired a par 72 in Monday's first round—the only golfer in a field of 118 to match the mark on the Sewickley Heights Golf Club layout.

Mrs. William Fleminken, the former Carol Sorensen of Denver, Colo., and a member of the U.S. Curtis Cup team, followed with a 74.

Today's 18 holes of qualifying will cut the field to 32. Four days of match play begin Wednesday.

Hand Clarke Second Loss

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

KINGSTON, Jamaica (CP)—The men behind Kenya's incredible distance runners have it down pat—stay with Ron Clarke and you can take him in the last mile.

The trouble is you have to have people who can stick with the gritty Aussie, and two-time torted by runners from the African country in 48 hours there's little doubt Kenya has them.

Kipchoge Keino — compatriot Kenya's amazing double victory over Clarke Monday night with an incredible performance that almost brought him Clarke's world record for the distance as well as the British Empire Games gold medal for the event.

He whipped a dead - beat Clarke by 11 yards in a Games record time of 12 minutes, 57.4 seconds, just seven seconds off a pending world mark set by Clarke about one month ago in Stockholm, Sweden.

The Games record of 13:13 was established by Carvill Duval of Trinidad in 1958 by New Zealander Murray Halberg.

Clarke, acknowledged king of the distance runners who has set 13 world marks over varying distances, was content to be shutout in his quest for a British Empire or Olympic Games record.

SECOND UPSET

The 29-year-old Aussie lost another titanic battle Saturday to the amazing 20-year-old named Naftali Temu in the six-mile event.

And in each instance, the Kenyan strategy was to stick with Clarke until the final mile and then leave him standing.

Temu did it Saturday, winning easily by 20 yards.

Monday, it was a little tougher for Keino but in the end their pacing proved too much for Clarke.

As Keino, the ever-smiling Kenyan police force physical training instructor, trotted by Clarke on route to the podium to receive his gold medal for the three mile victory, Clarke shouted to him: "You are far too good."

Despite the humid conditions here Monday night Keino was full of energy following his three miles and running a lap of honor.

Superbly confident, he said, "I knew I could best him (Clarke). I am going to break the 5,000- and 10,000-metre and six mile records."

TEMU WAS THERE

In the classic struggle for the three - mile title, Clarke was shadowed by two other Kenyan runners—one of them Temu—for the first half of the race.

It was then he decided to step out on his own pace and took off with Keino moving right behind him. The dark-haired Australian held a two-yard margin after two miles were completed.

With about 330 yards to go, Keino made his first move to pass Clarke. He did, but the Australian runner rebuffed the effort by stepping up his own pace.

Another 100 yards passed before Keino made another move and this time Clarke, obviously laboring, did not have an answer to the challenge.

Keino stepped head by about a yard and on the turn coming home opened up a clear, margin and soon going away.

Allan Rushmere of England came on strong in the last 300 yards to overhaul Temu for the third-place bronze medal. Temu, like Clarke, could not muster a finishing kick. He was exhausted, too, had not recovered fully from his Saturday night effort in the six miles.

Temu finished fourth.

Peewees Lose To Cobourg

Cobourg whipped the Lions Club 12-8 in the EOBA peewee playoff series between the teams, last night.

Livingston also led the winners at the plate, with a double and two singles.

Paul Wolfe slammed three singles, Cliff Janitsch a double and single, and Bill Coughlan two singles for Belleville. Dan Coulson, Mike Gorgan and Mike Burley had base hits.

Minor Baseball Results

John Templeman and Steven Coates gave up five hits and fanned 11 in winning, while losing pitcher Peter Hall allowed 11 hits and struck out 11.

Leading the Jet's attack were Mike Burke, Steven Coates, Roy Garvin, Paul Weeks and Greg Mcinnis.

Mark Porter hoomered for the Rockets.

Gene Nelson Turns Director After Equestrian Accident

By HOWARD C. HEVN

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — When Gene Nelson was gravely injured in an equestrian accident nearly 10 years ago, a certain segment of his audience said—and not without sympathy—"well, there goes another good dancer."

Gene himself wasn't sure he'd ever take a step again. His pelvis, among other things, was fractured, and he feared one leg would be shorter than the other.

Always an enthusiastic rider Nelson was on location in Tennessee when a horse threw him full on the film. That was in 1957.

His did dance again, in 1960. And he found a new career, as a director.

"It's an old wives' tale that dancers are short-lived professionally," he said. "Most of our famous film dancers grew old gracefully today, and so am I. The real reason I danced sporadically after I recovered is simple: There just aren't enough musicals to keep dancers busy these days. You have to learn to do something else.

"Shut up in a hospital, learned to write scripts. The first few didn't get used, but they got me contacts in television. One of these asked me if I wanted to try my hand at directing. I figured I'd get a chance."

Among a long list of shows Nelson directed was the first live TV presentation of Matinee Theatre, which also appeared in many, sometimes as a dancer.

"You have to learn fast because that's the way they do everything in television," he said. "A director must know scripts backwards.

"Dancing, too, was a natural advantage. When I was essentially a dancer I usually did my own choreography. That puts you into intimate relation in the camera and the director. A dancer's sense of timing also is a boon in directing."

Nelson began dancing at 12. At 15 he became professional, in a Fanchon and Marco juvenile revue. Now 40, he is back at Warner Bros., where he did 19 films as a performer between 1940 and 1953. Most were musicals, and so is the one he now is directing, "the cool ones."

USE U.S. STEEL

LONDON (Reuters) — Future British nuclear submarines are to be built partly with United States steel because of importities in the steel made here, the British defence ministry said today. The U.S. steel plates will be used mainly for parts subjected to heavy stresses and where absolute and considerable thickness must be welded. Nonmetallic bodies, not previously believed important in steel making, had been found in the British product.

London Didn't Worry

NEW YORK (AP)—A question was raised Monday about the time of the knockout in the Cassius Clay-Brian London title fight in London Saturday night.

In London, the time of Clay's knockout was announced as one minute and 40 seconds of the third round.

On television, relayed live to North America by the Early Bird satellite, the time originally was announced as 40 seconds.

ABC-TV, which handled the telecast in the United States, received tapes of the fight Monday, ran them in their studios, and sports publicist Irvin Brodsky timed it.

"It was 40 seconds," Brodsky said. "We miss just a little of it because of technical difficulties—but it couldn't have been more than one-half a second."

In London, the British Boxing Board of Control was not immediately available for comment but London newspapers carried the time as 1:40.

But Peter Wilson, writing in the London Daily Mirror, said:

"They announced at the end that this session had lasted one minute, 40 seconds. I just don't believe it. A colleague's stopwatch showed 32 seconds when the count started, and that seems much more like it."

Nancy Falls Again

From AP-Reuters

PORTILLO, Chile (CP)—The men were back in the spotlight today after an Austrian farm girl Monday interrupted France's domination of the world alpine ski championships with a surprise victory in the women's downhill event.

Erika Schinegger, 18, won Austria's first gold medal here in the first dangerous event that for a second time brought a heartbreaking upset to Canada's Nancy Greene.

Miss Greene of Rossland, B.C., fell within sight of the finish when she caught her left ski on the last bump of the 2.3-kilometre course. She found little comfort in assurances that her interim time was one of the best of the day.

"You don't win with half a race," she said through tears caused by the disappointment and a nasty bruise on her right elbow and a slight cut over left eye. "I don't know what happened to me."

Last Friday she was leading the women's slalom after the first run, then fell on the second run and finished seventh.

The Tracks

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP) — Stevie B. Good, who twice defeated Queen's Plate winner Tilded Hero this season, won the featured Wildcat Purse Monday at Fort Erie race track in record time.

Time for the 1 3-16-mile race was 1:42 4-5, just 1-5 of a second slower than Blue Crown raced the distance in 1962 to establish the track record.

On the final turn, Harris sent Stevie out on the outside and the gelding moved into the lead with ease. The victory was the fifth in 10 starts for Stevie and he paid $2.90.

The daily double of Wee Bunky and Get Smart was more paid $16 while the exactor of Acadian Flirt and Sankie Reed returned $34.60.

Minor Softball Results

Bobcats whipped the Bears 19-13 in the teams' first game in the best-of-three tyke West Hill series. In a similar series on the East Hill, the Canadians bombed IGA Redsox 36-12.

An city squirt game scheduled for Wednesday have been changed to Thursday.

Many New Series Shows Played Strictly for Laughs

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—There is a lot of talk about meaningful and significant drama for the coming television season, but close to half of the regularly-scheduled network evening series are being played strictly for laughs.

It is hard to place some shows in a specific comedy category. Thus, while Batman may be accidentally-serious, for the under-12 set, it may be comedy for older viewers. The same undoubtedly will apply to NBC's updated revival of Tarzan.

Within the comedy category are all sorts of shows—Milton Berle's and Red Skelton's variety hours; war comedies like Hogan's Heroes (at 7:30), western comedies like F Troop and Laredo; action-adventure comedies like The Man From U.N.C.L.E. and The Wild, Wild West. But the largest group is the one the industry calls "domicom," short for situation comedy.

As an up-coming young executive, although a devout bachelor playboy, thinks he would get ahead in business if his boss believes he is married. So he makes a platonic arrangement with pretty girl who lives next part of his wife when necessary, installing her in an apartment above his quarters. The mutual access via the building's fire escape.

Carol Burnett has discovered an unusual way to get important guests on her CBS hour-long variety show. She picks up a telephone and invites them personally. Her latest such technique last season when her producers discouraged her about the availability of Lucille Ball. Undaunted by called by Carol, was delighted to find the time.

This season Carol wanted Rock Hudson for her Oct. 9 special and Hudson is one of the "big three" who has kept away from television. The other two are Doris Day and Dean Martin.

Miss Burnett called him up—and rehearsals for the taping start next week.

Search Party Finds Body of Teen-age Girl

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—A search party has found the body of a teen-age girl who police say was raped and choked to death after her two male companions had been shot and killed.

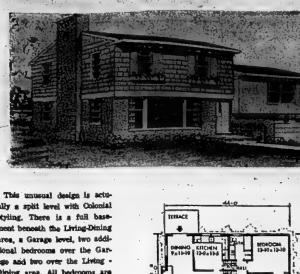
The discovery Monday night ended a search touched off early Sunday when a curious fisherman opened the trunk of an abandoned auto and found the bullet-riddled bodies of two teenage boys.

Investigators charged Roy Green, 18, and Kenneth McHaig, 20, both from the Marlin area 100 miles south of here, with murder, then lodged rape complaints on the basis of a statement by Green.

The two youths were accused of slaying Robert Brand, 17, of Alvardo, Tex., his cousin, Mark Dunman, 16, of Terrazula, Calif., and Edna Louise Sullivan, 16, of Everman, Tex.

The slain trio was last seen Saturday night after attending a movie. Miss Sullivan had been dating Brand about six weeks.

'RAPED THREE TIMES'



The cause of her death was not immediately determined, although the district attorney's office charged Green say a 1 p.m. Miss Sullivan had been raped three times then strangled with a towel.

Green told authorities, in the presence of reporters, that he and McDuff had discussed a sexual escapade with a parked couple as their intended victims.

Green said the Brand and Dunman boys were ordered into the trunk of their car and the Sullivan girl was forced into the trunk of the car he was in.

They said the cars were driven to the deserted field, he said, and the youths were shot there.

HOME OF THE WEEK

This unusual design is actually a split level with Colonial styling. There is a full basement beneath the Living-Dining area, a Garage level, two additional bedrooms over the Garage and two over the Living - Dining area. All bedrooms are large for a house this size. There is a full bathroom on both bedroom levels, plus a washroom convenient to the Garage. Construction is a combination of brick veneer, shingle and wertkie boards. Asbestos cement shingles which have permanent built - in color could be used for the upper floors. This would eliminate painting for all time. Incidentally, these shingles are relatively inexpensive, a fireproof and rotproff. House could be built on a 60 foot lot. Design is suitable for electric heating.

Standard Blueprints for this Design No. 318 cost $20.00 for the first set and $5.00 for additional sets. Blueprints comply with the National Building Code of Canada, and are obtainable by return mail. Ontario residents must add 5% sales tax.

Man May Be Able to Choose His Shape, Thoughts, Emotions

The day when man will control his own evolution — predetermine his own shape, thoughts and emotions — may seem far off.

Few outside the field of science realize what is being accomplished. The following article explores the exciting —and sometimes frightening — prospect opened up by recent gains in a comparatively new field of research.

By RALPH DIGHTON
AP Science Writer

Would you like to be able—

To grow a new heart, brain, kidney, arm or leg whenever you need it?

To grow gills and live in the ocean or wings and fly with the birds?

To explore other planets in a strange new body specially and made impervious to the most hostile environment?

To mould you setin up something simple, like a doubled or tripled life span to a world free of disease?

These are some of the more exciting possibilities scientists believe they have exposed for the human race through recent advances in genetics.

There is a grim side, too. The same advances conceivably could be used to turn men into a race of slaves whose thoughts and emotions are predetermined through genetic tinkering.

SEE RISING TREND

Eminent scientists — men such as Dr. Melvin Calvin of the Lawrence radiation laboratory of the University of California and Dr. Ray Owen, chairman of the biology division of the California Institute of Technology — already foresee a need for decisions arising from this new trend in research.

Genetic tinkering is almost certain to generate opposition — from environmentalists who believe the way to improve man is to improve his environment, not his heredity; from religious leaders who believe the human form exists today as it was created originally by God and should not be altered.

Genetics is the science of heredity.

It deals with genes (from a Greek word meaning to give birth") and how they control growth, using patterns handed down from generation to generation.

Although incredibly tiny — every human body cell has an estimated 100,000 of them in its nucleus — genes are the most powerful living force yet found.

Genes control the manufacture of protein molecules, the building blocks of life. And now science has learned that genes themselves can be controlled.

MAY FACE DECISION

Thus man eventually may be faced with deciding whether he wants to go on looking and thinking like his ancestors — or whether he wants to be something completely different.

The first big breakthrough in genetics — discovery that heredity and growth are influenced by a chemical substance called DNA — came in the 1940s, almost simultaneously with another great scientific discovery; the unleashing of the forces of the atom.

There are many scientists who believe that cracking the genetic code, learning the language of life, is just as vital to mankind as cracking the atom; perhaps more so.

The promised ability to control what we are made of could lead to a race of men invulnerable to radiation and fear.

When will this brave new "genetic age" come to pass? Authoritative estimates differ from a generation to a century.

Elementary efforts at genetic tinkering, altering the genes of lower life forms, have already succeeded. Heat, x-rays and drugs have changed the offspring of bacteria and even insects so that they are hardly recognizable.

In the last 30 years biologists have begun to understand why they are able to cause these changes, or mutations. Ahead lies the task of understanding how to control the changes, to make sure that mutations which occur are desirable.

Like splitting the atom, tinkering with genes can bring great peril as well as great benefit.

Scientists are confident that not only the hope but the very thoughts of men can be controlled genetically, by predetermining the structure and function of the organs that generate emotions.

What if, in the not too distant future, some nation set out to breed a race of warloving supermen — while others were breeding peaceful intellectuals?

Such a situation probably is several generations distant; and man may have improved himself enough genetically to meet it with wisdom.

But there are other crises closer, at hand.

The recently learned skill of transplanting kidneys and implanting artificial hearts has created a small furore over the question: Should ability to pay be the primary factor in determining who gets this chance at extended life?

GROW NEW ORGANS

Geneticists believe they some day will be able to relieve the current shortage of human "spare parts." They could take a bit of healthy tissue from a failing heart, for instance, and direct its genes to grow a whole new heart — easily transplantable back into the patient because the patient's body would not reject its own flesh and blood.

But even if enough spare parts were available for all who needed them, the transplanting would require considerable skill and effort.

Serious questions of ethics arise.

What kinds of people will be worth this trouble? Scientists? Politicians? Clergymen? Physicians? White collar workers? Laborers?

Who shall decide which are worthy?

And who shall pick those who decide?

Or it could create a paradise on earth.

Tomorrow: The genetic code.

Baronet, Companions Face Charge of Attempt to Drive Film Company From Village

LONDON (AP)—Sir Randuph Twisleton - Wykeham - Fiennes was free on bail today charged with trying to drive a U.S. movie company from one of England's prettiest villages.

The 32 - year - old baronet, a lieutenant in the Royal Scots Greys Regiment, was quoted by police as saying his aim was to stop "mass entertainment riding rough - shod over the feelings of the people."

Sir Randuph and three friends were accused at a preliminary hearing of making a night raid with flares on a film location in the Wiltshire hamlet of Castle Combe—once voted England's most attractive village.

Twentieth Century Fox is shooting the movie Doctor Doolittle at Castle Combe and residents have complained because the company put a temporary ban across a river running through the village to make it look like a little fishing port.

Prosecutor Peter Barnes told Chippenham magistrates court Sir Randuph and his friends planned to create "alarm and confusion" on the scene. But police had been tipped off by a London newspaper about the plot and were waiting for them.

OUT ON BAIL

The handsome young baronet and his colleagues—Christopher Knight, 23, Ben Howkins, 21, and Jeremy Fraser, 25, were committed to trial Oct. 4, on a charge of "conspiring to cause a public mischief." They were released on bail of £50 ($150) each.

In addition, Sir Randuph was accused of illegally possessing 22 ounces of plastic explosive and of stealing seven sticks of plastic explosive and two primers from his regiment.

Prosecutor Barnes said the quartet planned to set off flares to divert attention while they destroyed the film company's dam. At the same time they were going to send bogus telephone calls bringing out the fire brigade, the army, the RAF and civil defence units to confuse everybody.

Only one flare went off before the police nabbed the raiders, but they called out the two ambulances rushed to the village after getting alarm calls.

No Quick End Seen in Strike By Controller

QUEBEC (CP) — Union and Hydro - Quebec management representatives sit down at the negotiating table here today in another attempt to reach a settlement of the strike by some 4,500 workers at the Manicouagan - Outardes hydroelectric project.

But in Baie - Comeau Monday Henri Gagnon, Hydro - Quebec's labor relations controller, told some 800 white collar workers placed on "forced leave" because of the strike that he could see no quick end to the strike.

Today's meeting in Québec was called by Claude Bender, the Quebec Labor department's conciliator, after talks he held over the weekend with the opposing sides.

Administrators of the provincial utility met Monday morning in Montreal with their director, Robert Boyd, and said afterwards they were ready to discuss a new collective agreement with the workers today. The previous agreement expired June 4.

Real Labelle, technical advisor to the Confederation of National Trade Unions with which the union is affiliated said some 33 points remain to be thrashed out which were all "most important" to a settlement of the dispute.

The workers are asking for a ten-hour reduction in the 60-hour working week without loss of pay, a five - day week, an increase of 15 cents an hour, and for a one year contract. Their present average hourly earnings are $2.16.

Union Claims Plant Hiding Behind OPP

MILLHAVEN, Ont. (CP)—A union official charged Monday that Canadian Industrial Ltd. is hiding behind the skirts of provincial police in a strike of 750 employees which began at the company's plant here July 15.

Fred Geddes, international representative of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union (CLC), said police surveillance of picket lines at the plant is a waste of taxpayers' money.

He said the company should come to the bargaining table to end the strike which began in support of pay increases of 45 cents an hour. The company has offered 27 to 30 cents.

Mr. Geddes said two sergeants, a corporal and 14 constables from Napanee greeted 16 pickets at three plant entrances Monday.

Millhaven is about 10 miles west of Kingston.

Department Store Sales In July Up

Other gains were 7.1 per cent in the Atlantic provinces, five per cent in Quebec, one per cent in Ontario and 2.4 per cent in Alberta.

Loyalist Days in Town Off to Flying Start

PICTON (Staff) — Picton's Loyalist Days — a week long celebration sponsored by Picton merchants — got off to a flying start Monday with near perfect weather and an hour long parade of colorful floats, costumes, antique cars and novelty vehicles. Picton's population is estimated to have doubled for the day's events with thousands of local residents, tourists and others from the surrounding area crowding the streets and sidewalks of the town. Honky tonk pianos, spontaneous singsongs and colorful old fashioned costumes were evident in all areas of the downtown section.

A live broadcast of the parade and other happenings during the day were covered by Radio Station CJBQ from a vantage point in Rollin Motors Showroom on Picton's Main Street. Operations of a studio in action were watched by many through the showroom windows and taped interviews by CJBQ personnel were conducted.

Of main interest in the long parade were the many beautifully decorated floats entered by local merchants and organizations. Winner of the floats was titled simply "Saturday night" it depicted a family scene of Loyalist years, dressed in appropriate costumes and the many children of that family engaged in a Saturday night bath with mother busy at the scrub board doing a washing. The float was entered by Canadian Tire Corporation and Walt's Men's Wear as a joint enterprise.

Before and after the parade, merchants were selling products from street stalls, at reduced prices, impromptu concerts were staged by the townsfolk and all in all it was a day of gaiety long to be remembered by tourist and local residents alike.

Tuesday is country day — old fashioned days baby show, log sawing contest, milking contests, nail driving contests and a beauty show in the evening.

Firemen fought a losing battle with flames when fire broke out after Loyalist Day parade in Picton late Monday afternoon. They did an admirable job in confining the blaze to one structure which contained stored furniture and other articles belonging to M. Hicks' Furniture Store. The large frame barn was situated behind the store in one of the town's main business blocks in the centre of Main Street.

Storage Barn For Furniture Store Burns

PICTON (Staff) — What could have been a serious blaze was admirably controlled late Monday afternoon by Picton volunteer firemen. With the air of excitement in town following a large and costly Loyalist Days parade most of the spectators, many of them children, were still in the downtown area when the fire broke out about 4:30 p.m. in a storage barn used by Hicks' Furniture stores. The barn was located in the rear of and very close to the Main street store, and crowds of people moved in to see the fire and to some extent hampered the attempts of firemen to gain control of the flames. Unfortunately the fire which appeared to have started in the upstairs portion of the large wooden structure had a really good start and though firemen were early on the scene after the alarm was turned in they could save nothing but the shell of the building.

The roof of the barn caved in after firemen had been fighting the flames for about one-half hour of the time the interior of the structure, which contained new mattresses, and stored furniture, was a raging inferno. The Hicks Furniture store is one of Picton's oldest and is located in a downtown block. Fortunately, only a mild breeze was blowing and it was going in a favorable direction, otherwise a further spreading of the flames would have been very difficult to control and a very important business block in the town might have been lost.

As yet, the full extent of the loss to contents of the building is not known.

FIRE DAMAGE UP

OTTAWA (CP) — Forest fire damage in Canada during June was almost three times as high as in the same month last year, the forestry department estimated Monday. About 215,000 acres were destroyed in June by 1,275 fires compared with 75,000 acres by 1,437 fires in June 1965. Total damage so far this year is 244,000 acres in 2,962 fires compared with 122,000 acres in 2,490 fires last year.

Philippine Nurse Gives Talk to Kiwanis Club

PICTON (Staff) — Picton Kiwanians entertained eight charming young women at their noon luncheon at the Royal Hotel Monday. The young women from the Philippines were some of the new nursing staff at Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital. One of the pretty young nurses was Eufronia Yu, guest speaker for the meeting and she was introduced by Kiwanian Victor Lord.

Miss Yu's enlightening talk was on the country the Philippines are and each of the girls present were an example of her national costume.

Miss Yu ably described her country's geography which takes in some 750,000 square miles (including territorial waters) and boasts some 87 dialects. Population, she said, was approximately 32 million. They have in the past history of the country been governed by the Spanish for three centuries, by the United States for four years and for a time the Japanese Government. Because of the early Spanish influence 85 percent of the population are of Roman Catholic faith.

Miss Yu painted a brilliant picture of the climate, of the food products and industries of that democratic nation. Rice farming, fishing and weaving were the main industries. She also mentioned the country's mining. Family ties are much closer in her country, she went on to explain how children were obligated to look after their parents when they became old and how a member of the Philippines are for their hospitality. They are made to feel welcome in every house.

Miss Yu went on to describe the training procedure for nurses there, how they have to provide their own board and lodging and provide their own books. Government exams also have to be passed following graduation, she said. Miss Yu was thanked by Past President of Kiwanis Neil Lord. Mayor H. J. McFarland, an Honorary Kiwanian, was present for the luncheon and presented each of the nurses with a Maple Leaf lapel pin.

His welcomed them officially to Picton and to Prince Edward County, "I appreciate," he said, "your families allowing you to come to Canada to do such a wonderful job." Words cannot express how much we appreciate you coming here to Picton to help us in our hospital.

There are presently 13 Philippine nurses currently employed on the hospital staff in Picton. The nurses started to arrive here last January. This best they say, is more like home, but as yet "we find it difficult to get used to your Canadian winters."

TORONTO (CP) — A 41-day drought cost Ontario farmers thousands of dollars but was a boon to holiday-makers.

Ray Hergott, manager of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, said Monday that hardest hit by the drought were pasture, hay and corn crops in the central Ontario counties of Durham, Northumberland, Peterborough, Prince Edward and Victoria.

He said farmers' losses would reach into "tens of thousands of dollars" from the drought which lasted from June 16 to July 26, the longest of the century. The previous record was 36 days in 1936.

Meanwhile, the Toronto weather office reported that holidayers in central and southern Ontario had been able to enjoy the best July weather in years with temperatures averaging about two degrees above normal.

Toronto had the sunniest July in 10 years and Ottawa had more hours of sunshine than in any July since 1955.

Total rainfall at Toronto was well below one inch and just over an inch at Hamilton, Centralia and Trenton. Windsor was the exception with four inches during July.

The drought period saw only two small rainfalls of .12 and .05 inches at Guelph. It ended July 27 with .75 of an inch.

Rains have been a general through many of the drought areas since July 26, but more is needed, says W. W. Soper, director of the soils and crops branch of the Ontario department of agriculture.

Many parts of Ontario will not have their usual second cut of hay this year, but the first crop was unusually good and there should be no shortage, Mr. Soper said.

This contrasts with last year when many Ontario farmers were short of feed and the Ontario and federal governments agreed to provide a $12,000,000 subsidy to farmers who had to buy hay.

However, there have been some near-total crop failures as a result of the drought. In Wellington County, strawberries were almost a complete failure, as was the raspberry crop in Northumberland County.

Apples are small and poorly shaped in Northumberland, potatoes are unusually small in Simcoe and in Hastings, the corn crop is 45 per cent of normal and milk production is low.

A survey of southern Ontario Monday showed harvesting of tobacco will be general by the end of the week, and most farmers are optimistic about their crop outlook.

Renfrew County, west of Ottawa, probably is one of the province's most fortunate areas for moisture, says Frank Dench, the county's agriculture representative.

Crops there are the best in at least three years, with hay good. Support was assured Mr. Dench said.

Try Again To Launch 'Moon Lab'

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The U.S. Space Agency plunged to try again today to launch a flying laboratory into orbit around the moon to take clear pictures of the hidden side and nine potential astronaut landing sites.

The spacecraft, called Lunar Orbiter, was scheduled to vault into space under the thrust of an Atlas-Agena rocket in a five-minute period between 4:31 and 7:05 p.m. EDT.

The 850-pound Lunar Orbiter was to zip across its 200,000-mile course in 60 hours, reaching the vicinity of the moon Sunday morning.

About 350 miles from the moon, after two tricky midcourse manoeuvers, ground controllers were to send a signal to ignite a spacecraft motor, slowing it so the camera payload would be caught by lunar gravity and enter an orbit of the moon ranging from 110 to 1,100 miles.

In the high orbit, Lunar Orbiter was to snap pictures of general interest, including a portion of the moon which always faces away from earth.

Pictures of nine possible astronaut landing areas were to wait until the spacecraft dropped into a lower orbit, starting about Aug. 22.

Detroit Scene Of Riots

DETROIT (AP) — An integrated, East Side Detroit neighborhood erupted into 40 minutes of violence Tuesday night as Lansing, 85 miles away, experienced tense calm after two days of racial trouble.

In other racial developments in the United States, angry white youths blocked a civil rights demonstration in Grenada, Miss., Tuesday night while a civil rights march planned for Chicago today was postponed.

In Detroit, a 46-year-old white man stopped his car to retrieve a lob cap knocked off in the stoning and was beaten in the street by Negroes. He was taken to hospital with a cut forehead, bruised right shoulder and foot and had several teeth knocked out.

A total of 150 Detroit police, including 17 cars with riot-trained members of a tactical mobile unit, brought the disturbance under control after four frantic hours.

Meanwhile, Lansing Police Chief Charles Stringer reported "the situation has eased" in a predominantly-Negro west side section where teen-agers tossed firebombs, bricks and bottles at passing motorists for two nights.

SEAL OFF AREA

Police sealed off a 20-block area within walking distance of the area expited in Lansing and from dusk to dawn, barring all non-residents, including reporters.

Roving gangs of white and Negro youths were blamed for the Lansing violence in which four persons were shot, several others were injured and more than a score arrested.

Detroit Police Commissioner Ray Girardin said the trouble involved in the melee with police sparking the Detroit trouble were started when a rock hurled the windshield of a police car and stones rattled against the sides of others as groups of Negroes jeered at officers.

"As far as we're concerned," Girardin said, "it was neither black nor white. Rocks were thrown indiscriminately."

Girardin said the battle started after officers battled a police cruiser at the street corner to break up a group of seven men.

"Four walked away and three stayed," Girardin said. The officers attempted to give loitering tickets to the three men, he said, and they began yelling "this is my neighborhood. I won't be moved." He said one man jumped the officers and the melee started.

Premier Ky Engages in Drive To Win September Elections

Ask More Money for Defence

SAIGON (AP) — Apparently reluctant no longer, Premier Nguyen Cao Ky is warming up to South Viet Nam's elections for a constitutional assembly, now only a month away.

With an air of increasing confidence, the 35-year-old military boss is playing a hard game of domestic politics. Even his critics agree the dapper air vice-marshal is promoting the Sept. 11 elections now, although he only grudgingly accepted the idea last April at the height of a Buddhist crisis.

Ky recently placed his senior colleagues before the press for a comprehensive, rose - tinted state-of-the-nation report — military, political and economic.

He followed up with speeches and public appearances. He has seen a stream of callers, foreign and Vietnamese. He has ordered the military governors of the nation's 43 provinces to call in local notables and explain what the elections are about.

Ky also summoned all province chiefs to Saigon for a three - day election conference, attended by military and civilian leaders. Ky opened the meetings by pledging honest voting, supervised by candidates, civil servants, students and military cadets.

This has given rise to some optimism about the elections. The optimism is most noticeable at the U.S. embassy.

4,097 Ask Leave to Remain But Many Ignore Amnesty

OTTAWA (CP)—The flow of applications by illegal immigrants for permanent residence status in Canada has reached 4,097 since Immigration Minister Marchand's July 8 announcement of a one-month moratorium for all requests received before Aug. 15.

An immigration department official said Tuesday that 2,340 applications had been received from Ontario by Aug. 8. Another 1,156 came from Quebec, 223 from British Columbia, 94 from the Prairie provinces and 30 from the Atlantic provinces.

But since there is a considerable surge of applications there still will be thousands of persons threatened with deportation.

In his July statement, Mr. Marchand said permanent residence status would be granted to persons who entered Canada before the immigration Act, 1952, applied for residence by Aug. 15 and met certain conditions. These included:

—The persons must not fall within the prohibited classes listed in the Immigration Act, such as criminals, security risks and persons of immoral character.

—They must not have entered Canada by any fraudulent means other than posing as visitors;

—They must be acceptable under immigration regulations if they were applying from abroad, or have married a Canadian on or before July 8, or have been employed for eight months or have at least 10 years' schooling.

The department expects only a small number of deportations of persons who apply but fail to meet the qualifications.

However, this still leaves a large number of visitors remaining in Canada illegally. Experts place the number of back-door visitors at 10,000 to 20,000.

Largest number of applicants have come from Greeks and West Indians, by Aug. 8, 923 Greek nationals and 719 West Indians had applied for permanent residence status since the new policy was announced. Of the remainder, 454 came from Italy, 378 from Portugal and 241 from Eastern Europe.

Severe Storm Topples Trees and Power Lines

TORONTO (CP) — Sudden wind storms gusts up to 60 miles an hour whipped into the northwestern end of Lake Ontario Tuesday, collapsing a partially constructed building in Hamilton and toppling trees and power lines.

Four construction workers were injured, two of them seriously, when a one-storey building, located at a Dominion Foundry and Steel Co. site in Hamilton. About 100 workers had gone on a coffee break shortly before the storm struck.

Western Ontario centres experienced rain and thunder but no wind damage was reported in the Windsor, Chatham and London areas.

In Oakville, a gust of wind lifted the roof off a house and buried it at a hydro transformer 100 feet away. Power was shut off in part of the city for about 45 minutes.

The rain at Hamilton were working on girders about 55 feet above the ground when a blast of wind ripped through the partially-completed building's steel skeleton.

Andrew Skye, 29, of RR 2 Ohsweken, was reported in serious condition in hospital with head injuries and a broken left arm. Ted Dagsko, 45, of Hamilton, was also in serious condition with a skull fracture and a broken right leg.

Manford Miller, 36, also of RR 2 Ohsweken, was in good condition with possible head injuries. A fourth man was treated and released from hospital.

Jets Hit 3 Viet Cong, 194 Friends

From AP-Reuters

SAIGON (CP) — U.S. jets bombed and strafed a village in the Mekong Delta Tuesday night killing 15 Vietnamese and wounding 182.

A U.S. spokesman said the attack was ordered by a province chief after U.S. spotter plane was fired on by Viet Cong carrying out propaganda activities in the village.

The spokesman said an account from an American in the area said the Viet Cong held its lagers at gunpoint while two F-100 super sabre jets hit with bombs and 30-millimetre cannon fire.

Three of the victims of the attack were identified as Viet Cong. Reports indicated that almost all the rest of the dead and wounded were Vietnamese villagers.

The attack took place on a hamlet by a canal eight miles from Can Tho, largest town in the Mekong Delta and headquarters of the Vietnamese army 4th corps.

In the central highlands, an outnumbered company of the Korean Tiger Division decimated a Viet Cong battalion of about 800 men in a bitter all-night battle lit by flares from circling American planes.

The Koreans killed 170 soldiers and held the jungle battlefield when dawn came, raking in an unusually high total of 78 Communist weapons.

WERE AFTER VCs

The U.S. spokesman said the waiting Delta air strike was made on the basis of intelligence reports that a Viet Cong company of about 120 men had been sighted there.

It was not yet known how many civilians or children were among the casualties or how many of the survivors were seriously injured, but a full investigation is under way, the spokesman said.

The Communist battalion hit the Koreans late Tuesday night. The Tigers' men fought hand to hand before Korean reinforcements arrived and armored vehicles of the U.S. 25th Infantry Division plowed up in support. Six hours later the Communists retreated into the jungle.

In both North and South Viet Nam, U.S. planes made hundreds of strikes, including a B-52 raid on a suspected troop hideout 40 miles northwest of the South Vietnamese coastal town of Qui Nhon.

Housing Law Gets Approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — The fight over a federal open housing law shifted to the U.S. Senate today after the House of Representatives passed the 1966 civil rights bill with the controversial provision intact.

The bill, which would arm the federal government with broad new powers to protect Negroes' rights, was passed 259 to 157 Tuesday night but it was a fight to the finish for the housing provision.

Republican leaders made a last - ditch effort to kill the proposed ban on racial discrimination by anyone in the housing business, but failed by a vote of 227 to 196.

The house - passed bill would put the government into new areas in the civil rights struggle. Besides seeking to improve housing opportunities for Negroes it would classify as federal crimes a new series of offences involving racial violence.

On one side, the federal government could move against anyone who used force or violence against a Negro or civil rights worker lawfully engaged in any activity sanctioned by federal law.

On the other hand, it also would be a federal crime for anyone to go from one state into another for the purpose of leading, encouraging or taking part in a riot. The antiriot provision was added after the series of racial riots in several northern cities this summer.

Another innovation in the bill is its provision for a jury-trial system of selecting federal jurors. For the first time federal juries would have to select by system that would assure that jurors come from a broad cross - section of the community. Most judicial districts now rely on jurors named by leading citizens.

The bill also would authorize federal court action to end discrimination in juries and juries. In discrimination were proven, an order could be obtained to change the state system of selecting jurors.

Opponents offered nearly 80 amendments during the 32 days the bill was on the House floor. They had to wait for one of the last to score their only real success.

Representative Basil L. Whitener (D e m. N.C.) succeeded in knocking out a provision that would have let the attorney - general initiate court action to desegregate schools. Present law requires him to act only on a written complaint and Whitener's amendment would keep that requirement in effect.

Pearson Deplores Ruling

By BRENDA LARGE

MONTREAL (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson said Tuesday that a recent ruling by the World Court may hold back the extension of compulsory jurisdiction of the court to more countries.

In a speech to more than 1,500 members of the American Bar Association and their wives, Mr. Pearson referred to the court's ruling that Ethiopia and Liberia, acting as members of the former League of Nations, had not established any legal right or interest in their complaints against South Africa's administration of South West Africa.

"The court's inability to come to grips with the merits of the South West Africa case may in the long run have unhappy consequences from the point of view of the progressive development of the rule of law in the international field, which is so vital for the future well-being of the world community."

The court had already declared in 1962, by a narrow majority, that it had the necessary jurisdiction to hear the case.

'ADDS TO DIFFICULTY'

"This adds to the difficulty of appreciating the narrow procedural point on which the decision was based."

The prime minister also said: "The court's decision shows that the international legal system will have to move much farther if the rule of law in international conduct is to become the reliable instrument for regulating relations between states which it has become in modern conditions of individuals within states."

Mr. Pearson, who leaves Ottawa today for a 10-day vacation at the home of friends in Muskoka, Ontario, also made a strong plea for support from all countries for the creation of stable international law.

He said the only security the world can get against nuclear annihilation is "collective security based on collective action and on collective international policy and international law."

Head of Free Thinkers Agrees Group More Popular Than Jesus

LONDON (AP) — The president of Britain's National Secular Society agreed today with Beatle John Lennon and said the mop-haired musicians are more popular than Jesus.

"In his own day Jesus may have been a great preacher," said David Tribe. "Today he is an ancient bore with nothing to teach.

The National Secular Society is a group of free - thinkers. Their publication, started in 1881, is called For the Free Thinker and Tribe is one of its managing directors.

In a printed statement Tribe said:

"But even if Lennon were talking nonsense he has a right to. If it were blasphemy he has a right to blaspheme. Blasphemy is a worn-out crime."

Lennon's statement has led to the banning of the Beatles records from some radio stations in the U.S. and other parts of the world. At least one Canadian station has followed suit.

"Whatever the content of Lennon's remarks," said Tribe, "the Beatles are more popular than Jesus. It's not a question of the intrinsic merits or either. Values can get muddled."

They will appear in Toronto Aug. 17.

Lieutenant-Governor Will Present Trophy to Winner Of Black Diamond Stake

Belleville Fair this year is being extended from the previous four days to a five - day fair, but in some respects the term "five days" is something of a misnomer.

True, the Black Diamond Stake Race and the official opening of the fair is scheduled for Saturday evening Aug. 13th, but contrary to tabbing on the part of many people, the actual fair program doesn't get underway until Monday.

This means there will be no fair midway on Saturday while fair exhibits are not being brought in until Monday, when the general fair program gets underway.

The Honorable Earl Rowe, Lieutenant Governor of Ontario, will officially open the fair Saturday evening and is also expected to present the Black Diamond Cheese Stakes trophy to the winner of the stake race.

LARGE HORSE ENTRY

One of the largest entries of horses and cattle in the history of the fair is expected this year with horse entries already bidding to exceed those of last year, while fair secretary Ev. Gowsell says that heavy entries of sheep and swine and poultry are also coming in.

Conklin's Midway will move in over the week-end in readiness for the Monday fair activities.

The Monday fair program will see judging of the Barrow hog classes and the thrills of Ontario Champion Motorcycle races. Also on Monday will be the annual fair baby show.

World famous Gary Saunders Chuck Wagon races will roll for the fair goers on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, while an added top attraction for the final evening of the fair will be the Fort Henry Guards, who will present their spectacular sunset drill ceremony.

NEW BAND EVERY NIGHT

District Junior Farmers will stage their annual program of events, while judging of cattle and horses and other livestock will be continued throughout the fair.

Each evening of the fair will feature band concerts and parades with a different band each night.

In addition to the livestock and poultry show there will be field and garden exhibits, the usual fine flower show, and displays of home baking and handicrafts.

Local merchants and businesses are taking booth space in the two exhibition buildings, while at Exhibition Hall (Curling Club) there will be the Chamber of Commerce Spectacular where local industries assemble displays of their industrial and commercial exhibits.

And then of course this year there is the "pot of gold" for some lucky lady attendant. There will be a cash attendance prize each day and then on the final evening of the fair there will be the draw for the "pot of gold."

MISSIONARIES ON THE MOVE—Five students of the Scarboro Foreign Missionary Society arrived in Belleville this morning with the intention of visiting homes in the city as part of their Summer Information Campaign. Their motorbikes and guitars have become a trademark and given them their nickname. Seen here are from Don Benninger, Dublin, Ont.; Joe McCoey, Toronto; Mac Burke, Kingston; Bill McCarron, Trenton, N.S.; (left to right) and Eric Burke, French Cove, N.S. (on motorbike) as they reached St. Michael's Church today.

Belleville Is Being Visited By 'Missionaries on Move'

From today until Friday several of the twenty-four Scarboro Foreign Mission Society students, on their "short-term" Information Campaign," will be in the city. Purpose of the visit is to acquaint people with Canada's Catholic missionary effort in foreign lands, particularly underdeveloped countries.

Self-sufficiency characterizes the tour. The students arrive motorbike, carry sleeping gear, and cook their own meals. They usually stay in parish halls, schools, or any other available accomodation.

Scarboro Fathers maintain missions in seven lands but many Canadians know little of their work for the Society has no parishes, hospitals, or schools in Canada. The students will visit homes in two of the city's three Catholic parishes.

The group has visited many Ontario cities so far this summer — they estimate that by the end of the campaign over 60,000 homes will have been contacted. All of the group are students in various stages of training for the priesthood and all will become missionaries on ordination.

They have picked up the sobriquet "Missionaries on the Move" during the tour from their motorbike - riding and folksinging habits.

Construction Slowed by Test Snag

TRENTON — The John Gifford Construction Company has run into a "snag" in the construction of the most westerly pier for the new bridge.

Because test holes indicated the pier could only be sunk 8 feet to rest on solid rock, the wooden molds were constructed accordingly. Further boring revealed the rock base was 43 feet down and now the wooden molds will have to be rebuilt. This phase of the construction has now been taken over by the Dept. of Highways engineers, who will determine the exact depth needed before Gifford will take over again.

Meanwhile, the cement abutment for the westerly approach has been poured and work has started on the easterly abutment.

Workmen of the H. J. McFarland Company are making a sweeping approach to the bridge approach route at Dixon Drive and Sidney Street. Two workmen are engaged in laying an eight inch sanitary sewer along the route, from the Dixon Drive approach to the vicinity of the town sheds on Ontario Street.

Man More Sinned Against Than Sinning

TRENTON — Because evidence seemed to indicate that Joseph Cannon of Metcalfe Street, Trenton, had been more "sinned against than sinning," Magistrate T. Y. Wills dismissed a charge of causing a disturbance by fighting in Trenton court yesterday.

The Crown attempted to prove that Cannon had struck the first blow in a July 11 argument with a neighbor, Mrs. Dorcas Hardwick.

However, evidence proved that Cannon had suffered two face cut, when struck by another neighbor's shoe in the hands of Mrs. Hardwick.

Pleads Guilty On 3 Counts, Fined $45

TRENTON — Local businessman Harry Seymour pleaded guilty to three charges of failing to file a sales tax return and one at failure to pay the tax for one month in Trenton court yesterday and was fined $10 apiece on the first two counts and $25 on the third.

Mr. Seymour also gave the court a certified cheque for the unpaid tax, $366.28.

Breaks Parole, Given 6 Months

TRENTON — Four recent violations of terms of parole, resulted in a six months' sentence in reformatory for Middleton Park youth, Albert Yeatman.

Magistrate T. Y. Wills told the 17-year-old youth in Trenton court yesterday that he had "used what he said," when he told him any further violations would lead to him dealing with time in the breaking and entering charge for which the youth received a two-year probationary sentence Aug. 30, 1965.

"You have made a joke of the law — or at least defied it," the magistrate told Yeatman, in sentencing him to six months definite and six months indeterminate.

Smoke But No Fire

TRENTON — Trenton firemen spent half an hour checking the premises of the Vogue Beauty Salon at 75 Dundas Street West yesterday afternoon when smoke was noticed in the building. However, no cause for the smoke was found.

Bush Fire in Tyendinaga Keeps City Firemen Busy

Belleville firemen pumped over 6,000 gallons of water on a bush fire in Tyendinaga Township yesterday afternoon and evening before it was under control.

The fire, which started on the property of James Kehoe, lot 20, on the Sixth Township Concession, was reported in the local fire department just before five o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Two Belleville Fire Department trucks and their crews were at the scene of the blaze until after two a.m. this morning. Firefighters also made use of a bulldozer in forming fire breaks to impede the fire's progress.

Chief Poste of the Belleville Fire Department said today that last evening's rainfall came as a blessing to the firefighting effort. The rain dampened the parched ground and enabled firemen to hold the fire under control just when it appeared that a nearby church and settlement would be lost. Neighboring residents also proved of great assistance in the firefighting chore.

Although no actual property damage was incurred, an area five hundred yards in width and about a half a mile long was scorched by the fire.

Kiwanians Told About Trucking

Kiwanian Max Haggarty was the speaker at the regular meeting of the Belleville Kiwanis Club yesterday. A principal in the Lafferty-Smith Express Lines, Ltd., of Belleville, Mr. Haggarty gave an informative address on the trucking industry. The Haggarty family has been in the trucking business since 1930, when a start was made in the Village of Wooler. Since then, the trucking industry has shown a great deal of growth and the Haggartys have continued to operate successfully.

Mr. Haggarty was introduced by W. L. McDougall and thanked, on behalf of the club, by William Stewart.

Don Davenport, chairman of the Key Club Committee, introduced Rod Ridley, president of the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School Key Club ,and Lynn Herrington, Quinte Secondary School, who is Lt.-Gov. of Division 6A of Key Clubs.

Rod Ridley described the trip he and Lynn Herrington made to Chicago in June for the International Key Club Convention.

Reporting on the Sheltered Workshop of Belleville, which is located on the ground floor of the Hillcrest Centre, R. G. Summers noted the sales figures for the second quarter of 1966 were "an all time high." Sales for the second quarter amounted to $8,476 to bring the total for the first half of 1966 to $12,078.

Police Claim Murder Ring In Existence

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal police said today an investigation into the existence of a gang of hired killers in Quebec has been launched in Montreal and may spread to other provinces as well as Quebec centres.

"We know this ring exists in the east end of Montreal," said Det.-Lieut. Jacques Parizeau of the Montreal police. "A few guys belong to a big gang and if they're not satisfied with a person they arrange for him to disappear."

The investigation was launched after the body of Mrs. Jean-Guy Lauzière was found in a one-filled grave 75 miles north of Montreal. She had been reported missing in January, 1965.

A man provincial police said led them to the grave is being held as a material witness for a coroner's inquest, expected next week.

Hydro Emblem Incorporated Into Beautiful Floral Design

Hydro gardener, Marten Myswart is the man behind the display. Russell Joyce, forestry supervisor, explained, "The Hydro adopted a new symbol this year and A. M. Pedersen, manager, eastern region, decided it would be a good idea to incorporate this symbol into our floral design."

And so it began.

First the plans have to be drawn. "It has to be geometrically right," Mr. Joyce said.

Next consideration is the choice of planting materials. In the floral symbol alone, there are 850 plants; 400 Festuca Glauca blue plants, 325 red Alternanthera, and 125 yellow Alternanthera.

The design of the arrangement is much the same as other hydro displays at Niagara Falls and Cornwall. In fact, the flowers were grown in the Hydro hothouses in Niagara Falls.

Once the plans are laid out and the elevation has been designed (the mound is 6" at high at the back) then things are ready to roll.

It took Mr. Myswart a full day to construct the eight-foot square bed. Then he staked it out with dozens of long, just inches apart, to act as guide lines for planting.

A fine gardening trowel was used to plant the individual potted plants 3½ inches a part. Marten started planting in the centre and worked out towards the edges.

GROWS NEW PLANTS

Marten said, "A certain number of plants will be saved, but many will be lost. I take cuttings of the plants and grow new plants in the green houses for next year."

He said that Alternanthera won't stand frost. "We're going to try to protect it this fall by putting a plastic cover over it."

Mr. Joyce explained, "If we can get past the first killing frost, we usually have four or five more weeks of good weather—before the next one. We want it to last as long as possible.

"It's a 'living symbol' he said. "Many tourists stop out front to take pictures of it."

Marten takes meticulous soil tests and clips it every week with an electric hedge clipper. It is fed with a liquid commercial balanced fertilizer every two weeks.

Marten has been looking after the gardening there since the building was constructed in 1958. "It used to be pretty rough looking when we first started," he said. "It was an old orchard and was quite a mess."

Now the "mess" is one of the nicest lawns and flower displays in Belleville.

There are 300 evergreen, rose and flowering shrubs; 6,000 tulips (1,200 each of five varieties — peach blossom, electra, Mr. van der beetl, orange harsaus and Schoonard — all double early); 400 perennius; 325 snapdragons; and 250 pansies.

A BIG JOB

Looking after so many flowers and the large lawn is a big job, but Marten is an expert gardener, and, as one look to dictates, manages well.

The annual plants are replaced every year naturally, but every two years, and the shrubs must be pruned properly every year.

"The big problem," Marten explains, "is to keep everything green. I can only sprinkle twice a week, on Tuesdays and Thursdays and actually, the lawn could stand sprinkling every day in order to keep it green."

How does he keep it green? Fertilizer. "Without it, the lawn would be brown," Marten said. "We use 1½ tons of fertilizer every year. I spread it twice, first in the early spring and then in September."

Mr. Joyce said, "This type of display is called mass planting. You'd be surprised how many flowers it takes to make a decent showing.

"Martef is extremely proud of his work. He is meticulous about his edgings and the appearance of the display. He keeps the hedges all even.

"He has the knack of bringing out the color, of showing off the best points of plant material. He can really do things with plants."

ALSO TENDS LAWNS

Besides looking after the gardening at the Hydro headquarters here, Marten also tends the lawns and flowers at five rural distributing stations in the district.

As if he doesn't have enough to do, he works 2½ acres of his own on the second of Sidney. He specializes in strawberries and raspberries.

Marten's success or green thumb is no accident. It comes from long years of experience in the business.

He left school in Holland, when he was 14 and worked in market gardening for years until 1950 in Holland. During the German occupation he worked in a factory, but in 1943 he was back into market gardening.

"Things were pretty tough in market gardening in Holland before the war," he said. "We worked from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. for 15 guilders a week. (About $7). In the winter time there was no work at all for us."

He came to Canada in 1949 and worked on a farm near Trenton for two years. Then he worked on construction for 1½ years before starting with Ontario Hydro's Forestry Department in 1953. He's been there since.

And now the Hydro building is one of the most attractive spots in the city.

VIKINGS CAME

Remains of Viking settlements almost 1,000 years old have been found on the northern tip of Newfoundland and in Labrador south of Hamilton Inlet.

Small Twister With Sharp Lightning Strikes District, Power Failures Reported

A small twister which flashed briefly through the area at the height of yesterday afternoon's sudden rain and electrical storm caused power interruptions in the city and in the rural area east of Belleville.

Public Utilities officials said the heavy wind cut through the northeast part of the city affecting a strip along the 3rd and 4th concessions of Thurlow and cut into Tyendinaga township.

Tree limbs were knocked down cutting hydro service which in some instances was not restored until about 11 p.m.

IN NARROW PATH

In a brief period of minutes .29 inch of rain fell over the city but the storm apparently skuck only a narrow path. A Shannonville resident said only a few drops fell there while one resident in the south rural area of Tyendinaga said there was only wind with no rain at all received.

In the city a few fuses were blown in the College west area, while power was off for almost two hours in the South Front street area.

The heavy but brief rainfall filled gutters to overflowing and also served to cut the humidity which yesterday made living uncomfortable.

Youth Suffers Shoulder and Chest Injuries

A one-car accident on the Sandbanks-Outlet Road near Picton last night sent a Trenton youth to hospital with shoulder and chest injuries.

The vehicle, driven by Thomas Norman Thompson of London, Ontario, apparently went out of control as it was rounding a bend in the road.

The Picton detachment of the O.P.P. are investigating the mishap which occured around 8 o'clock last evening.

Pakistan Arming

Canada has only itself to blame if it feels upset over the sale of some 90 Canadian-built F-86 Sabre jets to Pakistan.

The jets originally were sold to West Germany, which subsequently obtained permission from Ottawa to re-sell them to Iran. The Iranians, through the Germans, gave an undertaking not to re-sell the aircraft.

Now, Iran apparently has broken this agreement, which is scarcely surprising in view of the tenuous control Ottawa exercised over the deal through a third party, namely the West Germans. It may also be wondered in passing how Iran could afford to part with such a sizeable number of military aircraft, unless it is re-equipping its own air force with more modern planes.

Obsolete as it is by modern standards, the Sabre nevertheless is a formidable aircraft. Together with Soviet-built MIG jets acquired from China, it could give Pakistan an edge in any further encounters with India.

That is the reason behind Ottawa's embarrassment over the deal, and the reason for questions being asked of the West Germans who acquired the Sabres in the first place.

Pakistan now may be tempted to break the truce with India. In fact, Indian Defence Minister Y. B. Chavan says that Pakistan is arming "at a frantic rate," with Chinese assistance, and has recouped the losses in arms and equipment sustained in the fighting with India last September.

The evidence of Chinese assistance is ominous, although not surprising since the two countries had been drawing closer even before the frontier conflict last fall. At the same time Pakistan's ties with the West and the Commonwealth have weakened perceptibly.

This is the real danger of any renewed arms race between Pakistan and India — that it is being inspired by Peking as part of its own grand design for ultimate domination of the region.

The Auto—a Symbol

Canada, this continent, more so than in Europe, the car has become virtually the be all and end all of existence. Try to imagine life without cars — the fantastic and insidious growth of the United States auto industry," as an American delegate once termed them with refreshing candor at a European conference.

Surprisingly, Europe is as crowded with the four-wheeled monsters as highways here, but in Canada, as in the United States, they come into the hands of the younger generation much more easily than in the old world. Paid for or not — monetary attachment perhaps far out of sight — the auto is surely the age status symbol of the day. Style and power, flowing lines and twin carburetors, these are matters of some consequence to modern youth. But psychologists say the modern chariots otherwise — as extensions of human personality, props if you like, to compensate for the sense of inadequacy that afflicts most people at one time or another, and those of tender years in particular.

But human beings today are no different than in the days of the Roman legions. Only the vehicle has changed. The Romans acted out their derring-do in chariot races and "spectacles" the men off to war in far-off places. Today's youth, with their cars, and their vast disrespect for (or ignorance of) the lethal nature of the beast they seek to control, are merely acting out the same primitive urges. The only difference is that most of them are being killed off annually by this insatiable lust for speed and exhibitionism (here and in the United States) than by the Romans in their many warlike excursions across Europe.

Thus, the automobile is not only a convenience, but a symbol, a monster of many parts, literally and figuratively. Among other things it can be a disturber of the peace, as is increasingly the junior partner, the motorcycle.

The experience of a Toronto woman, Miss Josephine von Zalinski illustrates the point. "I have always considered the beach to be a place of relaxation, with its pleasant combination of sun, sand and sea," she says in a letter to The Globe and Mail. But not so, it seems at Wasaga Beach.

"On a weekend trip I found a beach cluttered with cars that formed a continual day-long parade of young drivers aimlessly roving back and forth, together with motorcyclists gunning their engines and racing down the sand. . ."

Miss von Zalinski observed sadly that it was all reminiscent of the "Yorkville-Avenue Road-Bloor street promenade area."

In what is supposed to be a growing age of leisure, such scenes as this one at Wasaga is a reflection of the restlessness of our time, a sense of insecurity among youth and a need to channel their very youthfulness into more positive spheres of thought and action. And that is something which should be occupying the thoughts of educationists, social workers and recreation directors.

To Your Good Health

No Need for Taking Strange Precautions

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My aunt, who has kidney trouble and dropsy, is coming to live with us. How soon after I paint some rooms can she move in? A week or two?

She can't eat pork, but is it true that I won't be able to cook ham, bacon, etc., after she moves in?

Also, is it true that I can't use bleach, ammonia, perfume or household deodorants after she moves in? — Mrs. H. K.

• • •

Those are curious questions Mrs. H. K. Who says you can't cook ham, use bleach or ammonia or perfume, etc? Auntie? Or somebody else?

I see no reason — healthwise, that is — why she shouldn't move in as soon as the paint is dry, the same as anyone else would.

If her doctor tells her not to eat pork, I'd advise that she follow his advice but there's no reason why you can't cook it, or eat it, or hang it on the chandelier if you are so inclined. It won't harm her.

The same goes for all these other things you inquire about. It won't harm her if you use them in the house.

You should get authoritative instructions from your aunt's doctor. If she is ill as your letter indicates, she certainly must have a physician. Find out all from him what precautions, if any, are necessary on your part. Then ignore any other silly business that you may be told.

My suspicion is that auntie herself, or perhaps some crony of hers, has listed all these fables and tried to represent them as fact or "medical advice."

If that is the case, I'd make one more suggestion. Get the facts from the doctor and stick to them right from the beginning. Otherwise there will be no end to the pointless things which you supposedly "must do" or "must not do," and auntie's whims will rule the roost.

I'm in favor of families sticking together and caring for one another, but some pat ents with chronic ailments use their "health" as an excuse to become despots.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: Does harelip run in families? Is its cause known? — B. H.

It sometimes (far from always) runs in families. It results from failure of tissues to knit together when the fetus (unborn baby) is forming. But the reason for this failure to knit is not clear.

Harelip can and should be repaired very early, often at the age of about three months.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: I would like your opinion on a home remedy that a friend uses to prevent uric acid and hence gout. It is a mixture of b a n a n a and apple vinegar. He claims he has used this for a couple of years with such excellent results that he could quit taking probenecid. — E. S.

That honey-and-vinegar combination has had an unforgivable amount of publicity. It's about as useful as the mixtures old medicine show quacks peddled as being good for man or beast, to prevent mange, bunions, arthritis, neuritis, the heaves, colic and leprosy.

If your friend wants to kid himself into thinking honey and vinegar are preventing him from gout, I guess he's entitled to, but I note that he says he "could" quit taking probenecid. He "could," but he hasn't.

Another Step To the Moon

Montreal Gazette

The United States has succeeded in its third attempt to achieve a "docking" or "rendezvous" in space.

The first experiment was a partial success, but had to be curtailed; the second experiment could not proceed, because a canopy on the Agena rocket did not separate. But this attempt has gone forward essentially as planned, although with greater use of fuel than had been expected.

"Docking" will be one of the most important manoeuvres in the eventual flight to the moon. Unless a smaller rocket can dock with a larger with flawless accuracy, the moon will be a failure, and astronauts will be left stranded in space.

As far as is known, the Soviet Union has not yet carried out a successful docking experiment. This indicates that the United States has achieved a scientific sophistication and accuracy in this vital field which the Russians cannot yet match, in spite of their other triumphs. And this means that the "space race" itself has no obvious winner.

The United States is now in a position to devise more difficult forms of docking, and to proceed to a greater degree of simulation of the manoeuvres that will be necessary on the moon trip. And because of progress in other planes of its space program, it will be able to carry out these new experiments with larger capsules, launched by more powerful rockets.

It will still be a few years before there are men on the moon. But the success of Gemini 10 means that another crucial milestone has been passed in the step by step progress towards that objective.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Aug. 10, 1966 . . .

The Liberals were returned to power in the federal election 13 years ago today—in 1953 — becoming the first party in Canadian history to win majorities in five consecutive elections. Under Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent, the party captured 171 of the 265 seats, losing 10 each to the Conservatives and the CCF but still dominating Parliament completely. The Liberals' string of election victories had begun in 1935, under R. L. Mackenzie King, and ended in 1957.

1945 — Japan offered unconditional surrender.

Avant Garde Art Is "In"

Windsor Star

Longhairs doubtless were delighted to read at the weekend that the Canada Council shamefully intends to give "avant garde" developments more attention. And, apparently, more money. The federal government having kicked in handsomely last year a year ago, the council is in a position to splurge a bit.

What the end product of this stimulation will be one can only guess. Talent is a supernatural gift and only the cliff-dweller type of mind would want to restrain it. But a craze for distorting, in any form, is not a mark of the gifted. A monkey with a paint-brush or hammer and chisel can distort but that doesn't make him an artist or sculptor.

The Canada Council has helped a considerable number of young men and women to the high degree of accomplished specialization. That is splendid. Good minds emerge from this training as even better minds. But here we are dealing with highly intelligent people who in one way or another can teach what they have learned.

Daubs and distortions are not of intellectual level of ability, no matter how many "ohs" and "ahs" are sounded by them by those who don't want to appear lacking in aesthetic tae. The opinion of 5 Michelangelos could be worth to the point and it probably would be devastating.

But on with the avante garde pump-priming, since that appears to be the indicated direction of things. Anyway. The end product, however, should have some reasonable excuse for its existence.

Clamps Down On Cyclists

Peterborough Examiner

In Lindsay recently Magistrate Ian Munro convicted three motor-cyclists on a charge of speeding traffic. During the comments he said: "There has been a lot of publicity, most of it deserved, concerning these jacketed motor-cyclists. There is no doubt that most people connect motor-cyclists with black jackets and violence." In rebuttal, one of the accused replied: "Because all motor-cyclists' jackets and helmets we are not punks."

This argument will never be settled perhaps. There is a severe public prejudice against motor-cyclists, not all of which is deserved. This prejudice sometimes leads motorists to give less than ordinary courtesy to people riding motor-cycles and, in the event of a subsequent dispute about it, for the courts to support the bias.

In Peterborough there is the possibility that this situation will change. We have in the area a gifted and recent purchaser of a motor-cycle (though not, we understand, of a leather jacket) in the President and Vice Chancellor of Trent University, Prejudice in this instance would be very difficult to sustain.

Strictly Personal

Want to Change Your Name?

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

My younger son, David, needed a new belt to hold up his ragged blue-jeans for the summer. He asked for one with a buckle that was initialled "J". I asked him why, and he said, "Because I want to be called Jim, that's why."

Possibly "Jim" strikes him as a more virile name than "David," or perhaps he is following the adventures of some comic-strip hero with that name. Whatever the reason, it seems to be a fact that most young people are dissatisfied with the names their parents have given them.

This is true not only in America, it seems. A French college student, writing her master's thesis, interviewed nearly 600 French college-girls and learned that 55 percent of them disliked their own first names. She is currently campaigning for a statute that would permit young girls to change their name at the age when they reach majority.

The Chinese have long had such a system. When a baby is born, it is given a "milk-name," which is only provisional, and either the child or the parents have the right to change it in later years. For fashions change in names as much as in dress, and what seems chic to one generation is incredibly square to the next.

When I was growing up, such girls' names as "Lizzie" and "Maggie" and "Sarah" were thought to be ridiculously common and old-fashioned; today they are most soignee, and the so-called "fancy" names of my youth are laughably pretentious. All the Sarahs I knew changed their names to Shirley or Sharon, but the whirligig of fashion pulled ahead of them, and the Shirleys and Sharons were soon displaced by Sarahs.

It is amusing to note, also, what happens among ethnic groups when names are changed. As I was growing up, many of the little Jewish boys were being named "Howard" and "Sheldon" and "Sherman" and "Bruce," to get away from the stereotypes of Old Testament names that had long burdened Jewish lads.

But then, just as suddenly, the style changed, and Biblical names became most fashionable — Joshua and Aaron and Ezra and Adam began popping up in the social columns, and all the Howards and Sheldons became irrevocably typed as the kind of thing their parents had tried to avoid.

"Sydney" was considered an extremely name when I was a middle-classes in England when I was born there; but its vogue was brief, and it very soon relegated to vast unpopularity as a name by which the lower orders were trying to put on airs. Next to "Clarence" and "Harold" it remains my most unfavorite masculine name.

It seems eminently fair that young people should be given the opportunity to change their names as they grow into adolescence; but they should also be advised that the name they choose at 16 may be hopelessly passe when they are 40 — and the name their parents gave them may once again be the big thing with the in-group.

Clothes and One's Health

German Features

German doctors voiced their opinions on the dictatorship of fashion styles in a recent medical convention in Westerland on the North Sea island of Sylt. "If the long run, health impairments cannot be avoided," proper clothing is worn," Hamburg hygiene expert Professor Effenberger stressed and then listed an entire "register of sins" caused by poor clothing habits. Experience has proven that many materials do not let enough air through and thus cause excessive body vaporization. In addition, the current shoes and suits are often much too tight and close and the encumbrance of shoes, stockings, collars and hats too great. Women usually dress too lightly whereas men usually dress, who usually wear six to eight pounds of clothing in the summer and up to a total of clothing in the winter, have too much on.

Above all, Professor Effenberger found fault with the modern industry in its unconscious Western Europe for its disregard of possible health impairments. The result is that today 95 per cent of all women have deformed feet. 80 per cent of all first-grade school children wear shoes that are too narrow and pointed so that later foot deformities can be reckoned with. During an extensive examination carried out in German schools, orthopedists discovered that every fourth girl between ten and twelve years of age had foot deformities. Shoes are not the wrong type of shoe. Mass shoe production forces the foot of the into a standard form that leaves but little room for individual diversities. The doctors appealed to mothers to make sure that their children's shoes were sufficiently large and comfortable, though possibly not as stylish.

Fact or Fiction

Victoria Times

Some devotees of the Arthurian legends will look with certain misgivings on the "dig" started by archaeologists to determine whether there was in fact a piece of real estate located at Glastonbury.

Does it matter if the version of Dame Malvinas, done written by Tennyson from the Malory sources is pure fiction? Does it matter that the Round Table was more substance to the stories than the engaging variations on the theme pursued by Mark Twain?

Arthur and the knights of the Round Table have come down to us as an idea and an ideal. Dig up enough dirt, and who's to say that the artistic image of knighthood in flower won't be all muddled up?

Let's leave it with Galahad riding of fin quest of the unattainable — which is a pretty good inspiration whether or not Galahad ever existed.

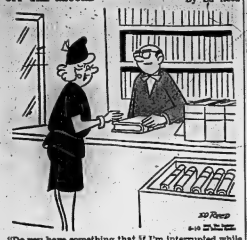
U.S. Curbs Farm Budget

Minneapolis Star

Republican congressmen and farm organizations have been lambasting the administration over attempted cut-backs in the agricultural budget and over Secretary Freeman's farm policials. That many Democrats also are critical was shown when the House more than restored the cuts.



Of course, there is sometimes a political motive at eye in Washington. Told by a President to trim a budget, a cabinet officer can usually engineer it cuts in the expectation that the outcry will induce Congress to restore all of the cuts.

That may not have been Agriculture Secretary Freeman's technique, but when the House wanted the full programs for cotton, milk and lunches, research and land grants, college instructional aid, soil conservation payments, rural electrician loans, etc. For good measure, the critics continue to complain about tighter controls on wheat exports, looser control on cheese imports, reduced milling of wheat for flour.

What agitationists Farm spokesmen even more is the alleged effort to make farmers the fall guys for inflation. The Administration spokesmen buy cheaper foods; Freeman predicted a drop in food prices and Agriculture Assistance Secretary Gardner Ackley said the Government was selling corn to hold down prices.

Farm income is up. In Minnesota the index of prices received was the last one in April since 1954. But it was still only 92 per cent of the 1947-49 average. And in terms of parity, American farm prices last month were only 80 per cent of that magic goal.

What is happening is that demand — domestic and export — is catching up with some lines of farm production. Such conditions tend to improve the farmer's lot. But not very fast.

"Do you have something that if I'm interrupted while reading it, I won't mind putting it down?"

RAISING OF PENNANT ON MAST HEAD signals change of command at Canadian Forces Base, Trenton. Group Captain D. R. Adamson's pennant was raised yesterday during impressive ceremonies at CFB, Trenton. G/C Adamson succeeds G/C E. M. Butcher who now becomes Director of Service Conditions and Welfare at Canadian Forces Headquarters, Ottawa.

Colorful Ceremony Marks Changing of Command at Canadian Forces Base

TRENTON — Group Captain D. R. Adamson became Base Commander of Canadian Forces Base, Trenton, yesterday in an impressive ceremony watched by a large group of spectators. G/C E. M. Butcher, Commanding Officer since August, 1963 and the first to hold the title of Base Commander here, led the 450-man parade before turning over his command to G/C Adamson.

Immediately following the change of command ceremonies, G/C Butcher and his family left for Ottawa in a 437 Squadron aircraft. At Ottawa, G/C Butcher will be Director of Service Conditions and Welfare at Canadian Forces Headquarters.

Prior to assuming command of CFB, Trenton, G/C Adamson was officer commanding 437 (Transport) Squadron here. He was promoted to his present rank on July 31, 1966.

Parade Comander G/C Butcher led the Wing, made up of three squadrons of three flights each, in a march-past with G/C Adamson taking the salute. Providing the martial music was the CFB Pipe and Drum Band.

After the Wing was formed up in close column, G/C Adamson approached G/C Butcher and the two exchanged salutes before moving to a table where they signed handing over and taking over certificates. Then, G/C Butcher's pennant was lowered from the mast head and the pennant of G/C Adamson was raised.

BRIEF ADDRESSES

In a brief address, G/C Butcher described his successor as a fine officer and a very good friend. He said that when he assumed command of the base, it was his hope that he would never have to leave "but like death and taxes, the day had to come."

"My family and I will treasure the many friendships we have made here. Your loyalty and support will always be remembered. The years spent here have been the most wonderful of my career."

G/C Adamson observed that it was "a great honor and a privilege to succeed G/C Butcher."

"G/C Butcher can be proud of his accomplishments here. This is a momentous occasion for me and it is with a deep sense of humility that I take command.

"My family and I are looking forward to remaining in the Trenton area. This is indeed a friendly community. All of us agree that Trenton is the cradle of our service. There have been many changes in the service over the years and we are now on the threshold of the greatest change — integration. We must approach this tremendous task with loyalty to ourselves as well as to our country. It can succeed if we give it our best effort. What I — will do for Canada is the important thing. I have no doubt that it will be accomplished."

The end of the colorful ceremony was signalled by an air salute as two Yukon and one Hercules aircraft teamed up in a north to south flypast over the parade square.

Guests at the handing over ceremony included Belleville Mayor Jack Ellis and Mrs. Ellis, Trenton Mayor James MacDonald, Lee Grills, M. P. Hastings South, and Mrs. Grills, Norris Whitney, M.P.P. Prince Edward-Lennox, and Mrs. Whitney, Bennett Rowe, M.P.P. Northumberland - Durham, and Mrs. Rowe, Picton Mayor Harvey J. McFarland and Mrs. McFarland; Clayton Hall, Warden of Hastings County, and Mrs. Hall, Harold Bonter, Warden of Prince Edward County, and Mrs. Bonter.

Also present were Lt. Col. K. D.H. Willcocks, Commanding Officer of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, and Mrs. Willcocks, Lt. Col. and Mrs. J.W.G. Haynes, and from Belleville, Mr. and Mrs. R.W.G. Frenstone, Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Woodley, Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Bradley, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Gibbons and Mr. and Mrs. G. Mc Isaac.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Adamson of Islington were present as were Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Holmes of Ottawa, Mr and Mrs. F. S. Symes of Scarborough, Mr. and Mrs. T. Hetherington of Trenton, W/C and Mrs. F. Pearce of Ottawa; G/C and Mrs. H. A. Morrison of Trenton, Major and Mrs. R. Robinson of Picton, Captain and Mrs. H. G. Bould, G/C J. R. Romanow, G/C and Mrs. E. F. Bridgland, W/C and Mrs. R. K. Acheson and Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Caverly.

Bringing Up Baby

RECIPE COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN HEISER, MOTHER OF 5

A nice doctor I know told me recently: "Of course baby care is a serious business but sometimes mothers take it too seriously. As a consequence, they often develop a kind of grim meanness which is easily transmitted to a baby and the baby may develop a corresponding meanness. The mothers who laugh with their babies, and at themselves occasionally, are the most successful ones."

Points to remember, Grim determination to see that baby "licks the platter clean" may turn a naturally eager eater into a meal-time rebel. Food served with a smile usually gets a good reception.

There'll be baby-asellen to spare when the menu features a Gerber Strained or Junior Meal Dinner. For these hearty dishes have 3 times as much nourishment meat as our regular combination dinners. More meat means more protein, to help baby grow. Add to this extra meat, garden-good vegetables and subtle seasoning and you have "casserole dishes" with

NO COMMITMENT

NEW YORK (AP) — Senator Robert F. Kennedy said Tuesday night that despite three years of sporadic race riots, the United States "as a government" has not "made the kind of commitment . . . necessary to deal with the problems of the ghetto." Speaking on a recorded WCBS television documentary, the New York Democrat said it seems almost as if "we are waiting for even a greater catastrophe before we are willing to take the step."

Computer Will Be Used In the Marriage Market

LONDON (Reuters) — The computer, so vital to many aspects of 20th century life, now is to be used in the marriage market.

A new non-profit-making company has announced it will employ a computer to pair off likely life-mates.

The company, which hopes to register as a charity, will be known as Project Match, for Psychological Assessment of Compatible Traits.

"We think this will be the most complete thing of its kind anywhere in the world," said Morton. "We hope it will improve the happiness of marriage for many people.

"Failing in love is a highly human business and one with which the computer has nothing to do.

"What we say is that personality has a good deal to do with the relationship between man and woman and therefore let us try to assess personality. We simply say that certain people are likely to find themselves compatible."

People wishing to use the new service will be sent a form with 207 questions.

SPECIAL QUESTIONS

It will contain obvious questions about racial grouping, income, religious belief and health. But psychiatrists have devised other questions to assess personality—such as:

Do you often long for excitement?

Does your mood often go up and down?

Were you allowed all your own way as a child?

Morton believes people will answer the questions because they know a computer, not a man or woman, will deal with them. He thinks people will be more frank than they might be at marriage bureaus which are appearing all over Britain, a country with about 35,000 divorces a year.

The answers will be fed into the computer which then will suggest a partner with matching characteristics.

The fee for all this—about $30.

Applicants will be offered one name every two months for a year.

Friend Informs Her She Looks Like Hubbie

DEAR ANN: If I am an overly-sensitive fool, please tell me. I am going to relate, word for word, what a friend of mind said to me recently and I would appreciate your opinion of what was behind her remarks — if anything.

Out of the clear, blue sky Susan (not her real name) said, "Do you know that if you put on Al's clothes (Al is my husband) you would look exactly like him? You are so masculine in appearance I can't get over it."

ANN LANDERS

I was shocked but changed the subject and said nothing. (What was there to say?) Then she repeated the same remark at a bridge club three days later — in the presence of seven other women.

Nobody said a word and I wanted to go through the floor. It is true I am 5 feet 11 inches tall and large-boned, but I have always carried my height well and never felt that I looked like a man.

I like Susan very much and don't understand what she is trying to do. Do you? — TEMPER RISING.

DEAR TEMPER: I cannot recall ever having heard a more tactless remark. By no stretch of the imagination can this woman be considered a friend.

If she brings up the subject again ask her what she is trying to prove. And let me know, will you please?

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our seven-year-old son had to have some teeth filled. The dentist gave him a shot of novocain first and the needle scared the boy to death.

The dentist drilled a hole in the room with the child and he began to fuss when the dentist came towards him with another needle. I tried to calm him but the dentist pushed me aside and told me not to "interfere."

He began to jerk the boy's head from side to side and slapped his hands — all the while yelling for him to behave. Is it necessary for a dentist to scream at children and slap them? Please comment. — AMAZED MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER: Some dentists, no matter how competent, do not have the temperament or disposition to work with children. Obviously, this dentist should limit his practice to adult patients who can stop back. Make a change.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Maybe a lot of smart people write you, but you hear a lot of nuts, too. Witness that letter from the wife who complained because her husband complimented her in front of company. If she lives in Memphis, ask her to send her complimentary husband to me and I'll let her have my niece.

Kelly and I have been married for 24 years and if he ever told me I looked nice, or that a meal was good, I'd die of shock. I could shave my head and put a ring in my nose and he wouldn't notice.

Just to test him I once put a bandage around my head and he didn't say a word. Finally I asked him if he wanted to know why my head was bandaged. He said he thought it was a new hair style.

Kelly doesn't drink, smoke, gamble, cheat, swear, stay out at night or blow his pay cheque. I honestly think I'd let him have any of these vices in exchange for a few compliments now and then. Am I crazy? — TENNESSEE WIFE.

DEAR WIFE: It isn't what a man says that counts — but how he treats a woman. And I'd say your man treats you pretty good. Incidentally, do you ever complement him? One hand does wash the other.

Beatrix Potter's Book Emerged From Private Hell of Her Childhood

LONDON (AP) — Remember the peaceful world of Peter Rabbit and his friends Flopsy, Mopsy and Cottontail?

The books emerged from the private hell of the childhood and youth of their creator, Beatrix Potter. Her secret diary was published recently, 100 years after her birth.

From the ages of 14 to 30 Beatrix Potter wrote the journal entirely in code. The 200,000 words were deciphered by Leslie Linder, an engineer with a lifelong fondness for Miss Potter's work.

She was raised in a strict Victorian household of great luxury and ideness. She described her parents as "choleric, hate - headed matter-of-fact folk." She never went to school and had no friends of her own age.

Her father kept her on a tiny allowance, and was "consistently on the lookout for matters of complaint."

She suffered constantly from headaches and "odious fits of low spirits" — a common ailment of daughters of the well-to-do in Victorian England who were given little to do except stay home.

At 17, she wrote: "I have begun the dark journey of life. Will it go on as darkly as it has begun?"

At 30, she still felt an ugly duckling: "I wonder why I never seem to know people. It makes one wonder whether one is presentable."

Through these years, she was studying natural history and biology and going to London art galleries. She gradually developed the watercolor style which illustrated her children's books in such detail.

In the fourth - floor nursery of her parents' London home, which became her room, she classified fossils and studied fungi. Her diary: "I cannot rest, I must draw, however poor the result . . . I can't settle to anything but my painting. I lose patience over everything else . . . I will do something sooner or later."

She did. The Story of Peter Rabbit was refused by several publishers and at last it had to be printed privately in 1901. It sold for about 25 cents a copy. Among those who praised it was Arthur Conan Doyle, creator of Sherlock Holmes. Soon she got a publisher — Warne, the company now publishing her diary — and the book was successful.

It is still being bought by parents.

At 47 she married a lawyer named Heelis, settled on a farm to raise sheep and never wrote again.

Much Help Available For Today's Celiacs

DEAR DORIS: In reading about the mother with a celiac child, I would like to tell her that the Good Housekeeping Institute dietitian has helped others with his same problem.

— Good Housekeeping, the American magazine, will forward recipes and menus to anyone desiring them. They will give special attention to any other peculiarity in a celiac's diet. This is a wonderful service and help to those who really need it. — MRS. J. P.

DEAR DORIS: I worked for a Canadian firm that specialized in foods for celiac babies. They make gluten-free potato, rice and wheat flours and they give you recipes with them.

DORIS CLARK

From England they import gluten-free biscuits which are very good tasting. Some health food stores stock these products. — MRS. J. W.

DEAR DORIS: Our grandson was so sick with celiac that we had to take him to the hospital. And except for a miracle, he would not be with us today. He is now 20 years old, a big strapping boy.

At the hospital one of the interns said he would try to give him lactic acid milk; that is, milk that has been soured.

My daughter got the first jet from the hospital, but from then on had to make it herself. And believe me, the boy just lapped it up, and got really well. — GRATEFUL.

DEAR MRS. J. P., MRS. J. W., GRATEFUL, MRS. J. A. T., MRS. H. B., MISS H. S. AND OTHERS: Many of our readers rally round when a gal needs a friend! Thanks, all of you! I have passed your messages along to Stunned. Perhaps we'll get a following report from her.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: My boy friend is not satisfied with the expressions of affection unmarried couples are allowed, but constantly tries to get me to "go all the way". And he is very hurt and angry when I refuse. He immediately starts saying that I don't love or trust him — I do, but I still don't think he should expect me to put the rest of my life and my reputation in a dangerous position.

We are still both in our teens, and right now I think we should get as much as we can out of life, and make something of ourselves. I don't think though, that "going all the way" is the correct manner of achieving this.

Doris, how can I make him see that giving in to passions is wrong? — J. M.

DEAR J. M.: One big reason for holding him off is the letdown and disappointment that comes after. It takes the practice and intimacy of marriage to properly develop sexual expression.

And remember this: when a grown man finally falls in love with you, you'll recognize the fact by the way he strives to protect you and refuses to indulge himself.

A very fine book which goes into all this a great deal more thoroughly than I can here, is now in the book stores. I'll send you the name of it when you send me your name and address on a stamped envelope.

* * *

NOTE TO "WORRIED AND UNHAPPY": A very kind reader has written in with some suggestions about the ache on the "top of your head". If you will write in again, this time enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope, with your proper name and address, I will be glad to forward her ideas to you.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: The last time I had a date with my girl friend I asked her to go steady with me. She told me that she was going to talk it over with her parents first. That was okay with me, but later she told me they didn't like the idea. They think we are too young. I think if we are too young, then every one is. I'm 18 and she's 17.

We really have much in common (and not puppy love). We walk all over together and they don't mind that at all, in fact they don't even mind us going around with each other. They just don't want us to go steady.

* * *

DEAR TROUBLED: If it's love, it'll keep. If it is something less than forever-after devotion, you'll be grateful to wise parents for a back door out. Better thank your lucky stars that you can go out with her at all; and enjoy yourselves.

* * *

Blueberries rise and shine. While blueberries have their place in the sun make them rise and shine on your dining table. Today Mary Moore gives you a recipe for blueberry muffins that will freeze and a beautiful salad for reducers.

Studies Chimps

A young English scientist, Jane Goodall, spent five years in the ape country of Tanzania studying a community of chimpanzees.

BLUEBERRY OATMEAL MUFFINS

Freezer owners and reducers, cheers! I have a blueberry muffin recipe for you that makes beautiful muffins to eat fresh from the oven and if there is a surplus, will freeze excellently.

I have a luncheon salad that will give life to the drooping spirits of those on strict reducing diets.

BLUEBERRY OATMEAL MUFFINS (24 large muffins):

½ cup best quality shortening, 1 cup light brown sugar, packed, 2 large eggs 4 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 2 cups quick-cooking rolled oats, 4 teaspoons single-acting baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 1½ teaspoons baking soda, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon nutmeg, 2¼ cups buttermilk, 2 cups washed and dried fresh blueberries (when fresh are out of season use 1 package fresh frozen blueberries), ½ cup orange marmalade or apricot jam (optional).

Cream together shortening and sugar until light. Beat in eggs. Stir together in a bowl the sifted flour, rolled oats, baking powder, salt, soda, and spices. Add these dry ingredients alternately with the buttermilk beginning and ending with dry ingredients, but do not overstir. Fold in blueberries. Fill greased muffin pans 2/3 full with batter. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. 20 to 25 min. — time depending on size. While hot, if desired, glaze tops by brushing muffins with marmalade or apricot jam.

BLUEBERRY MELON SALAD FOR REDUCERS (6 servings):

Remove seeds from 4 ripe cantaloupe halves. Scoop out pulp with melon ball cutter. Line shells with watercress, tips extending above rims. Fill centre with cottage cheese. Arrange melon balls around it on rim. Top cottage cheese with blueberries. Serve with Whipped Jelly Topping: barely melt 1/3 cup apple or red currant or blueberry jelly. Gradually beat this jelly into 2oz. white cream cheese with 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Fold in 1 teaspoon grated orange rind and enough lo-cal whipped topping to make of cream dressing consistency. Chill Topping until serving time and pass at the table when blueberry melon salad is served.

Purists Hhave Flipte Lidd Over Madame's Ambergrur

By GERARD McNEIL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

You are at Expo 67 and you want a hot dog. But the person looks baffled when you order a "chien chaud" in your Sunday French.

So you flip to Page 31 of Instant French and, voila, all is clear. You demand an "et dog" with "rrrrelish." And an "et chicken" for Mom and "enbergrur" for Junior.

A person with an ordinary French - English dictionary might go mad trying to order things like this in Quebec. They aren't translated. When you want a banana split you ask for a banana split.

And the attractive blonde free-lance writer knows what she's talking about. She is a fifth-generation Quebecer, the daughter of Senator Josie Quart, and 2 deep, well-blended mix of Irish and French runs through the family.

Mrs. Ouellet, her husband Jack and their four sons live in Sillery, an almost entirely French - speaking suburb of Quebec City.

Mrs. Ouellet's treatment of "et dogs" may leave the Quebec cultural affairs department in tears. But it is precisely this unlabbilited, humorous and practical approach that makes the 162-page book as palatable as dinner at a Quebec City restaurant.

LOOKING FOR MIRACLES

In 20 informative, if tongue-twisting, chapters, the author gives basic tips on how to pronounce French followed by whole sentences in English, French and phonetics.

There is something for the tourist with blind faith:

"Is this where the miracles take place?"

In French the question reads:

"Est-ce ici que se passent tous les miracles?"

But in Instant French it is:

"Ace sesaire ke so pass too lay meerrvell's?"

And something for the skeptic:

"Parlez-vous this true or just tourist propaganda?"

Mrs. Ouellet not only advises how to pronounce les bore d'oeuvres (lay or dev), which has been the downfall of countless social climbers, she tells the reader what they are.

Scotch is scotch in any language but Chablis, a white wine, is Shabbies.

FLIPTE AOUR LIDD

A Canadien severely tried might call a tourist a "pat de pwel," as a pithst handed down from the days Scots troops paraded about Quebec in kilts. It means "hairy legs" and the correct French is patles de polls.

Recourse at the risk of blood, Mrs. Ouellet says, is that old Canadian favorite "frog." Frog becomes grenouille in French and grenooya in Instant French.

The book carries the traveller lightly through airports, trains or service stations into business meetings, restaurants or a night on the town. If even gives the pronunciation of nanzer, number, and colors.

Here, one learns how a French - speaking Canadian, using familiar speech sounds, would say: "We have flipped our lid." It comes out: "oui hhave flipte aour lidd."

ENDORSE PROJECT

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Metropolitan water district directors Tuesday endorsed an agreement clearing the way for a $412,400,000 project for nuclear-powered water de-salting and electrical generating plants. Initially, the de-salting plant will provide about 50,000,000 gallons of drinkable water daily. Two other units ultimately will increase the output to 150,000,000 gallons daily.

Irish Fashions To Form Cone Of CNE Show

TORONTO (CP)—Irish fashions will form the core of an international fashion show to be held every evening at the Canadian National Exhibition Aug. 19 to Sept. 5.

Elsa Jenkins, CNE women's activities director, predicts Canadians will be seeing more and more of Irish fashions in the future. Mrs. Jenkins chose 23 items for the show in a four-day trip to Ireland.

"The Irish are attempting to come into our market, as we're interested in selling to them.

"Their clothes have always been thought of in terms of dressy tweeds. Now they are doing interesting things with their tweeds, in fabulous colors — bright oranges and greens—and with hand knits and crochet work.

"They're using weaves and crochet in evening clothes, and they're not overdoing. Everything you see has an Irish flavor. They haven't gone elsewhere for inspiration."

Mrs. Jenkins says much of the work is still done by hand in piece work. Women knit while they sit at home and watch television.

She says she especially enjoyed a visit to one couturier who lives about 40 miles outside Dublin on an old estate. He has turned the out buildings into his studios.

The hour-long show—Fashion Air Lift—will also include fashions from Spain, Portugal, France, Israel, England and Canada.

Teaching Children in Arabic Proves to Be Elusive Goal

The Arabic language has long been subscribing to French in North Africa. Now Morocco, Algeria and Tunisia are working hard to promote its use, especially as the language of instruction. Some of the problems she has created are described by a Canadian Press reporter who visited the area.

By PETER BUCKLEY

RABAT (CP) — Nothing should be easier than to teach Arab children in their own language. In practice, however, it's proving an elusive goal for Morocco and the other newly independent countries of North Africa.

In a movement that parallels Quebec's drive to be Maitres Chez Nous' (Masters in Our Own Home), the nationalists of Morocco, Algeria and Tunisia have made promotion of Arabic one of the leading planks in their post-independence programs.

There is an understandable resentment that a "foreign" language — not a lot — French should have taken first place in so many fields, while an ancient and noble language like Arabic should have been treated as a poor cousin.

All three countries have set out to change the situation.

The progress in most noticeable in such things as street signs, highway indicators, billboards and public announcements, where the graceful Arab script not gets at least equal billing with French.

Avenues and other public places have been renamed—the names of the old French generals composers and other historic figures being replaced by titles from Arabia's own rich past.

ERRORS CREEP IN

But the change is most profound in the educational system. Instead of French being the dominant language of instruction at all levels of modern education, Arabic is being introduced progressively by all three North African nations.

In Tunisia, the program is far advanced. Algeria boasts of its progress, but there are few concrete figures to support official optimism.

Morocco set out with one of the most ambitious programs of all. But now, to angry protests from opposition politicians, the government is pulling in its horns.

Education Minister Dr. Mohammed Benhima told a recent press conference here that over-hasty attempts to make Arabic the vehicle for all studies had led to "improvisations and errors" which threatened to corrupt the school system and hamper the national drive toward universal education.

A vicious circle developed, with a poor standard of Arabic-language instruction resulting in unqualified teachers who perpetuated their own low standards as teachers. Despite the poor quality of education, the school system must also compete with commerce and industry as well as the attractions of life abroad for the brightest of the graduates.

RAISE STANDARDS

Dr. Benhima announced that from now on the education ministry will be aiming at higher standards, even at the risk of fewer graduates and a slow-down in the promotion of the Arabic language.

The lack of Arab-language instruction was only one aspect of a fearsome education problem that Morocco and the other North African countries inherited with independence.

France had been Morocco's "protector" for only 44 years, barely enough time to assume effective control. Her own schoolbuilding program gave priority to facilities for French nationals. She was also reluctant to press education in Arabic lest she alienate the important Berber minority, with its different language.

The Arabs were left to develop traditional schools devoted to a study of Arabic language, Islamic science and the Koran. Any Moroccan who wanted an education adapted to modern conditions and technology had to learn French and pursue his studies in that language.

Even today, an estimated three-quarters of Morocco's population cannot read or write. In 1955, the year before independence, there were only 282,000 pupils in the country's primary schools and 28,000 in secondary schools, out of a school-age population of 1,800,000, say Moroccan officials.

Age of Evolution Almost Over, Soon Man to Plan Alterations

Prospects that natural human evolution will cease and man will control what his future shape will be are based on new understandings of how genes direct both life and growth. The following article takes you into a sub - microscopic world and explains how scientists are cracking the genetic code—the language of the genes.

By RALPH DIGHTON
AP Science Writer

For the last 600 or so man has modified along, gradually changing with every other creatures by accident.

Accidental alterations in the mechanism of his heredity slowly—by trial and error—made man better adapted to his environment than are his rivals.

That's the accepted scientific view today, and scientists call this long, frequently bungling process "evolution."

But the process may be near an end.

For better or worse, scientists now believe, man will not much longer have to wait for an accident to change his heredity.

He will cause his own "accidents."

If the heart he was born with wears out, he'll be able to grow a new one—in a laboratory, and have it transplanted into his chest; or perhaps he will grow it in his own body, feeding the new on the stuff of the old.

He will cause the accidents, or mutations, that made some men different from their ancestors were caused either by errors in the way nature put together the tiny living blueprints passed along from parent to offspring, or by occasional strong bursts of radiation from the sun that disarranged those blueprints.

CHEMICAL DIRECTION

Today, however, scientists are learning to bring about mutations with chemicals—a much safer method, because this way the mutations eventually may be predicted and controlled.

Mutations result from changes in the structure of genes. Although too tiny to be seen in an ordinary microscope, genes contain the patterns by which all living things develop.

Every human body cell has about 150,000 genes, grouped in 46 chromosomes (tintable bodies) in the cell's core, or nucleus.

So when body cells divide, the chromosomes split into twin sets of pairs and line up in the centre of the nucleus. The nucleus, and the same time the 'rest of the cell' divides down the middle. Each of the two resulting cells has the same number of chromosomes, and thus genes, as the parent cell.

This is the way all living things grow, by increasing the number of body cells.

When they reproduce, the process is slightly different. The egg cell of the mother has only half the needed number of chromosomes. The sperm cell of the father has the other half. They unite and the fertilized cell thus acquires the total of chromosomes necessary for later division and growth.

Genes are molecules of an acid, complex and strangely formed. Each looks something like two cork screws twisted into one another and connected at intervals by bonds: a sort of chemical spiral staircase.

The molecule's name is DeoxyriboNucleic Acid, or DNA.

ORDERLY LINEUP

Its spirals are made of chemical bases called adenine, guanine, cytosine and thymine, arranged in a specific order opposite each other, a different sequence for each to divide, the identical corkscrews separate, one staying on the parent group of chromosomes, the other going to the offspring. Each then makes a replica of itself, drawing upon chemicals in the cellular fluid.

The arrangement of the chemical bases along the spirals creates a crude alphabet: A for adenine, G for guanine, C for cytosine and T for thymine. Groupings of three in a row form exotic "words" in a language that gene specialists — geneticists — are learning to decipher.

One side of the spiral staircase may be an arrangement of bases or letters into a grouping like this: Attigtcencgatacg. The other side: Tcaacgctatgcgcc.

The letters are almost invariably in multiples of three. Biochemists have the keys to this code when they learned that each triplet directs the formation of one of some 20 amino acids which make up proteins, the building blocks of living tissue.

Each of the 64 possible three - letter combinations carries information that enables the cell to make protein —in other words, to grow—so that it resembles its parent.

Storing the formulae for making human protein is a pretty big job for a tiny molecule, but DNA has another job, too. It not only must carry information from one generation to the next, it must see that this information gets out of the cytosine and the body of the cell where protein is made.

To do this, DNA makes single-corkscrew copies of itself, differing in that a base called uracil is substituted for thymine. The copy, lacking an atom of oxygen, is called RiboNucleic Acid, or RNA.

RNA passes out of the nucleus into the body of the cell and attaches itself to some tiny clumps called ribosomes. It is in these that the miniature chemical factories where, with the help of enzymes, amino acids are converted into proteins.

Some cells make the kind of protein needed for nerves, others make the kind needed for internal organs, others make the kind of protein in which calcium can be deposited to form bone. All function according to the instructions they receive from DNA via RNA.

Unless an accident happens —either through a goof by nature or from such outside forces as radiation.

The results of genetic accidents may be beneficial: One of them gave man the kind of thumb that helped him make tools. If the accident leads to useless deformation the offspring often dies before it can pass the trait on to future generations.

Those were useless, unwanted mutations, but scientists are confident they can find other chemicals that cause beneficial mutations.

High on the list of wanted mutations are those which could help man conquer disease, make him immune even to cancer.

Great Lakes Levels Rising But Future Anybody's Guess

By BOB MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP)—Water levels on the Great Lakes are rising this year but Gerry Dohler of the Canadian Hydrographic Service says it's anybody's guess how long the rise will continue.

The lakes now are close to their record highs and while annual cycles make seasonal predictions fairly accurate, it is impossible to tell more than a year in advance.

Even going that far is risky, he said in an interview.

"There are too many factors which can change the levels."

Basically, it is a matter of precipitation and evaporation. A year of unusually high precipitation could raise the level considerably if there was normal evaporation, but hot sunny weather and wind could increase the evaporation rate to a point where there would be no increase.

"Some people try to make long-term predictions but it's just a guess. It will be impossible to predict the levels until we get accurate long - term weather forecasts."

Mr. Dohler, who keeps up-to-date records of tides and water levels from all Canadian ports and recording stations, started his work on water levels in Germany during the Second World War. After three years in Indonesia he came to Canada in 1953.

"In older days some people thought there was a cycle of highs and lows over a specific period of years," he continued but there doesn't seem to be natural levels in the lakes since 1860. But we haven't been able to compute a long enough record to do not support this theory.

"The only cycle in an annual one. The lakes reach their highest in early summer and their lows in the winter."

Even if there was a predictable cycle over a period of years it would be nullified by human controls. Levels of lakes Superior and Ontario are artificially maintained and this affects the entire system.

"Some people want us to keep Lake Ontario at a specific level. That is impossible. Think of the computer you'd need to calculate the total inflow of water into the lake, including precipitation. They you'd have to compute for evaporation and make changes every hour, first increasing, then decreasing the flow into the St. Lawrence River.

The Great Lakes are not Mr. Dohler's only problem. This year the hydrographic service issued its own predictions of tidal levels at Canadian ports for the entire year. In past years the figures were calculated and published in Britain.

CAN PREDICT TIDES

"Tides are predictable, but they also have a lot of factors influencing them besides the moon's gravity. And you get a lot of different ranges at different locations.

Difference between high and low tides on the Atlantic coast of Canada seldom exceeds six feet, he said, except for specific regions like the Bay of Fundy.

But on the Pacific coast, there is a difference of 10 to 12 feet, while Canada's tides vary from 10 feet at Baffin Island to less than two feet in the Western Arctic.

Hudson Bay also shows a wide variation, with a range of up to 37 feet on the west coast at Churchill, Man., and only two feet at Port Harrison, Que., on the east side.

Varying depths of water, tidal currents and underwater barriers also have a profound effect on tides. Normally, there are two cycles a day but one cycle often is more extreme than the other.

At Victoria, for example, a combination of forces restricts the tide to a single cycle each day. A similar effect is noticeable at the Magdalen Islands in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Aussie Insurance Companies Limit Coverage on Soldiers

By VINCENT MATTHEWS
Canadian Press Correspondent

MELBOURNE (CP) — Australian soldiers are complaining that insurance companies don't want to insure them because they are "bad risks" if they are sent to Viet Nam.

The companies have inserted "bad risk" restricted benefit clauses in the life policies of servicemen liable for overseas service. These clauses mean the next-of-kin gets nothing if the serviceman is killed in action. The soldiers have been told they can buy off the restrictive "war death" clause by paying higher premiums.

The country's biggest insurance company, the Australian Mutual Provident Society, has put a limit of $8,000 (about $7,200 Canadian) on policies for soldiers bound for Viet Nam with higher premiums. The limit on soldiers not bound for Viet Nam is $10,000.

Another big company, the Mutual Life, has a limit of $4,000. A third company, Transport and General, will insure a serviceman for a maximum of $2,000 but once he is under orders to go overseas the limit drops to $1,000.

The complaining soldiers agree that insurance companies are taking a big gamble basing policies to men bound for Viet Nam, but they feel that the added premiums are a heavy burden.

GAMBLE WITH FUTURE

One captain said: "By accepting the clause about being killed in action, we gamble with the future of our families. It is a terrible alternative to premiums too high for most of us to pay."

The national secretary of the Returned Servicemen's League, A. G. Keys, said there is a strong case for a government-subsidized insurance scheme for servicemen. The widow of a soldier killed in action is entitled to a pension of $12 a week. The Returned Servicemen's League is pressing for this to be increased to $30. This has been put to cabinet ministers and an increase is expected in the next budget.

The government also is expected to agree to a plan by the Returned Servicemen's League to grant long-term, low-interest loans to men back from Viet Nam to go into business, buy a farm or take higher educational studies.

Of the 40,000 men in Australia's army, nearly 5,000 are in Viet Nam. About 800 of them are conscripts. Next June the first batch of draftees will have finished their two years' service.

Since Australian troops were sent to Viet Nam in June, 1965, there have been 67 dead and 1281 wounded.

Ontario Liberal Leader Directs Talk to Farmers

PICTON (STAFF) — At a meeting Thursday evening Andrew F. Thompson, leader of the Opposition in the Provincial Legislature spoke to some sixty members of the Prince Edward-Lennox Liberal Association in the Eastern Star Temple in Picton.

Prior to Mr. Thompson's talk air delegates were selected to represent the riding in Ottawa at the National Convention to be held Oct. 11 to 14th. Those who will be attending the convention are Wilfred McCabe, president, Dr. Lionel Dockrill, 1st vice - pres.; Ken Casey, secretary; Mrs. May Good, treasurer; Gary Neilson and Larry Taylor. Also attending will be Lloyd Woolsey of Napanee.

Mr. Thompson was welcomed to Picton by Mayor R. McFarland, and the Mayor also extended a welcome on behalf of Warden Harold Hunter, who could not be present. Mayor McFarland in speaking to the meeting said that politics in he was split down the middle - his mother was a Liberal, he said and a Conservative, his father of course was Conservative. The Mayor emphasized that it was the man you voted for, not the man who can do the most for you, for the prosperity and for the Dominin of Canada. It makes not so much difference how you vote, he continued, he's a man and can represent you in a proper manner, in speaking to Mr. Thompson, Mayor McFarland said, "Sir I like you so well right now I'd vote for you."

Mr. Thompson, was introduced to the meeting by a junior Liberal Larry Taylor, Mr. Thompson, in replying to Mayor McFarland's remarks said that he would like to point out to His Worship, that the influence of a mother always prevails, Mr. Thompson referred to his travels throughout the province and said that he had been noticing a strange occurance in the meetings that he had attended, in that at least 20 percent of the audience were Conservatives. "They come and tell me" he said, "that they have voted conservative for years - that above all they are citizens of the province and are interested in a dynamic, vibrant and concerned government."

Mr. Thompson throughout his talk directed his message to the farmers and stressed the present day agricultural problems. He emphasized that those in public life have a responsibility to the people and should get out of their offices and work — get close to the people and talk to them directly about their problems. When in parliament they should also get up and speak out for their constituency. "The test of your representative," he said, "is how he speaks out for you."

The basic industry is agriculture Mr. Thompson pointed out. I do not know how we can sit with a feeling of indifference when we see the exodus of farmers. The decline and fall of a civilization comes when the farm community becomes weak and disappears. "I believe the Ontario Government has got to start getting concerned with the agricultural Industry. I'm fed up with the excuses made by our Minister of Agriculture.

We should have a hard, tough look at the facts about agriculture," continued Mr. Thompson, "we all know that by the year 2,000 Canada is going to need another 40 million acres to supply ourselves with food. We should be deeply concerned now, with this exodus of farmers. The farmer's son, he used as an example, leaves the farm because he cannot get an adequate income. The farmer must receive the same recognition as the man in any other industry. This mass migration of farmers cries out for a blueprint, and we in the Liberal party have to frame out a broad, clear picture to aid the economical state of agriculture in this province.

"As a country and as a province we are delinquent in attending to this basic industry. Our Minister of Agriculture remains antagonistic and aloof — he could pay the farmers what they need but he has resentful and is still wreseling. The province of Quebec is paying 4 44 million subsidy and we feel that Ontario should and could do the same; Ontario, for once has got to show some concern and some interest for the farmer."

OTHER ITEMS COVERED

Mr. Thompson continued his address outlining other items which he feels important — Interest free loans, crop insurance, rain making, (which he says should not be kept a secret matter by those in authority), and disaster areas. On interest free loans, Mr. Thompson said also, that a $7,000. loan is not sufficient for the average farmer who has lost 75 percent of his crop. We advocate, he said, loans up to $10,000 up to a period of three years.

In closing Mr. Thompson stated "I and my party believe the agricultural community, the industry, is vital not only to the province but to the nation. If we let it disintegrate we will weaken the whole economy. Mr. Thompson was thanked by

Renovations To Facilities To Be Curtailed

PICTON (Staff) Picton Utilities were granted permission at this week's meeting of town council to proceed with just about half of their proposed renovations to the town's water facilities. A go-ahead for the whole program was denied by town council following a 4-4 vote on the issue.

Notified by Utilities Commissioner Jack Ward that tenders for a new reservoir, booster pumping station and clear for now. Commissioner Ward reminded council once again of the poor condition of the clear well at the pump house and said if it gave way a crash program to replace it would cost much more than under ordinary circumstances.

Councillor Jarvis said that the council should be willing to meet the challenge of financing the complete program in the interest of progress. He for one was willing to pay an increase of $15. per year on his water bill so that Picton could be assured a plentiful supply of clear water. Mr. Jarvis had his backing. Councillor King pointed out that construction costs never get cheaper. Councillors Rose and Ward agreed that nothing is more important to a town than it's drinking water which after filtering is now stored in a cracked well that hasn't been cleaned in years. The alternative to a junior Liberal Government, a big bunch will be provided by the Belleville Agricultural Society.

The Rural Scene

PICTON — During 1966, the Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food will again be taking the five-year tree fruit census. As in past years, all persons selling, asked to cooperate in completing the census so that it can be made as accurate as possible.

Forms will be sent out in late summer which should be filled in and returned. Some information which the forms will call for include: the number of trees of standard rootstock (seedling) by variety in the age groups of 1-7 years, 8-15 years, 16-30 years and over 30 years; if fruit growers wish to start checking off the above information, a lot of time may be saved later.

In his television address announcing the election, will take effect when Parliament is dissolved for the next general election.

In the interval, MPs continue to represent the old ridings where they won election last Nov. 8. Any byelections must be based on the boundaries dating back to the 1952 redistribution.

MAP OUT OF DATE

The lengthy process of reorganizing the official election machinery and party structures after redistribution was cited by Prime Minister Pearson last Sept. 7 when he called the Nov. 8 vote on the basis of the old electoral map.

In his television address announcing the election, will take effect when Parliament is dissolved for the next general election.

"I have been informed by the officials responsible that the earliest date at which an election could take place on the new electoral boundaries would be the end of October, 1968. And this date could be met only if parliamentary discussion of the new constituencies was strictly limited.

"The officials agree that a more realistic date for the earliest possible election under the new distribution of seats would be early in 1967."

Opposition party leaders criticized Mr. Pearson during the campaign for calling the election on the basis of a map distorted by 13 years of population shifts. They said urban voters would be under-represented in the new Parliament.

ALL ARE CONFIDENT

The Liberals replied that centennial celebrations would militate against a 1967 election and that the government's position was too precarious in Parliament to wait until 1968 for a vote.

Now, spokesmen for the Liberals, Conservatives and New Democrats all express confidence that their respective parties will benefit from redistribution. But they add that the new map causes some headaches, especially for displaced MPs.

For the new chief electoral officer, Jean - Marc Hamel, and his staff, the change means that Canada's 75,000 polling divisions must be reviewed almost name by name, street by street.

Thousands of polls have to be relocated in new ridings. Some contain too many voters and others too few. As a rule, urban polls group 250 to 300 eligible voters and rural polls average 100.

Nearly half the 263 existing ridings get new names along with altered boundaries. An official said the post of returning officer will fall vacant at dissolution in all ridings with new names.

Returning officers who no longer reside in their assigned constituencies also will see their tenure lapse.

FAVOR OWN PARTY

This means the Pearson cabinet will appoint or reappoint about 130 returning officers in the months to come. In the past these officials have been drawn largely from the party in office. In 1965, the Diefenbaker cabinet appointed about 200 returning officers after a revision of the Canada Elections Act and all were Conservatives except for 36 Liberal appointees who were holdovers.

Many new deputy returning officers, poll clerks and enumerators will have to be appointed at the next election because of boundary changes.

Party headquarters already are busy revising their membership and mailing lists and supervising the formation of a new constituency associations.

Liberals and Conservatives hope to organize most of their new riding associations by October or November, the NDP by the end of the year. Since federal parties rely largely on provincial or local associations for their organization, the length of the reorganization varies widely across the country.

Alberta Liberals have already completed the process and their Nova Scotia and British Columbia colleagues are well advanced. Conservatives plan organization meetings starting next month in several provinces, with the pace due to pick up in the fall.

ELECTIONS INTERFERE

The federal reorganization is least advanced in provinces where provincial elections were held recently or are possible later this year—Prince Edward Island, Quebec, Manitoba, British Columbia, Ontario and Newfoundland.

The annual conventions planned for the fall by the Liberals and Conservatives and other factors that could delay the shuffle of the old constituencies.

Meanwhile, many MPs are revamping their travel plans and communications lines to make themselves known to new constituents added by redistribution.

Some MPs who will lose their ridings altogether, including Forestry Minister Sauve and Minister Without Portfolio Turner, are scouting for new home bases.

Some members will be forced into retirement at the next election, notably in Saskatchewan whose present allotment of 17 seats, all held by Conservatives, is being reduced to 13.

The next Commons will have 264 MPs, one fewer than at present and one more than the constitutional minimum.

Newfoundland 7 (7), P.E.I. 4 (4), Nova Scotia 11 (12), New Brunswick 10 (10), Quebec 74 (75), Ontario 88 (85), Manitoba 13 (14), Saskatchewan 13 (17), Alberta 19 (17), British Columbia 23 (22) and Yukon-N.W.T. 2 (2).

May Be Year Before Machinery Ready for Vote in New Ridings

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP)—The new map of federal constituencies will be proclaimed before shortly, but experts say it will take many months or even a year before Canada's voting machinery is geared for another general election.

Electoral officials, MPs and party organizers all foresee long periods of drudgery and disorganization before they can adjust to the wholesale redrawing of constituencies.

Many shudder to think what would happen if the Pearson minority government fell and called an election in the meantime.

This is considered unlikely since the Liberals don't want an early election and are virtually assured of support from the five Social Credit MPs in the Commons, giving the government a clear majority.

The massive redistribution of House seats, announced in its final form June 3 after three years of preparation and controversy, will take effect when Parliament is dissolved for the next general election.

In the interval, MPs continue to represent the old ridings where they won election last Nov. 8. Any byelections must be based on the boundaries dating back to the 1952 redistribution.

Why should our son have a newspaper route?

The living is good. Plenty of money, nice home, nice furnishings, another salary raise in sight; we've never had it so good. Why should our son manage a newspaper route?

Most any educator or businessman will tell you why in three simple words: it builds character.

Oftentimes the youngster who grows up in comfortable circumstances and who gets his weekly "handout" from dad never realizes the value of money or the efforts required to make it and manage it, until he's on his own. By then attitudes and habits are difficult to reverse.

But the newspaperboy quickly learns valuable lessons that stick. While making money on a newspaper route is important, the experience of getting-the-job-done-no-matter-what is more important. When through route management, responsibility and self-confidence are acquired at this early age, a newspaperboy has an advantage over other youngsters that no amount of money can buy.

If you're still wondering whether your son would benefit from newspaper route management, ask a community businessman or civic leader, or better still, write our Circulation Department.

The Intelligencer

is the skeptical view of some officials that the premier is engaged primarily in an astute manoeuvre to sugarcoat his military rule and retain power.

Ky's statement that he would not be a president candidate in any future election has not dispelled the idea he will be. As long as Ky remains air force commander, as he says he will, the aloof little man with the waxed trimmed moustache will be a power in Saigon.

Some facts of Vietnamese life cloud the prospects for civilian rule. It is difficult to imagine an anti-Communist government in South Viet Nam which would not be under profound military influence.

POLITICAL FORCES WEAK

Apart from the Viet Cong, the military forces are the only nation - wide political force of any effectiveness, with the possible exception of the minority Roman Catholics. Buddhists, Confucianists and other sects making up the majority are fragmented and have yet to produce either positive programs or appealing leadership. The labor movement is politically feeble. So - called independent politicians have not ignited any significant section of public opinion, even in cities where some have relatively large followings.

The elections are not designed to oust soldiers from government life, but rather to produce an anti-Communist assembly with the specific—and only task of writing a constitution.

The military - civilian directory, technically bossed by the chief of state, Lt.-Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu, can amend the draft constitution which the assembly will draw up, but amendments can be overridden by a two-thirds vote of the assembly. Within 15 days after its completion, Thieu must officially promulgate the Construction.

WILL HAVE 117 SEATS

The assembly will have 117 seats. Nine will be filled by mountain tribesmen, four by border people of Cambodian extraction, and 104 will be elected by the rest of the population.

Despite the complications, more than 700 candidates applied. The military screening committee, appointed by the regime, accepted 626, after eliminating those deemed tainted by Communism or neutral.

About 50 of the candidates are military men, not all of them supported by Ky and the military junta. The real representa cross - section of literate South Vietnamese. Their political inclinations are unlikely to become clear until the formal campaign is permitted to start Aug. 26.

The government limits printing costs for leaflets or posters and does the printing itself.

Meanwhile, equipment costs are going up. For instance, development and production costs of the Buffalo transport plane now are estimated at $41,000,000 against an estimate of $26,000,000 a year ago.

Construction of four new destroyers does not start until 1968 but already the estimated cost has shot up to $160,640,000 from the originally estimated $142,600,000.

The defence department originally estimated it could buy 305 CF-5 attack planes for $215,000,000. Now it estimates it can obtain only 115 for this amount of money.

Three Oberon class submarines were to cost some $33,000,000. Now the estimated cost is nearly $70,000,000.

PRESENTS A PROBLEM

Informants said Mr. Hellyer has some difficult choices in light of his promised pay increases: Reduced spending on weapons, which would upset his original program, or a request to the cabinet for a bigger defence budget.

Mr. Hellyer told the committee: "I think you will appreciate the increases that we face in the future if we have to make substantial increases in pay and we want the armed to compete with the civilian market.

"This will pose a continuing problem for us unless we can obtain more money, a higher defence budget ceiling to offset the increased costs of labor, both on the civil and military sides."

Michael Forrestall, Conservative MP for Halifax: "There are savings but you are not overjoyed about what is happening to those savings?"

Mr. Hellyer: "You have put it very well."

Winnie, FDR Never Put Names To Historic Atlantic Charter

By HAROLD MORRISON

London (CP)—Sir Alexander Cadogan chuckled.

"It was never signed. Some newspapers published the document with signatures of Roosevelt and Churchill at the bottom. That could only have been a fraud. I can assure you there were no signatures."

The retired 81-year-old diplomat, distinguished foreign affairs undersecretary during Sir Winston's momentous years as war leader, tried to put through the darkening curtain of memory to recapture the flavor of events that led to the proclamation of the Atlantic Charter on Aug. 14, a quarter-century ago.

It was during that secret historic meeting of August, 1941, between President Roosevelt and Sir Winston, with their warships sheltered in Newfoundland's Placentia Bay, that the peace aims of the two Western powers were hammered out.

In a series of drafts, which Sir Alexander and Sumner Welles, then undersecretary of state, helped write, the leaders of the embattled Britons and the still - peace Americans set out their pledge for a better world once the fires of war were drenched.

Eight guiding principles were established, calling for self-determination of nations, freedom in trade and travel, disarmament, an end to territorial aggression, equality in the flow of scarce raw materials and full economic collaboration among all countries.

PAVED WAY FOR UN

Hailed as the Atlantic Charter or the second Magna Carta, the joint principles—which the British foreign office later maintained were conceived in hasts — helped weave a unifying thread through those countries which realized and opposed the war waged by the Axis powers.

On Jan. 1, 1962, representatives of 26 countries gathered in Washington to endorse the principles of the charter and to pledge their full resources to destruction of the Axis. This became known as the United Nations Declaration. Even in the depths of war, human minds were reaching for a post-war ideal yet to be realized.

"There is no doubt in my mind," said Sir Alexander, "that the Atlantic Charter and the United Nations Declaration became the foundation of our present United Nations.

"This had been the dream. I don't know how you feel about it. We must have the United Nations and it is there. But I cannot help thinking that its work has been a disappointment."

This is the ironic twist of the ideals of a quarter-century ago. The countries which conceived the great dreams of peace are immersed in new deep troubles of their own. And those who fought and lost are enjoying the peace and prosperity of non-intervention.

At home Britain is struggling to boom a massive strangehold on its currency. In the Pacific—the United States is pouring men, money and armaments into the unending abyss of the Viet Nam war.

In parts of Europe, Africa and Asia the dream of self-determination is still a dream. The ideal of free trade has been replaced by the protective outlook of trade blocs.

Disarmament is merely a catch-phrase of the diplomats who pour out warnings to deaf ears in endless Geneva conferences.

"There was, of course, another side to the charter," said Sir Alexander, "and that was American anti-colonialism and anti-imperialism."

Roosevelt not only wanted a joint declaration on peace aims but a pledge from Churchill to terminate the special Commonwealth preferential tariff system cemented at Ottawa in 1932. Churchill recounts in his war volume The Grand Alliance how he turned the idea down.

He not only would have had to consult with his cabinet back home but also with other Commonwealth members and "I should have little hope that it would be accepted."

WINS POINT

Sumner Welles indicated this was the core of the matter and, Churchill countered that Britain had maintained free trade for 80 years "in the face of ever-mounting American tariffs."

"Even our ccastwise traffic around Great Britain was open to the competition of the world. All we had got in reciprocation was successive doses of American protection. Mr. Welles seemed to be taken aback."

The upshot was a clear victory for the British side. Roosevelt did not press Churchill on the inclusion of a clause which would have meant an end to preferencial tariffs and even agreed to the British request, pushed by the Socialists in the national government, that the joint declaration include a reference to the need for ensuring post-war social security.

Churchill went home a happy man. Yet there is a sad side which haunted him for the remainder of the war years.

When originally told that the president would like to meet him in some lonely bay, he responded with alacrity. With a huge staff, he boarded British's proud new battleship, Prince of Wales, accompanied by an escort of destroyers, and took off Aug. 4. He moved about the decks with a copy of C. S. Forester's Captain Hornblower. A few months later the Prince of Wales and the Repulse were sunk by the Japanese off Malayia with heavy loss of life.

WAS FDR IDEA

Roosevelt had taken off on his famous "fishing trip" when he secretly switched to the cruiser Augusta. It was during dinner aboard the Augusta Aug. 9 that the idea of the charter first sprang from Roosevelt's mind. And it was aboard the Prince of Wales the following day where Roosevelt stood erect for divine service on the quarterdeck, aided only by his son, Elliott, that Churchill quickly responded with his first charter draft.

Churchill later recalled that service:

"I chose the hymns myself —For Those in Peril on the Sea and Onward, Christian Soldiers. We ended with O God, Our Help in Ages Past, which Macaulay reminds us the Ironsides had chanted as they bore John Hampden's body to the grave. Every word seemed to stir the heart. It was a great hour to live. Nearly half those who sang were soon to die."

Each country, each faction of each office saw the developments of those four days in Placentia Bay in a different light.

Churchill had consulted no member of the Commonwealth before agreeing to the joint declaration. The members were merely informed that a declaration was being made and they would get the details later.

At London, the Soviet ambassador suggested the Soviet Union should have been consulted. The Russians were more interested in the opening of a second front. Nevertheless, he said, the Soviet Union would uphold the right of all countries to sovereign independence and territorial integrity, a pledge that rang hollow in the Western world.

"It was a remarkable document for the president to support since his country was not at war and I think it had great effect at the time," Sir Alexander concluded.

On this official war history of the British foreign office agrees.

"Publication of the Atlantic Charter implied American intervention, if not actual belligerency, on a scale sufficient to liberate the nations under German control."

Even after the war the sound of the Atlantic Charter continued to ring in the ears of the leaders. On the 20th anniversary of the declaration —less than four years before his death—Churchill recalled the principles and pleaded with the world:

"Let us never depart from them nor desist from our earnest endeavor to establish them throughout the world."

Exonerate Policeman In Shooting

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A white policeman who shot and wounded a Negro boy suspected of purse snatching has been exonerated by the police commissioner, despite suggestions by civil rights leaders that he be suspended.

Commissioner Frank N. Felicetta said Tuesday night a full investigation of the case failed to disclose any violation of law or departmental rules that would justify the suspension of Patrolman Edward B. Wimlewski Jr.

After the shooting of the 15-year-old Aug. 3, a delegation of civil rights leaders asked for the suspension of the policeman.

Some charged the shooting was not justified.

Felicetta said he will submit his entire file to the district attorney and ask for a grand jury hearing.

The boy, Stevenson MacDuffie of Buffalo, was wounded in the thigh and shoulder by Wimlewski while the youth was fleeing. The shooting occurred after MacDuffie bolted from a patrol car and ignored two warning shots fired by the policeman.

CBC Producer May Be Back In Old Spot

TORONTO (CP) — CBC producer Douglas Leiterman and some of the staff of the controversial This Hour Has Seven Days television program may return to their old Sunday night slot this fall—but the show has been renamed and has a new boss.

Daryl Duke, 37, Tuesday was named executive producer of the new hour-long public affairs program which is to be called Sunday. The new program begins Nov. 6.

Mr. Duke now is negotiating with the staff of Seven Days and the program's former executive producer, Mr. Leiterman, fired last month.

Seven Days ended in an uproar when CBC management fired the program's co-hosts, Patrick Watson and Laurier LaPierre. Mr. Leiterman was dismissed and Reeves Haggan, then public affairs supervisor, resigned in protest against Mr. Leiterman's dismissal.

PLAN SATELLITE

MUNICH (Reuters) — Contracts were let Tuesday to a West German consortium to build West Germany's first research satellite. The 200-pound satellite, scheduled to be fired into orbit in 1968 by a United States Scout missile, is to provide information about the energy spectrum, the course of electrons and protons in space and the inner radiation belt around the earth.

Landymore Told Committee In June Navy Reluctant To Accept Unification

OTTAWA (CP) — Rear-Admiral William Landymore told the Common defence committee June 23 that morale in Maritime Command was bad because the defence department had not clarified what it meant by a unified defence force.

It was on that same day that Defence Minister Hellyer asked the 30-year-old maritime chief for his resignation. Admiral Landymore declined to resign and Mr. Hellyer sacked him three days later.

The transcript of part of Admiral Landymore's testimony before the committee was made public Tuesday. It did not indicate where deletions had been made by the defence department on security and other grounds.

Admiral Landymore has said the non-secret part of his testimony was censored by Mr. Hellyer's staff before he gave it to the committee.

Mr. Hellyer has said the admiral had dealt with personnel figures which were a matter for defence headquarters, not the maritime commander.

In reply to questions by Marcel Lambert, Conservative MP for Edmonton West, the admiral told the committee—Mr. Hellyer was present—that "there is a great deal of unrest amongst the officers and quite a number of the senior men" in the command, which includes RCAF units as well as the Atlantic and Pacific fleets.

He said the "bad" morale was reflected in re-enlistment rates and the attitude of officers to their careers.

"I am sure this will be straightened out in due course and we will be informed of what the nature of the (unified) force is going to be and that will solve the problem. . . .

"I think the first and most important thing is to clarify the definition of unification and to indicate to the officers and men . . . exactly what the force is going to look like; what kind of careers people are going to have in it."

Admiral Landymore said in reply to John Matheson, Liberal MP for Leeds, that there is "great" reluctance in the navy about unification.

He told Heber Smith, Conservative MP for Simcoe-North, that the navy must recruit 7,600 men in the next year to keep its present ships in operation but that it expects to get only half that number.

Any transition to a single identity for all three services would be difficult.

Admiral Landymore said Tuesday night he had not yet seen the minutes of the committee hearing and "I don't think it would be appropriate for me to comment until I've seen the minutes."

He said in a telephone interview from his home at West Lawrencetown, N.S., near Halifax, that he was unable to tell without seeing the minutes which parts had been cut out for security reasons and "I've got to be very careful on this."

No Evidence Cambodia's Frontiers Used as Sanctuary For Communist Troops

TOKYO (AP) — Seven North Americans just back from Cambodia said today they are convinced Premier Norodom Sihanouk's Cambodia's ruler, is neutral toward the Viet Nam war and is trying to keep Communist troops from using his country as a sanctuary.

Sihanouk said there is "limited" movement of a few Communist Vietnamese along Cambodia's border, but no Cambodian "willfully co-operates" with them, Russell Johnson of the American Friends Service Committee told a press conference.

Part of Cambodia's, 33,000-man army patrols the border, and village militiamen are on the lookout for strangers, said Cambodia-born Donald Duncan, a former U. S. Army special forces sergeant in Viet Nam who now is on the staff of Ramparts magazine.

Johnson, Duncan and their five companions formed one of "Americans want to know" citizens' missions which visited Cambodia from July 27 to Aug. 9 to check on U.S. allegations that the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese soldiers were using the country as a sanctuary.

The mission members said that during their border inspection by plane, truck and foot, they found no evidence that Cambodia's frontiers area was used in such a manner.

Duncan admitted under questioning that it is possible for small groups of soldiers to hide or travel undiscovered through the jungle of the heavily-foliaged border country.

The members of the group indicated that they did not consider a limited movement of Communist soldiers in the border area sufficient to justify the allegations that Cambodia is being used by the Communist Communists as a sanctuary and supply route.

Other members of the mission were author Kay Boyle, Rabbi Israel E. Dresner of Springfield, N.J., businessman Norman Eisner of New York, Floyd B. McKissick, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality, and Marc Stone, a public relations consultant.

Leftwingers Cut Labor Govt. Majority

LONDON (Reuters) — Rebel Labor party leftwingers attacked Britain's wage - price freeze proposals in the House of Commons early today and slashed the government's voting margin to 30—half the normal figure.

About 20 Labor members abstained or left the chamber in anger at the idea of a socialist government assuming powers to fine employers if they grant pay increases to workers during the next six months.

Premier Wilson's Labor government has a majority of 98 in marathon sittings on the controversial prices and incomes bill has had margins of between 75 and 80.

Leftwingers revolted during voting on a section of the bill threatening fines up to £500 ($1,500) for those who break the freeze—the government's emergency plan to cure Britain's ailing economy.

The government won the vote by 162 votes to 132. The 30-vote margin was the lowest yet recorded during section-by-section voting on the bill which was expected to become law by Friday.

Economic Affairs Minister George Brown said the government might, under the bill's penalty provisions, "could never have to be used and that co-operation would be voluntary.

Mexican Girl Disgusted And Envious

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian girls make Ilimedia Ugalde of Yucatan, Mexico, both disgusted and envious.

She was shocked when she saw Canadian wearing shorts in public and her envy was in seeing Canadian couples date unchaperoned.

The 20-year-old Mexican girl, who has never been out on a date without her mother going with her, is in Toronto for three weeks with another girl and a boy in an experiment in international living to promote understanding. They paid their own fares to Toronto.

Ilimelda is staying with a Toronto family where she had a chance to dry dishes for the first time in her life. Her mother employs three servants to do the housework.

"I might even wear shorts—if you don't tell my mother," she said.

The average work-week remained unchanged at 41.2 hours.

Gives Reason For Marrying Many Times

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—"I married these girls because I had a longing to be wanted."

That was the explanation of Robert Swartz, 36 - year - old Oakland, Calif., barber, of why he had experimented with marrying five women and divorcing only one.

He explained him of bigamy. The divorced wife filed for child support. Another he married $11,000 richer.

He was first arrested when he was 17 in his home town of Hettinger, N.D. His wife, Pauline, bore him a son, Robert, now 20. She is seeking child support.

Swartz said he divorced Pauline in San Diego, Calif., in the early '50s.

'DON'T COME BACK'

He married Maria Ramirez, 45, of San Francisco in March 1963. But "one day about a week later she declared after me, 'don't come back'." He didn't. But she is the one who got the bail when he got into trouble.

He married Lydia Guzman in Reno, Nev., June 18, 1964. She's the one who filed the first bigamy charge. That was when he told her he had been to her house to get some of his clothes.

He married Amada Swartz. They married May 24, 1965, and have a six-month-old son named Robert.

But when Amada became pregnant, Swartz said, she went to live with her parents. So he married Mary Sosa in Reno May 22. She filed the most complaint.

Swartz said he stayed with her only a month then remarried to Amada.

Amada is still standing by him, Swartz said.

U.S. Proposal Dismissed as 'Narrow Topic'

GENEVA (Reuters) — The United States proposed Tuesday that the big nuclear powers should become contractors to the rest of the world using peaceful nuclear explosions to move earth, dig canals and build dams.

At the same time, it called on the 17-country disarmament conference here to ban the spread of all nuclear explosives —even if they are for peaceful purposes—to non-nuclear countries.

The U.S. pointed out that a peaceful nuclear explosive device could be easily adapted as a weapon. But the non-nuclear countries could still benefit from the use of peaceful devices in compensation for being barred from developing them themselves.

Under the U.S. proposals, the blasts would take place under appropriate international observation. The nuclear device used would remain under the custody and control of the nuclear state.

Chief Soviet negotiator Alexei Roshchin told correspondents afterward the American statement was a thorough, accurate and forceful presentation.

Whitby Reeve Claims Brief Presented on Conservation Not Approved by Authority

TORONTO (CP)—The reeve of Whitby Township said Tuesday that a combined brief to the legislature's select committee on conservation... bears the names of the Central Lake Ontario Conservation Authority but that neither the authority nor its executive had any say in its drafting or approval.

Reeve John Dryden told the committee the brief "as far as my knowledge goes" was not approved by the authority, but by authority chairman Dr. Ewa Alderman A. H. Murdoch, denied this.

Dr. Alderman said in a meeting at Peterborough last August that considered the committee brief, Mr. Murdoch said in an interview.

He said he himself had not been able to attend the meeting of representatives of his authority, the Ganaraska, Donodeac and Crowe Valley authorities but that other members of his executive had.

Reg Gisborn (NDP — Wentworth East) suggested the committee write to Mrs. J. A. Norsabell of Peterborough, chairman of the Otonabee authority, for clarification of procedures followed in drafting the combined brief.

It was Mrs. Normabell who earlier in the day guided presentation of the combined brief to the committee.

The brief said conservation authorities find that the price of land "mysteriously rises" when it becomes known they are interested in buying it.

It said also the authorities are sometimes hampered in acquiring land "perhaps by an individual or several such attempting to hold up the plan by an unrealistic evaluation of his land."

The authorities said the government should set up "correct procedures" to facilitate expropriation.

It suggested is a system of sliding grants that would permit payment of larger amounts to areas without adequate assessment to support conservation authorities.

The Ganaraska authority, covering an area of approximately 300 square miles including the town of Port Hope and the village of Newcastle, as well as the greater parts of Clarke and Hope townships, submitted two minority reports to Tuesday's brief.

The other three authorities said the farm-pond program operated now by the agriculture department should revert to conservation authorities because under its present terms only genuine farmers can take advantage of it.

But the Ganaraska authority says the program should remain where it is but be enlarged "to include all who make an application, within reason, of course."

Only 229 Head French Cattle To Be Imported

OTTAWA (CP) — Permits to import 229 head of French Charolais cattle have been issued to 191 cattle breeders across Canada, the federal agriculture department reported Tuesday.

Earlier reports said 232 Canadian buyers had sought permission to bring in 1,730 Charolais, a up - fight breeding stock. Quarantine facilities cannot cope with that number.

Of the 229 to be imported this year, 10 will go to British Columbia, 32 to Alberta, 61 to Saskatchewan, 39 to Manitoba, 38 to Ontario, 17 to Quebec and one to Nova Scotia.

The number of Charolais brought in is limited by the size of the department's quarantine station at Grosse Ile, Que., being enlarged to handle this year's importation.

The demand for the cattle has risen sharply since the first arrived last year under a new arrangement worked out between Canada and France.

Canadian and U.S. Studies Of Water Resources Needed

MONTREAL (CP)—J. Lloyd MacCallum, legal adviser to the International Joint Commission, said Tuesday export of Canadian water to the United States or diversion of water within Canada has made an inventory of her own future needs.

He was speaking before one of the many committee meetings held here in connection with the current annual convention of the American Bar Association.

Mr. MacCallum said the U.S. first had to investigate "measures to abate pollution and eliminate any irresponsible waste of a precious resource.

"We need to take the time necessary for the authorities to obtain the information essential for sound judgments and solid planning.

"The need is not so urgent and the answer not so obvious that we can risk hasty or ill-considered action, in an area as sensitive and close to the people as that of water supplies."

'NOT NOW NEGOTIABLE'

Arthur Laing, northern affairs minister, said diversion of Canadian water to the U.S. "not now negotiable, and I am not certain it ever will be."

He told the meeting that recent proposals by some engineers to divert Canada's gigantic water to arid sections of the U.S. are not acceptable to Canada and have not been endorsed by the U.S. government.

"We have our own arid areas, too," he said.

C.D. Shephard, chairman of British American Oil Co., said the idea of a "continental energy concept" in North America is, in part, already operative. "In gas and electricity, and to a lesser degree, oil, we have already a continental system of supply in which the Canadian supply systems are just as important as the third side to a triangle or the third leg to a stool."

He said an important factor in this supply system is that most, "if not all" of the available hydroelectric sources have been developed in the United States.

"On the other hand, Canada has more oil, gas, and potential hydroelectric developments available than it will need for many years to come," he said.

Agriculture Minister Will Seek Federal Increase of $5 Cwt. in Price of Milk

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Agriculture Minister William Stewart said Tuesday night he will seek a federal increase to $3 from $4 in the price of manufactured milk a hundredweight when he gets an appointment with Agriculture Minister Greene.

In an interview, Mr. Stewart said he found it peculiar that Mr. Greene to invite representatives of the Ontario Farmers' Union to his office to discuss the increase when the Ontario minister and Clement Vincent, Quebec agriculture minister, had been told Mr. Greene had no time to see them until next week.

Mr. Stewart said he wants the further increase in addition to a federally financed boost of 25 cents followed within a year by another federal increases to bring the on-the-farm price to $4.

Ontario farmers now receive $4 a hundredweight for milk used in manufacturing processed milk, cheese and butter. But transportation costs cut the farmers' take to about $3.75, OFU officials say.

Mr. Stewart, who faced bitter tractor demonstrations by members of the OFU who were protesting the milk price, said he is convinced the Canadian public is prepared to pay more for butter, cheese and powdered milk.

The minister said he will ask Mr. Greene to increase the support prices to 61 cents for butter, 31 cents for spray powder, 20 cents for roller powder and 46 cents for cheese.

Bridge Players Cleared of Cheating

LONDON (CP)—Two veteran British bridge players were cleared of cheating charges Tuesday after a year-long private inquiry.

A council of the British Bridge League, which received the report of the inquiry, declined to make it public but said the report would be sent to the World Bridge Federation which originally had investigated the charges.

Those involved Boris Schapiro, 54, and Terence Reese, 51, international bridge partners for the last 25 years. They had been accused of using finger signals during the world bridge championships in May, 1965, at Buenos Aires. Both had denied the charges.

Schapiro said he is relieved by the finding but Reese, who now is writing a book on the affair, told reporters he is not sure Average wages in Canadian cities not to make the report public.

He said he is considering libel suits against several publications which, he maintained, had printed "damaging and inaccurate" stories during the private hearings.

MEMBERS OF RENOWNED FORT HENRY GUARD will be featured at the Belleville Fair for one night only. The well-drilled university students will be performing here on Thursday, August 18. They are trained in military procedures of 100 years ago and are shown here giving a realistic demonstration of a "British square". The group regularly entertains visitors to Old Fort Henry at Kingston.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

Softball players have come and gone since the Purcivals won the Ontario championship back there in 1938, but that executive type-you see smiling at you from this column rates in my book as one of the best.

And a lot of softball buffs who were around in the boisterous mid-and-late forties will agree.

Remember Jack "Crock" Boyle, Belleville's softball Casey Stengel who could point out mistakes in the rulebook? And remember his Number One son Don, one of the best hurlers to whip a ball past a batter?

DON BOYLE

And you guy-that-chews will recall that afternoon in late 1945 when the Columbian Squires, one of the best Belleville junior squads to wear "All-Ontario Champions" crest on their shirts, defeated Hamilton for the title!

That day marked Belleville's first junior softball Ontario title. It also marked the first introduction of the "hole pitch" as tossed by a Hamilton hurler (afterwards revered a ridge) by the name of Irwoski or something that

It was a sweet victory for the Squires who in 1944 had gone to the Ontario finals only to be defeated in three games by the Windsor Mic-macs.

On that club was the one and only "Bearcat" Al Adams, Moe Rollins, Gord Donovan, Bobby Bunton, Red Culkin, The Wardhaughs, and a third baseman named Red Carson — or was that his name?

Don Boyle was one of those athletes who took sport in his stride but when the chips were down did not let it interfere with his business future. Fan, and player-wise he was one of the most popular players of his day.

A brilliant business career loomed for him. Wisely, it has proven, he gave up the softball mound for a manager's desk.

In 1951 with a colorful scrapbook to remind him of his athletic successes he quit sports to devote himself to his business future. He joined the Smith Transport Company under his dad, and has climaxed his career with the managership of the Belleville area.

And Don got it the hard way. He served his company in Belleville, Hamilton, Montreal and Ottawa with commending success.

He took his present position after "Dad" resigned because with his attractive wife he former Shirley Morgan and son Jeffrey 9 and Johnny 13 "I wanted to get back near home."

But Don looks back on those softball years with a touch of nostalgia. "I will never forget them nor the grand guys I was associated with," he told me.

Don was born here and attended St. Michael's. In his athletic days he showed the potential of a softball pitcher. One of his finer characteristics is that he believed in himself and his ability. He never put himself above the potential of fellow pitchers.

His finest athletic memories came with the Squires championships series in 1944 and 45. From his early junior days with the ANAF Juniors Don in every club he's played with.

His best season was with the 1945 Squires when he helped defeat Oshawa, Hastings, Toronto and Hamilton in their march to the title.

But he went on to more championship glory. He played with the Point Anne team when they won the Lakeshore Softball League title. And in his scrapbook you will find the records of how his pitching arm helped the Goodman Juniors and later the Frankford Merchants to ultimate successes.

And he was on the lineups of such clubs as beside Point Anne, Northern Electric, CNR Diesels, and Don McNevin's Glen Roy's grand gang.

Don Boyle, like his dad who took many clubs to victory efforts, is a credit to his name, his teams, and to softball in general.

And aside to some coaches, this guy Boyle confided in me that the flesh might be a little weaker — but that arm with a little coaxing and conditioning, can still toss a fast one.

Tanner Captures Gold, Silver Medals

By ED SIMON

KINGSTON, Jamaica (CP)—England Australia, who between them have won more gold medals than the rest of the Commonwealth put together since the British Empire Games began 36 years ago, are battling it out again for athletic honors.

As the 1966 Games reached the halfway mark, the 106-member Canadian team had 13 medals, and seemed headed for one of its best showings in Games history.

England and Australia share 76 of the 153 medals awarded for 21 championships so far.

England captured eight gold medals Tuesday with victories in badminton, fencing, cycling weightlifting, shooting and swimming. The team now has 18 golds, five more than Australia. Canada has six golds.

Australian swimmers broke two world records and equalled another Tuesday night. But the day belonged to Elaine Tanner of Vancouver who won her second gold medal and set a world mark.

FINISHES SECOND TWICE

Hutton's efforts in three individual events have produced two second-place silvers and one bronze for third. He won another silver as a member of the second-place 880-yard freestyle relay team.

Miss Tanner, 25, displayed her versatility by breaking the world record and winning both a gold and silver medal all within 45 minutes.

She slashed two seconds off the world mark in the women's 220 butterfly with a clocking of 2:20.9. Her team-mate, Marilyn Gorson of Parry Sound, Ont., got the silver medal.

Within the hour, she was swimming again, this time in the women's 110 - yard backstroke final.

But in this event, she just failed to take the title away from the holder, Linda Ludgrove of England, who got home by less than a yard-length of Miss Tanner, the silver winner.

Earlier in the day, Elaine qualified for the final of the women's 440 - yard individual medley.

SETS WORLD MARK

Hutton, 18, chased Australia's Peter Reynolds to a world record and equalled the former mark himself as he finished second in the men's 220-yard backstroke.

Fifteen minutes later, he battled with Robert Windle and John Bennett of Australia in the 440-yard freestyle final.

Hutton was leading at the three-quarter mark but lost a couple of bad turns but he gradually gave way to Windle and was nipped by Bennett in the last few yards for second place, having pushed Windle's time to a world record—4:15.0.

Ron Jacks of Vancouver took fourth in the 440 freestyle and Sandy Gilchrist, another Ocean Falls swimmer, was fifth.

The Canadian team won three medals in badminton and shooting, making a total of eight for the day.

EARNS A SILVER

Sharon Whittaker, 24, of Toronto, was the losing finalist in the women's badminton singles and earned the silver.

Shooting medals were won by Dr. Jules Sobrian, Omemee, Ont., and Gary McMahon, Dartmouth, N.S., in the free pistol event. An Englishman, Charles Sexton, won the gold with 564 points. Sobrian captured the silver with 538 and McMahon the bronze with 536.

In fencing, England took its fourth gold medal. Bill Hoskyns of Somerset won the men's epee and another Englishman, John Pelling, the silver.

Peter Bakonyi of Vancouver and Konrad Wiebmaier of Toronto were eliminated after reaching the semi-finals.

Three Canadian boxers also bowed out of the picture. Dogato Padosco of Montreal was eliminated in the middleweight division; light-welterweight Dick Findlay of Prince George, B.C., suffered a cut left eye and the referee stopped the fight in the third round; and Walter Johnston of Calgary also had his bout stopped because of eye cuts in the featherweight class.

The biggest weightlifting crowd of the Games turned out to see Louis Martin return to the city of his birth and win a gold medal—for England, his adopted country. Ironically, the host country, Jamaica, has yet to win a gold.

But he was more than 50 pounds below his British Empire record for the middleheavyweight class with a total lift of 1,01494 pounds.

Don Oliver, 20, of New Zealand, earned the unofficial title of the strongest man in the Commonwealth when he won the heavyweight title. His total lift of 1,096 pounds was a Games record.

On the stadium cycling track, Roger Gibbon of Trinidad and Tobago won the 1,000 - metre sprint and Hugh Porter of England captured the 4,000-metre pursuit final.

England took three badminton golds and Malaysia the other two.

World champion Tan Aik Huang of Malaysia won the gold, defeating Yew Cheng Hoe in the men's final 15-8, 15-6. The two then teamed to defeat countrymen Tan Yee Kah and Ng Boon Bees in the doubles.

Angela Bairstow won the women's singles, defeating Miss Whittaker, and teamed with Rodney Mills to win the mixed doubles while Jenny Horton and Ursula Smith took the women's doubles.

Berry's Bat Pulling Up Chisox

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ken Berry's belated hitting has pushed Chicago White Sox into the American League's first division.

Berry drove in the winning run in a 2-1 victory over Kansas City Athletics Tuesday night.

The triumph, their fifth straight, boosted the White Sox into fifth place, one percentage point ahead of Minnesota Twins.

Berry was a major disappointment to Chicago officials last year when, as a rookie, he played in 357 games and batted a meager .218. As a result of that record and his performance in spring training this year, Berry lost his centre field job to rookie Tommie Agee.

When he did get to play early in the season, he showed no improvement. In fact at one point he was batting .196. Then he won back a regular job, in right field, and his average started climbing steadily until now he leads the team in batting with a .290 mark. He credits a heavier bat.

In other American League games, New York Yankees defeated Baltimore Orioles 4-1, Detroit Tigers whipped Washington Senators 8-3, Cleveland Indians blanked Boston Red Sox 5-0 and California Angels stopped Minnesota Twins 3-0.

Berry broke a 1-1 tie for Chicago with a sacrifice fly in the sixth inning. John Romano's fifth homer in five games had put the White Sox ahead 1-0 in the second, but Kansas City tied it in the fifth on doubles by Dick Green and Ed Charles.

Joe Pepitone and Roger Maris cracked two-run homers as the Yankees stopped first-place Baltimore. Fritz Peterson pitched a six hitter for his ninth victory against seven defeats. He allowed Baltimore only a homer by Boog Powell in the fourth.

Don Wert hit a two-run homer in the seventh and Norm Cash and Orlando McFarlane powered a five-run outburst in the eighth with homers in Detroit's triumph over Washington.

Gals Seek Golf Honors

By DON ANGUS

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP) — Canada's top women golfers will battle for amateur awards in a nine-day competitions starting Thursday at the Brightwood Golf and Country Club here.

Billy Bragan Bounced By Braves

Hitchcock Wins First

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

That little sliver most managers pamper probably has a running start on Billy Hitchcock in his first game as skipper of Atlanta Braves.

Hitchcock, who replaced Bobby Bragan as manager of the Braves Tuesday, piloted the club to a 2-1 victory over Sandy Koufax and Los Angeles Dodgers.

Ed Mathews ripped a homer in the ninth, ending the game which was delayed for two hours, five minutes by rain in the fourth inning.

Denny Lemaster, who finished with a three-hitter, held the Dodgers hitless for seven innings, protecting a 1-0 lead provided by Felipe Alou's leadoff homer in the first.

TIES THE SCORE

After the rain, Hitchcock watched his outfielders trot through puddles catching fly balls to preserve the no-hit bid. Then, in the eighth inning, Jim Lefebvre ended the spell with a leadoff homer, tying the score.

There was one out in the ninth when Mathews lined his eighth homer into the right field seats, ending the game.

Elsewhere in the National League, first place Pittsburgh Pirates shaded New York Mets 3-2, Cincinnati Reds edged San Francisco Giants 3-2, St. Louis Cardinals downed Philadelphia Phillies 3-2 and Houston Astros ripped Chicago Cubs 8-5.

Lemaster allowed only two hits, struck out 10 and pulled his record to 10-8. Koufax, who finished with a four-hitter and nine strikeouts, lost his sixth against 18 victories.

About 40,000 of the record Atlanta crowd of 52,270 sat out the long rain delay and stayed until the game was over.

Donn Clendenon doubled in one run and scored the other on pitcher Woody Fryman's single as the Pirates edged the Mets.

KNOCK FRYMAN OUT

The Mets knocked Fryman out, scoring their run on two hits and a walk in the seventh, but Pete Mikkelsen pitched hitless relief the rest of the way and preserved the rookie's ninth victory.

Larry Jaster allowed just two infield singles over the first eight innings against the Phillies but needed help from Nelson Briles to nail down St. Louis' victory.

Johnny Briggs' leadoff homer in the ninth spoiled Jaster's shutout bid and then singles by Cookie Rojas and Johnny Callison brought Briles in. He got Richie Allen on a double play bouncer and then struck out Tony Taylor, ending it.

Ron Davis' double climaxed a five-run Houston ninth that gave the Astros their victory over the Cubs. John Bateman had two homers for Houston and Randy Hundley whacked a pair for Chicago.

BILLY HITCHCOCK — BOBBY BRAGAN

BRAVES SWITCH MANAGERS — The Atlanta Braves of the National Baseball League today fired Manager Bobby Bragan and replaced him with Coach Billy Hitchcock. Hitchcock, manager of the Baltimore Orioles in 1962-63, was a scout for the Braves last year and was named a coach last winter. (AP Wirephoto).

The competition, run by the Ontario Golf Association, is open to golfers 50 years old and over with handicaps of 12 and under.

U.S. Eases Waterfowl Hunting

WASHINGTON (AP) — An easing of United States waterfowl hunting regulations, including a 25-per-cent increase in the duck shooting days for the central flyway, was recommended Tuesday by the federal waterfowl regulations committee.

The Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife recommendations were made public at a meeting of the committee, the first time this has been done in recent years.

The committee also received recommendations from the four flyway councils and Ducks Unlimited and a detailed report on the status of North American waterfowl.

In the status report, Walter F. Crissey, director of the bureau's migratory bird populations station, said the outlook is for a moderate increase in the fall flight of ducks in the Pacific, Central and Illinois-Iowa flyways and for a slight to moderate increase in the Atlantic flyway.

Cats Claw Trudeaus 11-3

By ROBERT SNEFJELLA

Temple Bobcats revenged themselves of an earlier slaughter at the hands of Trudeau Motors as they downed the Motormen 11-3 last night at the Alemite.

The win by the Bobcats moved them into a 1-1 tie with Trudeaus in their best-of-seven semi-final series. Third game is scheduled for Thursday at the Alemite.

The 'Cast struck for four runs in the opening frame and four again in the third to virtually decide the ball - game. They added three more in the eighth for good measure, and Trudeaus were never able to come within shouting distance.

Three Trudeau pitchers were used against the winners' attack. Bill Baldwin started for Trudeau, and was taken out of the game after giving up three walks and two hits to the first seven batters. Pat Marsele relieved Baldwin, but suffered a similar fate in the third when the Bobcat batsmen unloaded five hits and scored four more runs. Howard Jeffs took over from Marsele, and shut out the Bobcats till the eighth, when three runs came home.

The losers gave Bobcat starter Clair Leahey his only trouble in the eighth, when John "Shaker" Baker blasted a two-run homer. Leahey gave up six hits in all, three of them in the eighth. He struck out seven and walked four.

Howard Jeffs threw three - hit ball for the final six frames for the losers, fanning two and walking one.

Paul Zakos slammed a pair of doubles and a single, while Terry LeSage had a triple and single, for Bobcats. Bill Mifsud, Wannamaker 2b, Baker 3b, Soule lf, Baldwin, Marsele (1) and Jeffs (3) p.

In other games Jacksonville Suns defeated Richmond Braves 4-2 and Syracuse Chiefs edged Buffalo Bisons 3-2 in a game called after seven innings because of rain. The loss snapped Buffalo's winning streak at seven games.

Angels' Star Rookie Out For Season

Mayo Clinic surgeons who operated on the 23-year-old baseball player announced the kidney had been removed when it was found to be "irreparably damaged by a congenital abnormality."

Reichardt's condition was pronounced satisfactory later and a spokesman estimated he would be in hospital about 10 days. The spokesman added that Reichardt would be out for the rest of this season but would be ready in 1967.

Reichardt, pacing the Angels with 16 home runs before he was sidelined, was batting .288 and had 44 runs batted in.

Boxer Beaten, No Gloves

The situation resulted in William Kini of New Zealand being awarded the bout by default and given a berth in the event semi-final.

Gordon Richards, coach of the Sierra Leone team, was livid when Coker was forced to the sidelines and lodged a protest.

"It is not our fault if they could not provide the gloves for him," he said. "We have never had this sort of trouble before."

Coker is the British universities champion.

He was rated a solid chance to win the heavyweight gold medal, but Harry Banks, secretary of the Amateur International Boxing Association, said Coker's thumbs were too long for any gloves available at the fight.

"He apparently has a very long thumb and the gloves tried on him could not be laced up."

ATTENTION HUNTERS!

This autumn, you must have a Canada Migratory Game Bird Hunting Permit to hunt ducks, geese, coots, sandhill cranes, rails, woodcock, mourning doves, band-tailed pigeons, gallinules or snipe.

The purpose of this special permit is to provide information that will result in increased management of this valuable migratory game bird resource. The annual harvest survey depends on an accurate method of measuring waterfowl populations.

Presently, aerial and ground surveys of the breeding grounds in spring and mid-summer, and of the wintering grounds are providing some information, but not enough. Biologists need to know how many birds of each species are harvested, so that hunting regulations can be set to maintain breeding populations.

Variation in licensing systems has prevented a country-wide harvest survey. But now, sales records of the Canada Migratory Game Bird Hunting Permit, and questionnaires to some hunters, will enable the Wildlife Service to obtain the information needed. The new permit must be purchased in addition to any required provincial licences. Purchase of the new permit is not necessary this year in the Yukon and the Northwest Territories.

These permits are on sale now for $2.00 at rural post offices, and at most city post offices. Check with your local post office to find out where permits are being sold.

Stamps' Jerry Williams

Says Grid Race May Be Closest Ever

By BOB MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP)—Play in the Canadian Football League may be the tightest ever this season, says coach Jerry Williams of Calgary Stampeders.

"We lost our first game and we're going to lose some more before the season is over," he said in an interview Tuesday night.

"But every other club in the league is going to be in the same situation."

Williams hopes the Stampeders will even their season record tonight against Ottawa Rough Riders in an interlocking game televised on the CTV national network.

Saskatchewan Roughriders are the only unbeaten team in the West, Williams added, "and they won't stay that way long."

"Edmonton didn't look too good before the season but their 37-7 win over B.C. Lions shows we could have a five-team tie out West."

Williams also expects a close race in the East. Montreal has improved, he said, and Toronto Argonauts "looked real good against us in an exhibition game."

INDEEDS MORE TIME

The Riders were unimpressive in their 10-8 opening win over Montreal Alouettes. Coach Frank Clair says his potentially explosive attack will need more time from the line to achieve its potential. This, Clair feels, is just a matter of time.

The interior line is "almost completely revamped from last year."

Racine's partner at the other tackle berth is rookie Chuck Harrison who hails from Riverdale's home town of Cornwall, Ont. Rookie imports Roger Perdrix and John Waldersak have taken over at guard.

The Riders' biggest problem last year was on pass defence, due mainly to inexperience.

Williams has similar problems. He said he was worried about a couple of positions, "but I don't think they are serious weaknesses."

MADE TWO TRADES

His figures his offence also should take a while to get straightened away. Off-season trades brought end Terry Evanshen from the Alouettes and wingback Lennie Sparks from the Argos. Williams also had to shift Lamar Rentzel to the defensive line to offensive guard.

"It takes time for players to learn a new offence or a new position. This often gives the defence an advantage early in the season but it usually balances out before too long."

Williams says he's pleased that Ottawa also feels the defences in the league have been improved. He says it's a permanent change brought about by the improving calibre of players.

When he first came to Ottawa in 1956 he found teams used their best players on offence and "with a couple of exceptions the players on defence are as good and often better than the ones on offence."

Toronto Rink Lawn Bowling Champions

TORONTO (CP)—Jack Beacom's Toronto rink won the four competition of the provincial lawn bowling tournament Tuesday night with a 20-13 victory over Jim Grainger.

Beacom, who led 6S other rinks in the two-day section of the tournament, relinquished the lead midway through the final game, but scored strongly in the last three ends for the win.

In earlier rounds, Beacom defeated another Toronto rink skipped by John Sillers. Sillers was a strong favorite to win the Gold Cup, emblematic of team supremacy, after he downed Gordon MacMillan of Oshawa, the defending champions.

Doubles play begins today and continues until Thursday with singles Friday.

Alberta Wins Willingdon Cup

By Al McNeil

MONTREAL (CP)—Now that Alberta's four-man team has secured the Willingdon Cup—the top prize in inter-provincial golf play—for the fourth time in six years, the 84 qualifiers for the C.A.A.U.-Canadian Amateur championship have a clear field for the opening round today.

Tuesday the only three some of Keith Alexander, Bob Wylie and Doug Silverberg—unopposed until this year by John Kilburn of Edmonton—repeated their 1965 performance to take the team honor with a 36-hole aggregate score of 561.

British Columbia threatened for a time to end Alberta's reign, but finished second with 565—four strokes back. Ontario was third with 580, while Quebec finished fourth with 608.

The Willingdon Cup matches were played simultaneously with the two qualifying rounds for today's amateur, with all team players who registered 156 or better in team play, beating the cutoff.

Veteran Nick Weslock of Burlington, Ont., a member of the Ontario team, and 19-year-old Wes Smith of Manchaster, Conn., emerged as individual leaders for the amateur with matching scores of 144. Both carded 71s Tuesday.

COLE HAD 145

Tuesday the man who this summer won the British amateur championship at 18, also fired a 71 for a 145 aggregate total.

Bunky Henry of Valdosta, Ga., on hand to defend his 1965 championship, posted a 73, giving him a total of 149 for his two rounds.

The Royal Canadian Golf Association declared Weslock and Smith co medallist winners after the two went into a sudden-death playoff and each was one - over - par after six holes when a downpour broke.

In all, 23 golfers from the United States are competing in today's opening round at match play.

Terry Winter, a Purdue University student, is another top U.S. challenger for Henry's title. He shot 72-72—144 Tuesday to join Cole at 145.

THEY WERE STEADY

A tribute to the Alberta's consistency in winning the cup was the fact the foursome were only four strokes apart at the finish.

Alexander, who fired a 71 Monday and finished with 146, was one stroke better than Wylie. Silverberg had 148 and Kilburn 150.

The Trots

Tuesday night at Greenwood Raceway Freddy Hill sat behind his father's three-year-old pacer Eden Atom and drove him to victory in the second race.

The horse was purchased two months ago by Hill's father for $600. As a three-year-old the Mighty Atom-sired colt has had seven starts, winning three and grabbing one second for earnings of $1,947.

GRANTED DIVORCE

HALIFAX (CP) — Dorothy Elaine MacDonald, wife of Detroit Red Wings hockey player Parker MacDonald, has been granted a divorce by the Nova Scotia divorce court on the grounds of cruelty. She said her husband assaulted her, habitually used abusive, vulgar and threatening language and drank excessively. The court granted Mrs. MacDonald custody of their three children.

Cannifton Shades Shannonville

Cannifton grabbed an exciting 5-4 win over Shannonville last night to take a 2-1 lead in the teams' best-of-seven series - final series of the South Hastings Baseball League.

Both teams scored four times in the first frame, and Eric Emerson broke the tie in the third, when he scored the winning run for Cannifton.

Each team gave up only two hits, but Shannonville errored three times. Dave and Larry Lowis pitched for the losers, fanning seven and walking six. The Cannifton pitching pair of Terry Thompson and Butch Clapp threw third strikes past five and walked five.

Shannonville opened the scoring in the first frame on two walks and two hits. Cannifton followed suit in their half of the first, as four walks and two errors helped them tie the score.

In the third, Emerson walked and later scored from second on a single.

"Hitch" Makes Good

ATLANTA (AP)—Billy Hitchcock has been manager of Atlanta Braves for only one day but already has shown signs of genius.

Hitchcock returned to the managerial ranks Tuesday after 2½ years and gave aging Eddie Mathews a Monday job and inserted Felipe Alou back as leadoff hitter.

Alou responded with a leadoff homer against Los Angeles Dodger's pitching ace, Sandy Koufax, and Mathews clobbered a solo shot in the ninth in Braves' 2-1 National League win.

Southpaw Denny Lemaster also responded to the managerial change with a three-hit pitching performance and had a no-hitter going for seven innings before Dodgers' Jim Lefebvre homered in the eighth.

"That victory was a real pickup for the club," said Hitchcock who was named manager Tuesday after the Braves fired Bobby Bragan.

Bragan, in his fourth year with the Braves, said:

"Nobody likes to be fired, but this was no surprise. Nobody ever treated me better than the Braves, although our experience in Milwaukee and Atlanta was a stormy one."

The loss for Koufax was his sixth against 11 victories. Lemaster now has a 10-8 record.

A record 40,000 were on hand for the start of the game and 40,000 were still there at the end as a rain had delayed the game for two hours in the fourth inning.

SOLUTION FOUND?

FARNBOROUGH, England (Reuters)—Strips of gravel laid at the end of runways will help to avert aircraft crashes on landing or take-off, the Royal Aircraft Research Establishment has announced. Two years' research show that jets overshooting a runway will plow safely to a halt within seconds of the wheels encountering a prepared bed of gravel.

THE ARNOLD Palmer Method
by GOLF'S 4-TIME MASTERS WINNER

LEARN TO MAKE AN "L" ON YOUR DOWNSWING

Study the illustration and notice how my left arm and the clubshaft form an "L" midway in my downswing. This position shows that my wrists have not uncocked, although my hands have already moved to hip level. I have preserved the unbinging of my wrists until my hands have begun to enter the hitting area.

This is known as the "delayed hit" and is a major source of swing power. A golfer who can reach this "L" position and still square up the clubface by impact will certainly hit a long ball.

Favor French Skiers

PORTILLO, Chile (AP)—The men's giant slalom was to be fought out today on a demanding ski run described by some as too dangerous.

French racers were favored to take the second heat and with it the championship in the fourth of six events in the world Alpine championships.

Tuesday, over a less demanding course, France's Jean-Claude Killy won the first heat through 51 gates in one minute, 27.22 seconds.

Guy Perillat of France was second in 1:27.43 and Australia's Karl Schranz third in 1:27.64.

Canadian skiers complained of the hard snow that made turns difficult to hold. Best placed was Scott Henderson, 22, of Banff, Alta., who finished in a tie for 18th place with 1:41.49.

Keith Shepherd, 20, of Waterloo, Sask., was 25th in 1:42.93; Rod Hebron, 23, of Vernon, B.C., 27th in 1:43.08; Wayne Henderson, 22, a brother of Scott, 29th in 1:43.61 and Peter Duncan, 21, of Mont Tremblant, Que., 32nd in 1:43.89.

Jockeys To Testify

Probe Syndicate Gambling

MONTREAL (CP) — Jockey Al Coy contacted all the mounts he was scheduled to ride at Blue Bonnets Raceway Tuesday night and left for Michigan for a meeting with officials of the United States internal revenue service.

Coy, three other jockeys and a race horse trainer were subpoenaed Monday to testify about what the service called "one of the largest syndicate gambling operations ever raided" by its Detroit office.

A federal grand jury is investigating a gambling conspiracy case after raids of 12 suspected gambling centres July 1. Fourteen men were arrested in the raids on suspected gambling centres and were charged with conspiring to violate and defeat the U.S. federal gambling law.

Coy, 31, has not been suspended.

Racing officials at Detroit said they would take no action for the present against the five subpoenaed men. An official said: "As far as we know at the moment, the riders and trainer are free of any sort of wrongdoing. Until such time as action is taken against them, they will be permitted to continue to take part in the racing programs."

DETROIT (AP) — State officials said Tuesday the state's investigation of a gambling ring under 24-hour guard as Michigan authorities investigated alleged widespread dealing in horses and illegal betting by jockeys at Detroit race tracks.

State veterinarian Norman Stoner was placed under protective guard.

Governor George Romney and Attorney-General Frank J. Kelley have been working on the investigation "for a period of over a week," said Leon Cohan, deputy attorney general.

The Detroit Free Press said a copyrighted story that "unimpeachable sources said" involve the illegal use of a pain-killing drug on thoroughbred race horses and officials betting by jockeys, both prohibited by law."

Shooting Doctor Wins Silver

KINGSTON, Jamaica (CP) — A gun-toting medical doctor from Omemee, Ont., led off Canada's medal assault at the British Empire Games Tuesday.

Dr. Jules Sobrian, a 36-year-old native of San Fernando, Trinidad, won a second-place silver medal for Canada in free pistol shooting. Gary McMahon of Dartmouth, N.S., added a third-place bronze in the event. Charles Sexton of England won the gold medal.

Sobrian began toting a pistol when making house calls at his village 18 miles west of Peterborough in 1964 after a series of threats to his life.

His trouble began shortly after he moved to Omemee in 1963 with his St. Catharines bride after being at Toronto. The only doctor in the village, he ordered several wells and bathrooms cleaned after he tested the water and strictly enforced provincial plumbing laws.

He said at the time he was told of a threat to put a bomb in his car and added that Police Chief James Welham advised him to carry a gun.

AUSSIES EXCEL

HAMBURG, Germany (AP)—Fred Stolle and Margaret Smith of Australia captured the singles titles in the German international tennis championships Tuesday. Stolle beat Istvan Gulyas of Hungary 2-6, 7-5, 6-1, 6-2 in the men's singles final. Miss Smith whipped Marla Buxton of Brazil 8-6, 6-3 to win the women.

Connaught Research Lab Fussy About Its Monkeys

By CARMAN CUMMING

TORONTO (CP)—"Over here is our monkey house. We won't take you in there. We're very fussy about our monkeys."

Connaught Medical Research Laboratories is fussy about almost everything. So fussy that it doesn't smoth welcome strangers on the premises.

But recently the big institution, while opening three new buildings, overcame its normal reticence and shepherded a group of reporters through parts—only parts—of its 320-acre spread north of Toronto.

Chief shepherd for the tour was Dr. A. F. Charles, the short, brisk and humorous head of Connaught's Dufferin division, where most of the laboratories now are concentrated.

His soon made clear that "contamination" is one of the first words in the Connaught vocabulary. To avoid it, the facilities are scattered over more than 30 separate buildings.

Strict safety precautions are observed both to prevent the spread of dangerous organisms and to bar outside contamination. A "buffer zone" one-third of a mile wide separates the buildings from outside residents —"as much for our protection as for theirs."

IMPORTS MONKEYS

Passing the monkey house, Dr. Charles noted that the institution imports about 2,000 rhesus monkeys yearly for use in production of polio vaccine. Other buildings house guinea pigs, hamsters, horses, calves and other animals used in experimentation, production and testing of vaccines.

The tour in animal life is high, but there's also a lot of life even higher. "Since 1955, for example, the laboratories have produced more than 100,000,000 doses of Salk vaccine.

Vaccines are produced from viruses — and viruses, unlike bacteria, must be grown on living cells. Some can be cultivated on the embryos of incubating eggs. Others are planted in the skin of a calf, the brain of a rabbit, the kidney of a hamster.

Calves brought into Connaught for use in production of smallpox vaccine have a life expectancy of 21 days. The virus is planted in their skin after 15 days of preparation and harvested six days later.

This sort of harvesting has gone on in Toronto since 1925, when a five-horse barn was set up to produce diphtheria antitoxin.

At that time more than 400 people were dying each year from diphtheria in Ontario alone, and only small amounts of anti-toxin could be obtained from the United States.

That first operation, financed personally by Dr. J. G. FitzGerald of the University of Toronto, was absorbed when Connaught was set up in 1917.

In later years, the institution became prominent in the production of insulin, discovered in Toronto in 1921 by Frederick Banting and Charles Best. Dr. Best still serves as "honorary consultant" to the laboratories.

Among Connaught's recent achievements has been the development of a new rabies vaccine for use in humans.

It may not be released for general use for years, but it already has been tested successfully on staff researchers and on 300 volunteer students from the Ontario Veterinary College.

If and when it is licensed, the vaccine will "provide safe and painless immunization for people who customarily work with animals, such as veterinarians and dog wingers. At present a person bitten by a rabid animal must undergo a difficult and painful series of injections.

The laboratories, a non-profit division of the University of Toronto, are essentially self-supporting.

"We live by what we make and sell," Dr. Charles said.

Deseronto Receives Sewage System Report

OPP Report Busy Week

NAPANEE — In his weekly public information release Provincial Constable J. E. Elliott again stresses the necessity of always being safety conscious. Constable Elliott is the safety officer of the Napanee detachment.

"By the time you have read this report another person has become another statistic," he states. "Will you or one of your family be one of these statistics?

"Remember, 'accident' is only a word until you have one; then it becomes a painful memory," he continues. "We, the police, report statistics. You the public, create them. Be alert and always safety conscious."

Last week the eighth fatal accident of the year occurred in this area, the weekly information release says. Nine-year-old Nancy Rush ran across No. 2 Highway from behind a westbound truck into the path of an eastbound car.

During this period three personal injury accidents sent seven people to hospital. In an accident on the River Road August 2, David Asselstine, and Edward Yeomans, both of Napanee, were injured. August 6, Laurie Clark of Etobikoke, William Sly of Deseronto and Robert McFarlane of Napanee were hospitalized as the result of a two-car accident on the same road. All were in the same car. A one-car accident on Highway 41 August 8, sent Leo Munro of R. R. 9, Picton, and Harry Delyra of Kaladar to hospital with minor injuries.

During the week investigations were carried out on four thefts, one break and enter, 12 disturbance complaints, and 52 other occurrences in which two charges under the Liquor Control Act were laid.

Around Town

FIREMEN CALLED TO GRASS FIRE

NAPANEE — Napanee firemen were called out shortly before two o'clock Tuesday afternoon because of a grass fire off the Original Road across the road from the club house of the Napanee Golf and Country Club. Both the fire truck and the tank truck were despatched, and the men were back at the station within an hour.

Damage was confined to the grass and a bit of brush mostly on property belonging to Philip Speed and Sons of Armstrong. No buildings were damaged. The cause of the fire is unknown.

There have been comparatively few grass fires in this area of late, and men of the department are hopeful that it is because people have become more conscious of the necessity for care during this dangerously dry period.

New Zealand Starts Mining Copper Vein

CHRISTCHURCH, N.Z (Reuters)—Mining of high-grade ore estimated to contain copper worth some £3,500,000 is expected to start soon at Make Creek, near Westport, in central Otago, New Zealand's South Island.

Any new source of this vital metal is of interest to the world today, in view of the vulnerable position of landlocked Zambia, whose normal export routes run through Rhodesia. The Zambian copperbelt, the biggest producer in the British Commonwealth and second only to the United States in world output, turns out 14,000 to 15,000 tons of copper a week.

But a spokesman of the syndicate of five New Zealanders and one Australian who plan to mine the Make Creek copper said: "Potential copper below ground could be enormous. The solid rock in which the copper vein lies continues below ground to an estimated 2,200 feet."

The syndicate holds options over several thousand acres of land where it suspects there may be much more copper to be unearthed.

The Make Creek lode was discovered about 1862 but despite an estimated content of 12 per cent of copper, little work was done at the time, the spokesman said. Recent analysis gave a copper content of 12.2 per cent, which is high.

Paralyzed Accident Victim Invents Sensitive Switch

By PAUL SUFRIN

TORONTO (CP)—Victims of paralysis so severe they have to use only their tongues can look forward to a more active future because of the homework Bud Cairns did as a 20 - year - old electronics school graduate.

In a basement workshop at his home in suburban Toronto, Mr. Cairns, now 33, created a system that enables a severely paralyzed person in a bed or wheelchair to operate electrical household or office equipment.

Recognizing that the human body produces its own electrical energy, he built a switch that operates by light touch and Mr. Cairns's tongue.

Mr. Cairns has put in nine years of work developing the switch and adapting it to different equipment in his home.

He has worked the whole time from a wheelchair to which he has been confined since late 1958 after a gymnastic accident paralyzed him from the neck down. He can move his arms only a few inches in front of him.

TONGUE DOES WORK

"I had to eliminate a system that would involve strain in any way," he said. "The approach had to be simple. The apparatus must provide the individual with control over household articles, a control which is usually taken for granted."

In the demonstration, Mr. Cairns touched his tongue or brushed his cheek against a metal contact plate contoured into a space - neck extension. Across the room a panel indicator light came on and within a second there was light and sound music.

Mr. Cairns said the switch is touched can operate at least five appliances. They were hooked up in a sequence and the length of time he maintained contact determined which appliance went on. He could, if he wished, turn on one or all five appliances at a time.

In 1961, he completed a one-year course at Radio College, a private technical institute in Toronto offering training in electronics and electrical engineering. Mr. Cairns continued to keep abreast of developments in his field by reading all related literature.

KEPT BUSY

His interests took him into the selling field where, prior to his accident, he worked with a Toronto-based producer of tape recorders.

He got an unintentional start on his system when he did a little work on a tape recorder to be used for advertising that would stop and start automatically.

Mr. Cairns doesn't like to talk of the accident or the days of frustration and despondency during his readjustment.

"I kept pretty darn busy," he said. "It was one of the ways I kept my sanity up."

He overcame the difficulty of handling delicate transistors by inventing weighted pencils and electrical tools using his skin-touch switch.

The Canadian Paraplegic Association became interested in Mr. Cairns' work and approached him to develop something more practical than a machine recently built in England called the Possum or Patient Operated Selector Mechanisms.

ADAPTS TAPE RECORDER

The Possum operates electrical apparatuses by converting the pneumatic action of the mouth into impulses. The operation is based on the observation that the mouth is capable of good - sustained pressure or suction.

The machine has been developed so that a patient can even operate a typewriter.

But Mr. Cairns said many persons suffering severe paralysis frequently have doubtful control over their breathing and the method of puffing and sucking is too tiring.

With this in mind, he has adapted a tape recorder to work with his switch. An official at the Royal Ontario Museum suffering severe paralysis will soon be able to use the machine for his work.

A light touch turns on the recorder, starts the tape moving, stops it, plays it back and even erases it.

An added feature is voice control. Only when you speak into the microphone will the tape start. When you stop so does the tape. Mr. Cairns says this is of particular advantage for the person who suffers difficult breathing.

With this initial success, Mr. Cairns says he plans to build a selector system to help initiate a telephone call. Another idea is a door opener along the lines of the system now used in apartment buildings.

KITIMAT, B.C. (CP)—Steelworkers employed by the Aluminum Co. of Canada Tuesday started a government - paper-vised strike vote. About 1,700 members of the United Steelworkers of America (CLC) were expected to take part in the vote. Results are expected Thursday.

Boy, 8, to Climb Kilimanjaro And Plant Canadian Pennants

By JAMES SIABO

OTTAWA (CP)—Only youth and inexperience can prevent eight - year - old Erik Sheer from climbing Mount Everest in his existential project.

The frail, freckled youngster's ambition and enthusiasm are as high as the world's highest peak. He wants to climb—and climb now.

But Erik isn't hot-headed about Everest. He realizes his time will come.

Meanwhile he's doing the next best thing: mapping out his route for conquering Mount Kilimanjaro in Africa next summer as his private contribution to centennial year.

Then him will be his father and a physician who will make studies on how a boy Erik's age functions at 19,000 feet above sea level.

Kilimanjaro isn't Everest. Erik is the first to admit this. But his tutor and father, Frank Sheer, says he thinks it's the mountain an eight-year-old should tackle.

Already Erik has had a good warmup climbing Mount Marcy, a 5,344-foot peak in the Adirondacks. How did it go?

PLANS WINTER CLIMBS

And he plans to scale the peak at least a dozen times more before Kilimanjaro, some of the climbs next winter with snowshoes and skis.

During a recent ascent on Mount Marcy a Boston physician, Dr. Michael Wiedman, met Erik and his father. The doctor was impressed by Erik's skill at climbing that, when told about the Kilimanjaro plan, he offered to be on hand to accompany them.

"I feel a lot safer having a doctor along," says Mr. Sheer, who is employed in the personnel branch of the immigration department at Hull.

Erik first became accustomed to steep hills at the age of two when he started to ski. Two years later, he began climbing the Gatineau Hills in western Quebec with his father.

Now, he says, the Adirondacks, the highest mountains on this side of the continent, are a cinch.

Once shown how to use a climber's axe and to force himself to breathe at the bottom of his lungs to get the maximum amount of oxygen, Erik learned by osmosis and like a proficient climber.

"I only have to show him a thing once," says his father.

On weekend trips Erik was so eager to get back on the mountain, he'd frequently got up hours before the scheduled start and prepare all their equipment. His sheer, who minds two younger sons while the climbers are away, taught Erik how to cook.

Erik knows that half the fun of a trip is getting there.

There are maps, visas and tickets to obtain, and of course, permission from the government of Tanzania where the snow-capped Kilimanjaro lies.

The centennial commission has just given its official blessing and promised to support Erik with 300 maple leaf pennants, 300 Canadian flags and one centennial flag.

Why did Erik choose to climb a mountain as his centennial project?

"What else could the two of us do? It's better than planting a tree."

Mr. Sheer is careful not to let Erik overdo the sport.

"Once you start pushing it, it isn't fun any more.

"But Erik quickly learns he doesn't want to climb any more, we'll stop . . ."

But Erik quickly interrupts his father:

"Don't worry, dad. I don't think I will stop."

Girl From U.N.C.L.E. First His-Her Program on TV

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Stefanie Powers, her long hair dripping, clothes wringing wet and bound with ropes thick enough to dock the Queen Mary, sat unconcernedly in a large, air-conditioned cave on the MGM lot Tuesday. At the same time, a heinous villain repeatedly set a time bomb designed to destroy her.

In the nick of time in bounded a golden-haired fellow attired in something like a boy scout uniform. He shot off the rope that bound her (sound to be added later) and the pair scurried off to safety.

And that, friends of television's good guys, is the way it is these days in NBC's new Girl From U.N.C.L.E., which with its parent, the original Man From U.N.C.L.E. will constitute the first his-her program of the history of the medium.

Miss Powers plays the title role, an intrepid agent named April Dancer. Her companion in adventure is Noel Harrison, Fred's son, who was plucked from a nightclub singing career to play brave Mark Slate. His principal assignment seems to be rescuing April from horrendous plights.

Around the studio there seems to be an opinion that The Girl From U.N.C.L.E. is played a little more broadly than the masculine original, but they are in effect twin shows—same creators, same writers, and occasionally the stars of one series will turn up in the other.

Sources of David McCallum in the senior series appears to have dictated the choice of Harrison as co-star in the new show. He, like McCallum, is bright and boyish looking, but where David assumes his Russian accent, Harrison is permitted to speak with his normal British accent. Where David's shining blonde hair and bangs have gradually become more sleek and tidy, Noel's are on the shaggy side, although those glinting rock-'n'-roll sideburns of his Hullabaloo days are gone.

Harrison's theory about the show's cut - ins of the U.N.C.L.E. twins is that they are, like sweets, normally plays at which virtue predictably triumphs at the end.

Noel, child of one of Harrison's earlier marriages, has been happily married for eight years to a non-professional, has three children and has been making his own way by singing for the last 12 years.

Bridge Topples Into Rideau River

Detroit Police Arrest 39 as Riots Continue

DETROIT (AP) — Police arrested 39 Negro and white youths Wednesday night in a racially - mixed neighborhood on Detroit's east side where a Negro man was shot in the shoulder during fighting in which bricks and firebombs were thrown.

It was the second straight night of racial violence in the neighborhood.

In New York, two white men were wounded by rifle fire after police said a white crowd threatened Negroes who recently moved into a mostly-white Brooklyn section.

In Grenada, Miss., state police forced hundreds of angry whites out of Midtown Square Wednesday night when some of them tried to bombard a Negro civil rights rally with firecrackers and pieces of jagged metal propelled by slingshots.

In Chicago, civil rights leaders for the 20 marchers determined to picket the real estate board. It was the most peaceful demonstration in the three weeks of protests alleging discriminatory practices by real estate firms.

DAY CHARGES

Detroit's 4,000 policemen will work 12-hour shifts until the neighborhood returns to normal. All leaves have been cancelled.

The New York incident took place after a crowd gathered in front of an apartment recently occupied by Negroes. Three Negroes came out, one carrying a 22-calibre rifle. He fired into the shouting whites, police said, wounding the two men.

For Grenada, it was the third straight night of racial violence. A strong force of highway patrolmen remained in the north Mississippi city of about 8,000 today.

Malaysia, Indonesia Sign Pact

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—Indonesia and Malaysia signed an agreement today to end their three-year undeclared war.

Deputy Prime Minister Tun Tun Abdul Razak of Malaysia, who flew into Jakarta for the ceremony, said the document was identical with one he and Foreign Minister Adam Malik of Indonesia signed June 1 in Bankok, Thailand.

The pact provides that hostilities between the two Southeast Asian countries will cease at once and diplomatic relation will be re-established. It also provides for general elections in the Malaysian Borneo states of Sabah and Sarawak to reaffirm their desire to be a part of Malaysia.

President Sukarno, who started Indonesia's guerrilla war in September, 1963, when Malaysia was formed as a federation of former British territories, was not present.

Sukarno had objected to the peace moves and two weeks ago reiterated his charges that Malaysia was created by the British to preserve their influence in Southeast Asia and as a threat to Indonesia.

Non-ops Not Likely To Accept

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP) — A conciliation board chairman has recommended a 40-cent hourly wage increase spread over two years for 21,000 members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers in their contract dispute with the CNR.

The report of Mr. Justice J. C. A. Cameron of Ottawa, released today by the labor department, copies exactly the wage proposal made last month by Mr. Justice Craig Munroe of Vancouver in a conciliation report involving about 77,000 other non-operating employees of the major railways.

The Munroe report was rejected by the 17 unions involved. The CBRT, which has demanded a 50 - cent hourly raise, is certain to do the same.

Both reports recommend a raise of 18 per cent based on

U.S. Plane Shoots Up One Of Its Own Vessels, 2 Die

From Reuters-AP

SAIGON (CP)—A U.S. plane shot up one of its own vessels off the coast of South Viet Nam today, killing two of the crew and wounding five others.

The incident, involving a U.S. coast guard cutter as it was patrolling in early morning darkness, was the second attack by mistake by American planes in just over 24 hours.

A U.S. command spokesman said a spotter plane mistook the cutter for an enemy vessel as it was moving without lights about 35 miles north of Hue and called in an air strike. The wounded were taken to hospital at the American base at Phu Bai, near Hue.

The five wounded included Tim Page, 22, a freelance British correspondent and photographer who had been wounded twice before in Viet Nam. His injuries were reported not serious. The other injured were three crew members and a South Vietnamese.

The other accidental attack was made Tuesday night by two U.S. jets on a village southwest of Saigon. Fifteen South Vietnamese civilians were killed and 182 wounded in a rain of bombs and rockets.

In the ground war, a battalion of U.S. marines battled North Vietnamese in drenching rain for seven hours near Da Nang Wednesday night until the Communists fled. The marines counted at least 114 Communist dead and reported their own casualties were moderate.

He arrived here with Mrs. Pearson in a transport department plane Wednesday and left by automobile for the lake 10 minutes later. Only a handful of persons saw his arrival.

The prime minister was indefinite about the length of his holiday.

Johnson Promises Aid

Quebec Steel Plant Proposal Is Given New Lease on Life

QUEBEC (CP)—Premier Daniel Johnson Wednesday gave the proposed Sidbec steel plant an apparent new lease on life with an announcement that more time and money will be provided by his government for study of the project.

A cloud of uncertainty had hung over the future of Sidbec since Aug. 5 when Sidbec president Jean - Paul Gignac reported to Mr. Johnson that the project was far from getting off the ground.

The preliminary work on the project study has cost $5,000,000 and Mr. Gignac reported it would take another $1,500,000 and six months before worthwhile recommendations could be "great all the time and money necessary" for completion of the study of Quebec's first steel-producing establishment.

Original plans called for establishment of an integrated plant in Becancour, Que., at a cost of about $200,000,000, but recent studies have shown the actual costs would soar far above that.

The project was to have been partially financed by the Quebec General Investment Corp. which draws on private and public financing.

Meanwhile, former premier Jean Lesage commented Wednesday on a report published Tuesday in the Halifax Chronicle-Herald that a proposition had been made involving sale of the Dominion Steel and Coal Corp. to the Quebec government during Mr. Lesage's term in office.

The newspaper quoted Sir Roy Dobson, president of Hawker-Siddeley, the British parent company of Dosco, that the offer had been made while Quebec was still in the discussion stage on the steel plant to be located at Becancour.

The report quoted Sir Roy as saying in Quebec: "What's the sense of building a whole new plant? We'll sell you Dosco. Then, for the $200,000,000 that will take, with another $100,000,000, you'll have something worth $700,000,000. We'll manage it for you."

Mr. Lesage said no such offer was made to his government but that he was in no position to say whether such an offer was made to the provincially-sponsored Sidbec.

Sir Roy was quoted as saying the offer had been rejected but Mr. Lesage said the offer could not have been rejected since it had not been made.

The Halifax report also quoted Sir Roy as saying Quebec had only been interested in buying the Dosco holdings inside the provincial border and not the company's steel and coal facilities at Sydney, N.S.

Mr. Lesage said Dosco had proposed that a steel plant be set up in Quebec—partly under Dosco auspices.

Mr. Lesage said this proposal had been turned over to a provincial committee which had dismissed it because of Dosco's insistence on establishing absolute control over sales.

Meanwhile, in Montreal, Lise Sicotte, public relations director for Dosco, said that if any such offers had been made in Mr. Lesage by Hawker-Siddeley, it was without the knowledge of Dosco.

Span Collapses; 7 Dead, 2 Missing And 53 Injured

OTTAWA (CP)—A grim search was resumed at 8 a.m. EDT today for two more men missing and presumed dead in the collapse Wednesday of a partly-built bridge in the southwest end of the city. Seven bodies were recovered from the rubble earlier.

At least 53 other bridge workers were injured, many critically.

A crew of 30 men resumed the search amid tons of construction debris as a steady rain turned earth to mud. Huge piles of twisted steel and wooden frames still covered the search area.

Rescue operations had been suspended at 3:30 a.m., 19 hours after a section of the bridge dropped 60 feet into the Rideau River gorge. The rain, exhaustion and a lack of heavy equipment forced a break in the back-breaking work.

Officials said they also feared some rescue workers might be injured by a further collapse of bridge sections in the caisson, broken only by the glare of floodlights.

As the rescue effort was being suspended, Mayor Don Reid said he understood nine men had died and another was not accounted for.

Earlier, police and construction company officials had released names of eight men as dead.

LOCATED IN HOSPITAL

But the name of Elmer Ivall, 38, of Angers, Que., was later removed from the list when the Ottawa Civic Hospital reported him officially as in fair condition with a fractured spine and eye injuries.

The accident came only four months after a building under construction in central Ottawa collapsed, killing one man and endangering the lives of 40 others.

Eighteen of the injured victims were reported in critical condition.

Showers of cutting - torch sparks and the glare of the floodlights lit up the west bank of the Rideau River. Police tried to clear crowds still gathered on the slope of the gorge by 10 hours after the accident.

The collapse came at 3:20 p.m. Wednesday as a 120-foot span of the new Heron Road bridge gave way, dropping bun-

Airline Deadlock Unshaken

WASHINGTON (AP) — Union and management leaders blame each other for the latest collapse in the strike of 25,000 mechanics against five airlines.

The U.S. House of Representatives commerce committee continued to study back-to-work legislation to end the strike, now in its fifth week.

"Do not pass legislation that you will regret the rest of your lives," warned AFL-CIO President George Meany on behalf of 17,000,000 union members.

Chairman Harley O. Staggers of the commerce committee Wednesday called on negotiators to try arbitration.

But F. L. (Red) Siemiller, president of the International Association of Machinists (AFL-CIO), predicted any arbitration plan without prior agreement on major contract demands would be overwhelmingly voted down.

SAYS PREJUDGING

"Precluding the vote by the international president clearly indicates the union does not desire to end this dispute by voluntary arbitration," William J. Curtin, chief airlines negotiator, said in accusing Siemiller of undermining Staggers' plan.

Estimated financial losses of the five strikebound airlines—United, National, Northwest, Eastern and Trans World—and their more than 26,000 idled employees mounted near the $300,000,000 mark.

Some $250,000,000 of it was lost airlines revenues and about $50,000,000 lost wages. The strike affects 60 per cent of the U.S. air traffic.

Wilson Shuffles Cabinet

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Wilson was accused today of playing "musical chairs" after a cabinet shuffle Wednesday which sent George Brown, former economics minister, to the foreign office.

Brown 51 - year - old trade unionist and strong advocate of British entry into the European Common Market, remains deputy leader of the Labor party. He exchanges titles with Michael Stewart, 59, a former schoolteacher who gets the job of implementing the controversial prices and incomes freeze.

Four other ministers switch portfolios. The changes bring no new faces to the cabinet and involve no departures.

The Labor - supporting Sun, in a front-page editorial entitled "Musical Chairs," said:

"It is difficult to be impressed by Mr. Wilson's cabinet changes. And even more difficult to understand why he has made them so swiftly after indicating displeasure about speculation that changes were coming.

"The players are the same," said the Newcastle Journal, "only the numbers of the jerseys are different."

The Liberal Guardian said the Canadian Planes in Pakistan Only for Repair and Overhaul

--Pearson

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson indicated Wednesday the government is not "only alarmed by the reported presence of Canadian-built jets in Pakistan.

India has complained that Pakistan is building up its air forces with F-86 aircraft, which were sold to West Germany in 1957 and resold to Iran this year.

Mr. Pearson told a press conference the German position on the planes is fairly clear: if they are in Pakistan it is only for repair and overhaul.

But he added that he could not say whether the matter was closed.

He did not know, whether a reply had been received from Bonn to a Canadian request for an explanation on how the jets had found their way to Pakistan.

Mr. Pearson said he wanted to make clear that Pakistan is not "under suspicion." Pakistan was a member of the Commonwealth and there were no restrictions of any kind on exchanges of arms among Commonwealth countries.

"I'd hate to give the impression, however, that a sister member of the Commonwealth is somehow outside the pale. . ."

TACKED OF STRIKE

Mr. Pearson said the Wednesday cabinet meeting dealt with national labor troubles, including the possibility of a railway strike.

He said he did not wait to discuss any specific plans that might be used to deal with any strikes or indicate whether Parliament might be recalled.

He also said:

—One or two persons, not members of the judiciary, have been approached about serving on a probable three-member royal commission into national security. The delay in appointing the commission is caused by difficulty in finding the right persons willing to devote a year or more to the job.

—He still hopes to receive the report by Mr. Justice W. F. Spence on the Monsinger inquiry this month, but he has had no word about this from the judge.

—The report of the inquiry into the activities of Mr. Justice Landreville of the Ontario Supreme Court will be ready next week.

Asked whether Canada would have approved the sale of the aircraft directly to Pakistan, Mr. Pearson said he could not say—but that there had been arms sales in the past to both India and Pakistan.

Canada sold 90 of the F-86 jets to West Germany on the condition that there would be no resale without Canadian approval. Ottawa permitted the resale to Iran in January, and most of the aircraft now are reported to be in Pakistan.

Electrification Of Canal Locks Being Opposed

KINGSTON (CP) — Plans of the department of transport to install electric systems on locks of the Rideau Canal are being opposed by historical and civic groups and individuals in the Kingston area.

A department spokesman said Wednesday the plans are about eight years old. It has been policy since 1958 to put electric or hydraulic systems into locks due for general maintenance.

About four of 46 locks have been changed so far, he said. H.Jol. Lamb, Kingston, president of the Kingston Historical Society, said automated locks would destroy the historical aspect of the canal, built during the War of 1812 as a supply route from Ontario.

Mrs. Sam Farmer, executive member of the Leeds Liberal Association, complained that the canal system was being changed at a time when Canada is "spending millions of dollars to restore historical sites."

Jack Mosack of Newboro, where one lock was turned over to electric power this spring, said the new system was not working.

"To me and a lot of others the whole thing has just been a big joke."

Staff Shortage Slows Down Operating Rooms at Hospital

A shortage of specialized staff, due to holidays and sickness, has caused a "slowdown" in operating room cases at the Belleville General Hospital.

Hospital Administrator S. J. Johnston said the slow down is not serious. "Things are taking a little longer perhaps, but they're being done.

"It's just a temporary shortage; you manage the best you can with what staff you have.

"It's not a case of shortage of nurses, we've got lots of nurses. The problem is that you can't take general duty graduate nurses off the floors and put them in the operating room until they've had specialized post-graduate training."

Mr. Johnston said some operations are being re-scheduled but only elective operations, i.a. those not of an urgent nature. "Any operation of an emergency nature certainly still receives priority treatment."

The administrator explained that it is normal in larger Ontario hospitals to close down a portion of the operating rooms in the summer months to permit staff to go on holidays.

"But when you've only got four operating rooms to start with like we have, you can't close any down. You just have to keep going the best you can."

Ontario Playing Partisan Politics on Milk Problems

--Greene

By FRITS ROOS

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Greene Wednesday charged the Ontario government with playing partisan politics and making a political football of current problems of Ontario's dairy industry.

He made his statement at a press conference following a 2½-hour meeting with representatives of the Ontario Farmers Union, headed by John Dolmer of Corbetton, president.

The union proposed that the federal government increase the base price of manufacturing milk by $3.25 per hundredweight, guaranteeing the farmers a return $4.25 a hundredweight on milk delivered at the dairy.

Since the new milk price policy announced earlier this year, farmers get $4 a hundredweight, including a 75-cent per federal subsidy, but, they claim, the cost of moving the milk from the farm to the plant is 25 cents.

They had originally asked for a $4-a-hundredweight guaranteed return at the farm, Mr. Dolmer said Wednesday.

KITCHEN CRITICISM

Mr. Greene's criticism was directed at "political rocks thrown in my direction" by Ontario Agriculture Minister Stewart, who told the Ontario farmers their problems are a federal and not a provincial responsibility.

Not so, said Mr. Greene. Recently - increased transportation charges to the farmers by the dairies were a provincial issue, not a federal one.

He also rejected the Ontario government's proposal that Ottawa increase its milk price subsidy to the level of subsidies provided Quebec farmers by their provincial government.

"It would be completely irresponsible to expect Ottawa to pick up the tab for levelling pricing discrepancies between provinces wherever a province decides to put on a subsidy of its own," he said.

He agreed with the OFU group that these problems must be worked out as quickly and effectively as possible and he promised to call a meeting "in the near future" with provincial agriculture ministers and other interested parties and make specific proposals.

850-pound Spacecraft on Way to Moon

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—Lunar Orbiter sped through space today to photograph the moon and help locate a level spot where astronauts may camp later in the 1970s.

At 12:23 p.m. EDT Wednesday, launched from Cape Kennedy, Fla., at 3:26 p.m. EDT Wednesday by an Atlas-Agena rocket, to its orbit the moon, photograph possible landing sites, measure radiation and detect micrometeorite density.

Its nearest trajectory would make it miss the moon by 5,800 miles at the end of its 90-hour, 236-400-mile trip. But a midcourse maneuver is planned between 30 and 30 hours after liftoff.

Lunar Orbiter is to fire its retrorockets early Sunday, 350 miles from the moon, putting it into lunar orbit — a goal not achieved in seven earlier U.S. attempts.

The far side, though more remote, has been photographed by Russia's spacecraft which also were first in orbiting the moon.

Queen's Scout of England Enjoying Visit in District

A 17-year-old Queen's Scout arrived in Belleville this week to carry out his role in the first United Kingdom - Canada Boy Scout exchange program ever held.

Christopher Paul Allen, from Hawthurst, Kent, is one of 110 British scouts who are present are in various parts of Canada taking part in the exchange. Richard Allen, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Fort of 12 Stratcona Drive in the city, left Malton Airport in Toronto Monday to be the Canadian scout representing this area in England.

Christopher, who comes from a family of six, has completed his education under the British public schools system. An experienced scout, he holds the rank of Patrol Second in the First Hawkhurst Troop.

Scout Allen was billeted this week in the home of Belleville scout, Jim Terry, 17, a member of the Fifteenth Belleville Troop. Jim's father, Mr. S. J. Terry, of 96 Goldfish Road, is the scoutmaster of the Fifteenth Belleville Scouting Troop.

The Terry family have treated Christopher to a full week's activities, to say the least. Besides swimming and taking part in other summer pastimes, Christopher squeezed in visits to Ivy League Bridge, Old Fort Henry, and most of the local sites of interest.

CIVIC WELCOME GIVEN

Tuesday afternoon, Mayor Jack Ellis extended the city's official welcome to the English guest, and asked Christopher to sign Belleville's visitors book at the City Hall.

As to what he thinks of this country up to this point in his visit, Christopher finds a big change from his home land where "it rains every other day." He also was surprised at the difference in the costs of living of the two countries, finding haircuts and clothes, for example, much cheaper in England.

Scout Allen was scheduled to leave Belleville today for the Haliburton Scout Reserve Composite Camp, where he will spend a week engaged in scouting activity with a number of scouts from the Greater Toronto Region. Following this, he will return to the Belleville area to stay at the residence of Mr. Gerald Swan on the Fifth concession of Thurlow Township. Mr. Swan's son Bruce, a Rover Scout with the First Belleville Troop, and Rover Scout Arthur Hall, will be Christopher's hosts for the next week in Canada.

The British guest will embark for home August 24 from Toronto, and it is expected that both he and his hosts will have profited from the visit.

Expect Thousands Will Attend Bancroft Rockhound Gemboree

BANCROFT — The Bancroft district in North Hastings is the place this week for "rock hound" collectors from all parts of Canada and the United States.

The occasion is the 3rd annual Bancroft Rockhound Gemboree, sponsored by the Bancroft Mineral Society, which is four days last year drew an attendance of more than 12,000 rock collectors from all parts of the country.

The Rockhound Gemboree was officially opened yesterday by Brian Watson, popular young Bancroft hockey player who has made a name for himself with the Detroit Red Wings.

The Gemboree, which features rock swaps, field trips, a variety concert, band appearances and parades, continues until Saturday evening and will end with a marshmallow roast. Friday and Saturday are expected to be the big attendance days.

The Bancroft Gemboree has proven a popular attraction for dyed in the wool "Rockhounds" and others since its inception in 1964.

Original sponsor of the event was the Bancroft Chamber of Commerce, but this year the attraction is being staged by the Bancroft Mineral Society, with headquarters just east of Bird's Creek at the Society clubhouse grounds on the Baptista Lake Road. The Society has purchased the former Bancroft Outdoor Theatre premises and has acquired additional grounds for Gemboree parking.

DRAWS BIG CROWDS

For the next three days the Gemboree headquarters will be from almost every province in the Dominion and from many states of the Union south of the border all aimed to trade rocks with one another, purchase the odd rare specimen and go on field trips.

There are long rock-swapping tables, several large tents for rocks and minerals and commercial displays, as well as concessions dispensing meals and sandwiches.

Taking part in yesterday's official opening ceremonies, besides the Red Wings hockey star and Bancroft native son Brian Watson, were Hastings East MLA Clarke T. Rollins, Rod Webb, MP for Hastings-Frontenac, and Mr. G. F. Coyne, representing the provincial development department.

Carl Bosiak, president of the Gemboree Committee, welcomed the visitors, while Harold Petch, Mineral Society public relations chairman, acted as master of ceremonies.

Defence Dept. To Purchase New Torpedo

OTTAWA (CP)—The defence department plans to spent $27,400,000 on a new "integrated" torpedo—for use by both navy and RCAF, officials disclosed Wednesday.

The torpedo-known as the Mark 46 and made by Aerojet-General Corp. of Azusa, Calif.—may well be the most accurate and devastating conventional weapon in Canada's armed forces.

One hit will destroy a submarine. A total of 428 of the torpedoes will be purchased in Italy at a cost of about $64,000 each.

The torpedo, actually an underwater guided missile, can be launched from the torpedo tube of a surface ship, by a rocket launcher, or from helicopters or planes. It can thus be fired from ships and aircraft of the fleet or from RCAF Argus and Neptune maritime patrol aircraft.

Officials said the Mark 46 can carry a nuclear warhead but that there is no intention of installing any.

The Mark 46 is driven by a solid-fuel rocket motor, the first time in history a torpedo has been so powered.

Not Surprised About Budget Says Dief

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP)—Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said Wednesday that he was not surprised by Defence Minister Hellyer's statement that a bigger defence budget will be sought next year.

"We expected this and I predicted that this would happen," he said in an interview.

"This is just another example of the manner in which the government carries on its policies . . . . The announcement was made with great pomp and ceremony a year or so ago that as a result of new policies of the government, there would be a reduction in defence expenditures without there being any reduction in the effectiveness of Canada's armed forces.

"Since then there has taken place, policies on integration and unification have been advanced, postponed, and now are to be reviewed by Parliament this fall."

The 1966-67 defence budget is $1,373,000,000 and in 1963 the defence minister was given a budget of some $1,350,000,000 a year for five years with an annual two-per-cent increase to cover increasing costs.

Given 7 Days In Driving Case

Arnold Bruce Thompson, 20, of 304 Albert Street in Belleville, was sentenced to seven days in jail in this morning's county magistrate's court for driving a motor vehicle while prohibited from doing so.

Thompson was charged after being stopped by a Belleville O.P.P. constable August 7 on Highway 2, just west of Belleville.

Thompson, who pleaded guilty to the charge, told Magistrate T. Y. Wills that he was travelling in Toronto to see a friend in hospital.

O.P.P. Constable Halvorsen, the investigating officer, said that Thompson told him that his licence had been under suspension for four months when he was stopped by police.

The accused told the court this morning that his driving permit was suspended May 13 following a careless driving conviction in Fort Erie.

New Economics Minister Strongman of Labor Govt.

By COLIN FROST

LONDON (AP) — Michael Stewart, the unknown statesman took over Wednesday night the giant task of rescuing Britain from financial disaster.

The self - effacing former schoolteacher has been foreign secretary for the last two years. But many Britons scarcely know what he looks like.

Stewart's move to the home front was the main switch of Prime Minister Wilson's government reshuffle Wednesday night.

Stewart makes a straight change of jobs with George Brown, economics minister who now becomes foreign secretary.

Brown remains deputy prime minister. But it was clear to everyone in the Commons smokeroom that Stewart has emerged as the strongman of the Labor government, second only to Wilson.

ADMINISTERS FREEZE

His task is to administer the wage and price freeze, which is Brown's brainchild, and to restore confidence in the British economy and the pound sterling.

He can expect a quick and bitter opposition with party labor unions, aghast at seeing their bargaining power whipped away by the freeze law which the government inches through the Commons Wednesday night.

If he succeeds, he can hope to crown his career by ascension to prime minister if party faction or political accident should force Wilson out.

Political observers say he has been decisive in bringing Stewart to his present ascendancy. In 1964, when the Labor party returned to power after 13 years, he was named education minister.

The foreign secretary's job went to Patrick Gordon Walker. Gordon Walker, however, was ousted from the Commons by Labor voters of Smethwick, a suburb of Birmingham.

LOST IN LETTON

He tried to win another Commons seat in Leyton, East London but was again defeated. Inevitably he had to resign as foreign secretary.

In that post he has been a consistent supporter of the United States position in Viet Nam, brushing aside the persistent complaints of Labor's left wing.

He has travelled the five continents. Yet he remains as little known to the man in the street that the political cartoonists have to give him a label on his beam.

CAME IN LANDSLIDE

He came into Parliament in 1945 as part of the great Labor landslide that elected Winston Churchill from power at the moment of Second World War victory.

He held minor posts in the Labor governments of 1945 to 1951. In the years of opposition he made himself an expert on television, housing and local government.

Miner Shoots Self Sitting In Police Car

ELLIOT LAKE, Ont. (CP)—A young uranium miner sat for an hour in the back seat of a police cruiser Wednesday night, his finger on the trigger of a rifle pointed at himself, while police tried to talk him out of the gun. Then he shot himself.

Robert Joseph Dakens, 22, who had been picked up while arguing with a girl friend, died 10 minutes later in hospital.

Constable Robert Elliot had been called to a street disturbance, as he stepped out of his cruiser, Dakens ran to his automobile, picked up the rifle and thrust it against his stomach. The officer said Dakens told him he would shoot himself if he came closer.

The officer persuaded the miner, formerly of Stellarton, Nova Scotia, to get into the cruiser and out of the way of a crowd, but Dakens kept his finger on the trigger. Then five to police headquarters, where Chief Nick Cook and Coroner Dr. J. P. Morley joined in trying to persuade the man to give up the gun.

"We talked for about an hour," the chief said today. "Then, just as it appeared we had talked him into surrendering the gun, it went off. I don't know if he realized he still had his finger on the trigger."

Chief Cook said an investigation of what led up to the incident is continuing.

The Pursuit of Leisure

The golden age of leisure we hear so much about these days. . . Is it here? If it is not here now, is it about to dawn? And one way or another, is increased leisure what man really wants?

We doubt it. Probably the greatest good a man can have, the thing that gives him his finest outlet, the "mostest" in well-being to coin a phrase, is to spend his days working at what he likes to do. That many hate the daily grind is an unfortunate truth, but happy are those who for the most part find fulfillment and enjoyment in their appointed tasks.

Italian actress Giovanna Ralli is one who likes to keep going without much break. According to a recent report in this newspaper, Miss Ralli has made more than 30 films since beginning her acting career at the age of 13. She is still only in her mid-twenties. "I prefer to work," she replied when asked why she rarely relaxes for more than a weekend. Currently filming in Hollywood, Miss Ralli has roles lined up in other films in Italy and Spain.

What about the rest of us. The weekend comes, and Canadians pile into their cars and drive off to the beach or some other place where they hope to find peace and relaxation. But by the time they return home they likely as not have found neither. Many are incapable of really relaxing, they drive too far too fast, while all around is the green countryside in summer passing by almost unnoticed.

However, there is evidence that some are getting back to the old-fashioned sense of being away from it all, even in the course of a long journey and with the busy flow of traffic only a short distance away.

Yes, even on Highway 401. Just off the highway there are grass fringes stretching for a considerable distance to the fence line, and provided a simple and safe parking for anyone wishing to tarry for a while in the shade of a big maple, have a picnic and generally take his ease. One sees families doing this more often these days, and it reflects a desire to find the kind of peace and quiet which so often is lacking today.

Belleville Fair

It is coming up to Belleville Fair time again, when naturally (and no pun intended) there will be all the fun of the fair.

Belleville Fair traditionally is one of the biggest attractions in the city calendar, and this year's two-day blast, starting August 13, is no exception.

The program will feature everything from the ever-popular chuckwagon and motorcycle races to band concerts and parades. The exhibition will again will display the products of local industrial and business establishments.

Top attraction of course will be the Fort Henry Guards, which incidentally, has half-a-dozen boys from Quinte area schools on its strength. Each Wednesday evening during the summer months the Guard presents its famous sunset ceremonial.

The Kingston fort played a vital role in the defence of this area during the troubled times of the war of 1812 and in other engagements with the Americans in later years. Today the old cannons are silent, and accurate rifle and infantry men perform the military drill of the period, for the many tourists who are in the area at this time.

Now Belleville residents and tourists alike are being afforded a unique opportunity to see the Fort Henry Guard in action locally. It will be here for one evening only, on Thursday, August 18. It is sure to be an interesting occasion for young and old alike.

Picton Celebrates

It may not be "switched on" fashion-wise in the manner of old London, mini-skirts et al, any more than cities outside Montreal or Toronto have caught the European winds of fashion change; but it does remember in tangible form its interesting past. Period costume is the rule during Loyalist Week.

Between that thing and another it has been a busy week in Picton so far. No sooner was the Loyalist Days parade over than firemen were called to battle a furniture warehouse blaze.

The same day the Kiwanis Club entertained to lunch eight of the 11 nursing sisters from Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital, whose presence in Picton gives the town a cosmopolitan air enjoyed by few communities of its size.

One of the nurses, Barbara Young, gave a talk on her country from the time of its occupation by the Spaniards to its latter-day status as an independent nation. Among those present was Mayor H. J. McFarland who presented each of the nurses with a Maple Leaf brooch.

"I appreciate your families allowing you to come to Canada to do such a wonderful job," said Mr. McFarland in a handsome tribute to the young women which surely went far to making them feel more at home in this part of the world.

Ottawa Offbeat

Robert Thompson's Image Shattered by Pension Vote

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — There was a sort of political vaulting act in the first half of this fiction that was so good you really didn't notice it.

Which, perhaps, is the measure of the expertise of any now-you-see-it-now-you-don't act of disappearance.

It is only now, with the Commons taking its Summer ease, that it is only now with the Commons taking its Summer ease, that the question kind of creeps up on you . . . whatever happened to "Bobby Baby?"

You know . . . Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson. For going on four years he seemed such a potent parliamentary pumpkin.

Helped the Lib ber-u lapa Hoyle the Liberals pull down former Prime Minister Diefenbaker's fenced-in school, crisis-ridden Conservative Government.

Until you ever forget the night and the night when the end came for Dief as PM, with the Commons division bells ringing for the vote that would close one era and open another . . . and there was Davie Fulton, then Tory Works Minister, across the floor of the House, pleading with Bob Thompson to support the toppling Government? And the Socred Leader lowering his head from "yes" high was the blade of a guillotine? BIG MAN

Helped then, for the next two years, to prop up Prime Minister Pearson's first minority Liberal Government.

Now each time they begged him to support the Government he nodded his head "yes" like it was that of an Imperial Caesar sparing the life of some wretched slave.

What would Bob Thompson do?

That was the question every body asked everybody else when a vote was shaping up in the House.

And regularly, as if by clockwork patrolling a floor of the Centre Block to Bob Thompson's office to get the answer. After the first few times it got to be something of an exercise in futility, for he always answered the question in the Commons by nodding his head "yes" when Government emissaries beseeched him in that manner.

And then came last November's election with the voters returning Bob Thompson to Parliament with his ranks depleted to five.

But they still asked — perhaps out of sheer habit — what he would do when the MPs stood up to be counted on one issue after another.

Then all of a sudden — presto Parliamentary change-o — it didn't matter how he nodded his head or how he voted.

Like he always went with the Government and instead of the question being a deeply concerned: how is Bob Thompson going to vote? it became: is he ever going to vote against the government on any issue?

LITTLE MAN

The answer to that one was "no."

Bob Thompson himself answered it when he voted against the 25% increase both the conservatives and New Democrats demanded in the Old Age Pensions.

That tore it for him.

Tore it with the very people who had given him his warmest support, the Old Age Pensioners.

They had thought Bob Thompson "such a fine man," and such "great sincerity" — sentiments they had poured in letters they had sent him personally and had mailed to editors all across the land.

And now, when it counted, he hadn't stood with or for them.

Vainly he explained that he had voted not against the pension increase but rather for stable government, and of course, with the Liberals as usual.

But this was the watershed for him.

And in his office they poured a bushel of mail to tell him so.

Over the last three years he had stuck with the Government through one crisis and scandal after another. But this was different. Here, in voting against the pension increase, he was voting the way even a large number of Liberal MPs found themselves for feeling compelled to vote against their party.

It cut away the base of Bob Thompson's very special personal sort of support. And since, the once bigtime Parliamentary operator, the mover and shaker of government, has become a Commons cipher. Nobody asks, nobody cares what Bob Thompson's going to do.

It is the most amazing political vanishing act of this troubled Parliament.

Says "Punks" Are Troublesome Lot

Editor,
The Intelligencer:—

I am glad you are encouraging your subscribers and readers to voice their opinions in your paper. Often such views help to improve community life and living.

In the Ottawa Journal Aug. 8 we read about "Punks taking over Ottawa River Parkway." Unfortunately punks and hoodlums do exist. They are trying to take over not only in large cities but also in small towns. To become a punk, a teenager often starts out by frequenting the corners while under-age. Often they are found in parks where they place smashing bottles and doing other damage.

A hooligan is often detected by the way he handles his car. He will run his car at top speed on busy streets. Often he starts with a sudden "run and stops with screeching brakes and burning tires to attract attention to himself.

Punks are endangering the lives and properties of others. They are responsible for themselves, but try to take away freedom and security from law abiding citizens.

Pollution Is Tackled

Detroit Free Press

With a zeal equal to that of the various religious groups which have been conducting here in Detroit, delegates from Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Pennsylvania and New York assembled in Cleveland to talk about one of modern society's most pressing menaces. The need has been acute.

Outrageously abused for years, Lake Erie became so polluted with municipal and industrial wastes that midge worms gradually replaced game fishes as choices on blue plate. Walleyes and yellow perch became scarce and at one point vacationing again million dead mooneyes and gizzards floated on the surfaces of Ohio's and Pennsylvania's beaches where they rotted and smelled.

The status of Lake Erie as a useful freshwater resource has become uncertain," a federal agency reported gloomily last a decade ago.

If much still needs to be done, much has already been done.

And Ottawa seems to be a genuine determination to effect meaningful reforms. Vital programs have been initiated. Most industrial wastes dumped into Erie have either installed waste treatment facilities or have promised to do so. Major municipalities such as Detroit have installed their treatment facilities at launched major pollution campaigns. With $106 million in federal, state and federal funds, Detroit launched a vigorous pollution-prevention program in June.

Meter Maids

Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

Writing parking meter tickets is at best a menial job which should and should be handled by a less experienced person than a police officer. Ottawa employs meter maids, as do many other cities. Why shouldn't Cornwall follow their example and hire a girl or two to make the meter rounds and relieve police of a distasteful duty.

To Your Good Health

Doubtful AA Magazine Would 'Cure' Drinker

By JOSEPH C. HOLMER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a son who is ruining his health by drinking. You mentioned Alcoholics Anonymous. Could you tell me about the magazine they publish. I want to subscribe for my son. He is very stubborn, and I doubt if he would attend their meetings even if he knew he could get a magazine he might see the light. — Mrs. W. C.

* * *

There doesn't seem to be any good way to argue a man (or woman) into giving up drinking until he finally begins to see for himself that alcohol is messing up his life.

Whether the AA magazine (which is called "Grapevine") would help, until he is ready to see the light, is problematic. I don't want to discourage you, but there are millions of relatives of drunks who have learned the hard way that they have to depend on patience and hope.

My thought is for you to get in touch with AA and get their "beginner's kit," which discusses a lot of the questions which are bothering you now. AA has a free booklet called, "Who, Me?" which has opened the eyes of many alcoholics.

AA also has a book, known familiarly to members as "The Big Book," which is intensely helpful to members after they have got into the program, but it isn't recommended until that time.

* * *

Many mothers and wives have been in your place. Get in touch with AA and you'll find people who have gone through your trails and can help you.

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes my whole mouth to bother me after taking penicillin for three weeks? — Mrs. M. H.

Use of penicillin for that long can cause mouth and tongue to be sore if the patient is sensitive to it or because of other changes resulting from the drug. Quite a while may be necessary after the drug has been stopped before the soreness disappears. If the trouble persists, other medications may also be necessary.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: Would it be possible to graft hair on a skin from a cornea to a living person ? — Mrs. N. S.

It would be possible if done soon enough after death, but it wouldn't do any good because the grafted tissues would slough off in a few weeks.

Skin from another person may at times be grafted (as in severe burn cases) but it is merely a temporary covering for the burned areas. Permanent skin grafts have to be done with skin from some other part of the person's own body.

The reason is that the body tends to reject tissues which are not his own. This is called the "autoimmune mechanism." This situation is the reason why it is so difficult to transplant an organ from one person to another. The transplanted organ lasts but for a short time and then is rejected.

An exception is the transplant of, for example, a kidney from one twin to another. The characterization of the twins' tissues are so much alike that the transplants are not recognized by the body as being "different."

* * *

A great deal of work is being aimed at finding out how to prevent this rejection of transplanted tissues, and obviously such a discovery would be a very significant advance.

Motives and Good Works

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Thoughts at Large:

Nothing is harder than is advise, restrain or correct those people who are doing the right thing for the wrong reason; it is impossible to make them realize that their bad motives pollute their good works.

* * *

It is one of the ironies of history that those who are most conservative who have the most to lose — and it is usually this conservatism that makes them lose all in the end; for every revolution results from the rigidity of the privileged, who are unwilling to give a little in order to avoid losing much.

* * *

Labor-saving devices are downright dangerous to a society, unless the labor that is saved is utilized in some creative and developing way, and not just dissipated in torpitude and triviality.

* * *

One of the deepest truths in personal history was expressed by Charles Williams, when he said: "There is, it seems, a law in things that if a man is compelled to choose between two good actions, mutually exclusive, the one which he chooses to reject will in course of time avenge itself on him."

* * *

To me, one of the most annoying of modern speech habits is using the word "type" as in the phrase "this type situation" or "without using the word "of," which properly comes after "type."

* * *

Reading two new biographies this summer — one of Ernest Hemingway and the other of Dylan Thomas — it struck me that Hemingway, who was so obsessed with his "manhood," was really less manly than Thomas, who never gave a thought to it; Thomas was in some ways infantile, but Hemingway was a perpetual adolescent.

* * *

One of the most refreshing — and I believe true — statements on our lack of concern for the physical future was made by Dr. Francis Trumbley, professor of ecology at Lehigh University, who has testified that: "We have destroyed more of our environment than any nation on earth. Since World War II, the U.S. has consumed more natural resources than were consumed in the entire previous history of mankind."

* * *

Prospective brides ought to be told that while a man will stand a great deal of criticism of himself from a woman, he will not accept criticism of his friends from her. He will not accept her reflection on his temperament, while she accused is an attack on his judgment, which is a much more vulnerable area for a man.

Firms that automatically retire executives at 65 "to make way for younger blood" are defeating themselves if they think that younger blood always means fresher ideas; indeed, there may be more young fools in business than old fogies.

It's hard to believe that less than 60 years have passed since a play by Synge was prosecuted in Dublin and the audience broke up in disorder when one of the characters used the word "shit" for underclothes.

Dodging the Draft

Winnipeg Tribune

Draft dodgers from the United States have been the topic of news reports from Toronto recently. Should these draft dodgers claim that more than 90 young men of military age are now living in the Toronto area. Some of the draft evaders are articulate and vocal, and as a result, they attracted considerable publicity.

Less well known is the fact that there is a flow of young men in the other direction. Accurate figures are difficult to obtain but informed Ottawa sources intimate that about 300 young Canadians have joined the U.S. armed forces for service in Viet Nam.

The outward flow is, however, less vocal and articulate.

Wilson Curbs Unions in U.K.

London Observer

Mr. Wilson has done something very remarkable for a Labor prime minister. He has exploded the myth of the trade unions as the untouchables of British politics

By decisively the role of the Communists in the Seamen's strike he has undermined the inbred principles of non-interference in the domestic affairs of the trade unions.

Perhaps only a Labor prime minister could have done so. A Conservative minister would have been howled down.

But having taken this step, there can be no turning back. Mr. Wilson's intervention has dramatically underlined the government's direct interest in how the trade unions run their affairs.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Aug. 11, 1966 . . .

The Canadian Federation of Home and School was established at Montreal 28 years ago today — in 1937 — to co-ordinate the work of forming a liaison between school and home in the raising of children. The first parent-teacher unit was had been formed in Baddeck, N.S., in 1927, largely through the efforts of Alexander Graham Bell and his wife, and by 1936 Parent-Teacher Association was established 30 years later in Parkglenn, Que., as the groups were formed in several provinces, and provincial federations were established. The Canadian Home and School and Parent-Teacher Federation, as it is called today, has 200,000 members in 3,700 local associations in nine provinces.

First World War

Fifty years ago today — In the France, Flanders and Serbian forces moved against Bulgarian in Macedonia, extending between Italians arrived at Salonika; British airmen bombed absheds at Namur and Brussels.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today — in 1941 — Soviet airmen destroyed a Danube Blue rubber bridge. The RAF bombed the harbor at Trieste, Japan reported a general mobilization act; the Australian cabinet held an emergency session and the Far Eastern situations.

U.K. Steel Industry

Montreal Star

Just as if he did not have enough on his hands of late, Premier Minister Wilson is proceeding with his renationalization of the British steel industry. This unhappy sector of the economy has been a headache for all hands of the state, then turned back to private ownership again, and now is to return once more to the state. Mr. Wilson probably thinks this will soothe his rebellious followers, now licking over the traces on his very orthodox non-socialist efforts to steady sterling.

Brother Holds Grudge For Twenty Years

DEAR ANN LANDERS: For the last 20 years my brother has not spoken to me because he was not asked to be an usher at my wedding. I realize now that it was a mistake and I feel rotten about it, but I was very young and I didn't know anything about weddings.

ANN LANDERS

My husband asked his closest friend to be his best man and he asked his four brothers to be ushers. I thought that these choices were up to the groom so I kept quiet. No one said a word until after the wedding. Then my parents and aunts told me what a horrible thing I had done.

Although we live in the same city, my children do not know my brother's children. They are like strangers. I get physically ill when I think about it. Any advice will be appreciated. — LEARNED TOO LATE.

DEAR LATE: I can understand your brother's hurt feelings — but 20 years is ridiculous.

You don't say how old you were when you married, but I suspect your parents are more to blame than you. They should have told you before the wedding that your brother belonged in the wedding party. (And they should have insisted on it.)

If you think it will help, take this column to your brother's home and tell him I sent you. Ask him to forgive you and to forgive your parents, too. And please let me know how it all turns out.

* * *

DEAR ANN: I met a girl a month ago and from that first meeting we were strongly attracted to one another. We are both 23, very mature, have good jobs, and we are struggling to keep above water financially. Marriage has been discussed but we agree that we should first live together for several months to learn if we are compatible.

The problem is my parents. They won't get off my back. They insist that what we have to offer is back-alley living and they are appalled that I would consider it. I can't make them see we are trying to avoid divorce. What do you say? — MR. B.

*

DEAR MR. B.: It sounds to me as if you are trying to avoid marriage. I'm with Ma and Pa.

*

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 17 years old, a junior in high school, and pregnant. My story is not new to you. Alex and I went steady for a year and we thought we were in love.

When I gave him the news that I was pregnant he said he was real sorry but that it was my responsibility to see that such things didn't happen. He couldn't see wrecking his life by getting married at 18. After that speech I wouldn't have had him on a silver tray.

The saddest part of all is that my parents blame themselves. They have been wonderful and I die when I see the hurt look in their eyes.

I would like to say to all parents who have had to face such a situation that they should not eat themselves up with guilt. True, they should not have allowed their daughter to go steady, but 90% of the blame belongs to the girl. I knew right from wrong, but I didn't have the will-power to discipline myself.

Parents can't go along on dates and act as policemen. All they can do is teach their daughters what is right and hope for the best. My parents did their part and I let them down. — REGRETFUL.

DEAR REGRETFUL: Your story is indeed an old one but your approach is unusual. Most people in trouble look to place the blame elsewhere. You are accepting the responsibility for your mistakes and I admire you for it. Good luck to you, Dear.

Thai Girls Who Date U.S. Soldiers Now Know When Kissing Must Stop

By THAUNG HTINE

BANGKOK, Thailand (Next-era)—Bright - eyed, cheerful Thai girls who date United States soldiers now know quite definitely when the kissing has to stop.

Police have told girls who work as hostesses in the capital's numerous bars, nightclubs and restaurants that it is a violation of Thai custom to hug and kiss their boy friends in broad daylight in public places.

Young or old, Thai couples do not demonstrate their affection for one another in public. The accepted form of greeting is the wai, which entails folding the hand palms together and bowing.

MAN WALKS AHEAD

Even when a Thai couple are out together, the man walks slightly ahead of the woman.

Against this dignified background, hundreds of American soldiers have been arriving here hungry for feminine company after fighting in Viet Nam, or doing a long stint at some lonely military base or construction site in the Thai countryside.

When they met Thai girls in public, they dispensed with the wai and employed hugs and kisses in greeting.

Newspapers and the public expressed shock and the possibility of foreign soldiers corrupting Thai morals became a burning issue which prompted questions by Thai reporters at recent press conferences with Prime Minister Field Marshal Thanom Kittikachorn.

Besides appealing to young people to conform to their traditional code of conduct, the prime minister acted.

He sent Thai military police to join United States military police in patrolling the public meeting places of Thai girls and American soldiers.

A high Thai government official said that Thai people could not be expected to be as broad-minded as Westerners regarding public demonstrations of affection, although they were tolerant enough about anything happening in the dim light or darkness of bars, nightclubs and hotels.

"In any case," he added, "good girls from respectable families stay at home and do not meet foreign soldiers."

CHIEFS DEMAND SALARY

NAIROBI (AP)—Tribal chiefs in Kenya, part of the official system of local government, are protesting their $2.40 weekly pay through their trade union. They say their dignity demands an annual salary of $1,680 to cover entertainment costs, with more for better-educated chiefs.

BARBECUED LAMB CHOPS

Everyone of us has at one time or another been frustrated when we have cooked and served a beautiful meal, to discover some of the children of our guests turning up their noses at some of our carefully chosen and prepared food.

After a weekend where we had had this experience we had a cookout supper with no other crowd, which included four little ones ranging in age from 2½ to 6 years. They had been trained differently.

Dinner Menus by Mary Moore

THURSDAY

Mixed Grill: Baby Beef Liver, Crumbed Kidneys, Back Bacon; Parsley Butter, Cold Carrots; Creamed Celery and Peas; Herbed Cheese Salad (see Tues.); Blueberry Melon Salad (see Wed.); Coffee.

SUNDAY

Barbecued Lamb Chops (see Thurs.); Mint Sauce; Corn on the Cob; Crusty Rolls; Garden Salad with Parmesan French Dressing; Chocolate Log (see Fri.); Tea.

Our main meat item was filetaz thick lamb chops which were barbecued over a wood fire. The chops for the four children were barbecued first and they ate early in order to be in bed by 7 o'clock. They were hungry and gathered eager and expectant around the fire waiting for their chops to be done to a turn. As soon as they were cool enough to handle we handed one well done chop to each child and it delighted me to see each one chomp and nibble them right down to the bone. Their souls we had trained them to try everything. Could be I am prejudiced but the two youngest are my grandchildren.

BARBECUED LAMB CHOPS:

The lamb chops had to be ordered in advance. I watched the butcher cut off two thick lamb carcass to get a whole side between shoulder and leg for me. This he cut into fifteen thick chops, including the kidney in some.

I arranged these in my now famous stainless steel barbecue basket and when the men had a thick bed of glowing coals, handed it over to them. I had sprinkled them with salt and a little garlic salt and pepper and asked them to barbecue them evenly until they were well done.

This number of lamb chops weighed over three pounds and would have served four little children and five adults — some of them big.

BARBECUED LAMB STEAKS:

Another cut of lamb, one which you may not have tried, is steaks cut from the top of the leg.

Have the butcher cut three thick steaks from the top of a leg. Make a sauce of ½ cup Marinate them in a mixture of ½ cup lemon juice, 1 cup orange juice, 2 tablespoons brown sugar, 2 tablespoons fresh or dried mint leaves and ½ cup salad oil. Let the steaks stand in this marinade for 2 hours, turning them once. Remove from marinade, drain ¶ Heat and grill about 5" from glowing coals, allowing about 15 minutes for each side, as time depends on thickness. These should be thinly sliced, slantwise, from top to bottom of steaks and will serve six generously.

WEDDING

MARRIOTT — MacLEAN

Margaret Iris, daughter of Rev. R. MacLeap and Mrs. MacLean of Halifax, formerly of Belleville, and Gordon Thomas Marriott of Maxville, Ontario, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Marriott of Belleville were married recently in Knox Presbyterian Church, Halifax. The bride's father, assisted by Rev. Ian MacLeod, performed the ceremony. Mr. J. Hills was organist and Mr. Stuart MacLean, cousin of the bride, was soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length satin sheath gown, with bouffant organza and lace over net over-skirt at the sides and back of the gown. The bodice and long sleeves were of matching lace and her shoulder length veil of net was held by a cluster of organza flowers and seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and lily-of-the-valley.

Miss Linda MacPherson of Toronto, maid of honor, wore floor-length sheath dress of turquoise crepe over taffeta with white lace trim and a headpiece of a matching bow on acquired net. Miss Donna Matthews of Toronto, a bridesmaid, wore a similar dress of deep pink crepe. Miss Jeanne Marriott, sister of the groom, was the bridegroom, was dressed in pastel pink crepe, and the junior bridesmaid, Miss Jane MacLean, sister of the bride, wore yellow crepe. All carried bouquets of white flowers.

Ronald Marriott of Belleville was his brother's attendant and the ushers were Robert Lewis of Ottawa, Neil MacLean of Halifax, cousin of the bride and Andrew Caldwell of Halifax.

Neil MacLean piped the wedding party into St. David's Church Hall, Halifax, where the reception was held. To receive the guests, the bride's mother chose a white lace-lure suit with turquoise accessories and a corsage of white carnations tipped in red. To assist, the bride's groom's mother wore a rose shantung sheath dress with lace jacket, matching rose accessories and a corsage of white 'mums.

For her wedding trip to Cape Cod the bride donned a navy and white two-piece dress with navy crepe, white accessories and a corsage of red roses.

On their return, the couple will live at Maxville, Ontario, where the bridegroom is stationed as an Ontario Provincial Police constable and the bride is on the staff of Maxville Public School.

BOARD BOAT WITH CARE

TORONTO (CP) — The accident control section of the Ontario lands and forests department warns boating families to take care how they step into their boats. "Don't step onto the gunwale. If the boat is small, step as nearly into the centre as possible. Step, don't jump, and use your hands to steady yourself."

Woman Is Appointed First Citizenship Court Judge

By SABINA SIMCOCK

HALIFAX (CP)—The judge has deep blue eyes, auburn hair and a penchant for pretty hats.

But Allie Ahern of Halifax brings more than good looks and a wardrobe of hats to her position as judge of the Halifax citizenship court. Many years of law office work and leading roles in provincial and national women's organizations helped prepare her for the appointment, announced in July by State Secretary Judy LaMarsh.

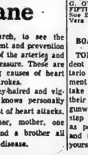
As the first citizenship court judge in Nova Scotia, Mrs. Ahern, 63, will review citizenship applications, interview applicants, attend hearings and preside over the court. In a new courtroom overlooking Halifax harbor she will administer the oaths of allegiance transforming aliens into Canadian citizens.

Mrs. Ahern expressed herself as thrilled with her appointment. "Sometimes I think this just didn't happen to me," she said in an interview.

She has travelled widely as national president of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women and has held key posts in such organizations as the National Council of Women, the Nova Scotia Women's Liberal Association and Beta Sigma Phi—of which she is an international honorary member.

PRESENTED TO QUEEN

In the attractive living room of the Ahern home is a framed photograph of Mrs. Ahern curtseying to Queen Elizabeth. At the time her husband, John F. Ahern, was mayor of Halifax.



Mr. Ahern is a former member of the provincial legislature and now is president of the Ahern Publishing Co.

Mrs. Ahern is her living room show Mrs. Ahern as a grandmother of three small girls. Her only daughter Pat, now Mrs. B. J. Bennett, lives in Ottawa.

Mrs. Ahern calls her appointment to the citizenship court a "challenging opportunity." She feels quickly that she is particularly happy for the sake of the women's organizations she has been connected with.

"I'll have to do my homework and study the Citizenship Act and its rules and regulations,"

But at the same time she feels, some "understanding and human kindness" will be a large part of her work.

CASE POSES PROBLEM

Reminded of the Bergman case in Ontario two years ago, in which a professed atheist was at first refused Canadian citizenship, Mrs. Ahern agreed that citizenship courts could be a place for heart-searching. "I think at that case so often—but I would hope not to encounter anything as difficult as that," she said.

"The regulations are there to be complied with and I would just have to resort to higher authority if a situation as controversial as that arose."

Mrs. Ahern worked for many years in law offices here as secretary and executive assistant. She was born in Sydney Mines, N.S., and was educated there and at a Halifax secretarial college.

She dates her love for hats back to her convent school days where "we weren't allowed to go out without them."

There too were the origins of her fondness for cooking and sewing—especially fine needlework. She finds these relaxing pastimes in a busy life.

Jumping From Airplane Without Parachute Illegal

By HAL BOYLE

Forget any dreams you have of discovering a valuable pearl in a restaurant oyster . . . pearls found in that kind of bivalve aren't of gem quality, and have nothing but curiosity value.

The mightiest appetite on earth belongs to the sperm whale . . . he sieves down a ton a day of plankton, microscopic forms of sea life.

Don't ever jump out of an airplane in flight in the United States without a parachute . . . it's illegal and violates safety standards set by the Federal Aviation Agency.

Household hint: Don't be a boor by flicking your cigarette ashes on the floor . . . flick them into a pot containing a house plant . . . they help enrich the soil.

Alcoholics aren't born . . . they're made . . . researchers believe the disease takes from 15 to 20 or more years to develop . . . and that it can shorten life expectancy from 10 to 20 years.

A bi-fi and television shop in Rye, N.Y., put this sign in its window: "Do it yourself—then call us"

Quip: Singer Barbra Streisand defines a marriage broker as "somebody who's always putting two and two together." . . . Now wouldn't that be a swell job if you got the kind of money she does could afford to hire a better ad writer?

Them were the days: A woman was arrested for smoking cigarets on Fifth Avenue here—in 1904.

Motorists have their problems in Russia . . . gas costs for 60 cents a gallon, and there is only one gas station for every 280 miles of highway.

Big Prize for Heart Research Result of Chat Upon Plane

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—They were strangers, the scientist and the citizen, on an airplane vaulting from Chicago to Cleveland. And high over the snowy clouds, the idea was born.

Said the citizen: "The urgent thing is to learn how to prevent heart attacks. Surgery, or even artificial hearts, to repair the damage is fine, but it's only that—repair. Too many lives are lost because we aren't stopping heart attacks from happening in the first place."

Said the citizen: "Can we really hope to find out how to prevent coronary attacks?"

The scientist: "Sure. We already have some pretty good ideas. We need to prove them. And mostly we need more research stressing the goal of prevention."

The citizen: "Do you suppose an award for research concerning prevention would be helpful?"

The scientist: "Oh, of course."

The citizen: "The Nobel Prize is the largest existing award, isn't it? Last—how much is it?"

The scientist: "It varies. From about $33,000 to $50,000 or so, depending on the income of the Nobel Foundation, I guess."

The citizen: "I'd like to set up an award to encourage research for prevention of heart attacks. I'll say, an award of $50,000 a year."

Said the scientist later: "I looked at him—and he was serious. A nearly fell through the airplane."

The scientist is Dr. Irvine H. Page, director of research for the Cleveland Clinic, a leader in research into causes of heart attacks and high blood pressure, and editor of Modern Medicine.

The citizen, and as old friend, is Vernon Stouffer, president of Stouffer Foods Corporation, and the Vernon Stouffer Foundation.

In that conversation, Dr. Page recalls, was born the concept of one of the largest prizes in medical research, to see the cause, treatment and prevention of hardening of the arteries and high blood pressure. These are the underlying causes of heart attacks and strokes.

Stouffer, grey-haired and vigorous at 65, knows personally the human cost of heart attacks. His own father, mother, one grandfather and a brother all died of heart disease.

Physical Exercise Can Help Develop Manliness

DEAR DORIS: I am 18. Some of the kids say I have very feminine ways for a boy. That is, the way I walk, express myself, and so on. I can't seem to notice these ways myself.

DORIS CLARK

I most admit that I do quite a bit of women's work. My mother is not in good health, and I take over in the house. I don't go too much around with boys, as we don't have a car of our own,and I do spend much time studying. I never swear, am polite, and am quite religious.

Perhaps the boys think I am a "square", since I don't join in with profanity and dirty jokes. I, however, have quite a few boy friends, but I do seem to carry on a conversation better with women than men.

Please give me some advice to become more manly, and break these feminine ways! — SISSY.

DEAR SISSY: A fellow who is at home in the kitchen has a head start on his careless pals. Teenage values are all wrong when they jeer at the male who can cook.

You can get a longer stride and some masculine muscles by getting into a sport or onto the school track — and since Christ also "increased in wisdom and stature", physical improvement is seen as part of all-round development.

Just take care you aren't a bit virtuous about all this. Your scornful friends aren't all bad! They'll grow up; and so will you.

Discarded Pop, Beer Bottles Become Menace

TORONTO (CP) — Discarded no-refund beer and pop bottles not only are marring the province's countryside but have become a hazard to swimmers, the legislature's select committee on conservation was told Wednesday.

Glen Hodgson (PC—Victoria) described the proliferation of the bottles as a "serious and growing problem" that could be resolved if they were made of reclaimable aluminum rather than glass.

He suggested a program along the lines of the anti-forest fire Smoky the Bear scheme might provide the public education needed to overcome the bottle problem.

A system used by a United States company for recovering aluminum containers was cited.

The company, he said, pays two cents for each container at established depots for recovering them and is able to reclaim the metal for use again at a loss of only one-half cent per unit.

Mr. Hodgson said he had received reports of several persons receiving cuts from discarded glass bottles while swimming.

Sask. Premier Says Forming Of Breakaway Group Among Western Liberals Is Remote

REGINA (CP) — Premier Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan said Wednesday there is some thought among western Liberals of forming a breakaway group to run in the next federal election.

Mr. Thatcher, in an interview, was commenting on a report that such a group might run under a progressive banner.

But he said such a move is remote and "I hope it never happens."

"I'll admit there is some party thinking here along this line but I'm not sure I agree with it. Any such move would be a real last-ditch resort and I must emphasize that I and my associates have no such thoughts at this time."

The federal Liberal party is at the crossroads and must decide whether to retreat with the left-wing policies of Walter Gordon or advance with faith in the Canadian people, he said.

Mr. Thatcher is a frequent critic of federal Liberal policies since his election two years ago, said the Liberals must pursue a middle-of-the-road policy.

Ottawa reaction to policies to be formulated by western Liberals Aug. 12-13 at a special Saskatoon conference may hold the key to future Liberal fortunes in the West.

"The Saskatoon convention has only one objective, to suggest policies that will help Liberals win federal seats in the West."

Mr. Thatcher said the thinking of western Liberals on tariff policies, equalization grants and leadership policy will be laid down at Saskatoon this weekend and presented to the national Liberal convention this fall at Ottawa.

"We're against left-wing policies, opposed to any curtailment of United States investment in Canada, opposed to narrow economic nationalism and to high tariffs."

There has been a definite breakdown of liaison between the federal government and western Liberals, he said.

"We're sure that if the national convention gives us policies to work with that are what we need it will help the party both provincially and federally."

If the federal party moves more to the left as a result of policies formed at the national convention, Mr. Thatcher would not deny western Liberals could be forced to resort to a breakaway group.

Thirty Persons Aboard Bus Said Drowned

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—A bridge collapsed Wednesday at a town near San Cristobal in Western Venezuela and 30 persons aboard a bus were believed drowned, radio and press reports said.

Beatles Given Big Sendoff By Teen-agers

LONDON (Reuters) — Screaming teen-agers braved heavy rain today to give a rousing sendoff to the Beatles, who left for a North American tour that threatens to be stormy because of an alleged anti-Christian remark by lead singer John Lennon.

Several U.S. radio stations, some in South Africa and Spain and one in Canada, have banned records by the British quartet because of an assertion by Lennon that the group is more popular than Jesus.

Lennon made the statement months ago in a British newspaper, and it was reprinted recently in a U.S. teen-agers' magazine. Beatles Manager Brian Epstein said the statement was reprinted out of context.

About 700 teen-agers packed the rooftop spectators' gallery as the group arrived to go through customs.

Before boarding the aircraft, Lennon said:

"I am worried about what has been going on. I am not worried about doing this tour."

The Beatles begin their 15-day tour Friday with two concerts at Chicago. They will be in Toronto Aug. 17.

MONTREAL (CP) — Rt. Rev. Kenneth Maguire, Anglican bishop of Montreal, said Wednesday he wouldn't be surprised if the Beatles are more popular than Jesus Christ.

"It's just a fact that people do go for the Beatles more than for Jesus," he said in an interview.

Bishop Maguire was referring to a statement made by John Lennon, a member of the British singing group, who said his group was more popular than Christ.

"It wouldn't surprise me in the least if it were perfectly true," said Bishop Maguire, "in the only popularity poll in Jesus' time, He came out second best to Barrabbas.

"The demands that Jesus made never made him Man Most Likely to Succeed."

Asked if he thought the Beatles' music should be banned from radio, he said:

"Don't take this wrong, but frankly I've always wanted to see a psalm set to the tune of Michel' — one of the Beatles' hits. "I think the Beatles are great."

Many Former Nurses Back In Training

By ANNE MASON

EDMONTON (CP)—Labor department figures say women have an average of 25 years of free time after nursing their families to maturity.

Some of them keep right on nursing.

The University of Alberta Hospital has 125 of them—former nurses who have retrained for the profession after an absence of five to 20 years and are available for duty during emergencies, staff shortages and vacation periods.

At any time, a dozen or more members of the hospital nursing reserve can be seen, many providing intensive bedside care in the busiest wards.

Each works one or two shifts a week and many take on full-time duty for three to six weeks in the summer for holiday relief.

"A good many of us need to feel needed," says Mrs. Gordon Ades, former president of the University Hospital Nursing Reserve Association. "It's a good outlet for many of us who have some time to spare."

OVERCOMES SHORTAGE

The reserve was created in 1952 by Dr. J. D. Wallace, then the hospital's executive director, to provide a backlog of experienced help during nursing shortages. Response was immediate and enthusiastic. About 90 per cent of the retrainees requalified as registered nurses and most have remained active.

Miss M. G. Purcell, the hospital's nursing director, says the reserves not only provide staff security but set an example to students and younger nurses because of the quality of their work.

"Many of us have raised children," Mrs. Ades explains. "This gives us an insight into understanding the patient and his family. And many of us have been patients ourselves."

Pay rates are the same but reserves always work under supervision of a regular nurse.

"A nurse coming back to work has not been expected to accept responsibility beyond her preparation," Miss Purcell explains.

IT'S NO DUTCH DIKE

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Curious Jenny Decker, 3, put her finger into a hole in her tricycle and then couldn't remove it. Several hackaway, two doctors, three nurses, one engineer, three ambulance men, one fireman and a trip to the hospital later, the finger was finally out. Jenny still doesn't know what the hole was for.

Police Request Minimum Wage

SARNIA (CP) — The Police Association of Ontario Wednesday approved a brief asking the Ontario government to pay 30 per cent of all municipal police budgets in the province.

The brief, to be presented to members of the legislature before the next session, also called for a minimum salary of $625 a month for first class constables, regardless of the size of the municipalities that employ them.

The 126 delegates to the association's annual convention heard the brief read to them by Sidney Brown, president of the Metropolitan Toronto Police Association.

Steward on Vice-regal Trains Recalls Highlights of Career

By JAMES OSBORNE

OTTAWA (CP)—"I recall it was early, about 9 a.m. The Governor-General's train was crossing a high trestle bridge on the way to Trail, B.C.

"The porter looked out the window and told me: 'My God, wouldn't this be an awful place to go off the tracks?'"

The train 84 a rocktitle seconds later.

The account was Wilfred Notley's only recollection of nerve-disaster in almost four decades as steward on vice-regal trains, working for seven Governors-General.

The rocktitle derailed all but two cars of the train carrying the Earl of Athlone on a 1941 western tour.

The Governor-General's cars remained on the tracks, far out on the high railway bridge, but he was trapped in his room until Mr. Notley opened the door with a meat cleaver.

A job working for royal representatives in Canada and coming in contact—with these who have made world history—such as Sir Winston Churchill—had a certain advantage, Mr. Notley agreed in an interview.

PHOTOS TELL STORY

He displayed royal and vice-regal autographed portraits and mementoes including a monogrimed cigarette case bearing Queen Elizabeth's insignia. He accompanied Princess Margaret on her Canadian tour in 1958.

Mr. Notley remembered as the most unusual incident a diplomatic indiscretion by Franklin Roosevelt, the U.S. president, which turned to humor under the famous Churchill wit. But the last word belonged to FDR.

The train was at Quebec City for the Second World War imperial conference, and one night some distinguished guests were aboard.

The dining car fell strangely quiet after Churchill had proposed Britain's toast to the U.S. Roosevelt, deep in conversation with the Duchess of Kent, had missed his cue and was trying to talk around a candy in his mouth.

Mr. Notley recalled that Churchill boomed across the table at Roosevelt, "Aren't you going to toast our Queen?"

"When I've finished this, Winston; when I've finished," the late president said quietly, then returned to his chat.

WASHED DISHES

Mr. Notley was 18 when he arrived in Montreal from Ireland. Two weeks later he had his first job, a dishwasher on a CNR dining car. A short time later Government House required an assistant steward on Governor - General Willingdon's cars. He never considered another job.

It was Lady Willingdon who designed the Governor-General's cars still used today. She was a meticulously concerned with staff comfort, Mr. Notley recalls, and used to inspect the train regularly from end to end. And she had a flush for the mauve. Everything was mauve, inside and out, including the luggage.

Mr. Notley was promoted to chief steward by Lord Tweedsmuir, his third Governor-General, in 1937, and Lord Alexander of Tunis allowed Notley's son, now 19, to be named for him.

The cuff on the Governor-General's train used to be 35 before the Second World War but was dropped to four because air travel is far more frequent and the train gets less use.

The most tense moment of Mr. Notley's career came in 1939, during the first visit to Canada of a reigning monarch, King George VI.

The engine had been unhitched at New Glasgow, N.S., for cleaning and polishing, and the train was due to leave at 4 p.m. The King was late reaching the train after a trip to Pictou, but arrived shortly after 4. A band played and the crowds wirled.

"Well, Notley, are we going to start?" said the King.

The steward pulled the cord to signal the engineer and nothing happened. The 16 cars on the long curving track stayed motionless.

"Well, are we going to start?" repeated the King, growing impatient. Mr. Notley pulled the cord until it broke but the train didn't move. When he stepped out to the rear platform and looked ahead, he saw there was no engine.

The locomotive had not been returned because of the delay in the royal trip to Pictou. By the time it had been found and re-connected, the train was late and the King was "furious," Mr. Notley recalled.

The Queen, however, "took it with a smile."

Looking back, Mr. Notley has only one regret. He's afraid, when he retires in seven years, the post of chief train steward will disappear.

ALL CONTAIN FAT

The milk of all mammals, including the human species, contains a fatty constituent similar to the butter in cow's milk.

HELPING HAND FOR PRINCESS — Wilfred Notley, a railway man who has spent a lifetime as a steward on regal and vice-regal trains, helps Princess Margaret from the royal train during her 1958 tour. George Heen, door-train minister, is on the train platform. Mr. Notley has worked for seven Governors-General but he's afraid the permanent post will disappear when he retires. That's seven years away. (CP Photo).

West Germany Suffering From "English Disease"

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

West Germany's chancellor Ludwig Erhard has been warning his countrymen that they're in danger of catching the so-called English disease, that chronic economic malady.

The reaction in London, however, is that England is a clear winner over West Germany in the scope of its economic problems, just as it was in world championship football a few weeks ago.

In citing Britain as a horrible example, Erhard declared:

"If we let things drift, then the same is bound to happen to us—namely, a wage freeze, a price freeze, a significant rise in our cost of living, even partial control of foreign exchange."

West German trends, as outlined by Erhard, seem tame in British ears. German wages and salaries rose by 8.4 per cent annually in the last four years while productivity rose by an average 4.4 per cent.

JUST A DREAM

Britain's productivity climb reached that percentage only on paper, in the now-abandoned National Plan of Economics Minister George Brown — it never reached reality. The German cost of living rose by four per cent in a year, less than the British.

Economists point out that Britain is trying to achieve normal growth rate after a prolonged period of stagnation. Germany, in contrast, is striving to establish normal growth after a long period of boom.

Nevertheless serious international attention is being accorded Erhard's warnings that his country men must live within their means or court disaster.

Having experienced two harrowing inflations within a single lifetime, the Germans may be more alert to the danger signs than others. Not that industry is gloomy and the fear of inflation real.

A report on the economic outlook in various countries, published by the 17-nation organization for economic co-operation and development, predicts Germany's trade balance will be in deficit this year while Italy and France will be in surplus.

BOOM IS OVER

"Monetary policy has remained relativities and credit conditions in credit markets have been strained," the report adds. "There may be some question of the appropriateness of maintaining such monetary tightness now that the steam has gone out of the investment boom and the main pressure on prices appears to be coming from the side of costs."

This is the first time that Erhard, genius of Germany's post-war economic miracle, has faced real trouble on the economic front since becoming chancellor and he is obviously finding it a distressing experience.

It would be damaging to him politically if voters got the idea he has lost the old magic. Although Erhard led his Christian Democrats to a general-election victory last year, the opposition Christian Socialists gained much ground in a recent provincial election in North Rhine-Westphalia, the biggest state in the country.

This may help to explain why Erhard is willing to lead Britain up as an example of socialist mismanagement, although he has insisted his intention is not to criticize. He also referred to British troubles during last year's German election campaign.

Yukon to Observe Centennial By Assault on Virgin Peaks

By GERARD McNEIL

WHITEHORSE, Yukon (CP) — There's danger in the high and lonesome chills of the Icefield Ranges.

These cold mountains sweat avalanches in the perpetual July sun of the Yukon and they grow ice through the winter night.

Earthquakes shake white snow and black rock off their flanks.

Only the Himalayas and the central Andes surpass the Yukon peaks in height and grandeur.

These are the realities behind A Proposal for a Sporting and Mountain Exploration Activity among the Highest Mountains of Canada, the title of a 35-page brochure prepared by the Yukon-Alpine Centennial Expedition.

As a way of celebrating the 100th anniversary of Confederation next July, the expedition will pit 50 experts against 19 virgin peaks in a region so wild even the Yukon's legendary prospectors have dodged it.

Twelve of the mountains will be named, if they are climbed, after the provinces and territories.

JOINT PROJECT

The outstanding peak will commemorate the centennial itself and another, to be scaled by a Canadian-U.S. team, will mark Alaska's 50th anniversary in 1967.

The Icefield Ranges 160 miles northwest of Whitehorse include mount Logan, 19,850 feet the Canadian pinnacle, and on the Alaska side, Mount McKinley, more than 20,000 feet and North America's highest mountain.

Late June and July are about the only time periods for climbing. Even then a 24-hour sun on the snowy heights raises the danger of avalanches.

"And winter," said Craig P. Hughes in an interview, "is never more than an hour away in the Yukon."

He carries-a high - powered carbine in a rack in the back seat of his car to pot wolves but the bullets he fits into the north as snugly as Dan McGrew.

He can't climb a stairway without being thrown slightly off balance and, then, legacy of a rugby accident after 18 unscratched months in the wartime Medonald Highlanders.

But six years in the Yukon have etched the call of the wild on his lean, hard face. He'd be up there if he could.

When Ottawa asked a couple of years ago for a Yukon centennial project, Hughes and Monte Alford, a federal surveyor and expert mountaineer, thought immediately of the Icefield Ranges and their unnamed 12,000-20,000 foot mountains.

The Alpine Club of Canada had been considering a centennial Yukon climb for years and a joint project soon was in the works.

The brochure seeks $84,000 from the federal centennial commission, which is enthusiastic. Direct cost of the expedition is estimated at $134,000, with about one-third going for chartered aircraft.

Getting over an 8,500-feet glacier pass between the Alaska Highway and the ranges has always been a factor in their virginity.

However, turbo - prop ski-wheel Beaver aircraft and powerful helicopters can freight the 50 climbers 80 miles to the base camps.

Besides the hand - picked team, another 250 climbers are expected to join the expedition. All 300 will pay their way to Whitehorse and back, an estimated $78,000.

They also are expected to bring their own equipment. Beyond meals, there'll be no reward.

Sea-girt provinces like flat P.E.I. don't produce many mountaineers but an attempt will be made to connect someone on each team with the province the mountain will be named after.

"Even a grandparent will do," said Hughes.

The Yukon government will set up base camps this summer, provide for assembly at Haines Junction on the Alaska Highway, and help with administration.

Suspect Arson as Picton Dairy Barn and Contents Destroyed

PICTON — Another in a long series of barn fires in the town occurred early this morning when a large, frame storage barn belonging to Prince Edward Dairies burned to the ground. Arson is suspected.

Picton Volunteer Fire Department responded to the call about 12.30 a.m. and fought the stubborn blaze until 5.30 this morning. Seven delivery trucks were lost in the fire. Also lost were 90,000 new paper milk containers which had just been received by the dairy; milk cans and other items. Total damage has not yet been estimated.

Firemen fought to bring the fire under control and to save the uncoupled frame house adjacent to the barn. The side of the house nearest the barn took fire and received considerable damage.

Officials from the Fire Marshal's Office in Toronto were in Picton yesterday investigating Monday's fire at a storage building owned by the C.M. Hicks Furniture Company. An official of the Fire Marshal's Office is expected to arrive today to begin investigations into this morning's blaze.

The rash of barn fires has now reached a total of seven and they have all occurred recently. Two men were picked up for questioning by Picton Police last night and were later released. No charges have been laid.

Through the evening, company officials checked on workers at home and on the site and the number of those not accounted for gradually shrank.

A heavy rain dampened workers spirits at about 3 a.m., making the work more difficult. At 3:25 a.m. Ronald E. Jenkins, regional co-ordinator for the Emergency Measures Organization, announced through a megaphone that operations would cease for the night.

"We'll all be back at about 8 a.m. Does everyone understand?"

Workers reluctantly put down their tools and trudged off the site.

In a similar accident night crews on a multi-lane bridge under construction across Vancouver Harbor collapsed, taking 18 lives.

Temporary piers, used to provide support while the span was being extended from the permanent pier to another, gave way and a section of the span went down.

A. Gordon Cooper, a Halifax lawyer nominated by the railways, proposed a 12½-per-cent raise applied in four stages. This would come to between 26 and 27 cents an hour.

MADE FINE CLOCK

Wilson

shuffle was "kicking in sense of values."

The Conservative Daily Telegraph said:

"Like almost everything else he has done in the past month, Mr. Wilson's new cabinet appointments have all the hallmarks of haste and panic."

The other changes are:

Herbert Bowden, 65, replaces Arthur Bottomley as Commonwealth affairs minister, where he will have to deal with the problem of Rhodesia.

Bottomley, 50, becomes minister of overseas development.

Richard Crossman, 56, left-wing journalist, replaces Bowden as leader of the House with the backing also of Lord President of the Council.

Anthony Greenwood, 54, leaves overseas development to replace Crossman as minister of housing and local government.

The changes were made against a background of ongoing popularity, economic crisis and backbench rebellion.

The government is using Britain's barehead deflationary measures since shortly after the Second World War, to avoid devaluation of the pound.

Labor's popularity, which earned it its 6-seven majority almost 100 less than five months ago, has sunk below that of the Conservatives, recent public opinion polls show.

Wilson has been bedevilled by a series of one-week seamen's strike and lack of results for his policy of sanctions against the breakaway government of Rhodesia. His recent ventures in foreign policy—visits to Moscow and Washington—got little but jeers from the British press.

Wilson said the changes just as Brown wound up the Commons debate on the bill to freeze prices and incomes for intended to curb inflation and ease pressure on the pound.

IT REBELLED

The bill was passed by only 38 voted, with at least 28 Labor backbenchers refusing to support it.

Political observers were surprised that Chancellor of the Exchequer Selwyn Lloyd's colleagues was not included in the changes. He has made clear recently that he would welcome a move to the foreign office.

Brown, the son of an Irish-born police constable, rose to political power in the giant Transport and General Workers Union. He was Wilson's chief rival for the party leadership in 1963.

The new occupant of the second-highest office, Michael Stewart, was a teacher and lecturer for the workers educational association before he became minister of education 1964 and got a surprise promotion to the foreign office when Wilson first chose for the job, Patrick Gordon Walker, failed to win a seat in Parliament.

Bowden, miscast as House leader, had reported to be anxious for a departmental portfolio, takes over as the Commonwealth secretariat crisis over Rhodesia—which many observers say is almost certain to bring the resignation of some African members at the Commonwealth conference scheduled to open here Sept. 6.

signing, both Malik and Razak said the agreement was signed in the spirit that Asians could settle Asian problems. Malik said it would open a new page of history for Malaysia and the Philippines.

Malaysia's total population group in both countries.

Razak said British troops, pushed to Malaysia's aid when Indonesia began a campaign of hitting out of Sabah and Sarawak this week.

Malaysia declared a holiday Saturday in honor of the peace treaty.

Malik is scheduled to return to Malaysia with Razak Friday night and remain until Saturday.

Two weeks ago Sukarno said he still considered Malaysia a neo-colonialist project and said confrontation would continue.

The undeclared war disrupted Indonesian trade and accelerated the country's slide toward bankruptcy. Foreign exchange to pay for foreign debt, the loss of Singapore as the clearing house for her trade, and a steady loss of prestige in world affairs and the anti-Malaysian campaign.

SENT RAIDING PARTIES

With the start of the campaign Sukarno sent raiding parties into Malaysian Borneo and the Malaysian Peninsula, diverting attention from economic woes at home and attempting to exchange hostilities among developing countries.

The raids subsided last October after an attempted Communist coup plunged Indonesia into a bloody political crisis. A new, anti-Communist government dominated by Subarto, gained control in February and reestablished Sukarno to a figurehead position.

The confrontation had global repercussions. Britain, New Zealand and Australia sent more than 6,000 troops into the area to help defend Malaysia, a member of the British Commonwealth, and Indonesia walked out of the United Nations when Malaysia was elected to the Security Council.

The Malaysian federation was made up of the former British territories of Malaya, Singapore and the Borneo states of Sarawak and North Borneo (now Sabah). Singapore was driven from the federation a year ago last January and became an independent country.

Jury Change Opposition Headed Off

MONTREAL (CP) — Nicholas Katzenbach, attorney-general of the United States, flew into Montreal Wednesday and helped head off a proposal that would have raised opposition to clause in a new U.S. civil rights bill.

The proposal, made by the Maryland delegation to the American Bar Association's annual convention, was aimed at changing association opposition to the jury provisions of the bill.

Mr. Katzenbach's visit to the convention—seemingly a move by President Johnson's administration—was revealed after the Maryland proposal was voted down 200-36.

The bill, which cleared the U.S. House of Representatives this week, provides for random selection of federal juries from voting lists.

Currently, some juries are selected by a chosen community leader in his respective area of the country.

World Court Has Strengthened Verwoerd's Grip on Vast Area

By BRIAN BARROW
Canadian Press Correspondent

CAPE TOWN (CP) — The verdict of the World Court after six years of debate on South West Africa places the future of this vast territory in the 530,000 people, 75,000 of them white, back in the hands of the Verwoerd government of South Africa.

South Africa has administered the former German colony since the end of the First World War, under a League of Nations mandate. Ethiopia and Liberia brought suit Nov. 2, 1960, seeking a ruling that the United States had jurisdiction over old League mandates, because South Africa has imposed in South West Africa its domestic apartheid policy.

The judges divided 7-7 on the case and the president cast a deciding vote against the plaintiffs, so the finding is that Ethiopia and Liberia have no legal interest in the territory. This avoided taking a stand on the legality of apartheid there.

The World Court found that the League of Nations made no provision for a member to challenge another's execution of its mandate.

HOLDS CARDS

In fact the Hague judgment puts the South West Africa issue right back in the hands of the international politicians and for the moment Verwoerd holds the trump card. The judgment has given him three distinct advantages.

First it has robbed the Afro-Asian nations of the legal basis they wanted for their anti-South African campaign. Second, it makes it difficult for South Africa's enemies at the United Nations to argue that apartheid is a threat to peace. And third, the attack on apartheid as practised in South West Africa has failed.

The only way Verwoerd can lose his advantage is to incorporate the territory into the Union of South Africa. But this he is unlikely to do because he doesn't need to. For years South West Africa has been administered as an integral part of the republic.

The administrative position is that in the South African Parliament South West Africa is represented by six members in the lower house and four in the Senate. At the head of the South West African local government is an administrator, appointed by the South African government, who is chairman of a five-man executive committee.

There is a legislative assembly in Windhoek, the capital, which consists of 18 members elected by white majority vote. A number of portfolios including railways, airways, harbors, police, immigration and electoral administration fall under the jurisdiction of the South African government.

OPEN UP WEALTH

The South African government now will press on with its main reply to world accusations of maladministration of the territory's non-whites. This is the massive Odendaal development plan, which includes a hydro-electric plant, housing, hospitals, schools, roads, rural airports, better water supplies and buying farm land for the indigenous people.

The republic will spend about $100,000,000 on the plan during three five - year periods. About $30,000,000 has already been spent and the territory is riding the crest of a boom.

South West Africa is the young slumbering giant of the African continent. It is richly blessed with minerals and it has a huge fishing industry and a thriving agriculture.

During the last 30 years the territory's gross national income has grown at an annual rate of 10.7 per cent. It exports something like $50,000,000 worth, of produce a year and its numerous minerals—diamonds, lead, copper, zinc, tin, beryl, bluestuh, manganese, phosphates, alt and semi - precious stones grow more than $40,000,000 a year. And geologists say the surface of the territory's mineral riches has only been scratched.

The waters off South West Africa's Atlantic coast contain some of the richest fishing grounds in the world and the fish industry is booming. In agriculture the most famous product is karakul pelts used for making fur coats.

South West Africa is a vast country extending over 318,000 square miles, most of them arid and frightening desert country. Yet vast herds of wild animals manage to exist.

The non - white people of South West Africa are friendly, unsophisticated and mostly primitive. They include numerous tribes and groups each with its own language and customs but with no political consciousness or cohesion. They live in reserves dotted all over the territory.

TERRACES HALT EROSION — A Moroccan agriculture ministry field worker looks out over a terraced hillside near Taounate, Morocco, which is part of a rush program to save the western slopes of the Rif Mountains for cultivation. Without aid, the devastating effects of erosion, misuse and overpopulation will make the area virtually unfit for agriculture within a single generation. The program is just starting, but eventually it will cover an area of 4,500,000 acres from which 1,300,000 Moroccans, most of them farmers, scrape a living. (CP Photo).

Morocco Tries to Halt Erosion Threatening Rif Village Life

Erosion threatens to make the western slopes of the Rif Mountains unfit for cultivation. Morocco has embarked on a program of tree planting, dams and irrigation channels in an effort to deal with the situation. A Canadian Press reporter who visited the area describing the uphill battle to reclaim the land.

By PETER BUCKLEY

TAOUNATE, Morocco (CP) Crude terraces of earth and pebbles girdling the hills around this tiny mountain village represent the first steps in a crash program to save a corner of Morocco from desolation.

Unless the devastating effects of erosion, misuse and overpopulation can be halted and reversed, Moroccan officials predict that the western part of the Rif Mountains will be virtually unfit for agriculture within a single generation.

International organizations are pitching in with funds and technical assistance for the area. So are a number of individual countries. Canada has been approached for help and the project is understood to be getting serious consideration in Ottawa.

But it can be a difficult program to sell.

Instead of the gigantic dam or industrial complex which is so often held up as the panacea for a stricken area, the project in the Western Rif involves a series of painstakingly small measures spread over a vast area for years to come.

A burly young field worker from the Moroccan agriculture department stopped his battered car beside the road outside Taounate to demonstrate what is involved to a visiting reporter.

Fat, lassitude grasshoppers three inches long soared into the air and a hot breeze carried along the scent of sunburnt pasture and dust.

A few yards from the simmering macadam, workers had recently planted rows of young olive trees. They could barely be distinguished among a ridiculous looking weeds, fighting for nourishment from the parched soil.

TERRACES HOLD SOIL

The Moroccan points further along the sloping hill. From the perspective of several hundred yards, the particular green of the olive trees stood out more plainly. So did the anti-erosion terraces on which the trees were planted.

And across the quiet valley, as the Moroccan pointed still further afield, the terraces stood out in bold relief as far as the eye could see—row upon row, climbing the camel-bump mountains from the valley floor to the rounded peaks.

Most important, the terraces seemed alive. Coarse weeds and grass had begun to grow, tying the precious topsoil to the barren clay beneath.

"It's probably not very exciting, as a project, but it's vital all the same," the field worker said in Arabic — accented French. He recited facts and figures:

"The people in Taounate and in the other villages of the Western Rif have an average income of about 775 dirhams ($170) a year for each household, and the normal household has about six or seven persons.

"They own an average of 5½ hectares (six acres) per family and even that is likely to be split up into small patches, many of it almost useless for agriculture.

"We began some of this work before the foreign assistance arrived to show that we are serious, that we are prepared to make a large effort ourselves despite our limited means."

TESTING GROUND

In Taounate, it may be years before the effects show.

Now, Taounate is a dusty village of about 2,000, a cluster of mud - brick homes around the tiny stores and cafes along the main road 30 miles north of the provincial capital of Fez.

The children selling juicy figs along the road are ragged and barefoot. Their parents have heavily laced faces and threadbare cloaks. The teenagers have mostly gone to look for work in the cities.

The government runs an experimental farm in a nearby valley and the area around Taounate has been chosen for some of the early experiments in agricultural rehabilitation.

The whole project has been baptized DERRO—for 'Development Economique Rural du Rif Occidental (Rural Economic Development of the Western Rif)—and is intended to cover eventually an area of 4,500,000 acres—three times the size of Prince Edward Island — from the Mediterranean seaboard to the inland foothills of the Rif Mountains.

The area is the home of 1,300,000 Moroccans, the vast majority of them subsistence farmers and goatherds wedded to a way of life that has changed little in centuries.

SOIL WASHES AWAY

Their land, however, has changed drastically in recent decades, and for the worse. As the population has increased, the forests have been felled and the land denuded by roving goats and sheep.

Because of the steep mountain slopes which characterize the Western Rif, the thin topsoil is being washed relentlessly into the sea by the irregular rains.

The Western Rif is on the edge of natural bankruptcy.

The DERRO project envisions steps to save the region. Whole areas are to be taken out of production field by field, banked against erosion, planted in olive or fruit trees or in grains, then returned to the original farmer.

Natural or unproductive crops are to be suppressed in favor of more productive uses. Barren regions will be planted with forests. Dams and irrigation channels will try to curb the small floods which now follow almost every rain.

And the tradition - bound farmers of the Rif are to be weaned into modern methods of raising crops and cattle.

FORCE NOT NEEDED

"There are some farmers who resist the idea, but so far we have had good co-operation," said the field worker. The government has authority under DERRO to carry out its program by force, "but we have not really had to use it."

"We have been able to convince the farmers by mathematics — by showing them that they could only gain in the long term by what we planned for their land."

Farmers whose land is taken over are being allowed, for instance, to sow temporary grain crops between the rows of new olive trees. Their income is supplemented by payments in cash and grain for work they do on roadbuilding or agricultural reforestation.

In Rabat, a national government official cited the assistance being provided by the UN's Food and Agricultural Organization, the World Bank and such countries as the United States, France and Germany.

"If Canada could also intervene in this affair, it would be very welcome," he said. "There are a whole series of forests which might be made productive and profitable if Canada could help with its great experience in this field. "Canada could send agricultural technicians, soil chemists, geologists and others concerned with land and growth. There is hardly a single type of aid that Morocco cannot use in its DERRO project."

Researchers Take Look at Coffee Drinking

NEW YORK (AP) — Medical researchers are taking a look at coffee drinking as a possible contributor to coronary artery disease and heart attacks.

Studies have implicated fatty foods, cigarette smoking, and lack of exercise as increasing the risk of heart attacks.

Add a few years ago a similar kind of association between high coffee intake and coronary disease was reported by Dr. Ogleoby Paul and Associates of Chicago.

A group of Canadian researchers has found significant correlations between coffee drinking and concentration of certain fatty materials in the blood of men with coronary heart disease, but not in healthy men. They suggest something other than caffeine in coffee may be involved that produces a rise in blood fats in susceptible persons "and that such persons may be liable to coronary heart disease."

Perhaps Old-Time Medical Quack Was Just Little Before His Time

Some scientists hope some day to eliminate all disease through control of the genes which direct the heredity and growth of living things. The following article on genetic tinkering tells of new developments and hopes in the mid-disease struggle.

By RALPH DIGHTON
AP Science Writer

"You say you're sick, friend?

"You say you've got cancer, your kidneys won't function and your heart beats only half the time?

"Tell you what I'm going to do. I'm going to let you have —for a small fraction of a dollar—a box of these pills absolutely guaranteed to make you into a new man."

That spiel of the oldtime medical quack is laughed at these days, but actually he may have been only 100 years or so ahead of his time.

Some reputable scientists believe, biological drugs may be available to counter virtually all the physical ills known to man. It may take longer, but the more optimistic are certain they are on the right track.

This confidence stems from recent gains in genetics, a comparatively new science that probes the molecular makeup of the living cell.

BREAK MYSTERIES

Geneticists are beginning to crack the great mysteries of how cells pass on information that ensures children will resemble parents, and why it is that some cells turn into flesh and others into bone.

They also are learning that the processes of heredity and growth can be altered, either by natural accident or by human plan.

Accidental changes in the cell frequently result in deformities or disease. The goal of man-made mutations is to correct defects and cure disease.

Eventually this new skill may be used to grow better brains and stronger hearts, but first it will be employed in efforts to make the bodies we have function with less trouble.

Subject of this research is the gene, an intricately fashioned molecule in the heart of the cell which has two vital jobs: both to control the heredity of the species and to direct the growth of the individual.

CAN GROW INDIVIDUAL

Every human body cell has an estimated 120,000 genes, enough that any cell can grow into a complete individual. It all depends on which genes are activated and which are repressed.

Just how a cell knows which genes to activate and which to repress is not fully known, but apparently the instructions are chemically encoded in the genes. Geneticists are busy cracking this code and many believe that the ability to turn any gene on or off is not far distant.

Since genes are made up of chemicals, they can be altered by adding or removing chemicals or by changing the arrangement of chemicals in their structure. The instructions they carry can be changed. By learning the genetic code—the language of the gene—scientists hope to control their functions.

One of the genes' tasks is to direct the manufacture of proteins, the stuff of which living tissue is made. Some cells are directed to make muscle, others to make bone, nerve or hair.

Some cells make proteins for use elsewhere in the body. Among these transported proteins are substances called antibodies. Antibodies react against invading bacteria and viruses and the poisons they produce.

Once formed, antibodies tend to stay in the body, providing an immunity against the disease caused by the invader.

FIGHT FOREIGN TISSUE

This immune response, normally beneficial, makes the transplanting of organs and the grafting of new limbs difficult. Antibodies fight virtually all foreign material even though that material—a kidney from another person, for instance—would enable you to survive.

Transplanting now is limited to organs from people of similar genetic types—from close relatives. A cell bodies recognize the similarity and do not attack.

But what if genes could be directed, simply by taking pills containing certain chemicals, to increase antibody production when you need a new kidney or heart?

With full knowledge of how genes work, it could be that you would never need a transplant. If a kidney started to fail, the genes in the kidney cells might be directed to repair the damage before it became serious.

Even the most dreaded disease, cancer, could be whipped through control of genes.

Cancer is a wild, uncontrolled growth of cells. If the genes of cancer cells could be turned off chemically, the cancer cells would die and be carried away through normal body elimination processes. The cells adjacent to the cancerous area could then take over and repair any damage.

CNR Will Loan Steam Locomotive For Park

The Intelligencer

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, AUGUST 11, 1966

May Buy Shannonville Station and Erect It In Centennial Program

Thanks to a co-operative gesture on the part of Canadian National Railways, Belleville's Centennial Park on Zwick's Island is to commemorate the city's role as a railway centre.

Mayor J. R. Ellis at a special meeting held today told city council that CNR through its Rideau Area manager H. J. Fast of Belleville, will make available to the city one of its last remaining steam locomotives.

The old steam freight locomotive still in common use during the last war will be towed to Belleville from Montreal and set up as an attraction on the city's Centennial Park.

The 1,500 class locomotives were not used on the CN main line but saw extensive use on branch lines. Local railroaders will remember the type as having been used in doubleheader service hauling grain from Midland to Belleville.

Railway officials said the old steamer would be "on loan" to the city.

And it is quite possible that the steam locomotive will be only part of the railway display at Zwick's Island.

MAY BUY STATION

The old stone CN railway station at Shannonville, unused for many years, is up-for sale but so far with no takers.

Mayor Ellis says the city can acquire the old station for a nominal sum and if it could be moved would completely round out the railway display at the Island.

"So far I haven't had much success in getting any organization to take on the moving of the old station as a project, but I am going to keep working at it," he said.

The railway exhibit at Zwick's Island is of course but one small phase of the over-all plans being made for the local celebration of Canada's 100th birthday in 1967.

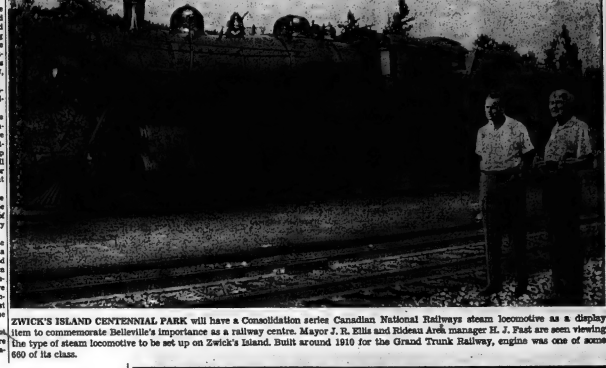
Reporting to council the protests made by the local Centennial Celebrations Committee, Mayor Ellis said that although Canada's birthday is still five months away and much has already been accomplished, a great deal of work still remains to be done if the centennial celebrations are to be the source of pride which citizens would like them to be.

"It is our duty to encourage as many people as possible to take an active part in the Centennial Celebrations," he said.

Mayor Ellis said the city's official Centennial project — Zwick's Island — was proceeding extremely well, with contractors now having the bulk of the work completed. However, not until the seeding, sodding and planting is completed and the park opened, will the full effect be achieved.

Deaf is anxious to do his part by holding a concert on March 10 and 11, 1967, consisting of rhythm, choral speech, and a play, with the Centennial theme throughout the entire concert.

The elementary schools are preparing a mammoth field day, with pupils of public and separate schools participating in all forms of competitive sports and massed physical fitness demonstrations. This is expected to be held on October 7, 1967.



Other less spectacular Centennial year events are as follows:

In January, it is hoped to have all the secondary schools compete in one giant snow sculpture contest. Also, since the Christmas tree will all be picked up by that time, this activity will end in an Epiphany Day or Twelfth Night bonfire at Zwick's Island.

Plans are under way to give the inaugural of the Belleville City Council and the Chamber of Commerce's 101st anniversary a special Centennial flavor.

The Jaycees' "Citizen of the Year" dinner is being given a real bulldog for February, and it is intended that, rather than choose an individual to represent the city for one year there will be picked a living personage who will represent the best of Belleville's citizens over the last 1967 - century.

Also in February, "Boy Scout Week" and "Hockey Week" are being given special consideration.

ZWICK'S ISLAND CENTENNIAL PARK will have a Consolidation series Canadian National Railways steam locomotive as a display item to commemorate Belleville's importance as a railway centre. Mayor J. R. Ellis and Rideau Area manager H. J. Fast are seen viewing the type of steam locomotive to be set up on Zwick's Island. Built around 1910 for the Grand Trunk Railway, engine was one of some 660 of its class.

Will Open Park While Caravan Visits Here

To officially open the park on July 5, 1967, there will be a parade through the City of bands, drum majorettes, floats, old - time costumes, together with City, Provincial and Federal officials. A display of fireworks will take place in the evening.

Consideration is being given to inviting Mr. and Mrs. William E. Zwick, Salt Lake City, descendants of the original Zwick family, to attend and take part in the official opening ceremonies.

The opening will coincide with the Confederation Caravan, which will be on exhibition here July 5 to 12, 1967. This is a major program designed to carry the Centennial message to Canadians in every part of Canada. The exhibit tells the story of Canada from the Ice Age to the present. Modern electronic equipment and techniques will be used with as much visitor participation as possible. The Caravan consists of eight tractor-trailer units, with four outside regional exhibits. It will be open from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. daily. A platform stage will be provided for local entertainment.

The Board of Directors of H. Corby Distillery Ltd. will be holding its Directors' meeting in Belleville on July 26, 1967, and rededicating Corby Park on Ann Street by unveiling a suitable plaque. This park, at with its 1,400 pony bushes, will be one of the most beautiful in Belleville.

One of the highlights of the Centennial year will be the June 2, 1967, re-creation of the shipping of the first cheese from the Belleville harbor. Sponsored by the Black Diamond Cheese Co., the day will mark the opening of a series of plant tours of the company's facilities on Highway 401. With the co-operation of the Ontario Milk Marketing Board and the Ontario Cheese Producers Marketing Board, horse - drawn wagons loaded with cheese will parade through town to the Government Docks in an attempt to re-live the exporting of cheese from the Belleville area as it was done in the late 19th century. With some modern overtones, there will also be in the parade, bands, drum majorettes, antique cars, double - decker buses, and other interesting features.

Another example of participation in the local Centennial celebrations by industry is the donation of 20 tree-planters by Wilson Concrete Products Ltd. to the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, which have been placed on Front Street.

The Ministerial Association, under the Centennial Committee's representative, Archdeacon A. S. McConnell, will be sponsoring a Week of Prayer, possibly in January, which will have a Centennial background.

An open-air service of all faiths at Zwick's Island Park will be held on Sunday, July 2. Also a Christian Youth Rally will be held, which will include young people of all faiths.

Sportsmen Planning Special Attractions

Throughout July and August, regattas, golf tournaments, picnics, and other festivities are planned.

In May, the Parkdale Ratepayers Association has agreed to assist in presenting a month five works display on the Victoria Day weekend. Also that month, the Hastings County Museum will open its Centennial display.

In September, it is hoped to have a large "Labor Day" celebration sponsored and carried out solely by the labor people in Belleville.

The Science Fair and Hobby Show, sponsored by the Rotary Club, is promised to be bigger and better in the Centennial year.

A Southpaw Tournament by the Quinte Country Club, scheduled for August 13, should attract considerable attention to its members and visitors.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring its yearly Youth Conference and Teenage Rodeo, and several other young people's activities which will be finalized as time goes on.

Another one of the highlights of our Belleville Centennial celebrations will be the return to Belleville of the McFarland Hockey team in combat with the Whitby-Dunlop Hockey Harmonion game in the late Winter of 1967.

Women's Groups Plan Active Participation

The ladies of the community have not been left out of the plans of the Committee. Under the chairmanship of Mrs. Don Ohr Howell, who is also the Regional Woman's Director for the County of Hastings, a number of projects have been undertaken by various groups.

The Study Guild has undertaken to see that there are citizens in Centennial gowns mingling in the park at the Official Opening of Corby Park on June 28, 1967, and the Official Opening of Zwick's Island Park.

"Portraits from the Past", a Centennial fashion show, courtesy of the Ontario Centennial Planning Branch, Women's Activities, will be held under the auspices of a Women's Organization late in the Fall.

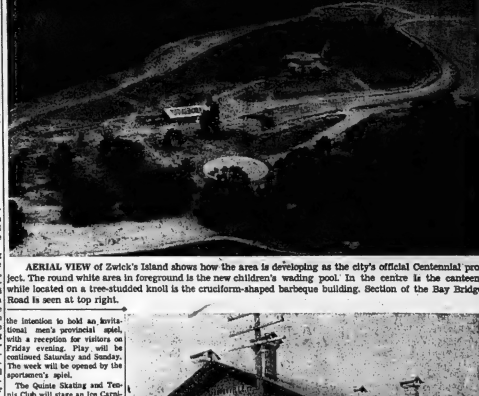
The Belleville Progressive Conservative Women's Association is planning a Centennial garden party on June 14, 1967.

The Guides and Brownies have indicated that they will be available for parades. They are looking into the possibility of having uniforms of the type worn at the inception of the movement.

The women of the Fair Board will have a Centennial theme to the women's building at the 1967 Fair, and other plans are under study.

Last, but certainly not least, the Performing Arts sub committee, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Marian Wilson, has a kaleidoscope of events in store for our citizens next year.

In March, coinciding with the formal opening of the Centennial Secondary School, there will be a Festival of Arts, including a competition of local talent open to the drama clubs in the other three secondary schools; a display of the works of local artists; and an original Canadian play produced by the Belleville Theatre Guild.



One of the most exciting events of the whole year will be the performance, in Belleville, on May 10 of the Toronto Symphony under the baton of Seiji Ozawa. The possibility of a community call also being able to support a performance such as this with the assistance of the Centennial Planning Branch is very remote. Nonetheless, these talented musicians — over 90 in number — with their gifted conductor, will be presented and "The Intelligencer" has agreed to sponsor the project.

Not all of the following have definite dates or sponsors as yet, but the Committee is working towards this end. Being considered for Belleville from the Quinte Variety Show; Centre Youth Choir and Brass Ensemble; Museum of Children's Theatre; Toronto Workshop Productions; Chanticleers; from the Canada Arts Festival Les Feux Follets, Manitoba Centre Theatre Company, and Holiday Theatre.

Some late confirmations are: The Canadian Planning Association of Canada, Belleville Branch, has appointed a member of its organization to act on the Centennial Celebrations Committee, and they will give us a plan for street and home decorating. It is expected that suitable prizes will be given for the best decorated old home, new home, et cetera.

Arrangements are being made by the Quinte Curling Club to celebrate its Centennial from January 13 to 22. The Club proposes to hold a public get-together on Sunday, and during the week will have a competition with Bonspiel for local members. On Friday, it is the intention to hold an invitational men's provincial spiel, with a reception for visitors on Friday evening. Play will be continued Saturday and Sunday. The week will be opened by the sportsmen's spiel.

The Quinte Skating and Tennis Club will stage an Ice Carnival, in which its members and special guest stars will participate. There will be an evening showing on Friday March 17, and a matinee and evening performance on Saturday March 18.

Local Organizations Plan Own Programs

Brotherhood week in Belleville has been celebrated for a number of years by means of a joint service and dinner held in one of the seven parishes in East Belleville and for Centennial Year the program will be expanded. Under a committee chaired by R. E. Schwab and John Luscombe, the dinner at the Belleville Armouries will be extended to include men of all faith in the city.

The Duke of Edinburgh Branch of the Army, Navy and Airforce Veterans of Canada have plans for "National Veterans Week" as a Centennial project which has the approval of the Federal Cabinet, to be held June 11 to 17.

The Royal Canadian Legion has a national Centennial financial campaign to raise one million dollars, the interest from which will be used to finance worthy projects. Branch 99 and Col. Pray Wills Branch 367 will celebrate its traditional Legion Week from June 5 to 10, undertaking local activities of a Centennial nature.

Memorial and Armistice Days will be given special attention, honoring those who have given their lives in order that Canadians may continue to enjoy the freedom to celebrate the country's birthday as they choose.

Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment also has Centennial plans but they are still not sufficiently advanced to announce.

In the Fall an outstanding display of rare stamps and coins will be held at the Armouries under the name "Quinpex '67" (Quinte Numismatic and Philatelic Exhibition). The display should attract many dealers from across the province and from New York State.

The Historic Committee of Albert College, a sub-committee of the overall Capital Funds Campaign Committee, is planning to make 1967 an important historic year for Albert College. The College will be well into its second century, being 110 years old in 1967. It plans to make an interesting display of the College archives, artifacts, photos, and old records, some of which date back to 1834. Former students, as well as the general public, will be invited to visit the school, see the improvements and view its 'Centennial Year' exhibit.

The Ontario School for the Deaf is anxious to do its part by holding a concert on March 10 and 11, 1967, consisting of rhythm, choral speech, and a play, with the Centennial theme throughout the entire concert.

The elementary schools are preparing a mammoth field day, with pupils of public and separate schools participating in all forms of competitive sports and massed physical fitness demonstrations. This is expected to be held on October 7, 1967.

Other less spectacular Centennial year events are as follows:

Also in February, "Boy Scout Week" and "Hockey Week" are being given special consideration.

Painters Plan Show

A group of local painters known as the "Canadian Group of Painters," have been working since 1964 to prepare a showing of their work covering the 100 years of Quinte district history. This should be an excellent showing, and will form a definite part of the arts presentation.

Mr. Les Shore is the Centennial Committee program coordinator with the responsibility of seeing that the Centennial year events do not conflict. Following are the names of the Centennial Committee members and the organizations which they represent:

Mayor Ellis, chairman; T. J. Lally, vice - chairman; Alderman D. G. Lea, council; Herb S. W. Howell, Ontario Centennial Project for Hastings County; Mrs. C. I. Wilson, dramatics arts guild; T. S. Ransom, historical society; W. J. Kilbourn, Public Relations Officer for the United Appeal; A. S. Martin, Santa Claus Parade Committee; J. Luscombe, Brotherhood Week; Zdenek Kvarda, Jaycees; Fred Deacon, President, Chamber of Commerce; J. Wells, General Committee Member; L. A. Kella, Superintendent, Belleville Public School Board; Archdeacon A. S. McConnell, Ministerial Association; Louis Shore, Coordinator; Ald. Keegan, Centennial Canvass; John J. Bassett, Belleville Separate School Board; J. E. McKinney, Community Planning Asst. of Canada, Belleville Branch; O. F. Bradley.

SHANNONVILLE CN STATION could be an added attraction for Belleville's Zwick's Island Centennial Park if mayor J. R. Ellis can find some organization which will volunteer to move it. Put up for sale last year, the station has had no takers and the railway would sell it to the city for a nominal sum.

PAIR EXECUTED

PRAGUE (AP)—Two Czechoslovak army privates were executed Tuesday after being convicted of killing an officer and wounding a soldier in an attempt to flee to Austria in December, the news agency CKT reported Wednesday. CTK did not say how the death sentences were carried out.

SPORTS SLICES

The cream of the district's equine loopdom will stage a trotting-pacing "gig" at the Fair Grounds Raceway Saturday night to mark the opening of the 1966 edition of the Belleville Fair.

Their target for the night is the handsome Black Diamond Cheese Stakes Trophy and the major share of a $2,000 purse.

HON. EARLE ROWE

This will be the third running for the beautiful bauble. The Black Diamond Cheese Stake sponsored jointly by the Black Diamond Cheese Limited and the Belleville Fair Board was inaugurated in 1964 when it was donated for an event competition.

The stake will be the highlight event of the eight-heat program that is the top grandstand attraction on opening night of the Fair.

Twenty-two sleek young aristocrats of the harness-racing set will patrol without whips at the gold-wire and the resulting money that goes with it.

It is the largest purse ever dangled beneath their noses for to become eligible for the Stake sauce they must have won less than $200 in their young lifetimes of racing.

Competition for the Stakes is expected to be even better than in the two previous years. In 1964 Lint won it and last year Early Lakes John captured the gold and pelf with a track record of 2.32, 4-5. This year Early Lakes John owned by Earl Lake of Elgin, Ontario set a track record of one mile in 2.02 at Ottawa's Rideau Carleton track.

According to veteran horsemen the cast of this year's stars is more impressive than that of last year. A lot of them are known to harness buffs of the city and district and there's a few "dark horses" in the starting gate which are not in the Who's Who of racing horseboots, but may come up with a winner.

And there will be nothing boring about the harness-racing spectacular for Ontario's Number One citizen. The Honorable Earle Rowe, Lieutenant-governor of Ontario, who will officially open the Fair that evening was a well-known breeder and driver of the province's harness racing fraternity.

I understand the Hon. Rowe can still slap a seat rein over the rump of a speeding pacer or trotter, the latter preferred. If the honorable gentleman appears fidgety from the stands don't worry about it. He probably is "itching" to exchange his seat on the VIP platform for that of a sulky.

The race list for the Black Diamond Spectacular which is published elsewhere calls for eight events. The three elimination heats will be run off starting sight o'clock then those one of three dashes.

The final for the Black Diamond Trophy will be the fifth race followed by the consolation event. The two remaining dashes follow.

The final grand exhibition events of the Trophy race will consist of nine heroes. Special permission of the Ontario Jockey Association has been received to start nine instead of eight.

The first three heroes finishing in the eliminations qualify for the Stakes event. Heroes finishing 4-5-6 in the eliminations will enter the consolation.

The Hon. Earle Rowe will present the Black Diamond Cheese Trophy to the winner at the conclusion of the championship race.

Jim Lee Happy Chinese

By JACK SULLIVAN

KINGSTON, Jamaica (CP)—Jim Lee, who won the gold medal for Canada in the centre-fire pistol at the British Empire Games Wednesday, is a genial, carefree Chinese-Canadian who seldom takes things seriously.

The 30 - year - old Vancouver sharpshooter who practises shooting at tin cans brought Canada its seventh gold medal of the Games and its first in shooting.

Lee seems to have a wise-crack for every occasion. When he was finished shooting on the rapid-fire range he stayed over five others in the final 30-shot round.

"Well, who wants a beer?" the beaming Lee asked when an official walked over to tell him he had won. And when photographers asked him to pose for pictures, he said: "It'll cost you six-pence a shot."

Lee, who works as a radio-TV repairman, was six points behind leader John Macedo of Jamaica at the halfway mark in the morning shooting. Then with the Canadian at 282 was Tony Clarke of England.

LOW MAN BUYS

Lee had announced to the other nine marksmen in his group both minutes before the second round that "low man buys the beer."

But he got serious when the targets were set up. He proceeded to shoot 294 of a possible 300 in the silhouette phase for a 576 total.

KINGSTON, Jamaica (CP)—A shooting gold medal by Jim Lee of Vancouver in the centre-fire pistol was a pleasant windfall for Canada's British Empire Games team Wednesday and today the track and field stars and red-hot swimmers are out to raise more gold.

With seven gold medals already tucked away, the Canadian squad faces one of the heaviest schedules of the Games which end Saturday.

One of the big questions was whether Beverley Boys of Pickering, Ont., can bounce back and win the gold medal in the women's high jump event. She was third going into the final round today. Her coach predicted she will win the big one.

Ron Clarke, Australia's great distance runner, was expected to go all out in the 26-mile, 385-yard marathon today to win his first gold of the Games after twice being thwarted by Kenyans.

In the three-mile and six-mile races he had to be content with the second-place silver.

Canada's hopes were pinned on Dave Ellis of Toronto, Ron Wallegford of Hamilton, Ont., and Andy Bowden of Ottawa, Ont.

THIRD SPRINT DOUBLE

Vancouver's Harry Jerome attempts his sprint double tonight. The gold medallist in the 100-yard dash up against some strong field in the 220, including Ghana's Samuel Allotey who set a Games record in the heats with a 20.8 clocking.

Australia's Dianne Burge also led the way in swimming events Wednesday. She beat Inge Pietrowski of Vancouver in six 100-yard final and broke a Canadian women's record again tonight in the 220.

Bill Crothers of Markham, Ont., who finished fourth in the 880-yard run, hoped to redeem himself in the 440-yard open final and finals, also scheduled tonight. He faced tremendous opposition from Tyndall Mottley of Trinidad.

The Canadian team had over 26 medals before today's events started and needed only four to surpass its showing at the 1962 Games at Perth, Australia. The Canadian bag included seven golds, 12 silvers and nine bronzes.

In addition to the shooting, Canada won a gold medal in the men's open team fencing and took a bronze in boxing Wednesday.

Lee, 30, won with a perfect 50 score on his final five shots to nose out Trinidad's Ken Ellington by one shot for the trimpoh. Not only that, he entered the second phase of the competition six points behind Julio Machado of Jamaica.

FENDERS WIN FIVE

The final count showed Lee with 576 points of a possible 600 against Ellington's 575. Machado won the third-place bronze with a 571 total. Gary McMahon, 34, of Dartmouth, N.S., who entered the second stage with a two-point margin over Lee, had to settle for fifth with a 570 total.

The men's open fencing team of John Andru and Konrad Widmaier, both of Toronto, and Peter Hazard of Vancouver achieved a second-place silver for their 3-0 loss to England in the final.

And the Canadians picked up a third-place bronze on another Lee—Raymond Frank Scott of New Westminster, B.C., who dropped a three-round decision to Ken Lee-Chuen of Kenya but advanced to the semi-final on one victory and a bye and was the last of Canada's seven-man team to go out.

The divers came in for some attention.

Miss Boys, 15, finished a fighting third behind an English girl and an Australian after the five preliminary dives in the high tower event. Doris Ida, Canadian officials were all but ready to award her the gold medal when the final five plunges are held today.

"The two leaders have finished their toughest dives while Beverley's are still to come," enthused diving coach Irene MacDonald of Vancouver. "She'll nail them."

But there is no such hope for the two Canadian male divers who finished seventh and eighth after their preliminary five tower dives. Terry Fitzpatrick of Vancouver was seventh and Larry Folkenbee, also of Vancouver, was eighth and last.

Jackson Sparks Riders 13-6 Win

Costly To Stampeders

By BOB MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP) — Quarterback Russ Jackson snapped back into form Wednesday night to lead Ottawa Rough Riders to a 13-6 triumph over Calgary Stampeders in a Canadian Football League game.

The Riders, undefeated in two regular-season and four exhibition games this year, moved into sole possession of first place in the Eastern Conference, topping the defeated Stampeders by two points ahead of Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Calgary, suffering its second-straight loss, is in last place in the WFC.

Jackson had been under fire before the game for sloppy passing in the Riders' earlier games. Dissatisfaction spotty protection from the Ottawa line he hit on 13 of 19 passes, including touchdown strikes to flanker Whit Tucker and halfback Bo Scott. He had one pass intercepted.

The defeat was a costly blow to the Stampeders who completely their eastern swing in Hamilton against the Tiger-Cats Saturday without offensive halfback Ted Woods and defensive end Jim Furlong, both injured in the game.

Final word on the injuries won't be available until later today.

Wood was snowed under by Ottawa tacklers behind his own line in the fourth quarter. First reports said he may have suffered a torn achilles tendon which could put him out for the season.

Furlong was hurt in a first-quarter pile-up and is to have his ankle xrayed today.

The game was mainly a defensive battle as both the Riders managed enough offence to keep most of the 20,375 shirt-sleeved fans happy.

They moved the ball a total of 422 yards—232 through the air and 190 on the ground. Tucker caught six passes for 105 yards while Scott caught four for 51 and led the ground attack with yards for 38 carries.

Halfback Ron Stewart ran 38 yards in seven trips while Jackson picked up 32 yards on seven running plays.

It was Calgary's second game in a row without touchdown—all six points came on field goals by halfback Larry Robinson. Calgary had its opening game 21-3 to B.C. Lions.

OTTAWA RUSHES DAY

Eagle Day was subjected to pressure most by the Ottawa defence, but still managed to complete 13 of 25 passes for 161 yards. He had two intercepted.

Harrison caught five for 57 yards, Evanshen four for 45 and Budd three for 66.

Calgary's ground attack was led by Billy Pullback Lovell Coleman ran 12 times for 27 yards and Stewart gained 25 on nine plays before his injury.

Only one of the Ottawa touchdowns was the result of a sustained drive and it needed two offside penalties against Calgary to keep going. Both penalties came at key points when Jackson had been dropped for big losses before he could find a receiver open.

Even then, Jackson had to run with the ball twice, for gains of 13 and 16 yards, before finding Scott with a nine-yard scoring pass to climax the 66 - yard march.

The second touchdown Evanson on a 30-yard pass-and-run play when Jackson rolled to his left and found Tucker open behind the Calgary secondary. Tackle Moe Racine converted Scott's major but was wide on Tucker's.

Death Strikes Out Dressen

The Mystery Of the Lost Ball!

MONTREAL (CP) — No matter what the 1966 Canadian amateur golf championship may produce, there will always be the mystery of the lost ball.

Here was the situation in the first round Wednesday:

John Russell of Vancouver and Tommy Hunter of Montreal, went to the 18th tee tied.

Tommy belted his drive "just where I wanted it," he said later.

Then began the hunt for Hunter's ball. It wasn't anywhere.

Both agreed positively that Hunter hadn't missed the fairway and Russell was sure that the ball was at least 30 yards from a lake.

There were no spectators who might have snuck off with the ball. There were no dogs and no crows or other ball-hungry birds. And no fish in the lake, large-mouthed or otherwise.

Players and caddies searched for more than the five minutes allowed. Still no ball and no sign of any little green men in a miniature helicopter.

Hunter went back to the tee unnerved, played a poor drive and then conceded the match. Russell won one-up.

DETROIT (AP)—Baseball today mourned the death of Detroit Tigers manager Charlie Dressen, a fiery competitor regarded as one of the most dedicated men in the game.

Dressen, who would have been 68 next month, died Wednesday of a cardiac arrest, just four days after he had been admitted to the hospital for the third time in 17 months.

Dressen suffered a heart attack in spring training in 1961 and was sidelined by the same ailment last May 16. His last confinement was for a kidney infection.

"I lost a great friend and associate," said Tigers vice-president and general - manager James A. Campbell, who hired Dressen in June, 1964 to replace Bob Scheffing.

"Few remain in baseball who are more thoroughly knowledgeable and sincere enthusiasm for the game," said Tigers owner John E. Fetzer.

Dressen's widow, Ruth, was expected to make final funeral arrangements later.

WEAR ARM BANDS

The peppery Dressen, who managed Brooklyn Dodgers when they were National League pennants in 1952 and 1953, had moulded the Tigers into his finest team since the Dodgers.

News of Dressen's passing reached acting manager Frank Skaff and the Tiger players.

"This is a real shock to me," said veteran outfielder Al Kaline. "He was the best manager I ever played under as far as knowing the game of baseball was concerned."

Fred Haney, general-manager of Milwaukee Braves when Dressen managed that club in 1960 and 1961, commented: "Baseball has lost a great friend, probably one of the most dedicated men we ever had in the game."

Weslock, Cole, Henry

Three Favored In Amateur

By AL McNEIL

MONTREAL (CP)—A Canadian, an American and a South African have been proclaimed heavy favorites as the field of 32 golfers tee off today in the second round of the Canadian amateur championship being played at Summerlea Golf Club.

Nick Weslock of Scarborough, Ont., three-time winner of the title, defending champion Bunky Henry of Valdosta, Ga., and Bobby Cole the sparkling 19-year-old golfer from Johannesburg, have been receiving maximum attention from the sports galleries attending the matches.

However, both Henry and Cole, the current British Amateur champion, had more difficulty.

Cole drew a tartar in the person of Bob DePopolo of Newtonville Mass., a former semi-pro baseball player and all-around athlete, but twice the South African's age.

Henry had to par the 17th and 18th holes to get past a determined Don Alexander of the Quebec Willingdon Cup squad, two up.

In today's draw, Weslock goes against Toronto's youthful Ray Brisdon, Henry meets Ed Rose of Saskatchewan's Willingdon Cup team and Cole has drawn Duke Doucet, a 19-year-old fun junior champion, from Windsor Mills, Que.

CLAIR STRICKEN

OTTAWA (CP)—Frank Clair, coach of Ottawa Rough Riders, went to hospital briefly Wednesday after an attack of severe stomach cramps while golfing. Dr. Ken Wilson, the football club's doctor, said the 49-year-old coach was treated with a drug and was "extremely fit" today.

Braves Sweep Three From Dodgers

Pirates Up Lead

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Chris Short admits he's not dead any more, but he was scared stiff when he made a mistake against Lou Brock.

Short, Philadelphia's stylish southpaw, lost his perfect game on Brock's seventh-inning single and finished with a three-hitter Wednesday night as the Phillies downed St. Louis Cardinals 5-4.

The first 19 batters he faced went down quietly. Then Brock came up with one out in the seventh.

"When the pitch to Brock got up toward the plate, I knew it was the wrong one," Short said. "It was a high slider, right in the wheelhouse."

Brock bunched on it for a single to centre, quickly stole second for his 47th theft of the season, and rode home on Curt Flood's hit, spoiling not only the perfect game and no-hitter but a shutout as well.

EARNS 13TH VICTORY

Short gave up one other single and earned his 13th victory of the season. He struck out six and walked none.

game lead over San Francisco Giants in the National League race with a 9-4 victory over New York Mets. Third-place Los Angeles Dodgers slipped 3½ games off the pace by dropping its third straight to Atlanta Braves, 3-1.

Short said he has conquered his fear of right-handed batters and that has made him a better pitcher this season.

"I used to be scared to throw the ball in toward a right-handed batter," he admitted. "But I'm not now."

SHIFT PAYS OFF

Billy Hitchcock, the Braves' new manager, elevated Felipe Alou to the leadoff spot and for the second straight night, Alou opened the first inning with a home run.

"I told him he was back in the leadoff position because he's done so well there all year," Hitchcock said. "Then I told him: 'After all, after you hit the score may be 1-0.'"

It happened that way in each of Hitchcock's first two games and helped the Braves complete a three-game sweep of the Dodgers.

Alou also scored the tie-breaking run in the fifth after Jim Gilliam let his grounder get by for a two - base error. Alou moved to third on an infield-out and scored on Hank Aaron's sacrifice fly. Joe Torre's single and Rico Carty' double produced Atlanta's other run.

FILES LIBEL SUIT

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Catcher Jim Pagliaroni of Pittsburgh Pirates has filed a $1 million libel suit against the New York Post and sportswriter Maury Allen because of a story that Pagliaroni had "socked" Manager Harry Walker. The suit, filed in federal district court, claimed the remarks were false and said the story caused irreparable harm to Pagliaroni's reputation.

Twins Blank Angels, Snap Loss String

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Cesar Tovar, the handyman in Minnesota's infield and outfield, has picked up his first save as a relief pitcher.

Rich Rollins and Harmon Killebrew homered for Minnesota and Tovar, making his first appearance in the outfield since May 31, protected the margin.—Grant's second straight shutout —by cutting down California runners at the plate in the first and seventh innings.

Tovar started his second season with the Twins in centre field but was benched after playing 20 games. In July he filled in at shortstop for the injured Zoilo Versalles and hit at a .300 clip. When Versalles returned to the lineup, Tovar moved over to second base and stayed there until Wednesday night.

In other games Wednesday, league - leading Baltimore Orioles pounded New York Yankees 9-4, Chicago White Sox whipped Kansas City - Athletics 9-2, Boston Red Sox blanked Cleveland Indians 5-0 and Washington Senators tripped Detroit Tigers 6-5 in 12 innings.

Squirts Whip Cobourg In OASA Series

Belleville defeated Cobourg 5 to 4 in a close contest to tie up the OASA squirt playdowns, best of 3 series one game apiece.

The game was scoreless until the bottom of the fourth when Doug Ridley who led off with a bunt single scored on sacrifices by Gary Donovan and Bruce Sutherland.

Cobourg retaliated in the top of the fifth scoring 3 runs on 4 hits and one error.

Belleville came back with two runs in the bottom of the fifth to tie it up on hits by Dave Liscum, Dave Potts and Bruce Macdonald.

Cobourg went ahead by one run in the top of the seventh but Belleville bounced back for two runs to get the win on hits by Dave Liscum and Bruce Sutherland. Bruce Macdonald was the winning pitcher giving up 6 hits, striking out 6 and no walks. Bruce Stevenson, losing pitcher gave up 7 hits, 2 walks and struck out 8.

The final and deciding game between these two teams will be played at the Alemite field Saturday, August 13 at 8 p.m.

Juniors Whip Picton

By ROBERT SNEFIELDS

PICTON — Ellis Juniors of Belleville ripped through a make - shift Picton squad here last night by a score of 8-3. The win gave Ellis' one victory in three attempts in the best-of-seven B. and D. playoff series.

Next contest is slated for Saturday evening at the Alemite, — Junior coach Harold Reid, juggled his line up for this crucial game and came up with a winning combination. The visitors belted 13 hits, including four by Reid - off batter Bob Moon.

Moon also scored three runs. The first came after tripling, the second after a fluke knock and the third on a home run drive. Moon barely missed scoring four times when he was tagged out at the plate after singling.

Bob Ethier threw a fine four hitter and fanned 12 for his first victory in the series. He gave up only two earned runs, and issued three walks.

Carl Stacey was hit hard in going the distance for the Elmen. He struck out 14 but gave up 13 hits.

Don Gardner and Terry Wellesley, demoted to low in the batting order for this game, each had two singles for Ellis'. Other hitters were Wayne Woods, Carl Rosenbower, Bob Ethier, Art Barker and Bill Barberstock.

Ken DeMille cracked a home run, while Elden Carson, Carl Stacey, and Keith Stacey had base hits for Picton.

During the game it was announced that a 90-year-old man, Clayton Hyatt, was in the stands cheering for Picton. Ellis Juniors: Moon s, Woods ss, Bonchower cf, Ethier p, Barker 2b, Barberstock 1b, Wellesley lf, Jury rf, Gardner 3b.

Parsons Defeat Batawa 3-1

Belleville Parsons defeated the Batawa Braves by a score of 3-1 in a hay game played in Batawa last evening.

Parsons remain on top of the league, by virtue of this victory, watched by a good crowd.

Belleville opened with attacking soccer and went into the lead, one of the best goals seen this season. Joe Iasenza took a toss from J. Paterson, and crossed the ball into the Batawa goalmouth. Alan Brown raced in to head the ball into goal.

Ten minutes later Parsons added again. Joe Iasenza lobbed the ball through to Bob Rutherford and his shot was deflected into the net by Bob Golzmbos. The score remained at 2-0 until half-time. Batawa came on strongly in the second half and kept up continual pressure on a backed Parsons defence.

Belleville play the Trenton High School's team next Wednesday in Trenton at 6.30.

Latta Takes 2-Game Lead Over Read

Latta took a 2-1 stranglehold on their end series in the South Hastings league as they whipped Read 7-1 last night. Next game is slated for Saturday night, at Read.

The winners broke up a 1-1 ball game in the fourth and fifth frames with a total of six runs.

Latta managed their win in spite of being out - hit 7-4. Errors, walks, and ball hitting, contributed to make it an easy decision.

Lorne Cronkright threw a steady seven - hit victory for Latta. He got three on strike outs and walked one.

Ted Abrams gave up only four hits but had control trouble, as he hit three batters and walked five. He fanned three.

For Latta, Doug Bowsome doubled, and Howard Meeks, Larry Mavety and Doug Rollins got singles.

Read's Carm Milligan blasted a home run and single, and Terry Milligan, two singles. Jerry Brennan, Red Abrams and D. Milligan had base hits.

Beverly Wins Bronze

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

KINGSTON, Jamaica (CP)—Beverley Boys, 15 - year - old storm centre of the eighth British Empire Games, won the third-place bronze medal in the women's tower diving event today.

Jill Newsham of England won the gold medal in the event, re-scheduling of which led to a furore at the Games Monday. Robyn Bradshaw of Australia won the second-place silver.

Miss Boys, freckle - faced schoolgirl from Pickering, Ont., was the surprise silver medalist of the women's springboard competition last week.

She was leading after three dives in the tower event Monday when Games officials terminated the diving because of high winds. Australian and English officials protested that the already-completed dives should be wiped out, but Games officials ruled them down.

Later, the Games officials reversed their stand and wiped out Miss Boys' lead.

SCOT WINS MARATHON

In the other early event at the Games on Canadian soil, ran with the early leaders in the British Empire Games marathon but faded as Scotland's Jim Alder scored a narrow comeback victory.

Bill Adcocks won the second-place marathon medal for England and Mike Ryan of New Zealand hung on to take the third-place bronze.

Nancy Defies Ill-Luck

PORTILLO, Chile (CP)—Despite a run of bad luck, Canada's Nancy Greene is among the favorites today for the women's giant slalom in the world Alpine skiing championships here.

Dave Jacobs of Montreal, coach of the Canadian team, predicted Miss Greene "will shoo away the bad luck that she has hounded her since the races started."

The 23 - year - old Rossland, B.C., secretary, ranked first in world slalom and giant slalom for women, was leading the slalom when she fell in the second run. Then, in the downhill toward the end of a spectacular run, she fell and hurt her arm. Jacobs said she has recovered.

Jacobs was elated at the showing of the Canadian men Wednesday in the giant slalom. All improved their standings on the second run down the dangerous and demanding course.

Frenchman Guy Perillat won the gold medal in a brilliant performance that included Canadian Jean-Claude Killy, who was leading after Tuesday's first run.

Perillat, 26, was nearly a half-second behind Killy going into the second run. He sped through the 50 gates in one minute, 41.89 seconds for a combined time of 3:12.42.

Hyde Defends Lawn Bowling

One of the main reasons for inconsistent shotmaking is the raising and lowering of the head during the swing. You will note that, in the illustrations, my head remains in the same position at the top of my swing and at impact as it did when I originally addressed the ball. If you can keep your head "level" in this manner, you will have a much better chance of returning the club-head squarely to the ball. You will be less likely to top or scuff the shot.

By VOLKMAR RICHTER

TORONTO (CP) — J. E. U. Rouleau, 63, of Cornwall says interest in lawn bowling is declining.

"We're having meetings every year about it and we don't know why interest is going down. I wish we did," says Rouleau, a former president of the Provincial Lawn Bowling Association of Ontario.

"I guess there's not enough excitement in the game. Well, you can see yourself, there's not much excitement out there. It's a slow game."

The current president of the association, Gerald Hyde, a former mayor of Belleville, disagrees.

"It doesn't lack excitement," he says. "People just think it doesn't have any excitement. It's hard to get young people to try it, but if they play it three times, they'll keep playing."

AIM AT JACK

In lawn bowling, a player rolls several four-inch - wide bowls down a lawn playing area, trying to place it close to a smaller white ball, called a Jack. The bowl closest to the Jack wins the point.

Rouleau, who has been lawn bowling for 47 of his 63 years, says:

"A lot of clubs are disappearing; people are going into other sports like golf, and going to cottages. And then too the game is still known is as old man's game."

Hyde, who at 41 is the youngest president the association has had, agreed that most people think of it as an old man's game.

The average age in the association 20 years ago was well into the 60s, but today the average is no more than 45," he said.

Departmental Softball

The Intelligencer scored a one - sided 13-4 victory over Public Works last night to even their best-of-five Departmental League semi - finals at one game each.

The linkmen scored two runs in the first and five more in the second, then coasted the rest of the way.

Ron Culloden started the game on the mound for The Intelligencer, pitching three and two - third innings, and giving up two runs on four hits and two walks. John Edwards went the rest of the way, giving up two runs on four hits and one walk.

Moe Huddleston and Pug Kellar shared mound duties for the Works, giving up 13 runs on nine hits and 11 walks. They struck out six.

Don Wood led the winners at the plate, picking up a double and three singles in five trips and knocking in seven runs. Merv Thompson added a two - run homer for The Intelligencer.

Kellar hit a home run and a single to lead the Works at the plate.

Four Pairs Remain Undefeated

TORONTO (CP) — Some 100 entries started off a series of pairs competitions at the provincial lawn - bowling tournament Wednesday and one of the first to be eliminated was Jack Beacom, Tuesday's big winner.

Beacom, whose Toronto rink took the Eaton Gold Cup after six rounds of undefeated play, lost in the first round of the Seagram Trophy event with a 21-12 score to an Ottawa pair led by G. E. Whiteley.

But Whiteley lost in the second round to Art Williams of Toronto, who remained undefeated after three rounds in company with Dr. Charles Brereton, Toronto, and George Allison, Stouffville.

The undefeated after four rounds included: Charles Townsend of Toronto, C. H. Bodle of Toronto, chairman of the Provincial Lawn Bowling Association, and Glen Ross of London, Ont., who downed Hugh Wakehall of Owen Sound 17-12.

Pairs competitions continues today.

Cementmen Thump Cheesemen

The winners scored a total of 10 runs in the first four frames and then coasted to the win. Black Diamond started scoring in the final two innings but it was too late.

Point Anne grabbed a one run lead in the first after a triple and a passed ball and upped the score to 5-0 in the second on four hits and a pair of walks off losing pitcher Sonny Holoway. Three Cheesemen errors helped the Pointers up the score to 8-0, and the next frame they added two more.

Jamie Hunter buried in relief and was charged with three of Black Diamond's four runs. He gave up two hits. Starring, and winning pitcher, Mike Cook, allowed five hits and fanned nine.

Sonny Holloway gave up 10 hits and struck out nine for the losers.

Tom MacDonald led the Point Anne batsmen with a double and single. D. Maher singled three times, and Mike Cook had a triple. Rick Rosebush and Dave Akey doubled, and Eric Maher and Vern Whalen singled.

Fishing, it appears, is in a summer slump.

The fish and wildlife officers of the Ontario department of lands and forests report that angling is only poor to fair in most districts.

The experts blame the heat, especially in Central and southern Ontario where the July weather averaged about two degrees above normal.

Despite this, the department's weekly report on Ontario angling indicates there was some excellent angling in all but southern and western regions.

Pickerel, northern pike and lake trout anglers had good fishing at other spots in Northern Ontario while bass and muskellunge anglers managed some good catches in eastern areas.

POLICEMEN THEN AND NOW—Leo Seguin, one of the great football guards of the late 1930s and early '40s, was wearing an Ottawa Rough Rider uniform in 1941 (left), two years after he joined the Ottawa police force. Today he still wears a uniform—that of deputy police chief. Now 48, he is content to be a spectator at the great sports events. He recalls that he got $5 in his first football "pay" envelope. Pass to Set of 'Batman' Hottest Ticket in Town

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Batman and Robin stood in front of the ornate fireplace of Gotham City's stock exchange boardroom trying to find a way to save the building from destruction.

A new villain, Minstrel (played by former boy-next-door Van Johnson), wanted money or threatened a big blast. But the problem at the moment was, Batman's difficulty in navigating smoothly through one of those elaborate Bat-sentences.

"Gentlemen," he said, "are you prepared to live in the shadow of this truthless . . . . No, let's try it again. Gentlemen, are you prepared to live in the shadow of this rascally, ruthless tyrant . . . ."

The twice-a-week program is in production in a sound stage at Desilu's Culver City studio. And at the moment, a pass to the set is undoubtedly the hottest ticket in town.

Demand, from presidents of sponsoring corporations to ordinary tourists, was so great that on two days a week visitors were permitted to visit the set with each stay strictly limited to one hour.

Those days still present problems because children are often so young and unaccompanied that the sound track is likely to pick up a little voice piping "what's Batman doing now, daddy?" Then it must be re-shot.

KIDS SNEAK IN

On the day Batman was figuring out how to save the stock exchange the set was closed to visitors. But somehow three youngsters, aged six to 10, had managed to slip in.

When the scene finally was shot, Adam West removed his helmet, mopped his perspiring forehead, dropped his cape and donned a light dressing gown. Burt Ward pulled off his mask and the two stars strolled behind the camera to talk about the show.

West, who as Batman has read so many fulsome lines with meaningful pauses that it has become his off-camera manner of speech, confessed to being a bit fatigued but said he was determined to continue public appearances, even to play host to a Hollywood Palace program and guest do other variety shows.

"Few actors," he said, "have had such a quick and extraordinary thing happen to them. So it is important to me, as an actor, to make the most of it.

"Success in itself is a problem because of the nature of the role. So the important thing for me to do, regardless of pressures, is to take every chance I get to establish my own identity —Adam West, that is—to offset the other one."

Witness Given Transfusion Despite Faith

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Larry Leith, 18, of Pembroke, a Jehovah's Witness who was given a blood transfusion Wednesday, has been transferred to another hospital under the care of a Jehovah's Witness doctor.

Doctors at the Ford Hospital in Detroit Wednesday over-ruled the wishes of the youth and his mother and administered five pints of blood.

About four hours later the youth's Mrs. Joseph Leith of Pembroke ordered that her son be removed from Ford Hospital to the Crittendon Hospital of Detroit.

Dr. Henry Enfroy of Detroit, also a Jehovah's Witness, has taken charge of the youth, injected Tuesday in a car-motorcycle accident 22 miles south of Windsor.

Crittendon Hospital officials said Wednesday night the youth was admitted in critical condition and was immediately transferred to the medical surgery ward. The hospital spokesman, a nursing supervisor, said she did not know the hospital policy or if the 18-year-old would be given more blood transfusions.

The family has expressed opinion that no further blood is to be administered even where necessary for life-saving procedures, a Ford Hospital spokesman said.

The transfusion was given to the youth before he underwent an operation for a partially severed right leg. Earlier the youth said he refused to have a transfusion because of his religious beliefs.

Expect Mary Tyler Moore To Have Broadway Hit

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"I feel I'm about to enter a prison—comfortable, self-imposed, but still a prison."

That is the view Mary Tyler Moore takes of her forthcoming Broadway debut in Breakfast at Tiffany's.

There is reason for her feeling. If the show is a hit, she will play it eight times a week for two years, including matinees Wednesdays and Saturdays. Producer David Merrick will give her two weeks off each year for good behavior.

"And Universal wants me for a picture the first summer," she said.

"He'll release me from playing matinees so I can make the movie in New York in the daytime and in the second summer I get off to shoot a film in Hollywood."

If the auguries of proven talent are any indication, Miss Moore will indeed serve her two-year term. Breakfast at Tiffany's has the best of auspices: Producer Merrick, author - director Abe Burrows, songsmith Robert Merrill, choreographer Michael Kidd—hit-makers all.

SHOW CONFINING

Would two years in a Broadway show be any more confining than five years in The Dick Van Dyke Show?

"Oh, yes," she answers. "On the series we only worked four days a week, had a week off after every six weeks of shooting and three months summer vacation.

"Besides, we shot the series in California, and I am a confirmed Californian. The living is so easy here. I can throw on slacks and a shirt and go to a place like Hamburger Hamlet and order a cocktail. Where could you do that in New York?"

But New York is where her husband is, and being the dutiful wife she is moving her home and career there. Her husband is Grant Tinker, recently transferred to New York in the important post of director of programming for NBC.

Does this sound as though Mary Tyler Moore expected to suffer in her Broadway debut? Don't you believe it.

"It is the fulfilment of my lifetime ambition," she says.

"I never thought of being an actress—always a dancer. The thing I wanted most was to dance in a Broadway show. Naturally I expected to be in the chorus."

Charges Denied By Official Of Department

TORONTO (CP)—Charges by John L. Brown, director of Warrendale centre for emotionally disturbed children, that Ontario's public welfare department wants to water down the centre's treatment program, were denied Wednesday by a department official.

Dr. Leonard Stein, director of child welfare, said the department has no intention of interfering with Warrendale's treatment program.

Mr. Brown, who leaves his 15-year executive position Aug. 31, said the department wants to manipulate the centre's treatment program and reduce its scope. He also accused the department of writing agencies outside Ontario that have children at Warrendale, telling them to remove their children from the province.

Miss Graham said the province, in doing so, was merely implementing the decision made by the 30-member board of St. Faith's Lodge, the voluntary citizens' body that operates Warrendale.

Mr. Brown refused to comment Wednesday on published reports that he has been fired and that there was political pressure for his dismissal.

He is a New Democratic Party candidate for a new provincial riding of Woodbine-Beaches here in the next general election.

MONEY TO LOAN

Use this space to add up your monthly payments then cut them down with an Associates consolidation loan

Add up your monthly obligations. If the total is too high, the Associates will lend you the money to clear up those debts, and turn them into one low monthly payment. And by paying off debts instead of putting them off, you keep your credit good for any other purchases you make in the months ahead. So cut monthly payments down with a debt consolidation loan from the Associates. Call your Associates manager today.

Teens' Recreation Projects Sponsored by Firefighters

NAPANEE — The Napanee Firefighters Association and the teen-agers of the town and district seem to have formed a mutual admiration society. The firefighters are happy to give the teen-agers a chance to have some fun, are pleased at their good response and good behavior and the young people are grateful to the Firefighters Association for the chance to get together every Friday night in the Armoury to dance to the music of two local orchestras. Their only complaint is the lack of a dance floor. Dances are attended by the fifteen themselves, always some in uniform, and by some of the wives to look after the wants of the girls.

Last Friday there were 252 paid admissions. The atmosphere is good and there is nothing to drinking problems and no rowdyism. "It was time for somebody to do something for these kids, and we are glad to be the ones to do it," one of the leaders from the Association said.

900 County People Attend Red Cross Swimming Classes

NAPANEE — Close to 900 people in Lennox and Addington are benefiting from the Red Cross swimming classes this summer, with Erik Petersen heading the team of eight instructors. During July four classes were held at the pool-together with the mouth of the Napanee River along the River Road, two a week being given at the lake-side in Lake Ontario at Bath, and two more each afternoon at Bayview Park. There are no classes Saturday or Sunday.

Of the 675 who took the classes in July, 90 per cent passed the stiff tests given by Fred Hunnerstone of Kingston, a Red Cross swimming examiner. Mrs. Bill Card presented 110 Tadpoles with crests, and all others received certificates. Mrs. Crawford Smith presented these to 44 beginners, A. Hewitt, the 16 15 intermediates and the eight senior swimmers each received both a certificate and a crest from the hands of Mrs. Lloyd Cowle.

There were 75 more in the July classes this year than there were last year, Mr. Petersen states.

Last Wednesday, swimmers who had been instructed by Miss Judy Finlay of Strathcona were examined by George Fraser of Kingston, and all were successful in passing the tests which brought them awards from the Royal Life-saving Society. Most of them were only 5 years old, though a few were a year older. They are now qualified to be lifeguards on certain beaches.

Bronze medallions went to Chris Wartman, Murray White, Richard Hooper, Peter Bird, Melissa Clark, Judi Robertson, and Linda Poulton.

Bronze Cross: Samuel, Schuyler French and Cathy Alexenbeck, repeating the tests for re-qualification, were awarded bronze bars.

Awards of merit for successfully completing a set of very difficult tests went to Cliff Smith and Susan Brandham.

Buses are provided for children at a distance who have no other way of reaching the swimming pool. They are now in use for Bath and Roblee Beaver Lake, where popular Miss Finlay conducts. Some of those taking the classes are from a distance, vacationing at cottages.

Are Prepared To Fight New Red Revolt

KUALA LUMPUR (Reuters) Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rohman of Malaysia says that his country is ready to deal with any renewed outbreak of Communist rebellion following the weekend ambush of a Malaysian Police patrol.

"We are prepared for a new state of emergency," he told reporters after a meeting of the federal cabinet.

It was the first big attack by a Communist group since 1960 when the 12-year rebellion officially was declared ended.

Malaysian, Thai, and Communist forces have been conducting precautionary operations since then against an estimated 500 hard-core party members still in the Jungle border area.

Now that "confrontation" with Indonesia is coming to an end, the prime minister said, Malaysia could become a staging area to the Communist problem.

Why should our son have a newspaper route?

The living is good. Plenty of money, nice home, nice furnishings, another salary raise in sight; we've never had it so good. Why should our son manage a newspaper route?

Most any educator or businessman will tell you why in three simple words: it builds character.

Oftentimes the youngster who grows up in comfortable circumstances and who gets his weekly "handout" from dad never realizes the value of money or the efforts required to make it and manage it, until he's on his own. By then attitudes and habits are difficult to reverse.

But the newspaperboy quickly learns valuable lessons that stick. While making money on a newspaper route is important, the experience of getting-the-job-done-no-matter-what is more important. When through route management, responsibility and self-confidence are acquired at the early age, a newspaperboy has an advantage over other youngsters that no amount of money can buy.

If you're still wondering whether your son would benefit from newspaper route management, ask a community businessman or civic leader, or better still, write our Circulation Department.

Hit Oil, Supply Dumps

From Reuters-AP

SAIGON (CP) — North Vietnamese gunners downed their 11th U.S. plane this week when U.S. Navy planes bombed and strafed oil and supply depots Thursday.

The pilot of the downed plane —an F-8 from the 7th Fleet carrier Oriskany—was rescued by a helicopter east of Haiphong, a U.S. military spokesman said today. It was the 230th plane lost over North Viet Nam since bombing of that country began two years ago.

The 11 planes lost this week is equal to one seven-day period of the war.

The chief target of the raids near Haiphong was the Uong Bi power plant, 14 miles northeast of the city. It was first hit last December and then was said to produce 15 per cent of North Viet Nam's electric supply.

FLEW 118 MISSIONS

Combatting America and Vietnamese ground troops in South Viet Nam have accounted for 728 Communists killed in the last two weeks.

Two U.S. marine tanks sank three Viet Cong sampans and killed 15 guerrillas 18 miles south of Da Nang on the Vung Tau River Tuesday, a marine spokesman said.

American military investigators continued their investigation into why three U.S. jets Thursday attacked an American coast guard cutter just south of the demilitarized zone dividing North and South Viet Nam.

Two of the cutter's 13-man crew were killed and five persons, including a British correspondent, were injured.

Resource Development Has Been Left in Cold While Wealth Spread

SASKATOON (CP) — The Pearson government has left resources development "out in the cold", the western Liberal conference was told today by Jack Davis, parliamentary secretary to Mines Minister Pepin.

He said the federal government must be more aggressive in this area. And he suggested one subject for "careful consideration" is construction of a pipeline to carry crude oil from Alberta to Montreal.

Speaking to a seminar session on resource development, Mr. Davis said social security and welfare measures have been the Liberals' top priority item since coming to power in 1963.

The federal government stepped into areas of apparent provincial jurisdiction "to spread the wealth so to speak — to take from the richer and give to the poorer regions of the country."

A second priority had been secondary manufacturing.

"Resource development, by contrast, has been left out in the cold. So have those northern and western parts of Canada which depend entirely, or almost entirely, on the primary extractive and raw materials processing industries for their livelihood."

Ottawa must develop new policies making for efficiency, fairness and mobility of labor, Mr. Davis said.

"Machinery and equipment must be available at the lowest possible cost. Distance must be overcome by the latest and most efficient means available. And taxes must be streamlined so as to attract more venture capital in the primary and raw material processing industries in this country."

Mr. Davis, a top engineer and economist before he entered politics, also called for resistance to the "continental" approach to resource development.

"Canadians must resist pressure to sell primary resources at cost or at a reasonable rate of return.

"Instead they must charge all that the market will bear. "The profits of Canada should be the same as if captive Canadian subsidiaries and foreign-owned parent companies were dealing at 'arms length' with each other."

Profits should reflect the uniqueness of the resources. They should not be diminished by "corporate decision-making or government regulations aimed at serving the public convenience and necessity" of companies in other countries—politically concerned in their own.

Mr. Davis' mention of an Alberta-Montreal pipeline was the first hint of support from the government department responsible for operation of the national oil policy.

The five - year - old policy evolved in large part as an alternative to such a pipeline in seeking more markets for Canada. The big refining area of Montreal has continued to be served by foreign oil, mainly from Venezuela.

Mr. Davis described the pipeline and a national power grid as nation-building projects that would cut the price of energy to Canadians.

Text of Mr. Davis' speech was released to the press in advance of delivery.

King Asks Local Aid In Chicago

CHICAGO (AP)—Negro political leaders in Chicago have been urged to join the protests for open housing, including a march planned today into the racially-sensitive Bogan area on the city's southwest side.

The call for more support by Negro aldermen, committeemen and legislators for the march—which had been postponed earlier in the week — came from Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. in telegrams sent from Jackson, Miss., were he is ill with a virus.

Rev. James Bevel, one of King's aides in the Southern Christian Leader's Ly Conference, told a Chicago rally Thursday night that at least 500 persons would be in the march today.

Meanwhile, 700 white youths marched around a northside Chicago police station Thursday night protesting alleged police brutality. A crowd of more than 500 persons watched quietly.

In Detroit, heefad-up police patrols watched a racially - inflated eastside neighborhood where rock and fire - bomb throwing had erupted for three straight nights.

Ten Negroes were arrested Thursday night and a fire bomb was thrown into a bear and wine

Pick Board To Study Tide Power

OTTAWA (CP)—A five-man board of federal and provincial experts has been set up to study the economic potential of tidal power development in the Bay of Fundy, it was announced today.

The study is expected to cost about $1,500,000 with Ottawa paying $1,000,000 of it and the provinces of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia $250,000 each.

Mines Minister Pepin is in the Maritimes this week holding discussions on the power proposal with Premier Robert Stanfield of Nova Scotia and Premier Louis Robichaud of New Brunswick.

Power production from the mighty Fundy tides has been talked about for decades.

The study board will be headed by Dr. C. M. Isbister, deputy mines minister. Serving with him will be R. E. Tweedale, general manager of the New Brunswick Power Commission; Dr. E. F. Weeks, executive director of the Atlantic Development Board, and T. M. Patterson, acting director of the mines department's water resources branch.

BOARD ACTIVE

The announcement said the board is already active. It will operate out of the Halifax area. Field offices probably will be set up later near the tidal sites of Shepody Bay, Cumberland Basin and Minas Basin.

Resume Strike Talks

By JOHN LeBLANC

TORONTO (CP) — While Opponents in Sudbury's Basemetals contract dispute prepare to resume negotiations today after a 23-day wildcat strike, the Ontario Labor Relations Board is marking time on an application to have the strike declared illegal.

What is the point of an official declaration that an obviously illegal strike is illegal?

Primarily, it is because the Ontario Labor Relations Act sets out that this is part of the procedure when one party to a dispute wants to prosecute the other for violating the law.

It also can be a jockeying for position between two antagonists playing for huge stakes, as in the fight between International Nickel Co. of Canada and the United Steelworkers of America.

Censored Testimony Disclosed

HALIFAX (CP)The "uncensored" version of testimony on dwindling naval strength that Rear - Admiral William Landymore intended to give before a secret meeting of the parliamentary defence committee in Ottawa June 23 was disclosed by the admiral today.

It showed that the fired operations chief intended to support his arguments that there was a serious decrease in re-engagement and recruiting, partly as a result of the government's unification program. He wanted to tell the committee: "I am desperately short of the naval personnel required to meet my commitments."

His brief was "censored" and changed on Defence Minister Hallyer's instructions to read: "I am experiencing a shortage of naval personnel to meet my

Ontario Probe Into Disaster Will Be Called

OTTAWA (CP) — Three investigations are indicated into the Ottawa bridge disaster Wednesday that has taken eight lives and left 36 men in hospital.

Mayor Don Reid said Thursday one investigation should take the form of an independent inquiry by a firm of consulting engineers.

Dr. H. B. Cotnam, Ontario's chief supervising coroner, was to arrive here at noon today to take charge of a full-scale provincial inquiry.

A third was underway by the bridge contractor, O. J. Gaffney Ltd., of Stratford, Ont.

It was not until late Thursday that all workers at the site of the $2,500,000 Hurdman Road bridge were accounted for.

In the confusion that followed the plunge of one section of the bridge Wednesday afternoon, as many as 46 workers had been listed as missing.

The tally that finally emerged was eight men dead and more

North Koreans Break Ties With Pro-Peking Line

TOKYO (AP) — North Korea today declared its independence within the world Communist movement, breaking with its old pro - Peking line.

Each country's Communist party must shape its policies independently, said the official party newspaper Rodong Shinmun.

"One country of the party cannot serve as the Centre of world revolution or the leading party."

The statement also disclosed a purge of party members guilty of "flunkeyism"—a slavish following of the theories of unnamed big Communist powers.

It attacked both Chinese and Soviet communism, but the heaviest criticism fell on the Chinese, who regard themselves as the only true defenders of the Communist faith.

The statement signified an almost total rupture in North Korea's ideological ties to Peking. It also signaled the North Koreans with the tread, "Smoothstraighten out personality by Romania toward independence, nationalism in the Communist world."

JOINED IN WAR

Chinese influence on the North Koreans reached a high point when 1,000,000 Chinese "volunteers" took part in the Korean War in the early 1950s.

But relations began to cool when Premier Khrushchev became involved in their bitter struggle for dominance in the Communist world.

Since the North Koreans, like the North Vietnamese, are much in Moscow's debt, they apparently have decided it is safest to adopt a neutral role in the Soviet - Chinese quarrel.

The North Korean statements accused the Chinese of lack of enthusiasm for helping the Vietnamese Communists but criticized more sharply China's refusal to form a united front with the Russians to help the Vietnamese Communists.

U.S. Pays Fares Of Newsmen To Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Information Agency has paid the fare of at least 27 foreign reporters to South Viet Nam to gain "more objective" coverage of the conflict there, the Washington Post reports.

Among the reporters, The Post says, are three Canadians —Ottawa - based columnist Lubor Zink of the Toronto Telegram; William Gale, assistant managing editor of the Vancouver Sun and commentator Larry Henderson of the commercial TV network, CTV.

The Post says the USIA wants to focus attention on U.S. aid and economic efforts. Battles and casualties now capture most headlines.

The agency hopes, The Post says, "to counter some of the notably hostile editorials" written by "third countries" to the U.S. involvement in Viet Nam." It added:

"For a long time, U.S. officials here have grousad at the tone of Canadian press and television-radio coverage of Viet Nam, although so far they have made their feelings known only in informal conversations."

USIA officials are quoted as saying the effort has resulted in "more balanced picture" in much of the country, notably Africa and the Middle East, with lesser results in Europe and Canada.

Brown States Aims

He Wants Britain in Market But Will Not Go on Knees

LONDON (CP)—Foreign Secretary George Brown said Thursday night he favors a fresh initiative to get Britain into the European Common Market, but "I have not the slightest intention of going on my knees."

He said in a BBC interview the problems of joining the market are less now than when Britain tried to enter four years ago.

Giving his first comments on world affairs since being named foreign secretary Wednesday, Brown also indicated his policies will include continued support of the U.S. stand in Viet Nam.

He said a "sense of mess-

The temporary measures carry the threat of $300 ($1,800) fines if they are not accepted voluntarily by trade unions and industrialists.

Meanwhile, British newspapers predicted a further cabinet shakeup in October before the party's annual conference.

This week's switch-about of six senior ministers has been generally hailed as a tame affair, bringing no new blood to the cabinet and pushing rid of no old faces.

But the October "massacre," predicts The Guardian, "will extend beyond the cabinet into the junior reaches of the government."

Parliament recesses today until Oct. 18.

Mrs. F. E. Burrows First Director of New Bureau

Want to be a volunteer? Then call the volunteer bureau!

At a joint board meeting Wednesday of the United Community Services, the United Appeal and the Social Services Planning Council, Mrs. Frederman E. Burrows was named as the first Director of the new Bureau.

The Bureau will be staffed by United Community Services executive director and administrative secretary, but is not expected to be in full-scale operation for a couple of years.

Function of the Bureau is to bring together hundreds of persons in the community seeking meaningful work to do for the betterment of their community, with the agencies who need the assistance of skilled volunteers.

A spokesman said, "Initially and primarily, the Bureau will attempt to build and strengthen relationships between the community of volunteers and the network of health, welfare and recreation services.

"At a much later date, the Bureau will attempt to provide some basic training courses for volunteers and to provide certain agencies with assistance in the recruitment and selection of volunteers."

A COMMON GOAL

The Board expressed feeling that no volunteer bureau could become directly involved with more than a small proportion of the hundreds of volunteers working in these fields. They agreed efforts should focus on the development of volunteer services in general.

A spokesman said, "Two sources of volunteer assistance little explored in many communities will be explored: teenagers and senior citizens. The use of volunteers will be encouraged in new areas: services to families and services to shut-ins and the disabled.

"Because the desire to help is often not alone sufficient to ensure a skilled contribution, each volunteer, emphasis will be placed from the beginning on the provision of opportunities for the volunteer to learn and grow.

"While the Volunteer Bureau will participate in generic and fundamental training programs, it will also encourage the development of on-the-job instruction and training for volunteers in specific settings.

"Volunteers have for many years been the backbone of any recreation or neighborhood program. A large number of tasks in the health and welfare fields are also better undertaken by skilled volunteers. The shortage of professionals, in addition to the shortage of funds to pay them, even if they were available, makes this course essential.

"Helping to make the community a better place in which to live is the common goal of all."

Drive Along River Suggested, Giving Access to Store Rears

Resume

its Sudbury operations from July 14 to last weekend, the strike was clearly contrary to law. It could only be legal, in this case, seven days after a conciliation board reported. The board was set up Aug. 9.

ACCEPTS ADJOURNMENT

Inco applied to the labor relations board for a formal declaration that the strike was unlawful. Later it agreed to an application by the employees' counsel for an indefinite adjournment.

Should Inco get a formal board statement that the strike is illegal, it can take the next step: Asking the board for permission to prosecute the strikers. If that should be granted, it can launch a prosecution before a magistrate for violation of the Labor Relations Act.

The penalty on conviction is $100 for an individual, and each day of an illegal strike amounts to quite a separate offence. So in this case the bill could run up to $2,300 a person.

Unions—and companies in the event of an illegal lockout—can be assessed $1,000 a day but the union is not named as a party to the Inco application. Only the individuals are named in this case but, in the event of getting permission to prosecute, Inco could bring charges against all 16,000 strikers on the basis of the sample.

PROSECUTIONS RARE

In practice, numerous illegal strike declarations are granted but few get to the prosecution stage. The board gives permission to prosecute less frequently than it issues the declaration.

From a company standpoint, the illegal - strike declaration has some uses. It will be accepted in court in a civil suit for damages resulting from a strike, though it may not weigh heavily in the verdict. It also relieved useful in persuading illegal strikers to get back to work. It may have a minor value as a swapping - piece at the bargaining table.

At all events, dropping of such an action is usually a condition to the final contract settlement.

The long-talked-of idea of a riverside drive along the east bank of the Moira River in downtown Belleville is being revived as the answer to the problem of providing access in case of emergencies to the rear of Front Street business properties.

The idea is being suggested by consulting engineers D a m s and Smith of Toronto who some months ago were retained by city council to study the riverfront access problem and make recommendations.

Mr. R. W. Smith, presenting the consulting engineers' report to city council last night, said they had been merely an "exploratory" one, but three different schemes were suggested, any one of which could be used to overcome the riverfront access problem.

The serious fire which more than a year ago destroyed the Ben Roberston block brought the access problem to a head.

WOULD USE GAP

At the time firemen complained they had been unable to get equipment down the narrow alleyway to fight the blaze from the rear.

And ironically it is the gap left in Front street by the blaze which is being suggested as one of the access routes. The gap would also serve as the southern terminus of the proposed riverfront drive.

The north access to the drive is suggested as being through the former Foley Electric property north of the Belaven 2 Hotel.

Scheme 1, with an estimated cost of $435,000, including acquisition of needed properties, would provide a 24-foot road allowance along the riverbank.

An old stone warehouse just south of the Corbridge garage way and at least two of the small stores in the same area would have to be razed.

Mr. Smith advised against any thought of an extensive traffic hazard .The present metered parking area would have to be rearranged and the addition of the roadway would result in a few less parking spaces.

ALL ALTERNATIVES

Scheme 2 would entail construction of a new river wall and a pedestrian walkway along the river would be provided. Trees and shrubbery would be planted in the area.

The estimated cost of Scheme 2 would be in the neighborhood of $1,160,000.

Scheme 3 would entail a new vehicular bridge across the Moira River at the present footbridge and tying in with Catharine Street. The roadway would then run west to join up with Victoria Ave. at Front Street.

The cost of this scheme would be in excess of two million dollars and according to Mr. Smith was not recommended for some years. Mr. Smith said the Catharine street wholesale warehouse might not be needed until about 1985.

Public Planning director P. J. Beavis admitted that scheme 1 as submitted by the planning consultants would help considerably as problem of access to the riverfront area but said he was more concerned with long term developments.

DEACON ANNOYED

The idea drew a blast from Alderman Jack Deacon who said the city planning board was not functioning smoothly and should change its philosophy.

He said in recent years the city had not had economic planning and claimed more attention should be given to the immediate requirements of downtown business.

Ald. Deacon said there was a lack of parking in the downtown area, that business properties were selling for $2.25 per cent less than assessed values and businessmen wanted out.

Director of the planning board should be directed toward trying to save the downtown business area he said.

Mayor Jack Ellis said he could not entirely go along with the feeling of Alderman Deacon.

The intention of the meeting, he said was merely to hear the consulting engineers' report without getting into lengthy discussion.

Alderman Thos. Carruthers, chairman of the special committee charged with looking into the riverfront access problem, was asked to consider the report and make a recommendation to council.

'Old MacDonald's Farm' Will Be Feature of Fair

Just about the most popular attraction for the small kiddies at Belleville Fair next week is bound to be the "Old MacDonald's Farm" exhibit to be staged just outside the poultry building and close to the kiddies' midway area.

The attraction, just as the name implies, will consist of a group of farm animals and poultry — all with their young families.

There will be a Jersey cow with her young calf, a sow with small piglets, an ewe with her small lamb, a mother duck with her small brood and even a mother donkey with her young colt.

And, of course Farmer MacDonald himself, complete with denims and beard, will be in attendance.

And, from the standpoint of parents, possibly the best part of the special fair feature, is that it is all for free.

Tensions ran high in the East Flatbush section of Brooklyn after a white mob's rush on a Negro home was repulsed with shots which wounded two white youths. Police posted guards on the home of the Negro.

Park Areas Along River, Bay to Be Extended

Belleville city council is slowly making progress in acquiring waterfront properties with the view of extending its park areas along the Moira River and the Bay of Quinte.

Yesterday at a special meeting city council voted to sell small park properties at the corner of Bradgate Road and Elizabeth Crescent, and at the corner of Leslie Drive and Herchimer and to purchase two other properties, one on the bayshore just west of the Bakelite and the other on Canniton Road.

Parks Board chairman Alderman Don Williams said purchase of the Orr property on Canniton Road near the old Lazier's Dam would fit in with the board's plans of having a large river front area tying in with its presently city - owned Fry property, where a park now is under development.

Alderman Arthur Keegan said that as money became available from the sale of park lands coming to the city through the division agreements, efforts would be made to purchase bayfront lots.

Eventually this move could lead to the city owning much of the vacant bayfront properties, he said.

Alderman Williams said the two lots being sold were not required for park purposes as there were already parks or schoolgrounds in the vicinity.

Amendments To Police Act Are Requested

SARNIA (CP)—Delegates at the annual Ontario Police Association convention Thursday heard recommendations for amendments to the Police Act.

One of the recommendations called for an end to the practice of allowing judges or magistrates in Ontario to sit on more than one area police commission at the same time.

Other recommendations dealt with labor contracts. It was requested that:

—Machinery be established to see that legal contracts between police commissions and police associations are honored.

—Arbitration cost of police associations with less than 50 members should be under, written 300 per cent by the provincial government.

—A "bargaining in good faith" clause in the Police Act should be enforced.

Other suggestions called for new regulations for dealing with police misconduct charges. They said:

—Police officials accused of misconduct should have the option of having their appeal heard by a county court judge.

—In any trial under the Police Act the accused should be allowed to determine whether proceedings shall take place in public or in camera.

—No member of a police commission should be appointed to a police board of arbitration.

If the recommendations are accepted by the delegates today they will be presented to the provincial government.

House Divided On Way to End Airline Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. House of Representatives commerce committee is deeply divided over a politically explosive measure to order striking airline mechanics back to work.

There were indications the committee will approve a measure similar to the one already passed by the Senate ordering the striking mechanics back to work on the five strikebound airlines for as long as 180 days. But no House vote is in prospect for days.

Chairman Harley O. Staggers (Dem. W.Va.), said Friday that the committee will complete action on the measure today. Representative John E. Dingell (Dem. Mich.) disagreed.

The committee still must complete action on proposals by Dingell and Representative John Bell Williams (Dem. Miss.), that would require President Johnson to declare a national emergency or take some kind of action before the mechanics could go into effect.

So far, administration spokesmen have described the strike, which started July 8 over wages, as a grave inconvenience but not a national emergency. The White House has refused to take a stand on the legislation.

Dingell Thursday offered an amendment that would have ordered the government to seize the airlines and impound much of their revenue while ordering the machinists back to work.

Student Militia Trainees Hold Graduation Parade

Since the first student militia recruit course was held in Belleville in 1956, over 600 young men have received military training during summer courses with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. The program is aimed at the personal and military development of young men.

During the course of their six-weeks of training, the students receive instruction in weaponry, infantry tactics, map and compass usage, and a number of other fields considered vital to a soldier's background.

This year's trainees displayed their prowess at soldiering last night with a number of demonstrations and drills. Their parents, friends, and Regiment members saw them put through their paces in manoeuvres such as crowd control and in the use of such skills as first aid training.

Brigadier D. G. Cameron of Kingston inspected the group and took the salute. Inscribed regimental belt-buckles were presented by the Inspecting Officer to the outstanding recruit, Pte. H. J. Keuning, the best recruit No. 1 Platoon, Pte. D. R. Grant, the best recruit No. 2 Platoon, Pte. W. H. Mindenhall, the most improved recruit No. 1 Platoon, Pte. R. F. Lewington, the most improved recruit No. 2 Platoon, Pte. S. A. Rashotte.

Brigadier Cameron also presented the Canada Decoration, awarded for 12 years' service, to Sgt. H. S. Adamson, Cpl. R.D. Butler, Cpl. R.C. Neilson, and Cpl. C. D. Percy.

Lt. Col. K. D. H. Willcocks, Commanding Officer of the Regiment, presented a scroll to Brigadier Cameron naming him Honorary Colonel. The Brigadier was a wartime Commanding Officer of the Hasty Pees.

Two remained in critical condition today: Domino Charette, 53, of Buckingham, Que., and Gilles Galipeau, 18, of Ottawa.

A gaping hole in the bridge marks the spot where concrete, steel and temporary scaffolding gave way.

Two separate bridges, side by side, were being built between a cluster of government buildings — Confederation Heights and Base Line Road, which borders the Experimental Farm in southern Ottawa.

The eastbound and westbound bridges, each three lanes, will span the Rideau River and canal. Each was being built in three sections. One section bearing about 75 workers was the location of the fall.

Expression of sympathy to families of the victims were sent to Mayor Reid Thursday by Governor - General Vanier and Acting Prime Minister Paul Martin.

Gologergan would say only that they were "going out to look for them."

Clifford Brockhouk, a fisherman, said he and his family were in a house at their fishing camp 20 miles from Gambell Tuesday night when he saw the men draining gasoline from his Ski-doo, a snow vehicle. Brockhouk said he fired a couple of shotgun blasts and the men fled.

Brockhouk said he discovered that gas had been drained from two snow vehicles and his skin boat had been stolen. He brought his family into Gambell, largest community on the island.

Gambell is at the northwest tip of the island, about 35 miles from Siberia. Most of the other native fishermen also left their camps and came into Gambell, apparently for protection.

Phelps said some people here believed the incident might have some connection with the mysterious disappearance of two hunters on the island last fall. The hunters left here for their cabin at Southeast Cape, on the opposite end of the island, and were never heard from again. Searchers found cigarettes, flour and other items scattered throughout the cabin and the men's dogs tied up and starving. Neither the men nor their rifles, clothing and equipment were ever found.

500 Playground Children Taken on Tour of Plant

By GEORGE CAMPBELL
Supervisor of Playgrounds

Yesterday over 500 children visited the Coca-Cola plant. Throughout the day the children were bused to and from the coke plant where they were treated to a free coke and a tour of the plant. The hospitality shown by the plant was deeply appreciated by all.

Today and Saturday the 2nd annual arts and crafts display will be held upstairs in the Recreation Centre. The public is cordially invited to drop in anytime between the hours of 2 p.m. - 9 p.m. Friday and 10 a.m. - 6 p.m. Saturday. There will be leaders on duty to answer any questions concerning the playground projects.

Next week the Belleville Playgrounds will have a display at the Belleville Fair. This display will be located in the west-end of the grandstand and will be supervised by the playground leaders.

LAST WEEK'S EVENTS O.S.D.

Leader — Peggy Ackerman.

A track meet was held on Friday. This meet was a practice to help prepare O.S.D. for the County Playground Track and Field Meet on August 10th.

Only two records fell, those both to Bernard Howe who ran a half mile in 2 minutes, 14 seconds and a mile in 5 minutes, 9 seconds.

High point man for the meet was Keith Parry with 18 points of a possible 30, second was John Wills with 11, followed by Brown Kellar with 10, Rod Upton and Duck Howe with seven and Kevin Parry with three.

PARKDALE

Leaders Marion Ketcheson and Sally McFee.

Last week Parkdale held a wheels day. A contest was held for decorating anything with wheels. Winners were as follows with the first five prizes going to: Piper Cronkright, Lorrie Sagert, Linda Wood, Sandra Salenthaler, Kenny Kingman. Later, various races were held with the winners of these being: frontwards — Mike Burley, Allen Wood; backwards — Mike Burley and Allen Wood, Debbie Wood and Eddie Stewart; backwards — Allen Wood, Greg Cronkright. After the races a garbage contest was held. Nearly everyone took part and all won something. Jim Wood, Terry McTaggert, Mark Hebert and Steve Moore acted as judges.

PRINCE OF WALES

Leader: Linda Nash.

A white elephant sale was held at this playground last week which proved to be very successful. Approximately 40 children participated. The money made will be used at the end of this season for a playground party.

AVONDALE

Leader Linda Lucas.

A scavenger hunt was held at Avondale Playground. The children were divided into teams and a list of objects was given to each team. Elizabeth McLaughlin's team came in A first and the children dressed up in costumes and held a parade on August 8th. The prize for the best costume went to Jennifer Bell.

HARRY J. CLARKE

Leader Penny Rose.

On July 14th the children of this playground went on a treasure hunt. The first clue was given to everyone. Its purpose was to lead the participants to the next clue. They were hidden all over the playground. Almost everyone found at least one clue. The finder of the final clue was Paul Edward and he was given the treasure.

Last week this playground had a backwards day. Games such as softball were played backwards. Prizes were awarded to those who had the most original costumes. Their clothes were worn backwards and inside out. First prize was given to Donny Welch, second Lori Gerrow, third Alan Young and fourth to Peter Edwards.

Mr. Thompson's Visit

"I think there is a real opportunity for industry to be attracted to Belleville and I think the government should make a move in this direction."

This observation by Ontario Liberal leader Andrew Thompson should find a ready response in this city which in recent times has made little progress toward increasing its industrial capacity.

Mr. Thompson has been visiting Belleville and he suggested the provincial government could undertake the development of industrial parks (the city does have one of these at least) and training centres, and provide loans to encourage industry to locate here.

This would be tantamount to declaring the city a "designated area." An example is Wallaceburg, a bustling community northwest of Windsor which in the last five years has increased its total taxable assessment by 18.8 per cent and gained $60 million in fixed assets. With a population of nearly 11,000, Wallaceburg has 20 manufacturing industries, 14 of them parent companies.

So much for the industrial scene, but it is a theme that concerns Belleville intimately, as a city which to some extent is being left out in the cold when the establishment of new plants is concerned. Any measures aimed at bringing new industries to Belleville are welcome, whether they are initiated locally by Council or the Industrial Commission, or spurred on by parties outside, including the provincial or federal governments.

Mr. Thompson ranged widely over current matters of concern. He is not alone for example, in casting a jaundiced eye on the state of labor relations in the province.

His suggestion that forums be set up for discussion of problems as they arise, and not just at contract time or when a crisis looms, is a good one. This is the system in Sweden where labor and management and government representatives meet periodically.

The needs of handicapped children in rural areas and lack of play areas at homes for the retarded aroused even other areas in which Mr. Thompson felt there was room for improvement.

"One thing that really bothers me is visiting rural homes and seeing some little fellow who is 12 or so, and who really is a dropout to society before he is started, doomed because he lives in a rural area and does not have the opportunity for propes care and instruction."

In this regard, Mr. Thompson should be interested in what is done in his native Ulster. There, the "Special Care" branch of the Northern Ireland health services maintains regular psychiatric supervision of retarded children in rural as well as urban areas.

Similarly, travelling psychiatrists or social workers in Ontario could lead to a brighter future for youngsters such as these living in remote areas, and if it is found that they need institutional treatment this should be arranged.

There are many areas of service under government control which are open to improvement. These are some, and Mr. Thompson's travels around the province, have helped to shed further light on them.

Increased Deterrent

Missiles of various kinds have been used by both sides in the war in Viet Nam, and with varying success.

United States pilots, using Sidewinder missiles, have shot down a number of Soviet-built MiG jets. On the other hand Soviet ground-to-air missiles used by the North Vietnamese apparently have been less accurate than conventional anti-aircraft fire. American pilots have learned that the latter is so thick that you could "walk on it."

Here in Canada no missile has ever been fired in anger. We have our Bomarcs, supplied by the United States after much political tribulation and extensive tests on the missile itself a few years ago. Today they are probably obsolete, but they do form part of the North American defence system and as such fit into the general deterrent pattern evolved by both countries.

Now Canada is buying another weapon. It is a new torpedo for use by both the navy and the air force. A total of 428 of the torpedoes will be purchased initially at a cost of $27,400,000. Slingly they have been named $64,000 each from the taxpayers' point of view makes it an expensive weapon.

Known as the Mark 46 and made by a firm in California, the weapon is described as one of the most accurate and devastating conventional weapons supplied to Canada's armed forces. More in the nature of an underwater guided missile, the torpedo can be launched from the torpedo tube of a surface ship, by rocket launched from helicopters or planes. It can search out a submarine at great depths with its own guidance and control system, and if necessary could carry a nuclear warhead.

Costly as it is, this new weapon will increase Canada's contribution to the overall deterrent value of the North American defence system. The Soviet Union is known to have a number of nuclear-powered long-range submarines similar to the American Polaris vessels. The Mark 46 will serve to reduce the potential effectiveness of such underwater craft in the event of another war.

Lock Gates Automated

Letter to Kingston Whig-Standard

This past winter the old lock gates at the Lower Locks were replaced by new steel ones, electrically operated. When the job started on the Locks Master's Office gives directions, some unseen person presses a button and through 'Eyes' go. How different from the old method when one watched almost with awe the same proceedings as have occurred since 1830.

Must we go on destroying the few historic things we have in the name of progress — if progress it is? I am told it takes just as long to operate the new as it did the old.

The charm of the Rideau Canal is not only its beautiful scenery but the charm of its old locks. Almost everyone travelling the canal is so impressed and is on the canal to view and experience the things experienced by others for the past 100 years. Many people and organizations have been responsible for long enough for improved facilities for the boating public on the canal, but the excuse is always lack of funds.

Why then and from where was nearly $200,000 found to destroy one of Canada's oldest and finest of engineering feats that has proved successful for nearly 100 years?

It is understood that it is intended to continue the change-over on the remaining locks and I would earnestly implore all those interested in conserving the old world charm of the Rideau to use every means possible to prevent this from happening.

Wee Houghton,
Westport.

"Stone-Home Mentality"

Financial Post

In this age of space satellites, when man may soon be building habitations on the moon, it is remarkable that some earthbound Canadian municipalities have not grown out of the stone-house mentality.

Numerous municipal building codes still prohibit use of modern materials such as aluminum, plastics and steel. In the City of Toronto, even wood has only recently been allowed to form the main structure of a house. Toronto building rules, stemming from a big fire in 1904, stipulated that buildings must be of masonry, two bricks thick. The law hasn't recently amended, then reluctantly, on condition that the frame house is covered with brick veneer.

Other prohibitions against the use of satisfactory building materials occur across Canada. Although the National Research Council published a Nation al Building Code for Canada, just over 30 percent of Canad ian municipalities are using it, and many of these have tempered it with special inhibitive a ctions. The NRC is not mandatory. It is hoped that by 1970 most municipalities to meet local conditions. But individual use of outdated codes which prevent the use of new materials and building procedures should be examined closely by local authorit ies in light of modern research and sciences. Householders, architects and suppliers would welcome such a move. And it would allow many Canadian families, who otherwise cannot afford to buy two-storey houses, to purchase pre-fabricated frame houses which are often less costly and just as safe.

Roughing It In Northland

News of the North, Yellowknife

Rocketing have been watching with some horror the ballooning cost of the new Territorial Government Building in his native Ulster. There, the "Special Care" branch of the Northern Ireland health services maintains regular psychiatric supervision of retarded children in rural as well as urban areas.

Similarly travelling psychiatrists or social workers in Ontario could lead to a brighter future for youngsters such as these living in remote areas, and if it is found that they need institutional treatment this should be arranged.

To Your Good Health

Depression Normal After Heart Attack

By JOSEPH C. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My 31-year-old son had a heart attack four months ago. He was hospitalized for two weeks and then kept at home for four weeks, although not in bed. He took off 25 pounds.

He is still tired after a few hours of work, sitting or standing, and must rest during the day.

He is depressed quite often, as he was always quite active.

The doctor said he would be all right, but to take it easy and keep his weight down. He smokes, but the doctor said he could have a cocktail during the day to pep him up. Is all this the right advice? — Mrs. F. B.

In general, yes, it sounds like correct advice and care. Losing the 25 pounds certainly was wise an occasional cocktail may well help him relax and sleep.

Length of hospitalization and getting back to bed depends on many factors: severity of the heart attack, degree of shock, response to treatment as indicated by electrocardiograms, and other things.

Since he is back at work, even though he has to rest a good deal, we can assume that the responsible doctor is keeping his depression and probably some of his fatigue may not be a physical result of the attack as much as psychological consequence.

A heart attack is usually an accident as well as physical jolt. It is more of a shock for a man as young as 31, and it is not difficult to see why he feels depressed. The condition means that he must change his ways of living. He has to learn to be careful. He has to learn to be less active. He has been frightened.

Current figures show, that 85 percent of patients with heart attacks return to their former occupations, and live happy lives, once they become reconciled to the facts.

Sometimes a man who loses his job or arm becomes deeply depressed because it puts an end to the active type of life he has led. Others with the same injuries determine to make the best of it, and soon get over their depression.

If your son can view his handicap in this same way — accept it as a misfortune but one which he can learn to overcome — there is no reason why his feeling of depression will not disappear. It is, after all, only a fairly short time since the attack. As his emotional depression lifts, I think we can expect much of his fatigue to disappear too, because depression makes anyone tired.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a rash on my hand that heals and then breaks out again. I am wondering if it is eczema. What is good for it? — F. B. G.

You might well call it eczema because that is merely a general term for various kinds of breaking out of the skin. It is absolutely futile to ask what is "good for it," until you know what kind of rash it is, and it has to be seen to be diagnosed. So my answer has to be: see your doctor. Allowed to go on too long, some of these seemingly simple rashes can become infected and be an awful nuisance.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband passed away and since then I have had a complete female operation (hysterectomy), I am thinking of getting married again and wonder if there would be any satisfaction in intercourse for me. — Mrs. S. G.

Yes, your operation will not in terfere with that. You cannot, of course, have any children.

Strictly Personal

Influence of Great Men

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

How much has any individual personally affected history, for good or for bad? In his fascinating new book, "The Step to Man," Dr. John R. Platt mentions what he calls the "Streeter Test" for making such a measurement.

His test consists of asking this: Would world history have been appreciably different if it had not existed? A man had been run over by a streetcar at, say, age 20? For most kinds and presidents — and most scientists too, Dr. Platt suggests — the answer is no.

"If they had not lived," he writes, "their places would have been taken by others with substantially similar opinions and policies and discoveries. But for some men — in our time, Lenin, Gandhi, Hitler, Churchill — the answer is obviously yes."

In considering American presidents since the turn of the century, only Franklin D. Roosevelt surely passes the test. The others — even Wilson and the first Roosevelt — could have been replaced by different men in the course of American history.

But without Lenin there would most likely have been no Russian Revolution; without Gandhi no independent India and the subsequent dissolution of the British Empire in our time; without Hitler no personality with enough pathological power to mobilize the German people into mass irrationality; without Churchill nobody to galvanize and concretize British resistance to the Nazi invasion.

And this, of course, is where Marx's whole theory of "economic determinism" breaks down. The forces of history are not as impiacable or as inevitable as he thought; one strong personality, for good or for evil, can deflect the whole apparent course of events.

Who could have predicted in 1932 that the conservative and patrician governor of New York State, Franklin Roosevelt, would have set the country on an entirely new course — a course it is still pursuing 30 years later, and which was not reversed even an inch during two Republican administrations? Whether one agrees or disagrees with the general drift of these policies, they demonstrate the strength of one personality to alter dramatically the social landscape of his time.

Indeed, the whole Russian revolution itself is an ironic reversal of Marx's theory that men are largely motivated by their economic status and possessions — for Marx himself is a looming exception to that rule, the son of middle-class parents, who repudiated the bourgeois society on his age and almost single-handed changed the face of the earth.

Such men are exceedingly rare, but history relies on the scene, the script is known away, and historical predictability peek into the bowels. Only, caught up by vast impersonal forces that seem too complex and overwhelming for the average man to cope with, it is heartening to realize that, sometimes in our land, a 10-year-old who is not being run over by a streetcar can still affect the future in some utterly unimaginable and perhaps quite wonderful way.

Today in History

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Aug. 13, 1960 . . .

The first organized Indian resistance to white colonization in New England was a put to an end 300 years ago today — in 1676 — when the Indian chief Metacomet known to the settlers as King Philip, was killed in Rhode Island. Philip was chief sachem of the Wampanoag Indians in America and came to feel the English settlers, ever more numerous and powerful, were stealing the Indian land's natural resources. When the English executed three Indians in June 1674, the band plotted vengeance. Massacres of whites began the following year. But the Indian rebels were too poor and too few in number, and the uprising ended within a year. Philip was betrayed, and his death marked the end of the struggle in southern New England.

Premier Ky's Tough Talk

Montreal Gazette

Premier Ky of South Viet Nam has again managed to embarrass his Washington ally. At the very moment the Johnson administration is stressing it does not want a wider war, General Ky weighs in with a call for the invasion of North Viet Nam, and a suggestion that a military confrontation with China would be a good idea.

Perhaps General Ky is just foolish. Then again, he may be very shrewd, feeling that many people in the United States will approve his words and use them to urge President Johnson to expand the war.

The United States should make it clear to General Ky, that if he wants to invade North Viet Nam, or have a military confrontation with China, he is on his own.

British Firm In Adversity

Globe and Mail

The English are taught from birth the importance of not losing gracefully, about the absolute necessity for maintaining a stiff upper lip in times of adversity, about the virtues of optimism when the portents of doom are thickly strewn about them, and about the need for courage when a national crisis is upon them.

It is not just because of tradition and training that the English react in these worthy qualities of character; unhappily, it is also because they do regularly with which they are challenged to call upon them to the hilt. No nation ever had better like these should, in all justice, be required to support other burdens but, in fact, it never does either.

Economic tranquility continues to elude them, industrial production grows at less than a snail pace, sterling has recurring bouts of anemia, diplomatic initiatives are limited to less banana peel, and, in recent times, there has been the damaging slopping strike — and they continue to think, to reduce any nation to, despair.

Why, then, were the reserved and undemonstrative English so overjoyed at their win? In cities, towns and villages on Saturday night, singing, drinking, dancing and cheering, and they all been granted tax rebates? Had Prime Minister Harold Wilson contracted his usual features for wage and price freeze? Had weather forecasters predicted two consecutive days of uninterrupted sunshine?

The celebrations were a manifestation of that remarkable English characteristic which can pull something unexpected out of the hat to rescue national morale just when it seems that things could was becoming intolerable. Scotland had just won the World Soccer Championship for the first time by beating West Germany in a tough game to two.

It is precisely this that defies explanation of regularity with which they are obliged to lose gracefully, for only in defeat do they occasion to demonstrate that they are essentially a happy breed.

Two Britons 1,500 Miles Out in Ocean

NEW YORK (AP)—Two British journalists who set out last May to row the Atlantic in a 16-foot boat have been spotted by the U.S. coast guard.

A coast guard spokesman said Thursday the boat was 1,500 miles east — northeast of New York and the two men were "in good health and in good spirits."

Bomb Derails Train in Tyrol

BOLZANO, Italy (Reuters)—A bomb derailed a train on the rail tracks by a bomb near the frontier with Austria today in what was believed to be a renewed outbreak of violence in the dispute over the South Tyrol.

Police said they thought the bomb was placed on the track in the 15 minutes between a security check of the line and the passage of the train. An engineman was slightly injured.

Two Italian customs policemen were killed in an ambush last June and two other bomb attacks were reported in the area of northern Italy during the last few weeks.

Italian officials blamed the outbreaks on extremists who want the bilingual area to be incorporated into Austria.

Council Told Vicious Dog Roams Area

Residents in the north end of the city are being terrorized by a vicious dog which the city dog catcher is doing nothing about.

This is the claim made in a letter to city hall which was read yesterday at a special meeting of city council.

The letter claimed that despite many complaints the city dog catcher had taken no action.

Mayor Jack Ellis said he had heard that several children had been mauled by the dog and that mothers were afraid to put out their baby carriages.

Alderman Douglas Boyle said his information was that the mailman had refused to deliver mail in the area because of the dog.

Mayor Ellis said he would take the matter up with the dog catcher today (Friday).

Moira Authority Recommends Change in Allotting Costs

TORONTO (CP) — A municipality that stands benefits from a conservation project should be permitted to pay the entire cost, the legislature's select committee on conservation was told Thursday.

The Moira River Conservation Authority said in a brief to the committee the provincial treasury and land rules are bothersome to the authority's share of the cost of schemes "must be levied on more than one municipality."

"There are instances of one municipality requesting an authority to undertake a conservation project and objecting to pay its full authority share," the brief said.

"(But) such projects have been turned down because of the wording and interpretation of the act."

The Moira authority recommended also that the energy and resources management department, under which conservation authorities operate, be "authorized and staffed to engineer, construct and maintain major water control structures for conservation authorities that request such service."

It says also it has prepared a brief on a long-term water control project which if implemented would cost more than $3,000,000.

But it is unrealistic to expect that it can be carried out by an organization (the Moira River Conservation Authority) that has no full-time paid employees or members."

The brief recommends:

—That an administration costs be increased to 75 per cent from 50 per cent on extraordinary up to $10,000, and 50 per cent on expenditures above $20,000. Or that the limit for assistance on administration be determined on a formula similar to that used by the education department.

—Minimum school attendance required to qualify for education department consent.

—Conservation authorities be given the same audit and recreation advertising privileges by the highways department as municipalities.

The Moira authority is situated in Hastings County and the United Counties of Lennox and Addington. Within it are the city of Belleville and the communities of Tweed and Madoc.

George Wishart Declares More Authorities Essential

TORONTO (CP)—A man who grew up in the upper Ottawa Valley more than 40 years ago says "the deterioration of the face of its countryside" makes conservation measures imperative.

George Wishart of Belleville, former chairman of the Moira Conservation Authority, said in private brief to the legislature's select committee on conservation Thursday this also is the case in other areas where no conservation authorities exist.

He suggested present legislation on conservation be expanded to set up authorities which otherwise will never be formed "unless special measures are taken."

In order to remedy the situation he described in the upper Ottawa, Mr. Wishart said, there should be formed a conservation authority for the Madawaska Valley.

Division of the Madawaska into two areas would facilitate the difficulty of administering a watershed that extends "well over 100 miles" from one end to the other.

The upper Madawaska authority could be centred at Barnet Jct., six miles northwest of Petawawa, and the lower Madawaska at Arnprior, about 40 miles northwest of Ottawa.

Continental Salad Is Meal In Itself

Coarsely shredded green cabbage teams with salami and hard cooked eggs, crunchy chopped green pepper and an unusual dressing to make this hearty Continental Salad. The new flavored salad dressing is quickly made with mayonnaise, hot catsup, sweet pickle relish and vinegar.

The hot catsup adds zip and authority to this dressing. This recipe makes a generous 1½ cups of dressing, so you should save any remaining to toss with a spinach salad, or to moisten an egg salad mixture or cheese stuffing for celery sticks.

To complete the meal you can serve a cup of hot Italian Minestrone or French onion soup, and a fresh fruit tart for dessert.

CONTINENTAL SALAD

Combine three cups shredded cabbage, one cup salami strips, one - quarter cup chopped green pepper and three chopped, hard-cooked eggs. Mix one cup mayonnaise and one - half cup hot catsup, two tablespoons sweet pickle relish and one tablespoon cider vinegar. Pour about half the dressing over salad and toss. Save remainder for later use.

SPOTTING FUN FASHIONS — Actress Dodie Marshall combines bright polka dots with a sleeveless shell to achieve the pacesetter look of fashion.

CRY FOR LONGEVITY

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—Strong silent men who can't cry may be headed for an early grave, says Dr. Ethel Alpenfels of New York University. Another cause of early executive deaths is wives' insisting on status for their husbands rather than letting them take the job of their choice.

Spotted Polka Dots Brighten Wardrobes

By REBA and BONNIE CHURCHILL

If you're seeing spots, you're reading the style correctly. Big, bright polka dots are one of the quickest ways to freshen a wardrobe, while a sleeveless shell is the ideal choice to show off a vacation tan. Combine the two, and you have the pacesetter look of actress Dodie Marshall. The white knit is highlighted with a dotted sash, tied big - bugger fashion. Change-about belts can be matched to skirts and slacks, giving the topper a different appearance with each switch.

Another dot discovery sends fleecy pompoms scampering down the long collar of a tube - shaped pullover. Plain balls, ragging from blue, to pink, to chartreuse, to gold, follow the V-line of the exaggerated collar. Dodie's seen in the MGM film "Spinout," adds her own fun touch by wearing a pair of the lightweight pompons as earrings.

Green and white voile bows, marching down the front of a scooped neck slip - on, provide more dot 'n' dash strategy. The crisp ties, fashioned in grade - sized sizes, are contoured to flatter the figure. Also, they offer several switch - about possibilities. Re-arrange the bows to slash across the front, circle the neckline or perch on the shoulder.

Mrs. Douglas Jones, was matron of honor and the bridesmaids were Mrs. David Bruyea and Miss Nancy Pigden, all sisters of the bride. They were gowned alike in floor length white organza dresses with moss green velvet trim and moss green velvet bow headpieces.

Mr. Frances Freeman was his brother's attendant and the ushers were Mr. Duane Freeman, brother of the bridegroom, Mr. Ronald Cronin and Mr. David Bruyea.

On their return, the couple will live at 330 Gibb Street, Oshawa.

Bought Mother Orchid But She Got Annoyed

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Mom had a birthday yesterday and my brother and I put our money together and bought her a beautiful orchid. (I am 14 and my brother is 12.)

When mom came home the box with the orchid in it was on her dinner plate. We both stood in the doorway watching her because we thought we would see her face light up with joy. Instead she hollered, "Kids must be crazy to spend money on such foolishness. Where in the world am I going to wear this orchid? to the supermarket?"

ANN LANDERS

My brother and I were so disappointed we nearly cried. We happen to know that mom has never had an orchid in her whole life and we wanted to give her one.

Do you think we were foolish? Please print our letter and your answer. — WRONG GIFT

• • •

DEAR BROTHER AND SISTER: The gift was lovely, and I'm sure deep down your mother appreciated it. But she also is a very practical person and when she saw the orchid she thought of a few things she needed more — probably things for your kids.

Show her this column and I'll bet she will admit I am right. You sound like a wonderful children. Your mother should be terribly proud of you, and I'm sure she is.

• • •

DEAR ANN: I am a 40-year-old woman who feels as if she is the next thing to a three-headed freak in a circus. Why? Because I do not drive a car.

My children make me feel guilty because I can't drive them to music lessons, Scout meetings, downtown, movies and to the homes of friends who have swimming pools.

I look driver training a few years ago but I was sick with fright and had to go on tranquilizers. Last night my husband said, "You can learn to drive if you set your mind to it. I know dozens of morons who drive." Is he right? Please comment. — BRANLEN WIFE.

• • •

DEAR WIFE: Your husband's estimate is low. If you don't believe me talk to any traffic officer.

You probably have a psychological block caused by a long-forgotten incident which terrified you early in your life.

Your problem has nothing to do with your I.Q. — it is emotional. So stop feeling inferior.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently I read a letter in your column from a woman who was mad at her husband because he got to the paper first and drew mustaches on all the faces and put pipes in all the mouths.

You said to buy two papers. Why cater to the idiot? Wouldn't it be better to buy the big baby a coloring book and a set of crayons?

And now, here's my problem: My old man divides our paper when it comes. He takes the sports and the financial page. The idea is that we are supposed to trade, but we never get that far. He finishes first and puts the paper over his face and falls asleep. I'm afraid to take the paper off his face because he wakes up and gets mad.

So — Ann Landers, what's the solution? — HALVESIES.

DEAR HALVESIES: The solution is the same as for the creep who draws the mustaches and pipes. Buy two papers — one to read and one for Sleeping Beauty to snooze under.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"I love your hair, Alice! Where did you buy it?"

Women's Institutes Hold Convention in Northland

INUVIK, N.W.T. (CP)—"One week we had an interesting demonstration on the scraping of reindeer skins," reported the Women's Institute at Reindeer Station, N.W.T. "The scraping cleans off the meat and hard parts leaving a pliable, clean fur which we are using to make little reindeer dolls. We are also making reindeer horn buttons, slipper toggies and pendants for sale."

Reindeer Station is a remote settlement of Eskimo reindeer herders and their families along the Mackenzie River 25 miles south of the Arctic Ocean.

The report is typical of those written by the Women's Institutes of the North, a group holding its first convention at Inuvik, 200 miles inside the Arctic Circle, Aug. 17-19.

"One of the aims of the convention is to make these institutes feel part of Canada and give them an identity as citizens of the Northwest Territories," says Florence Eadie of Toronto, a UNESCO field worker for the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada. Miss Eadie has been at Inuvik more than a month arranging the convention.

The meeting will bring together delegates and other members of the 11 N.W.T. institutes stretching from Fort Smith, near the Alberta border, more than 1,000 miles north to Tuktoyaktuk on the Arctic coast.

Members will travel to the meeting by airplane, their expenses and those of the convention paid from a $20,000 northern fund raised as a centennial project by the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada.

In other parts of the country Women's Institutes concentrate on home economics, undertake UN projects and study and pass resolutions of broad interest.

"Their interests are more limited to their own communities," says Miss Eadie. "This isn't surprising, when there is so much to do."

The Aklavik WI, for instance, is starting to tidy up the community's overgrown graveyard. Others hold sewing classes where many members have their first contact with a factory-stamped pattern.

Most of the northern institutes have both white and native members although the Tuktoyaktuk and Reindeer Station branches are entirely Eskimo. The president of the host Inuvik branch is an Indian, Jane Leland.

Successful Living

Should Always Report Cruelty to Children

DEAR DORIS: I think one of the most unforgivable crimes is cruelty to children.

DORIS CLARE

Recently a mother was apprehended for the maltreatment of her nine-year-old daughter. This little girl had been beaten, starved and locked in her room, tormented and ridiculed by her younger brothers and sisters. The child became nervous, frightened, withdrawn.

Friends and neighbors were aware of the situation but everyone was afraid to testify. However, the child was finally removed from the home and assigned to the care of a relative.

These sad situations exist but people are so often afraid of getting "involved". The primary obligation of parents is to love and care for their children. But this responsibility is on all our shoulders.

Cruelty and injustice to children should be reported and investigated. Laws prohibiting cruelty to children should be actively enforced as laws prohibiting cruelty to animals. — ANOTHER MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER: Fearlessness about getting involved seems to have originated in the idea that anything a man does with his family is his own business. This theory still holds with many and goes to ridiculous lengths.

Did you know that the first legislation to protect a child from cruel treatment was secured by a lawyer who invoked existing laws against cruelty to animals? He argued that a child is also an animal, and the argument won the day! This happened at the turn of the century.

Every single Canadian has a stake in the well-being of our children, and an obligation to report any and all instances of cruel treatment. Our child care organizations will follow through.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "ASHAMED OF MYSELF": I have advice for you about an exercise which helped another girl with your same problem. Write in again, this time enclosing your proper name and address on a stamped envelope, and I will be glad to forward the information.

DEAR DORIS: My family has a difficult time about their fingernails. My sister's are extremely long and my other sister's are bitten down to stubs. Mine are also. What can we do to let our fingernails grow and to have my one sister cut hers down to a reasonable length? — STUBS.

* * *

DEAR STUBS: In the mail to you is our ten-cent leaflet "Do Your Hands Speak Well of You?" You'll see that paragraph two has some good ideas to put a stop to the biting.

* * *

But you can't force things on other people; they need to want the help themselves. I personally consider very long nails ugly. Read the leaflet and perhaps you'll take a new look at what makes for beautiful hands.

Chocolate Cake and Filling

QUESTION:

I believe it was several years ago you had a recipe for a chocolate fudgy-roll with a lovely chocolate icing. It was iced to look like a log. Yule Log comes to mind but I am not certain if it was for Christmas. At the time I lined a cookie sheet with foil but have now invested in a Teflon jelly-roll pan with this particular recipe in mind only to find I cannot find it.

Mrs. E. L.

ANSWER:

Because this recipe has not appeared here since 1960 I am pleased to repeat it.

CHOCOLATE LOG

Chocolate Sponge Cake:
¾ cup sifted cake flour,
¼ cup granulated sugar,
2 teaspoons baking powder,
1 teaspoon powdered instant coffee,
½ teaspoon salt,
½ teaspoon cinnamon,
¼ cup cocoa,
¼ cup salad oil,
2 egg yolks,
6 tablespoons water,
1 teaspoon vanilla,
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar,
2 egg whites,
icing sugar.

Mix and sift first 7 dry ingredients into a deep bowl. Add oil, yolks and add in order, salad oil egg yolks, water and vanilla; beat with spoon until smooth. Add cream of tartar to egg whites; beat until egg whites form very stiff peaks. Fold first mixture gently into egg whites until well blended. Fold, do not stir. Line a 10 x 16" jelly roll pan with waxed paper and grease paper lightly. Turn batter into pan. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 12 minutes or until cake springs back when touched lightly with finger. Immediately turn out on a clean towel covered with icing sugar. Peel off waxed paper; quickly cut off the crisp edges. Roll up in towel by starting at the longer side (enclosing towel in roll); cool well. Unroll and remove towel; spread cake with

French Chocolate Filling:
3 squares (oz.) unsweetened chocolate,
¼ pound (⅛ cup) unsalted butter, (If not available use ordinary butter),
1 cup unsifted icing sugar,
2 eggs

of a log. If desired, for a festive occasion, sprinkle with green-colored sugar or decorate with "flowers" made from quartered maraschino cherries with silver dragee centres.

Painting Stirs Boston's Ire

BOSTON (AP)—Office workers in Boston's new federal building are outraged by a huge, abstract painting in the main lobby which depicts the naked creation of President John F. Kennedy.

"It's an outrage; nobody knows what it is," said Mrs. Veronica Kollisaen.

Titled New England Elegy, it is dominated by stark black and white and according to one critic "emphasizes as powerfully as possible the brutality of the moment" of President Kennedy's death in Dallas.

British Politicians Take Summer Recess With Labor Govt. Battered and Bowed

By CARL MOLLINS

LONDON (CP) — Britain's political pugilists leave the parliamentary ring today for a belated summer rest after a bitter week first round that has left the Labor government battered and somewhat bowed.

Prime Minister Wilson, persistent in his use of austerity as a weapon against adversity, has offered a diverting shuffle of top cabinet personalities to give Parliament's adjournment an up-beat touch of the old Wilson-ian dynamics.

But the government's jolt-trading Wednesday night was followed with money after trade figures that showed Britain is still spending more abroad than she earns — a troubling reminder that Labor has failed to find a cure for the country's economic illness.

Labor's determination to attack Britain's economic malaise at its roots through carefully controlled growth was fundamental to a policy that won overwhelming approval at the general election March 31, when Labor won a majority of 97 in the 630-seat House of Commons.

PARTY IN DISARRAY

Just 134 days later, the policy is in tatters and the victorious party in disarray.

The harshest austerity measures since the Second World War—including a statutory freeze on prices and incomes—rammed through a protesting Parliament under closure rules —followed the biggest strike since the war, the 47-day strike of 27,000 seamen that dragged from May through June.

The House of Lords gave approval Thursday to the tough bill to peg prices and incomes, making it law.

Frank Cousins, union boss turned minister, quit the government early in July in protest against the pay-pause legislation and moved into open opposition. Wilson's deputy, George Brown, also resigned two weeks later when austerity wrecked his national plan for expansion.

Mutiny among the 362 Labor MPs has ranged in strength from the 54 who voted against east-of-Suez defence expenses in party caucus in June to as many as 30 who withheld support in Commons votes on income control bills, week by week.

POPULARITY DOWN

Since this Parliament assembled April 21, Labor's popularity has plummeted to the point where opinion polls show the party trailing the Tories. Labor's vote in a July byelection at Carmarthen fell by more than one-third from the level at the general election 14 weeks earlier and gave the seat to a Welsh nationalist.

If Wilson was trying to divert attention from his troubles by his cabinet shifts, he has been partly successful.

George Brown's move to foreign affairs from the beleaguered economics department was expected to loosen external relations from Wilson's grip. Michael Stewart's switch with Brown was seen variously as a promotion and an unenviable assignment to patch up what's left of the national plan.

Two left - wingers, Richard Crossman and Anthony Greenwood, were given new fields to conquer—Crossman the House leader from housing and Greenwood to housing from overseas development. Herbert Bowden was relieved of a messy job as Commons leader to look after Commonwealth relations. Arthur Bottomley was moved down but not out, as may have been predicting, to overseas aid from Commonwealth.

Judgment Reserved on Application

TORONTO (CP) — Judgment was reserved Thursday on a father's application for an Ontario Supreme Court order directing the Cobourg school board to lift a suspension against his 15-year-old son.

David Crane, a Hamilton lawyer appearing for the boy's father, George West, said the youth was suspended by the school last May because he disregarded a school regulation against leaving the school grounds during lunch period.

Mr. Crane contended the school board has no legal authority to order the 1,200 students at Cobourg District Collegiate Institute to remain on the school grounds during their 40-minute lunch period.

Russell Fraser, appearing for the school board, said the regulation was passed because there had been a 15-per-cent drop in passing grades among the school's Grade 13 students.

Mr. Fraser said the youth is suspended until his father sends a letter to the school board indicating that he would comply with the school regulations.

Secret Romance Nearly Broke Up FDR Marriage

NEW YORK (AP)—A former White House aide says a long, secret romance between Franklin D. Roosevelt and his wife's social secretary nearly broke up his marriage early in his political career.

Jonathan Daniels, now editor of the News and Observer in Raleigh, N.C., makes the disclosure in a book The Time Between The Wars to be published Aug. 16.

Daniels, who was an administrative assistant and press secretary for Roosevelt, identifies the woman as Lucy Mercer, "a member of the Consuelo Carroll family of Maryland." She later became the wife of wealthy Winthrop Rutherfurd. She died in 1948.

The author says that although the relationship supposedly ended in 1918, Roosevelt never completely severed the ties and Mrs. Rutherfurd was with him at White Springs, Ga., on the day he died 21 years ago.

The romance began many years before Roosevelt ran as the Democratic vice-presidential candidate on the James Cox ticket in 1920 and was built in the Warren G. Harding landslide.

Miss Mercer married Rutherfurd in November, 1920, five months before Cox chose Roosevelt as his running mate.

Admiral Landymore said he had demanded defence headquarters with appeals since November, 1964, to read the signs of democratization and give up the part of the unification program which would see the service lose its identity through a single rank structure and a common uniform. He asked this to be considered as a "practical consideration of economy and efficiency."

BIG BUREAUCRACY

He had gone to the Ottawa committee meeting armed with "brief concluding statistics and figures" showing how...morale had suffered through the process of integration and was reflected in dwindling strength.

When the story of the admiral's dismissal broke July 19 he had mentioned that his testimony before the committee was censored by the defence minister's office. He had been "muzzled" by the order and told the minister wanted him to be more positive.

He said at the time he would consider making public unclassified portions of his original brief after the minutes of the committee's in-camera session were released. Declassified information does not come under security wraps.

Today he received a copy of the minutes and was asked if he now could release portions of his "years of" testimony which were not involved with security.

NEEDED GRAPHS

Talking at his farm at nearby West Lawrence today, he said it was difficult to interpret some of his testimony, which was to have been accompanied by slides, graphs and charts showing figures for recruiting and re-engagement and how they were failing off because of low morale.

"I didn't want to say anything until I had seen the way my censored version was handled in the minutes," said the admiral, holding a bulky copy of the official record in one hand and his original but unedited testimony in the other.

He could be quoted as example of official censorship. He had intended to tell the committee members: "I would like now to turn to my most valuable asset —manpower. This is the area of my greatest concern because I'm desperately short of the naval personnel required to meet my commitments.

"Over-all figures available at headquarters reported to you previously showed a recent improvement in both recruiting and re-engagement rates for all three services. The improvement is not nearly enough to meet my manpower shortage."

WORDS ALTERED

He said this is the way he was instructed to testify before the committee. "I would like now to turn to my most valuable asset—manpower." This is the area of my greatest concern today because, I am experiencing a shortage of the naval personnel to meet my immediate commitments. We must—and I stress that word must—continue to expend every effort to attract and retain men in our service."

Mrs. Grace Pritchard was the lucky lady in the draw, carrying off first prize. Second prize winner was Mrs. Sarah Marcela, and Lynn Marcela was awarded the consolation prize for the ladies.

Lord Thomson Not Ready to Renounce Title

SMOOTH ROCK FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Lord Thomson said in an interview Thursday that when he retires he wants to return to Canada.

But the Canadian-born press baron said it is untrue that he wants Canadian citizenship again.

"I will not renounce my title ever. That is mine and no one can take it away from me. When I die my son Kenneth will inherit the title."

Lord Thomson was in Smooth Rock Falls, about 150 miles north of Port Arthur, with his son on a tour of the Abitibi Paper Co. paper mill and kraft mill. He is a director of the company.

Should Repeal Section of Act Is Claimed

SARNIA (CP) — Legislation requiring police to stop a driver who has committed an offence should be repealed, the convention of the Police Association of Ontario was told Thursday.

Samuel Speakman, chairman of the Hamilton police bargaining association, told the 450 delegates the legislation forces police into high speed chases that often end in accidents.

"Present methods of enforcing the Highway Traffic Act are ridiculous. I think they should repeal that section . . . and put the onus on the driver."

P.S. Principal From Kingston Freed by Court

TORONTO (CP)—A Kingston public school principal was acquitted Thursday by the Ontario Supreme Court in an appeal against a charge of contributing to juvenile delinquency by indecently assaulting a 13-year-old girl at his school.

Mr. Justice Edward A. Richardson ruled that the trial of Gerald Ivan Bildson, 34, in Kingston without a court last February was unsatisfactory.

The justice said in a six-page judgment that it was unfortunate "that there was some mention of a previous trial or evidence at a previous trial and I think probably it is unfortunate that there were any comments by the indictment to which apparently there was no substance."

APPEALED SENTENCE

Bildson was charged with four counts of contributing to juvenile delinquency and was sentenced in December to six months definite and three months indeterminate. He appealed to the Supreme Court and won a new trial Dec. 17.

Magistrate F. C. Hayes of Toronto heard the retrial in Kingston and dismissed three counts but found Bildson guilty on one count. Bildson was sentenced to six months definite and eight months indeterminate on the conviction.

Mr. Justice Richardson said that to decide the appeal it was necessary to look at the evidence only as it applied to the one count on which Bildson was convicted.

Russian Sees 'Fine Prospects' For Canadian-Soviet Relations

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—The Soviet Union appears to be making its greatest effort to establish influence in Canada.

Indications are that the Kremlin intends to follow up the successful visit to Canada of Dmitry Polyansky with a concerted program to strengthen its position there.

The remarks made by the first deputy premier on his return home suggest he found fertile ground for the further development of relations between Canada and the Soviet Union.

"The U.S.S.R. and Canada have fine prospects for developing a comprehensive, mutually advantageous relations," he told the English-language Moscow News. "We have no territorial problems, no unsolved problems. Nowhere do Soviet and Canadian state interests come into direct conflict."

As he had done while in Canada, Polyansky spoke about exchanges of scientific information—and specialists in such fields as agriculture, marine transport, mining and resources development. He could lead to expanded economic and political co - operation, he suggested.

Polyansky is an influential figure in Kremlin politics, both in the government side and on the Communist party side. In the government he ranks just behind Premier Kosygin. He is also on the party's central policy-making body, the politburo, and many observers say he may one day be party boss, the No. 1 position in the Soviet Union.

MAY VISIT MOSCOW

Pravda, the party newspaper, carried a lengthy summary of the visit which said Canadian trade from Prime Minister Pearson and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker "showed keen interest" in desiring closer relations with the Soviet Union.

The Soviet has already realized. The Soviet Union and Canada have become closer."

The report Polyansky established with Canadian leaders on his trip could lead to future high-level contacts between the two countries.

There are already prospects for visits between now and next winter by Prime Minister Pearson and External Affairs Minister Martin. Also it is not inconceivable that a visit by Premier Kosygin would be followed by a Kosygin journey to Canada.

But even before Polyansky's trip (the initiative for which, incidentally, came from Canada) Russia was embarked on a drive to extend its ties with Canada.

There was the decision to participate in the Montreal world's fair and to inaugurate passenger steamship service between Montreal and Leningrad.

This shipping season, for the first time, Soviet cargo ships are showing the hammer and sickle prominently in Lake Ontario.

There have been signs that the Russians would like to send tourists here in the St. Lawrence River during winter to open a path for grain ships, but Canadian authorities have so far balked at the idea.

WHAT IS KEY

The pattern of expanding relations continued with the recently - signed air agreement providing reciprocal flights between Montreal and Moscow by Air Canada and Aeroflot.

The Soviets, aware of the spurt the $1,800,000,000 worth of wheat and flour business has given the Canadian economy during the last three years, have apparently decided to make a virtue of necessity and play this commerce for what it's worth in political and other fields.

Though obviously aware that Canadians know they need the wheat, the Russians nevertheless see their big-time spending on something that makes many Canadians more favorably disposed toward them.

Sometimes there are even hints here that Canadians should be grateful for the boost Russia has given their economy. This is the sort of sentiment the Russians would like to capitalize on in wooing Canada.

Ho Chi Minh Trail Used for Infiltration

SAIGON (AP) — The South Vietnamese government says 102,500 North Vietnamese combat troops and support battalions have infiltrated into South Viet Nam.

These figures are far in excess of U.S. intelligence estimates, which put the maximum number of North Vietnamese in the south at about 54,000.

Most of the North Vietnamese came down the Ho Chi Minh trail through Laos, intelligence sources say, but they add that at least three regiments from the 324B Division are known to have infiltrated through the demilitarized zone between North and South Viet Nam, and there may have been others.

The Ho Chi Minh trail has many branches. Some lead off to enemy positions in the north. Others enter the central highlands regions near Pleiku through Laos or Cambodia.

And despite Cambodian denials, the South Vietnamese believe the trail is used for infiltration as far south as the region west of Saigon.

John Lennon Of Beatles Now More Penitent

CHICAGO (AP) — "I never meant it as a lousy, anti-religious thing," said Beatle John Lennon Thursday night, explaining his remark that "the Beatles are more popular than Jesus."

He told a news conference, "I was sort of deploring the attitude toward Christianity.

"From what I've read or observed (in Christianity) hasn't seems to me to be shrinking, to be losing contact."

Paul McCartney added: "And we all deplore the fact."

Since Lennon's remarks were published, some Beatle stations have banned Beatle records and some former fans have made bonfires of Beatle records and pictures.

The British, Lennon said, his remarks caused hardly a ripple.

The long - haired singers arrived Thursday night for concerts today. They were greeted by a relatively small group of fans at the airport.

At the group's hotel, however, things were more normal—200 screaming teen-agers swarmed all over their car.

The Beatles will give a concert in Cincinnati Aug. 17.

The Beatles stopped over briefly in Boston where police and 300 youngsters from getting to see their idols.

The teen - agers, most of them displayed signs reading "We love the Beatles" and "We support John."

One fan, Ingrid Balcomb, 18, said she travelled from Nova Scotia to show her support for the Beatles. She would not give her home town.

Grade 13 Exam Results in Mails Saturday

TORONTO (CP) — Results of Grade 13 examinations written by about 54,000 persons will be mailed this Saturday to schools across the province.

The education department said in a statement Thursday the results at the same time will be sent to universities to help speed up admission procedures.

"Before the results are released," the department says, "a special revising board made up of members representing the department and the universities will have examined the results for each candidate."

There were 235,000 papers written in the June examinations.

Students who fail have the right of appeal. It must be lodged no later than 30 days and is kept 60 youngsters from after a fee of $2 a paper paid.

Passing percentages by subject will not be available until November so that successful appeals can be included in statistics.

Federal Game Bird Permits Aimed at Obtaining Facts About Hunters and Quarry

By JAMES OSBORNE

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal hunting permits for migratory game birds being introduced this year are designed to plug gaps in a fig-saw puzzle of game bird statistics.

A spokesman for the Canadian Wildlife Service says the permits are the first step to obtain detailed information on hunters, where they hunt and the birds they shoot.

Until now, wildlife officials have relied on aerial surveys of wintering grounds and breeding areas and on reports on flyway conditions for estimates of birds available. But estimates of annual bird harvests have depended on often incomplete reports of provincial licence sales.

Wildlife service officials now will deal directly with hunters. Object of the $2 permits is conservation, not restriction, the spokesman said.

Questionnaires will be mailed to about 10 per cent of estimated 350,000-plus hunters holding permits. The permits went on sale at post offices Aug. 1, and must be purchased in addition to provincial licences.

One federal permit is valid in all areas of Canada. Indians and Eskimos receive free permits.

The permit surveys will mean that bag limits and hunting seasons can be adjusted directly to bird populations. They will also provide detailed counts of birds shot.

Results will tell officials the number of migratory game bird hunters, where and when they hunt, how many birds bad what species were taken.

Permits cover 10 species of birds: ducks, geese, sandhill cranes, coots, rails, woodcocks, mourning doves, band-tailed pigeons, snipes and gallinules.

Wildlife service spokesmen dismiss suggestions the $2 fee is a revenue-producer. Survey costs will far exceed the estimated $700,000 revenue the first year, they say.

Hunters pay little directly into federal wildlife programs, such as the five-year landleasing program directed at preserving wildlife production areas and costing $5,000,000 a year. There are several other smaller programs.

The U.S. Wildlife Management Institute at Washington, D.C., said the survey "will help fill a void currently blocking complete analysis of the international waterfowl situation."

The Canadian Wildlife Federation, an association of provincial federations, and fish and game associations, strongly supports the survey.

The survey this year will be directed more at determining where hunters are located than at the bird harvest.

The sole purpose, said one wildlife service official, is to improve management of migratory game birds and thereby improve hunting opportunity.

Parliamentary Notebook

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP) — Commons Speaker Lucien Lamoureux heads out today on his first trip abroad since taking on the job of presiding officer in the House earlier this year.

Mr. Lamoureux is to fly to London this evening and on Saturday meet his British counterpart, Dr. Horace King.

A meeting with officials of the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association's secretariat is scheduled for Monday.

Tuesday he goes to Paris and a possible meeting with the president of the Chamber of Deputies.

Mr. Lamoureux's meeting with Commonwealth officials is on the theme that association's meeting in Ottawa next month.

Present plans call for the meetings to be held in the Commons. But if Parliament is recalled to deal with a national railway strike, the meetings may be moved to the Senate chamber or other quarters in Parliament Hill's West Block.

Pierre Elliott Trudeau, parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson, turned up in the capital Thursday sporting the beginnings of a beard.

Well-known for his non-conformist habits about clothing, the bachelor lawyer from Montreal was asked whether he planned to keep the beard for the remainder of this session of Parliament.

"I just haven't shaved for three weeks," he replied. He has just returned from a three week canoe trip in the Arctic with seven companions.

He says the beard will go along before the Commons sits.

Prime Minister Pearson this week mailed a $5 cheque to British Prime Minister Harold Wilson.

When Mr. Wilson was in Ottawa two weeks ago Mr. Pearson offered to bet Mr. Wilson that West Germany would defeat Britain in the World Soccer Cup championships "in order to help your balance of payments."

The British leader did not indicate then whether he would accept the bet. But after Britain won 4-2 in overtime, Mr. Pearson decided to send the money anyway.

Copper Prices Reduced by Belgium Co.

The Belgian company, which claims most of its copper in The Congo province of Katanga, said its new price would be 61,000 Belgian francs (about $1,500) a metric ton (2,204 pounds)—a cut of 2,000 francs ($40).

Wednesday, Union Miniere cut the price from 65,000 francs ($1,300).

The reductions were believed to be in line with the downtrend in world copper prices following sharp rises earlier this year, and a moderate movement of supplies from Zambia.

Deliveries from Zambia had been reduced in the dispute over payments for bringing copper through Rhodesia by Rhodesian railways.

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate
"What's Your Problem"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I have a serious problem! I would appreciate it very although it may appear odd and silly to you.

I bought a house cheaply in a run-down section of our town and rented it out. For two years he rent was paid promptly/no never bothered looking at/the house. Then the rent stopped and I went to investigate. I found the tenants gone, but this is the least of my problem. All the floors, doors, trim and joists in the three-storey house were gone. All that remained was one big open area enclosed by four walls.

After much searching, I discovered the former tenants, and found out what happened. I was told that they had come on hard times and did not have any money for fuel so they started burning the wood in the house to keep warm. They moved out when there was no more wood to burn. Did you ever hear of such a story? What do I do now? — Mr. P. H.

ANSWER: I must admit I have never heard of such a tale. I am grateful to this reader for an unusual story to include in my book. My advice would be to get rid of what remains for land value and declare the loss for income tax purposes. This is the only hope of recapturing any thing from the investment.

Our readers shall be for dangages, but as a practical matter, the judgment would probably be uncollectable. I could also swear out a warrant for malicious destruction of the property if that would help satisfaction. After his attorney stops laughing, he should be guided by his actions.

* * *

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I have a new problem and hope you can except for cooking odors in the kitchen. The only way I can prevent odors from penetrating to the rest of the house is to close the doors. There must be a better way. What is it? — Mrs. I. C.

ANSWER: The problem arises because the kitchen exhaust fan is of inadequate capacity. It should be capable of changing the air every three minutes. Calculate the volume of your kitchen by multiplying the length by width by height. If you divide the answer by 3 you will now have the proper size fan required to eliminate your problem.

* * *

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Neighbors lounging on the patio on a pleasant summer evening sometimes generates displeasing arguments. I claim a copper sheet roof is good for 50 years use. The others say that about 30 years is correct. — Mr. E.L.

ANSWER: I suggest that your gang continue to enjoy the summer evenings without controversy because you are all wrong. A copper roof not subject to abuse and with occasional maintenance can last for centuries. To give but one example:

The roof on Philadelphia's famed Christ Church is over 200 years old and still going strong. If you are thinking of installing copper roof the cost may give you pause — It's about $1.50 per square foot.

* * *

Dear Mr. Meltzer: The clicking of noisy electrical switches in the silent night disturbs me. In the house we are now building I specified no-click switches. The electrician, however, wants $5 more per switch. Since there are 20 switches in the house, it will cost $100. The extra $100 is now disturbing me more than snapping switches. Is there much money? — E.I.G.

ANSWER: If you will try another electrician your disturbed state of mind will be over. A silent no-click switch is 50 cents or $1 more than the ordinary snap-switch.

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

Sunday School Lesson

"Destroying" An Enemy

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

There are two ways to get rid of an enemy. One way is to kill him. The other way is to turn him into a friend. The second may not always be possible. But the first not only destroys his life, it creates a backlash of grief, resentment, hatred and a desire for revenge on the part of those who loved him.

Ever since Cain struck the blow that killed Abel, the world has been burdened with the terrible problem of murder. By the time of Moses, murder was such a problem he had to declare as one of the basic prohibitions of life, "Thou shalt not kill." (Exodus 20:13 RSV)

Murder stands out as one of the most serious and heinous of all crimes. It destroys what can never be replaced. It takes from a person his greatest gift, namely, his life. To take another's life is so serious, many today question whether capital punishment is ever justified.

Is it ever justified to take another's life? This question has plagued the world throughout its history. There are those who say it is never justified, that life is so sacred, so irreplaceable, it is never right to take it even in war. There are others who say it depends on the situation, that sometimes it is a question of whose life is to be taken, the burglar, or his victim. No one in his right mind likes war. But if war is the only way to stop the designs of those who would destroy human freedom, and engage in wholesale killing to do it, are not some forced to choose war as the lesser of two evils? This problem takes on special urgency in a nuclear age when men have at their disposal the means of mass murder such as the world has never known before. The alternative today seems to be peace or annihilation. The dangers of an atomic age back up the Bible to say, "You shall not kill."

BIBLE PUSHES FURTHER

But the Bible doesn't leave it there. This is the negative side of the coin. The positive side is found in the statement, "You shall love your neighbor as yourself." (Leviticus 19:18 RSV) This is not mere sentimentalism. This is based on recognition and respect for the unique character and innate dignity of every person.

But the Bible goes further. It challenges its readers to put love into action. "If your enemy is hungry, give him bread to eat; and if he is thirsty, give him water to drink." (Proverbs 25:21) No one can love, he can only see the acts of love. What love needs is not definition, but demonstration.

The Uniform Sunday School Lessons for August 14: "Respect for Human Life," Exodus 20:13; Leviticus 19:17-18; Proverbs 25:21-22; Matthew 5:21-24, 43-44; I John 3:15-18; 4:20-21.

The Bible not only goes further, it goes deeper. It pushes us back to the source of murder in the murderous intents of the heart. ("Either 5:21-24) It defines murder as outstanding murderous desires. We may not kill another person's body, but still kill his self-respect by our treatment of him. We can kill his reputation by gossip. We can kill his dignity as a person by trying to hold him down by our prejudices.

LOVE RISKY BUSINESS

Of course, love can be risky business. It may not change an enemy. He may go on being an enemy. Jesus did not tell His followers to love their enemies because of what it would do to their enemies, but because of what it will do for them. It will keep them from stooping to the level of their enemies. It will cause them to act more like children of God who "makes His sun rise on the evil and on the good." (Matthew 5:45)

The author of I John ties all this together. God, The Bible knows no cleavage between soul and body, between faith and works, between a person's relationship to God and his relationship to his fellowmen. Man is never a mere abstraction. He is a person in relationships with other persons. The person who sees no relationship between his faith in God and his treatment of his neighbor does not know the God of the Bible. (I John 4:20)

The pit of the "Rock of Ages" quarry near Barre, Vermont, is very deep. One day, one of the workers remarked, "We have gone as deep as we can without going wider." If men are to have a deeper relationship to God they must explore new avenues of helpfulness to their fellowmen. To kill a person is to destroy God's highest creation. To be helpful to others is to express God's concern for his human family.

Russian Puzzle

Hard to Figure Out Values Where Rent Cheap, Food Dear

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—A Western economist would go mad trying to figure out how laws of value work in the Soviet Union.

It's not easy to make sense out of a system where a few kilos of tomatoes can cost almost as much as a month's rent.

Recently I took over a two-room apartment to serve as the Moscow office of The Canadian Press. The rent comes to the equivalent of about $60 a month.

This is probably cheaper—although not a great deal cheaper—than comparable accommodation in Canada. It is difficult to compare, however, because the construction and the installations are generally inferior in quality to any you would find in Canada.

But the main equalizing factor is that maintenance of the apartment is the responsibility of the tenant. If the walls or ceiling need repair, you do it—or pay for it—yourself.

When a foreign tenant moves into an apartment he signs a contract to which is attached a long itemized list of "routine repairs" for which he is responsible.

DUTIES LISTED

Under the contract, certain renovations are required to be carried out at least once every three years. These are listed as "full repairs" of the main rooms of the flat.

"Repairs of plaster walls and ceilings, mending of junctions in ceilings between reinforced concrete slabs; restoration of stucco moulding and painting on facades and walls; whitewashing and painting of walls, ceilings, doors, windows; doors; change of wallpaper; terracing and polishing parquet floors."

Russians moving into an apartment are spared such details. Having been assigned to a flat by their district housing committee, they simply register at the administration office for that particular building, and the matter is finished.

There is a general understanding that the tenant is responsible for keeping his apartment in good condition, but plumbing repairs are done for him free of charge.

What's more, he pays only a fraction of the rent that a foreigner living here pays. For a Russian the rent on the apartment that I recently took over would be no more than about $15 a month.

FOR CITIZENS ONLY

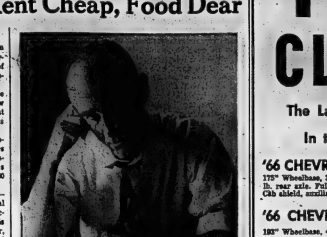
Housing is the most heavily state-subsidized service in the Soviet Union. Authorities say that roughly two-thirds of the total cost of maintaining housing is paid by the state.

Apparently, they feel there is no good reason why foreigners resident here should enjoy the benefit of these same subsidies. Hence the wide disparity between rents paid by foreigners and those paid by Russians.

On the other hand, Russians pay extremely high prices for most foodstuffs, especially fresh fruit and vegetables. In season, a kilogram of tomatoes—2 1/2 pounds—costs a minimum of $1.80 in the state stores and appreciably more than that at the market place, where peasants sell the produce from privately - owned, small plots.

Out of season, tomatoes can't be had at the state stores. And at the peasant markets they may sell for as much as $7.20 a kilo.

Oranges are another expensive item. When available at state stores, they sell for $1.63 a kilo—usually about five oranges.



KEY IS SOCIAL VALUE

There has been a lot of talk in the Soviet Union about the need for scientifically based prices to help spur economic efficiency. This discussion mostly concerns industry and the things that industry produces.

It forms part of the debate on ways to make industry more responsive to market demands. The criterion for judging the price of a commodity, liberal economists say, must be its social value. Hitherto, omnipotent central planners have been the judges.

On the basis of what the liberal economists say, it would seem logical to revamp the real structure also; the social value of a two-room apartment is obviously more than $15 a month.

But the Soviet government would think twice before doing anything to water down the policy of low rents, considered in the Communist catechism.

CHEAP RENT — MAYBE — John Best, Moscow correspondent for The Canadian Press, sits at his desk in a new two-room apartment he has rented for his Moscow office. He pays $60 rent a month, but it is the tenant's responsibility to maintain the apartment. If the ceiling or walls fall in, the tenant pays the repair bill. This applies only to foreigners. A Russian would get the same apartment cheaper and the state would look after maintenance. (CP Photo).

Steen's Gold Tops 9 BEM Medals

★★★★★ Eyes On Elaine

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

KINGSTON, Jamaica (CP)—Royality, a cow, a protest and a disqualification all ado the act at the British Empire Games Thursday.

The official protest promoted a Canadian athlete to a third-place bronze medal instead of an also-ran fourth.

And the 108-strong Canadian team, swinging along at a clip of almost two, gold medals a day since athletes of 34 countries started 13½ Commonwealth sports binge last Friday, was handed a gold on a platter.

That came in the men's 440-yard medley relay when two Australian swimmers, en route to a world record, broke from the blocks in the last two legs before their predecessors touched.

Two Australian judges called them on it and the Canadian quartet—certain of at least a second-place silver — got the gold.

STEEN WINS GOLD

A few hours later, Toronto's Dave Steen won the shot-put with a toss of 61 feet, eight inches—more than two feet beyond the Games record of 59-4 set in 1962 by Dr. Martyn Lockley of England.

The men's 440-yard freestyle relay team picked up a silver behind Australia, a world record-breaking winner in 3:35.6. The Canadian clocking was 3:42.2.

The Canadian track and field team also won three more medals, the swimmers got a bronze to go with their gold and silver, and two more bronzes came from by Beverley Boys of Pickering, Ont., in the high tower diving and Dr. Jules Sobrian of Ormee, Ont., in the .22-calibre rapid fire competition.

Canada, with nine medals for the day, had a total of 38 overall. This showing easily was the best of the post-war era with the exception of the Vancouver Games in 1954.

Prince Philip, Prince Charles and Princess Anne inadvertently started a chain of events that made the 26-mile, 385-yard marathon memorable.

The hero of the piece was Scotsman Jim Alder who got all fouled up at the tail-end of the course because Prince Philip wanted to watch the finish from the royal box.

But Prince Philip's arrival time unfortunately coincided, almost to the minute, with that of the two leaders—Alder and Englishman Bill Adcocks.

Prince Philip just made it into the stadium before the runners. But he didn't know the confusion his arrival had created outside.

Spectators and cars were all over the place. Alder had a 70-yard lead and, somehow or other, he made the wrong turn and was negotiating a zig-zag course for the swimming pool.

He turned around to see Adcocks striding into the stadium for the last 220 yards. He gave chase, caught the faltering Englishman, about 100 yards from home and ended with a 12-yard margin of victory.

The cow entered the picture when the two leaders were pounding along about five miles from the stadium on their homeward journey. Crowds were lined up on both sides of the narrow street and suddenly the animal appeared from somewhere among the spectators.

It casually walked across the road just yards in front of the runners.

The switch of medal winners came in the men's 440-yard final won by Trinidad's Wendell Mottley, who broke the Games record with a clocking of 45.2 seconds.

Kent Bernard of Trinidad was the silver medalist, but silver in the third-place bronze went to a Kenyan, Canadian officials related a bonus.

Sure enough, photographs of the race showed Don Domansky of Fort Arthur, Ont., in third place instead of Danial Rudisha of Kenya. The medal was given to Domansky.

Other Canadian bronze medal winners in track and field were George Puce of Toronto in the men's shot-put with a toss of 56-2¾; Irene Piotrowski of Vancouver in the women's 220-yard dash with a time of 23.9 seconds and Judy Dahlgren, 17, also of Vancouver, in the women's 880-yard freestyle with a time of 11:56.4, her personal best.

Harry Jerome of Vancouver was second in the 220-yard dash, Bill Crothers of Markham, Ont., fifth in the 440-yard final and Dave Hall of Toronto, Canada's only four-minute miler, sprawled headlong in a qualifying heat of the mile and finished sixth in 4:12.2. He didn't qualify, but team-mate Brian Lepp of Toronto did in 4:09.1.

Jerome, the 100 - yard gold medalist, pulled a muscle in his left leg, the one he was operated on four years ago, but team physician Dr. Phil Edwards of Montreal said the injury was not serious.

Sam Bonsu of Ghana won the furlong in 20.7 seconds. Diane Burge of Australia, the women's 100 winner, clocked a double in the 220 with a time of 23.8.

Nancy Finishes Fourth

PORTILLO, Chile (CP)—Marielle Goitschel made the world Alpine skiing championships a French romp Thursday, winning the giant slalom in one minute, 32.64 seconds.

She also won the combined title for women by virtue of second-place finishes earlier in the week in the downhill and slalom.

Heidi Zimmerman of Austria was second in the giant slalom in 1:33.81, and Florence Steurer of France third in 1:34.92.

Canada's Nancy Greene finished in fourth place, her right arm numbed by novocaine. Despite this handicap, the Rossland, B.C. secretary raced through 30 gates in the 1,310-yard course in 1:35.92.

"At least I didn't fall," said Miss Greene, referring to her falls in the downhill and slalom events. The fall in the downhill caused the arm injury.

Weslock Is Favored In Amateur

MONTREAL (CP)—The quarter and semi-final rounds of the Canadian amateur golf championship may produce some upsets today, but one thing is certain—there will be a Canadian in the final 36-hole test Saturday.

The upper half of today's draw lists four Canadians and the lower section has one Canadian, a South African and two golfers from the United States.

Hugh Paterson of Hull, Que., could conceivably make it an all-Canadian final if he defeats Bobby Cole, the Johannesburg native and British amateur champion.

In the all-Canadian top half, it's veteran Nick Weslock of Burlington, Ont. against Peter Hope of Dartmouth, N.S. and Calgary's Doug Silverberg meeting Gary Cowan of Kitchener, Ont.

Weslock remains the Canadian choice after he glided through the second and third rounds Thursday with a 5 and 3 win over Toronto's Ray Bridden. In the afternoon round Weslock knocked off Montreal's Gordon LeBlanc 3 and 4.

WENT TO 19TH HOLE

Hope, Weslock's opponent in the quarter-finals, was forced to the 19th hole before he could advance past Thursday afternoon's third round.

The Nova Scotian sank a 20-foot birdie putt at the 19th to defeat Wayne Vollmer, 21, of Vancouver. Earlier he fought another 19 - hole match with James Jewell of Indianapolis, Ind.

Silverberg, a member of Alberta's successful Willingdon Cup team, forced two American golfers to the sidelines to get to today's play.

He knocked out Raymond Beallo of Cleveland in the morning and eliminated Dick Siderowf of Westport, Conn., in the third round. Siderowf went down at the 19th hole, while Beallo bowed out 3 and 2.

Siderowf is ranked with the top 10 amateur golfers in the U.S.

Cowan also downed two Americans in reaching his match with Silverberg.

WILL MEET U.S.

TORONTO (CP)—Frosh from the British Empire Games in Jamaica, Canada's track and field athletes will meet a United States team at the Canadian National Exhibition Aug. 20.

Orioles Turn Back Yankees

Chisox Win

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Boog Powell turned a routine single into pretty funny romp around the bases Thursday night in Baltimore Orioles' 6-5 victory over New York Yankees.

A wet ball and some muddles in the Yankee Stadium outfield made it easy.

The Orioles had jumped on Yankee starter Mel Stottlemyre for three runs in the first inning after the start of the game was delayed an hour by rain. Brooks Robinson was on first base with two out in the third. Then Powell singled to left and Robinson headed for third.

"I was going to stop there," Robinson said later. "Then I saw Hector Lopez miss the ball, so I kept going."

POWELL LUMBERS AROUND

Powell took second as Stottlemyre threw high, the wet ball sailing into swampy centerfield. Powell then took home on a losing battle with the moisture while Powell lumbered around third and made it home.

Powell left the game after scoring and his replacement, Sam Bowens, delivered the 14th home run single that scored Luis Aparicio with the winning run for the Orioles.

In other American League action, Chicago White Sox won their seventh straight, whipping Kansas City Athletics 10-5, Boston Red Sox battered Cleveland Indians 13-3 and Minnesota Twins trounced California Angels 4-3.

Don Buford drove in three runs with a bases-loaded double and John Romano hit his 13th homer of the season for Chicago's big hits. Buford also swiped home on the front end of a double steal.

Blow Lead

Trudeaus, Cats Tie

By ROBERT SNEPPELLA
Staff Sportswriter

Trudeau Motors watched a five-run lead vanish and finally had to be content with a 6-6 tie with Temple Bobcats, in a B and D, playoff contest, at the Alemite ball park.

The draw kept the best-of-seven series deadlocked at one game apiece. Third game is scheduled for the Alemite on Tuesday.

The Motormen headed into the bottom of the sixth with a five run lead, but Bobcats rallied for two in the sixth and three in the eighth to tie it. Neither team could manage another marker ,and after 11 innings, the 10.30 curfew ended the battle.

Bob Green burned a fine game for Trudeaus, giving up only four hits in the first eight frames, and striking out six. His control, however, was shakey at times, as he walked six men. Green got relief help from Howard Jeffs in the ninth. Jeffs allowed two hits and struck out one.

Clare Lesbey started for Bobcats, and lasted almost six innings before he was knocked out of the ball game. He gave up eight hits, and struck out six.

Bob Loit turned in a top-notch performance in the remaining innings. He allowed only two hits, while hitting two batters, walking three and fanning five.

Larry Mavety thundered a long home run to go with his double and single, for Trudeaus. Roger Drake snared two base hits, and Larry Soule had a double. Bob Green, Bob Wannamaker, Stu Muirhead and Ralph Plane rounded out Trudeau's hitting.

Paul Zakos and Bill Latchford looped a double each, and Terry Lesage, Bob Loit, John McKibbon and Paul Merraw had lone singles.

Errors were costly to both teams.

Buffey Back In The Wars

TORONTO (CP)—Vern Buffey, an eight-year veteran reliefer who misfired during last spring's Stanley Cup final, has decided to return to the NHL's outlaw staff, Scotty Morrison, National Hockey League referee-in-chief, said Thursday.

Morrison also announced that Brent Casselman, 25, a Brockville, Ont., native, will join the NHL staff as a fulltime linesman this season. He will replace Milton Soqp, who is returning to university.

Cementmen Chalk Up Another

Point Anne defeated Lightfoots 6-2 in the Commercial softball league last night. The win increased first-place Point Anne's margin over second-place Stewart Warner to 16 points.

The game was tied 0-0 up to the fourth, when Point Anne posted their first run. The winners added another in the fifth, and four in the sixth, to wrap up the ball game. Lightfoots responded with two markers in the final frame, but their rally fell far short.

Ron Marsele hurled a fine five-hit victory on the Point Anne mound. He struck out three batters, and issued five walks.

Don Smith gave up seven hits in defeat, while whiffing three and walking three.

Ron Marsele was the leading Point Anne hitter with a double and single. Jim Horwood slammed a double, while Don Dennis and Gerry Maher, and Dave Akey, had singles.

Joe Clapp banged out two hits for the losers. Don Smith, Rusty Garvin and Doug Rose had lone singles.

Pirates Up Margin In Two Games

By ED SCHUYLER Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Willie Stargell didn't have too much pull with New York Mets but he stopped trying to.

Then in ninth inning, after Bob Veale of Mets had slugged in a run to tie the game 5-5, Stargell came up again.

Not trying to pull it, Stargell did just that, whacking Gardner's first pitch into the right field stands for his 26th homer and a 7-5 victory, which increased the Pirates' National League lead to two games over idle San Francisco Giants.

In the only other National League games, St. Louis Cardinals beat Philadelphia Phillies 5-1 and Chicago Cubs nipped Houston Astros 8-6 in 11 innings in the first game of a doubleheader. Houston was leading 5-3 in the seventh inning of the nightcap when it was suspended.

The Pirates' victory robbed Veale of Ralph Terry, acquired by the Mets from Kansas City Athletics. The veteran right-hander started and went 5⅓ innings, giving up five hits and three runs and would have been the winner if the Mets could have held the lead, which Gardner helped build with four hits.

Pitcher Al Jackson drove home the tie breaking run with a triple in St. Louis' victory over Philadelphia. Richie Allen of the Phillies had tied it 1-1 with his 26th hopper in the seventh.

Roddy Hundley hit a single, double, triple and homer and scored three runs for Chicago.

Lee Thomas' pinch-hit single drove in the winning run for the Cubs. The second game at Chicago was called at 6:30 p.m., EDT, to assure both teams of catching flights for the West Coast and will be completed when the Cubs play in Houston Aug. 26.

"Mighty Mouse" Flies Today

By ED SIMON

KINGSTON, Jamaica (CP)—Mighty Mouse must fly today and also get a helping hand from her boy-friends if Canada is to win an Olympic gold medal in competition of British Empire Games swimming.

Mighty Mouse is Elaine Tanner, the five-foot-two dynamo from Vancouver, who is almost certain to pocket a second personal swimming gold medal when the last seven events in the sport are run off.

Her total could well hit four. The 15-year-old schoolgirl, given the nickname by her team-mates, is entered in three events—the 110-yard butterfly where she set a Games record Thursday, the 220-yard backstroke and the 440 individual medley.

Going into the last day of swimming, Australia held a 7-5 margin in gold medals over Canada. But four of the seven finals today are in the women's half and so far the Aussies have drawn a blank in this section. Australia's male swimmers have shattered eight world records, tied a ninth and lost a certain to pocket a second personal swimming gold medal when the last seven events in the sport are run off.

Her total could well hit four. The 15-year-old schoolgirl, given the nickname by her team-mates, is entered in three events—the 110-yard butterfly where she set a Games record Thursday, the 220-yard back-st

New NBC Situation Comedy Has Two Smart Comedians

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The ingredients actually compounded in a new NBC situation comedy called Hey, Landlord come straight from the textbook of television writing.

The basic recipe: One part attractive, boyish, naive and idealistic hero mixed well with one part sharp, sophisticated, wisecracking sidekick; place in a container large enough to hold other assorted ingredients, to be added and subtracted at the whim of the script writer.

Hey, Landlord has Will Hitchins, a tall, good looking, country-boy type who several seasons back made a bit of a jerry-built western series called Sugarfoot, largely because older females viewers wanted to mother him, younger feminine viewers thought he was cute and the male audience liked the action.

For contrast they added a young nightclub comedian named Sandy Baron, prototype of what people who cook up television comedy series believe is a typical hip New Yorker.

PRANKS GOOFIE

Hitchins and Baron have been placed in a New York brownstone inherited by the former who rents rooms. This permits the writers to introduce assorted characters. They can move in for a week or two, go through their required paces and depart.

Baron, a Brooklyn boy in his 20s, has been hitting his stride in the last four years, moving from the usual monologues of the standup comedian to improvisation as a member of the off-Broadway companies of Second City and The Premise. Then he was graduated to roles — wise-guy types — in some Broadway shows, most recently Henry Fonda's Generation.

"I worked like crazy, appearing on all the conversation shows I could make," he said. "Then they called and asked for some tapes from my appearances on The Merv Griffin Show. Next thing, they wanted me out here for the pilot."

Hitchins, in contrast to Baron, is a quiet fellow with a shy understated humor.

Actor Wins Role by Voice And Regal Bearing in Test

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "When you see something you want, you should go after it with all your energies. Those who wait for things to come to them usually have to be satisfied with leftovers."

This bit of sagacity comes from Richard Harris, one of the more accomplished actors of Anglo - American show business. Within weeks he will be starting his enactment of King Arthur in the (apparently) last collaboration of Alan Jay Lerner and Frederick Loewe—Camelot.

The pageant is being produced by Jack L. Warner, who left his position as Warner Brothers headman to produce the Lerner-Loewe adaptation of My Fair Lady.

"They really didn't want me," said Harris. "They wanted lots of other chaps, but I earnestly desired the role, and I insisted that they test me."

Harris was tested, and exhibited a lusty baritone that has never been heard professionally.

"But I sang while I was drunk," Harris explained, "so I had plenty of practice."

His voice and regal bearing convinced the sage of Sunbank, and Harris was cast as Arthur, along with Vanessa Redgrave as Guinevere and Italian Franco Nero as Lancelot.

Terrell Ready For Clay

NEW YORK (AP) — Ernie Terrell, the World Boxing Association heavyweight champion, was given the green light Thursday to fight in New York, setting up a possible showdown match with Cassius Clay.

"We settled up all this talk about who's champion," said Clay in Chicago. "That would be nice."

Terrell was granted a licence to fight in New York by the State Athletic Commission.

Clay, who knocked out Brian London in a title defence last Saturday, is scheduled to meet Karl Mildenberger, the German heavyweight king, in Frankfurt Sept. 10.

The commission, in approving the Terrell licence, thus reversed a ruling in January, when it denied Terrell a licence because of the fighter's association with Bernie Gluckman.

City Hotel Defeats Cheesemen

City Hotel defeated Black Diamond Cheese 6-1 last night to grab fourth place in the Commercial Softball league.

City scored their first run in the first frame, after a walk and wild pitch, followed by a Geneseur single.

Mark Diamond tied it in the fourth as Dale Archer's home run, but City roared back in their half of the inning for another marker. Murray doubled, and later scored on an infield error.

In the sixth, the Hotelmen erupted for four runs to put the game on ice. McGuire hit a bases - loaded double to drive in two runs, and Doug Hull drove in the remaining two with a single.

Gerry Geneseaux led the winners with a pair of hits. Billy McGuire, and Murray doubled, Doug Hull, Larry Potter and Larry Hull slammed bases hits.

Gene Francis smashed two doubles, and Dale Archer a home run, for the losers. Jamieson worked two safeties and Doug Archer one, for Black Diamond.

Larry Hull gave up six hits and fanned five in winning, while Murray Holloway gave up eight hits and struck out three in losing.

Art Lord, Paris, Ont., was 10th in the 15-man competition.

Lunar Orbiter Ready to Circle Around Moon

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—Lunar Orbiter is prepared to go into orbit around the moon Sunday.

The 850-pound craft obeyed commands Thursday to fire its main rocket engine and correct its course, spokesmen for the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration said.

The craft is designed to go into orbit around the moon Sunday after its thrust rocket is fired again to slow it down 200 miles from the moon.

Orbiter's goal is to take 352 quality pictures of the moon, helping select a spot where Apollo astronauts may land on the moon before 1970. It also carries devices to measure radiation and detect micrometeorites.

BRING IT CLOSER

The first planned orbit ranges from 120 miles to 1,150 miles. This is to be changed a few days later, putting the spacecraft down to 25 miles above the target area on each pass.

At a point 43 minutes after launch Wednesday, the craft's sun sensor picked up the sun properly, but another light sensor—designed to pick up the bright star Canopus—did not do its job.

Jim Martin Jr., assistant project director, said: "There's a lot of noise in the sensor's electronic system that seems to block out the signal.

"We've ordered Orbiter, instead, to look on the moon as its reference point. We're confident we can get it into orbit. The only uncertainty is the lack of accuracy for the photographic mission."

DELAY OPENING

TORONTO (CP) — The New York cyclical play Little Me has been delayed but not cancelled, Yale Simpson, general manager of the Royal Alexandra theatre here, said Thursday. The farce by the Vancouver humorist has been playing at the Royal Alex for a month and was due to open at New York's Cort Theatre Sept. 8, instead, Mr. Simpson said it will open Aug. 25 at the Theatre de Jesus in Montreal for an "indefinite run."

Commission Teams Along Cambodia-Viet Nam Border Being Requested by Canada

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canada for months has been pressing its colleagues on the international truce supervisory commissions on Indochina—India and Poland—to meet Cambodia's request for commission teams along the Cambodia-Viet Nam border.

And it would support similar action to install or reinforce commission teams on the Laos-Viet Nam frontier and in the six-mile-wide demilitarized zone between North and South Viet Nam.

The objective of such a policy is to help keep Cambodia and Laos out of the Viet Nam war.

So far, nothing has been done and it doesn't look as if it will be moment as if anything will be.

One reason is that establishment of any fixed commission teams in new locations would have to be a unanimous decision of the three commission members. Unanimous decisions in the commission have been few and far between. Canada on one or two occasions has sided with India and Poland. But not once has Canada been in to a Canadian-Indian view.

LAOS SPLIT

Communist North Viet Nam has long used the so-called Ho Chi Minh Trail through Laos to reinforce and supply the Viet Cong in South Viet Nam and Laos, in effect, is a partitioned country.

Now the danger appears to be growing that Cambodia will be used more frequently as a Communist access into South Viet Nam.

A commission team, including Clifford Webster of Ottawa was attacked by American planes long, it near the border of Cambodia and South Viet Nam, though there is still no official word on which side of the border the incident occurred.

U.S. planes have also been strafing in the demilitarized zone to get at the Viet Cong who have infiltrated it to use as a sanctuary.

There is one commission team in the zone. So far, there are no official reports that it has had to evade Communist or American fire.

Whether more commission teams along the various borders would help the situation seems doubtful. The commission has no real authority.

FUNCTION RESTRICTED

As External Affairs Minister Martin told the Commons external affairs committee April 26 the commission was not set up to enforce the 1954 Geneva Agreement. It was set up "to report on the extent to which the signatories lived up to the cease-fire agreements."

Meanwhile, even rumors of possible negotiations seem to have ceased as the war has been extended, with American bombing of Hanoi and Viet Cong penetration of the demilitarized zone.

Mr. Martin will go to Moscow and Warsaw in early November for talks on Viet Nam, among other things.

If the U.S. congressional elections at that time show a big vote of confidence in President Johnson's Viet Nam policy, Mr. Martin may have a better chance of persuading the Russian and Polish Communists to persuade their North Vietnamese Communists to approach the negotiation table.

Five Teeners Rescued by Fishing Boat

OWEN SOUND (CP) — Five teen-agers who spent Wednesday night in two open boats on Lake Huron were discovered Thursday by a fishing boat about 12 miles out in the lake.

The teen-agers are Marilyn Arnold, 15, of Ancaster; Kathy Hepburn, 15, of Warren; Timothy Cruickshank, 17, of Shallow Lake; Gordon Richardson, 15, of Hope Bay and Douglas Monahan, 15, of the Owen Sound area.

An Albatross aircraft sent from the air-sea rescue station at Trenton, Ont., spotted the fish tug in mid-morning with the two open boats in tow. The pilot apparently flew the teen-agers aboard the tug.

GET MORE PAY

Paid workers received an estimated $2,201,000,000 during March in the form of salaries and wages, an increase of nearly one per cent from February and 10.5 per cent higher than in March last year, the bureau of statistics reported Thursday. Total labor income during the first three months of this year was up 13 per cent at $6,545,000,000 from $5,790,000,000 in the same period last year.

CUT COPPER PRICES

Noranda Sales Corp. of London has lowered the price of cer brand electrolytic copper to £460 ($1,260) a ton—a drop of £20 ($120). Union Miniere of Brussels also announced it has dropped its price to the same level per metric ton—a drop of £14 ($42) from its previous price of £64 ($1,260).

GM Will Not Recall Some 2,500 Workers

OSHAWA (CP)—General Motors of Canada Ltd. announced Thursday night that an undetermined number of employees will not be recalled to its motor vehicle assembly line here after the current summer layoff ends Sept. 12.

At a meeting with executives of Local 222 of the United Auto Workers of America, GM officials would not say how many men would be affected.

William Harding, vice-president of the union local, said there have been rumors that as many as 2,500 workers will be laid off.

Mr. Harding said he thought the reason for the layoffs might be that some models of Buick, Cervair and Oldsmobile, as well as some trucks and vans are to be made only in the United States this year as a result of the Canada-U.S. auto agreement.

Company officials said they will meet with the union again next week for more talks.

Between 15,000 and 16,000 men are employed at the company's local plant.

Donkeys of Fez Tended By Young Montreal Vet

Domestic animals like donkeys are harshly treated in Morocco. A young Canadian veterinarian runs a hospital in Fez for animals suffering from abuse or sickness. The conditions under which he works are described by a Canadian Press reporter who visited the hospital on a tour of Morocco.

By PETER BUCKLEY

FEZ, Morocco (CP)—Andre Rousseau keeps a sleepy grey donkey named Duke, a skilful pickpocket and a pheasant on hand "to rest my eyes from The Others."

The Others are mainly a woebegone collection of donkeys, mules and horses who pass through Rousseau's animal hospital beside the great ancient walls of Fez. They are, to say the least, hard on the eyes.

Open sores decorate many of the animals' backs, heads and legs. Others need attention after skirmishes with their lesser surgery. Most are suffering from malnutrition and internal parasites, from ribs standing out like tines on a fork.

They are brought to the hospital for repairs, then sent back into the winding streets of Fez or the dusty roads of the countryside to resume existence as the basic transportation for Moroccan farmers and tradesmen.

It is, all in all, not the sort of place you expect to find a trim, blue-eyed graduate of the University of Montreal's veterinary school, Class of '63.

When 26 - year - old Andre Rousseau says with some enthusiasm that "you see conditions here that you wouldn't see anywhere else," he can probably be taken at his word.

The hospital he directs is called the American Fondouk. It was started in 1929 by a visiting spinster from Boston named Amy Bend Bishop—"in memory of her mother, the great lover of animals," as a painted plaque records—before she was appalled at the plight of Fez's donkeys. Fondouk, an Arab word, means inn with stables.

ANIMALS ABUSED

A whitewashed concrete building enclosing an open courtyard in Arab style, the American Fondouk is a rare operation for North Africa.

With so much human misery around the animals of Arabia often get short shrift.

A donkey that doesn't want to move must be made to move because he is vital as personal transportation or to carry crops or merchandise.

"In some cases, a sore will be deliberately opened on the donkey's back so it only takes a touch of the stick to make him move," Rousseau explained. "Some of those people you see riding along on the back of a trotting donkey have a nail in their hand to keep him going."

A dog, twisted grossquety, lies on the floor of an isolation cage. It almost certainly has rabies, but the disease must be allowed to run its course so it can be confirmed and preventive measures taken for those who have had contact with it.

Two sides of the inner courtyard are lined with shelters for rows of silky work animals, standing passively side by side, biting treated for hurts in abuse or natural affliction.

MUNCHES STRAW

And in one corner is a small enclosed stable, where Duke the pet donkey munches contentedly on some straw. His room is used part time for surgery on the larger animals.

At the back is a wire cage houses the pet gazelle and pheasant. Opposite, beside the kitchen entrance, is a surgery for household animals and the Fondouk's small office with its picture of President Johnson, Rousseau's graduation certificate and a filing system with all the animals and owners indexed.

There are an estimated 200,000 donkeys in Fez and its surroundings—as many donkeys as people—plus uncounted other animals.

The Fondouk, in comparison, has Rousseau and seven Moroccan workers, none of them with any real veterinary training. One of them acts as an inspector, travelling the streets and roads of Fez with authority to seize animals needing care.

The hospital operates on a budget of about $25,000 a year, treating an average of 3,000 animals a year on an "out-patient" basis and another 1,000 inside.

"There's not another animal hospital I know of that treats so many animals at such little cost," Rousseau says proudly.

At a comfortable home in the newer section of Fez, Rousseau and his dark-haired wife Carmen explained how they came to this part of the world.

AGREES TO STAY

He was on the eve of graduation three years ago when he became intrigued by a letter to the dean's office, offering a job abroad. He went to Boston for an interview with the charitable organization that finances the Fondouk and two weeks later was on his way to Morocco with a two-year contract.

"I wanted to leave after my two years were up, but then they offered me a large increase and I agreed to another two years. Besides, I was glad to be able to see my work on the Fondouk brought to completion."

Rousseau was the first qualified veterinarian to head the Fondouk. The previous directors had been amateurs and the animals could be given little but liniment and rest.

The young Canadian vet started virtually from scratch, reorganizing the Fondouk's operations, persuading the parent foundation to invest in new equipment, replacing many of the previous personnel with his own choice of workers.

He and Carmen had known each other for some time in Montreal, having grown up in nearby suburbs. Carmen joined Rousseau in Fez after a few months and they were married here.

Now they have a 17-month-old son, Christian, an amiable boxer watchdog named Nero and Nero's frisky son, Poupee.

"It's been an enormously valuable experience," Rousseau said. "I've had responsibilities that the usual graduate does not get. I've had to take initiative in making innovations and I've had to learn to deal with people."

Future Man--Brain Will Stay at Home While Sense Organs Roam About World

Mankind is entering into the "genetic age" and the new skills acquired by scientists in selecting growth and heredity will bring awesome responsibilities. That's big question, "Who will decide what future man shall be?" is the subject of the following article on genetic tinkering.

By RALPH DIGHTON
AP Science Writer

A magic phrase — genetic tinkering — has struck both hope and fear into the hearts of far - thinking men over the world.

The hope is that recent research in the sub-microscopic world of the genes of the human cell will lead to a new era of freedom from defects and disease.

The fear is that this promised power over the form and even the thoughts of future man could fall into evil hands.

Genetic tinkering means altering the chemical makeup of genes—molecules in the heart of living cells which carry the coded blueprints for future generations and also direct the development of every organism, including man.

Can they really do this? Will they want to?

Says Dr. Ray Owen, chairman of the biology division of the California Institute of Technology:

"Recent advances have placed the opportunity of controlling human heredity in the hands of those who may want to do so.

"There is an antipathy in genetic scientists against genetic manipulation because of the dangers in determining what are good directions and what are bad directions to take. There are dangers in modifying people and dangers in turning out only identical people.

"I am convinced there are some decisions which should not be made by scientists alone."

Says Dr. Renato DuBecco, geneticist at the Salk Institute for Biological Studies:

"Genetic research has reached the stage where we must begin collecting and processing with computers this tremendous amount of new information and, hopefully, begin picking committees to decide what man should be like in the future.

"It is foreseeable that science may be able to predetermine not only the physical characteristics but also the social attitudes of people. It may be possible eventually, through direction of evil growth, to choose not only how many fingers a man should have, for instance, but even how he will think — whether he will be war-loving or war-hating."

NEED DEEP DECISION

Dr. Melvin Calvin, director of the bio - organic group at the Lawrence radiation laboratory of the University of California, said in a speech:

"We have before us now the requirement for a decision on a course of action probably more profound and far-reaching in its consequences than that which faced the statesmen of the world following the discovery of nuclear fission in 1939 and the creation of nuclear explosives only six years later.

"Both the immediate and long - range future of this country and mankind are dependent upon decisions on the way we use the fruits of this new knowledge."

These men are not alone in their thinking. Technical publications have carried similar counsel from scientists around the world.

Few doubt that genetic control will come. The main point of difference is over how far-down the road of research it lies. Some think it may take a century or two.

One of the more optimistic, Dr. James Bonner, Caltech biologist, believes some forms of human genetic tinkering will be possible in a generation.

SEE WEIRD FUTURE

Eventually, he predicts, "the brain will stay at home, concentrating on thought, while the sense organs roam the world, seeing, talking, listening, playing. We will have a new freedom — freedom from carrying our heads around."

The possibility of genetic tinkering raises endless questions — social, political, economic and religious.

For instance, how will the churches, which believe that human form is divine, react to proposals to change that form?

And what might some future power - crazed dictator do if he held the key to the genes of a nation?

The answers lie hidden in the future. For the present, geneticists can only say:

It is time to start thinking.

Massachusetts Convicts Stab and Beat 9 Guards in Battle to Steal Drugs

WALPOLE, Mass. (AP)—Inmates rioted outside a medication dispensary at the Massachusetts State Prison in a violent attempt to steal drugs late Friday night, injuring nine guards.

Two guards were stabbed and seven others beaten as the inmates pushed their way into the "pill" room, pelting, thrashing and literally gobbling down as many pills as they could at one time.

A riot squad of 22 state police officers and guards, summoned to the rescue of the guards on duty, stormed into the dispensary and quickly put down the riot.

State police Cpl. James Dunne, who led the squad equipped with 12-gauge shotguns, gas masks and crash helmets, said about 35 of the inmates were reeling "on cloud nine" when he arrived.

The medication, which prison officials said is dispensed once daily, is kept in a locked room and handed out through a window.

Dunne said about 70 inmates were lined up for it when one unidentified prisoner in a stated upon having a second packet, overturned a table at the head of the line, and threatened a guard outside the room with half of a barber's shaver.

A guard inside the room pleaded with the prisoner to release the outside guard, and told them to back off so he could bring him inside the drug room.

The prisoners did back off, but when he opened the door, they rushed inside, Dunne said, and the chaos followed.

Two of the guards were stabbed and along with the other injured guards were taken to hospital. None was reported in serious condition.

Frederick Butterworth, deputy superintendent of the prison, was the first law enforcement official in the dispensary after the inmates took control of it. He said he calmly told them:

"This is foolish, now line up and move back to your cells."

"The combination of his advice and the show of force seemed to convince them to obey," Dunne said.

The prison is located on a rural site about 26 miles southwest of Boston.

Prison Supt. Plumer C. Scafati said:

"There may have been some barbiturates headed out." Most of the medication, however, might be routinely bought at a drug store, such as aspirin, he said.

Three Unarmed Officers Gunned Down in London

Will War Against Disease

LONDON (CP)—British and other European countries are waging a war costing millions against the mysterious plague of hoof-and-mouth disease striking cattle and sheep.

The oldest herd of pedigreed Ayrshires in England—that of Exbott, founded 700 years ago—is threatened by the epidemic. Mass slaughtering has resulted but some countries are trying other approaches to check the spread of the disease.

Hoof-and-mouth disease is an acute, contagious infection, marked by fever, which attacks primarily cloven hooved animals.

Here is a nation-by-nation roundup:

Soviet Union—First reported in 1965, the disease spread to most parts of European Russia. By unofficial estimates as many as a third of 97,000,000 Soviet cattle were affected by last spring's outbreak, but no official figures on losses.

West Germany—No national figures are available but local estimates run into millions of dollars. In Bavaria, one of the states hardest hit, the epidemic broke out in December, 1965, and since then 150,000 cattle and 9,000 pigs have been slaughtered. In march this year a blanket inoculation program was started.

German control technique is to slaughter wherever disease is detected. A "cordon sanitaire" is set up around the area, all cattle in it are inoculated and barred from shipment outside the area. No transport of cattle into or through the area is permitted. Agricultural officials say the current virus appears more active than in the LONDON (AP)—Most of London's 18,000 police—some armed with guns and teargas—hunted today for the man who gunned down three policemen in a suburban street Friday.

The killers victims—a detective sergeant, a temporary detective constable and a police constable—were unarmed. Patrolling in an undercover prowl car, they stopped near Wormwood Scrubbs Prison in West London to question three or four men in a parked auto.

Why the policemen approached the other car may never be known. A Scotland Yard spokesman said:

"Only three men know the full story—and they are dead. But they must have had a reason to stop those men."

Whatever the reason, Detective Sgt. Christopher Head climbed out of the car and walked across to the auto. He was shot through the head and fell in the roadway.

Detective Constable David Wombwell climbed out of the rear seat of the car to go to the aid of the sergeant and one of the gang shot him through the heart.

ABOVE AT KILLER

Constable Geoffrey Fox, the police car driver, put the car in gear and drove at the killer—who was also in the car—the windshield.

But the policemen in the road was still alive. So one of the gang pushed Fox's body from behind the steering wheel and drove the police car over the wounded policeman.

Then it was the sequence of events as teamf of detectives pieced them together from the eyewitness accounts of children playing in a park opposite the road where the killings took place.

"A schoolchildren who said they saw the shooting were taken to Scotland Yard by Detective Chief Supt. Thomas Butler, head of the Yard's famed Flying Squad.

The youngsters spentwhout an hour with Scotland Yard's Queen's Gallery in the hope that they might be able to identify the gunmen.

SURROUNDED HOUSE

Late Friday night armed police surrounded a house in North London. A man accompanied them to a police station and said that he had owned the vehicle they were seeking but had sold it about a year ago to a garage mechanic. The mechanic had sold it to someone else.

During the night detectives and police visited a number of houses in an area around London

Anticipated Fireworks Fail To Develop at Liberal Meet

SASKATOON (CP) — Delegates to the western Liberal conference may discuss today a proposal that the federal government establish a national daily newspaper.

Jon Nicoll suggested the newspaper would provide news in greater depth than private newspapers.

Discussion of the proposal was not extensive outside closed meetings Friday, but Mr. Nicoll, an Edmonton high school teacher, said he expected more debate today when the resolution goes to an open meeting.

Meanwhile, a Winnipeg lawyer, Frank Muldoon, described resolutions so far at the conference as "bland as ice."

Mr. Muldoon said many of the resolutions asked for government investigation of issues rather than making outright suggestions.

"Most of these resolutions are unworthy of approval," he said. "If we're speaking for the West, we should speak with a clear voice."

The conference asked for consideration of a proposal to provide a guaranteed annual income for all Canadians.

The proposal passed by a vote of 66 to 45 despite a statement by Dr. Lyle Rea of Yorkton that it "smelled of rank socialism."

Delegates asked the federal government to establish by 1970 an oil policy that would help supply Canada's needs of 2,500,000,000.

Bill Dickie, Alberta MLA for Calgary-Glenmore, led the resolution through a panel on energy and resources. Canada was capable of producing at least twice its current volume of petroleum products although oil imports contributed a net deficit to Canada's balance of trade.

Canadian production should at least equal its consumption by 1970, the resolution said.

The resources and energy panel called on the federal government to co-operate more extensively with the provinces in the multi-purpose development of Canada's major river systems. Delegates also approved a proposal that the cost of transmission systems for electric power be assumed by the federal government.

A lengthy series of resolutions calling for government aid was criticized mildly by Arthur Laing, federal minister of northern affairs and natural resources.

Mr. Laing, one of two federal ministers on hand for the opening of the conference attended by about 400, said in an interview he was surprised Ottawa had been asked to do so much.

"I thought this was going to be a convention of people who thought they were being given enough to do or being blessed to," he said. "But almost every resolution asks Ottawa to provide or study something or other."

Late Friday, delegates turned down a recommendation by Saskatchewan Liberals that a federal party leadership convention be called for at regular intervals.

Reds Bag Two More U.S. Planes

From AP-Reuters

SAIGON (CP) — Two U.S. planes were shot down by ground fire over North Viet Nam Friday, the U.S. military command announced today. The loosse raised to 13 the number of U.S. planes downed this week, the highest weekly toll of the war.

It also boosted to 394 the total number of U.S. aircraft reported lost over North Viet Nam since the air war over the north began two years ago.

The crews were listed as missing.

North Viet Nam had said that six U.S. aircraft were shot down and "several air pirates captured."

Earlier, it was announced that a U.S. Air Force flight tangled with two MiG 17s Friday. Both MiGs and one U.S. craft were damaged in the four-minute air battle. It was the first time since July 24 that U.S. planes had encountered Communist aircraft.

Few Rocks Tossed at Marchers

CHICAGO (AP) — Taunts of "nigger, nigger, nigger" and a few volleys of rocks greeted more than 600 civil rights demonstrators Friday when they marched through a white neighborhood in Chicago.

However, the open hostility encountered in past marches in other areas was missing in the Bogan neighborhood, primary target of the day for the demonstrators protesting alleged discrimination in housing.

Police action held violence to a minimum as some 600 officers kept an estimated 1,000 white persons separated from the marchers. Fifteen persons were arrested.

In Detroit, gunfire from a passing car shattered the window of a dry-cleaning store in a racially-mixed neighborhood where racial violence erupted earlier in the week.

Witnesses said the shots were fired by a lone Negro. No one was reported hurt.

In Oxford, Miss., the head of the Mississippi highway patrol and officials of Grenada, Miss., were ordered to appear in federal court Aug. 24 to show cause why they should not be held in contempt for failing to properly protect civil rights marchers.

Judge Claude Clayton ordered the hearing after two civil rights lawyers asked that officials be held in civil contempt in violation of an earlier court injunction.

In Washington, Senate leaders manoeuvred the civil rights bill around the state judiciary committee and labeled it for floor debate starting Sept. 6. Southern opposition was no effort to interfere, noting they had been overruled on previous attempts to tack such a move. The bill was approved earlier by the U.S. House of Representatives.

Meanwhile, Justice Hugo L. Black of the Supreme Court refused to interfere with an order adding about 10,000 voters—a majority of them Negro—to the rolls in five Louisiana parishes. Attorney-General Jack Gremillion had asked Black to delay the order of a three-judge federal court.

MUSKEGON, Mich. (AP) — Five persons were reported injured after an outbreak of violence between persons, mostly Negroes, closed in around a police car in downtown Muskegon early today.

Some 70 policemen, armed with riot guns and rifles, formed a line to block the path of the Occidental Hotel, main hotel in this west Michigan city, and dispersed the crowd by splitting it in three directions.

Patrolman Lee Medema was hit in the face by a flat after he stepped out of a police car to order the crowd to go home. After this, an off-duty policeman fired two shots in the air and called for reinforcements.

Officers arrested more than a dozen Negroes.

To Probe Bridge Collapse

OTTAWA (CP) — Work on twin bridges across the Rideau River in southwest Ottawa, one of which collapsed Wednesday killing eight men, will remain at a stand still for at least four weeks while two teams of investigators try to determine the cause of the tragedy.

Dr. H. B. Cotnam, supervising coroner for Ontario, said Friday he has hired consulting engineers H. G. Wells Ltd. of Niagara Falls, Ont., to make a full study in an effort to determine why the structure suddenly toppled. More than 40 others were injured.

Another investigation will be conducted by James McNair, chief engineer of the Ontario labor department's construction safety branch, with members of his department.

Dr. Cotnam said an inquest into the deaths will be held after the two investigations are complete. This, he added, will not be for four to six weeks. In the meantime, no work will be permitted on the $2,500,000 project.

Dr. Cotnam made the statements after a 3½-hour meeting with Ottawa Attorney John Cassells of Carleton County, Mr. McNair and Frank Ayers, city engineer.

The coroner said there have been "quite a number of construction fatalities" that would appear to be above average for a city of this size."

But he ruled out the possibility of an investigation covering all construction accidents which have included the scalding deaths of two teen-age boys when a steam pipe broke at the new railroad terminal just over a week ago and the March 4 death of a man in the collapse of a building under construction.

Mr. Cotnam said officials said Friday at least 26 of the 37 men admitted after the accident will remain in hospital "a long time."

Broken limbs and crushed chests were the most common injuries. But no amputations were reported.

Roland Lorraine, a resident engineer at the site, said he believes the project's wooden shoring was at fault.

ANNOUNCES INQUEST — Dr. H. B. Cotnam (left), Ontario's supervising coroner, tells reporters in Ottawa Friday an inquest into the deaths of eight construction workers in the collapse of a bridge over the Rideau River Wednesday will begin in September. Russian Leaders Called 'Scabs' By Chinese Communist Party

PEKING (Reuters)—The Chinese Communist party's central committee, under chairman Mao Tse - tung, bitterly denounced Russian leaders as "scabs" today following a 12-day policy review at its first plenary session in four years.

It was impossible to have united action with them, the committee said in a communique reported by the new China news agency.

It denounced the Russian leaders for betraying Marx and Lenin and resigning capitalism.

The plenary session endorsed China's foreign and domestic policy and acknowledged the leadership of Mao, the 73-year-old party chairman.

Mao, recently returned to the public eye after a period of speculation about his health, presided over the session, which began Aug. 1 and ended Friday.

The committee pledged support for the Vietnamese struggle against the United States, while denouncing Kremlin leaders for a "two-faced policy of sham support" for the Vietnamese Communists that it said was really betrayal.

"It said China must be alert against any sudden attack by imperialism, and it also reaffirmed that China must liberate Formosa.

On the domestic front, the committee said the economy was developing steadily and soundly and it urged the people to fulfil the third five-year plan, which began this year, and build China into a powerful socialist country.

The committee decided that the "present situation as regards the struggle of Marxist-Leninists and revolutionary people throughout the world against imperialism, reaction and modern revisionism is excellent," the agency reported.

"Despite the inevitable reversals in the international situation, the general trend of imperialism heading for total collapse and socialism advancing to worldwide victory is unalterable."

On the Viet Nam war, the committee renewed its criticism of the United States and denounced the Soviet leaders for a "counter - revolutionary two-faced policy of sham support but real betrayal" of North Viet Nam and the Viet Cong.

Application By Father Is Dismissed

TORONTO (CP)—Mr. Justice Arthur Jessup of the Ontario Supreme Court dismissed Friday a father's application for a court order to reinstate his 15-year-old son at Cobourg District Collegiate Institute.

John West was suspended from the school May 19 because he went home for lunch despite a regulation set last year forbidding students to leave school grounds during the noon break.

Mr. Justice Jessup gave no reason for his decision. He did however say that the dismissal of the application did not mean he approved of the Cobourg school board's firm stand on the ruling.

The school board ruled May 18 that the Grade 9 student would remain suspended until his father gives written assurance that John will stay at school from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The youth's father, John West, had said in an affidavit before the court that he felt "it is my right as a parent to decide matters affecting my children."

Mr. West said the school cafeteria is overcrowded and its meals inadequate. He said he drives home from his job in Port Hope each day so that his family can eat lunch at home together. His wife works as an assistant recreation director from one to 8:30 p.m. at an Ontario Hospital.

Hondas Win on Two Fronts

Once again Honda motorbikes have taken top winning laurels, this time in two countries.

In Toronto, Mike Manley took the 100 c.c. final in the August Gold Trophy race, setting a lap record for 100 c.c. machines at 1:32 seconds, or approximately 72 miles per hour. Hondas also came in second and third in this event and in all under the old record of 1:40 seconds.

In the Finnish Grand Prix at Imatra, Finland, world motorcycle champion Mike Hailwood of England won the 250 c.c. and 350 c.c. races on Hondas. Hailwood previously won the 250 c.c. title outright in the Czech G.P. last month.

To round out the victory for Honda, England's Stuart Graham won the 125 c.c. race in the Finnish G.P.

Landymore May Be Called to Answer Charges

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says Rear-Admiral William G. Landymore will be asked to appear before the Commons defence committee in the fall to answer charges that he intimidated men under his command.

The newspaper says the former sea operations chief is already being subpoenaed by subcommittee orders into supporting his opposition to government policy of integrating the three armed services.

In an Ottawa dispatch, the newspaper quotes a spokesman for Defence Minister Hellyer:

"We expect Admiral Landymore will be requested by the committee to express any additional views he has—but also to respond to charges."

The spokesman refused to detail these actions but, the Globe and Mail says the Mother sources said the defence department has received a "number of letters from men in the Maritime command complaining that the admiral intimidated them while organizing support for his battle with Mr. Hellyer.

Council Asks Tighter Control Of Aircraft

Belleville city council Thursday concurred in a Town of Oakville resolution requesting the Federal Department of Transport to review its policies respecting the licensing of commercial and private aircraft.

The resolution asked that all aircraft be equipped with two-way radios, such radios to be monitored with landing services.

Also all aircraft would be required to carry a specific number of flares and all pilots would be required to file flight plans for any proposed flight.

Mayor J. R. Ellis, himself a pilot of several years' standing, observed that the resolution's requests were reasonable.

Govt. Facing Second Rail Labor Crisis

OTTAWA (CP) — A conciliation board report will be handed down Monday in the contract dispute between the railways and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. It is expected to confront the federal cabinet with a second railway labor crisis.

Thursday the labor department released the final conciliation board report in the disputes between the railways and 18 unions representing 98,000 non-operating employees. All of the unions have rejected proposals for an 18-per-cent hourly wage boost and are preparing for strike action.

Informed sources say the BRT report, prepared under the chairmanship of Judge Walter Little of Parry Sound, Ont., makes no firm recommendations on the union's demands and leaves the responsibility into the lap of the government.

The BRT, representing 20,000 conductors and brakemen, has already been meeting with chiefs of the non-operating union groups to discuss a common strike deadline expected for the first week of September, most likely Sept. 6, the day following Labor Day.

Most of the non-operation unions have been in a legal position to strike for almost a month. They have held off to take a mailed vote of their membership on strike action. This will be completed about Aug. 20.

Union leaders are hoping to get a unified strike deadline in order to put the maximum pressure on the railway. They are working furiously to put down dissident members who want to walk off the job immediately in protest against the delays in getting a new contract. The old one expired last Dec. 31.

Drought in July Blamed For the Undersized Crop

Fruit Crop Heavy

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Harvesting of Ontario's major tree fruit crop started this week and early indications are the crop is heavy but some of the fruit is small.

Drought during July is blamed for the undersized fruit. However, agricultural specialists say the cherry crop and some early varieties of other fruits were affected by the drought.

Later-maturing plums and peaches and most of the pear crop had the benefit of August rains and are expected to mature to an average size.

Yields of all fruit, except raspberries and cherries, are reported heavy. Frost and cool, damp weather hindered the cherry and raspberry crops during the blossom stage and thinning during the growing season resulted in small cherries.

The total cherry crop was estimated at only 40 to 50 per cent normal.

IMPROVES QUALITY

But while the drought caused some fruit to be smaller, it resulted in better quality products.

Fred Haines, a fruit and vegetable inspector with the department, said there was noticeable reduction in "scab" disease as a result of the drought.

"The dry weather was also beneficial to the spray programs for insect control."

In Niagara Township growers report a bumper crop of small peaches. President of the Niagara Township Fruit and Vegetable Growers Association, J. J. Hobbs, said growers in the area are considering asking the federal and provincial governments to relax size standards for peaches this year.

Minimum size for peaches is two inches in diameter. Some of the growers would like to see this reduced to one and seven-eighths inches.

APPLES NOT HURT

Most of the apple crop was unaffected by the drought and some specialists predict yields will be increased 20 per cent over last year.

W. E. Kaiper, provincial fruit specialist at Chatham, said the pear crop in Kent County, which borders Lake Erie, is "exceptionally good."

The cherry crop in this area is about 40 per cent of normal and the raspberry crop was light.

Harvesting of late-maturing peaches and apples is expected to start about Aug. 20 and the peak harvest should be under way by Sept. 1.

RUBY APPEALS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Counsel for Jack Ruby appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court Friday to overturn his conviction as the slayer of Lee Harvey Oswald, the accused assassin of president John F. Kennedy. Ruby was sentenced in a state court in Dallas March 14, 1964, to be executed. Another appeal from Ruby's conviction is pending before the Texas Court of Criminal Appeal.

GM Confirms Work Force Will Be Cut

OSHAWA (CP)—General Motors of Canada Ltd. Friday confirmed that the number of jobs at its plant here will be cut at the end of the 1967 model production year.

The company cited "the slight decline in the new car market" as well as . . . responsibilities under the Canada-United States automotive trade agreement."

Employment at Oshawa will total 18,800 for the initial production of 1967 automobiles next month, compared to 18,400, the average employment for the first half of 1966, the company said.

Albert Taylor, president of Local 222, United Auto Workers of America, said the cutback is ordered by General Motors to build up a new plant in Quebec at the expense of skilled workers in Oshawa.

He said a meeting of top UAW officials, including Murray Burt, Canadian director of the union, has been called for Monday to consider what action should be taken.

While employment will be down at Oshawa, more workers will be required at plants in Ste. Therese, Que., Scarborough, London, Ont., and the new trim plant at Windsor.

Total Canadian employment is expected to be 32,000 when the new car production starts, compared to 33,500 in the previous year. In 1964, just before 1965 production started, GM employment was 29,000.

A GM statement said employment at Ste. Therese is expected to rise from 500 to 1,750 this fall.

SAYS OUTLOOK'S GOOD

The overall decline is temporary and the long-range outlook for the Canadian automobile industry remains good, GM said.

A spokesman for Local 222 of the United Auto Workers said the union will press for preferential treatment for the men laid off when help is hired at other GM plants.

It is also seeking special seniority for those workers who can blame the loss of their jobs on the Canada-U.S. auto trade agreement. Such a plan is provided for in federal legislation.

The union spokesman said he understands the Oshawa plant will no longer produce the Corvair and large Buick and Oldsmobile models, but only the GTO and 4/4 trucks. This production will be done in the U.S. Oshawa will be left to produce the compact Buick and Oldsmobile models, he said.

New Asian Counterbalance To China Can Be Expected From New Confrontation

By PETER BUCKLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Fresh attempts to build a made-in-Asia counterbalance to the increasing influence of China can be expected now that Malaysia and Indonesia have formally agreed to end their sweaty little jungle war.

Despite the pressures that the West, and particularly the United States and Britain, exerted on the Southeast Asian neighbors to stop fighting, the treaty ratified this week in Jakarta is most significantly a concrete attempt by Asians themselves to settle their disputes.

As such, it is being regarded by Western diplomats as a welcome sign of post-colonial maturity.

The next step would appear to be a renewal of discussions about expanded co-operation—such as a confederation—among Malaysia, Indonesia and the Philippines which form a potentially powerful economic area in the troubled Southeast Asian peninsula.

NOT POSSIBLE

Although spokesmen for all three countries tend to speak publicly of the possibilities of full-scale federation, such a union cannot be ruled out. Before the Indonesian confrontation broke up Malaysia in 1963, the three heads of state held meetings about the formation of "Maphilindo."

Now that peace has returned to the area, meetings are to be held among representatives of all three countries to discuss co-operation in such trade programs.

Malaysia and the Philippines are already loosely linked, with Thailand, in the Association of Southeast Asia, known as ASA. Malaysian Premier Tunku Abdul Rahman Malik has gone on record as favoring an expansion of ASA's work in the economic area to include indonesia.

Indonesia still leave them a long way from the sort of Asian mutual-defence pact that ASA has been considering, to be precise, but there is no doubt that it would be a step in the World's direction. A good start for thinking so is that the Soviet community party newspaper Pravda has already warned Indonesia about the dangers of getting involved in ASA.

CUT OUTSIDE HELP

The end of "confrontation" between Indonesia and Malaysia will help Britain to cut down on its massive defence commitments in the area, since Malaysia is to take over defence in the areas where British, Australian and Gurkha battalions have been fighting.

But any effort to reduce American commitments in Asia will depend largely on Russia's secret, longer-term agreements. Only the U.S. has the nuclear power to match China's growing threat of nuclear domination in Asia.

And only a defensive union that took in such nations as India could be expected to provide an effective counter-weight to China's massive armies. Neither India nor Japan seem likely at present, however, to be much of a prospect for such an Asian pact.

Five Stranded Hikers Rescued By Indians

PAGE, Ariz. (AP)—Two Indians and a white trader rescued five stranded hikers—the last of 28 — from a narrow, treacherous canyon of southern Utah lake Friday.

The others from a school in Colorado made their way to a ranch by trading post 36 hours earlier.

A girl in the party, Margaret Ann Schumacher, Columbus, Ohio, collapsed Wednesday after the group became lost near Navajo Mountain, a 9,000-foot peak on the Arizona-Utah state line. She was reported suffering from severe exhaustion.

Another student and three teachers of the Rocky Mountain School of Carbondale, Colo., stayed beside the girl while 16 other students and teachers made a trek to safety to get their hike began.

Shortly earlier, six youths in the party returned to the post to report the others were lost and running low on food and water. Some food was dropped to them by air planes.

Most members of the group suffered from foot blisters and sore legs. Miss Donnan was put on a horse and rescued.

It was only 14 miles "as the water flows" from Rainbow Lodge where the party's officers Dennis Manoleito and Ambrose McCabe found the five left behind, Manoleito described by radio.

"They were happy to see our five horses," he said.

"Those are a very rugged 14 miles."

EMPLOYMENT NEWS

By J. R. Staveley
Employment Relations Officer

The local employment picture, in general, was good during the past week. The Nelson-Trenton Employment Service Office here preferred persons seeking employment to work in the industrial, construction and retail fields. The increased labor demand from construction activity was especially noticeable in view of the static condition which has prevailed during recent weeks. In addition, the local nursery operators anticipate that the processing of this year's tomato crop will commence within the next two weeks and workers will be required. Anyone interested in this type of temporary employment, either as a tomato picker in the crop fields or as a nursery factory worker is requested to contact the local NES Office at his or her earliest convenience.

The following job opportunities are now available at the local National Employment Service Office representing only a small percentage of the unfilled vacancies listed by employers, both local or throughout Canada.

In the women's division locally there is an attractive position open in the education field for an experienced secretary who is proficient at typing and shorthand. The successful applicant will be a mature person who assume full responsibility and supervise an office staff of four workers. An industrial plant is seeking the services of a part-time typist. The local world consist of general office typing plus relieving on the telephone switchboard during the noon lunch hour. The number of hours of work per week would be approximately 20. Another opening calls for a saleslady to sell a variety of European food items. This position is for regular part-time employment.

SEEK FACTORY WORKERS

A local plant is seeking the services of a few female electrical equipment assemblers. It is preferred that the applicants have previous experience in the electrical and radio assembly field. The anticipated employment period is three months.

In demand are baby sitters, waitresses, kitchen help and housekeeper.

Assembly workers are still required by a new laundry located in Trenton. The requirements call for manual dexterity, to be 18 years of age or over, single and with a height of at least 5 feet 2 inches. This plant will operate on a shift production basis. Anyone who is interested in this type of plant production, which is the manufacture of small electric motors, is requested to contact either the Trenton or Belleville NES Office at her earliest convenience.

In the male division locally, there is an excellent opportunity available with a well-known departmental retail store as a manager of their men's wear division. Some experience in this phase of merchandising is preferred for this position. There are numerous career entry employment opportunities in and insurance fields as managers trainees for those young men possessing a Grade 12 or higher education. One of the industrial plants desires a young man with some mechanical background to train as an estimator. Another opening calls for an experienced automotive parts counter salesman. Other labor demands are for an experienced service station attendant, an experienced reliable janitor, qualified cooks and a licensed Class "A" automobile repair mechanic.

At present seeking employment are licensed third and fourth class stationary engineers and a machinery and building maintenance man. Interviews with interested employers can be arranged at present.

Both workers seeking employment and employers seeking workers, are invited to contact the NES Office, 334 Church St., Belleville.

Hydro Lineman Hurt in Fall

Mr. Warren McIntosh, 21, of R.R. No. 1 Apple Hill, Ontario, is reported in satisfactory condition in Belleville General Hospital today after he fell from a hydro pole yesterday afternoon.

Mr. McIntosh, an employee of Ontario Hydro, suffered back injuries in the mishap which occurred near Plevna. He was taken to hospital by City Ambulance Service of Belleville.

Local Jewish Community Has New Head

Rev. Walter Seligman recently arrived in Belleville as spiritual head of the local Jewish Community. He was born in Hamburg, Germany, in which country he received his theological training. Mr. Seligman held positions in his native country and in Israel and Venezuela, before settling permanently in Canada in 1959. For several years, Mr. Seligman gave instructors and taught German, Hebrew and Spanish in connection with the famous Berlitz School of Languages. His most recent post was in Guelph, Ont. Mr. and Mrs. Seligman will reside at 215 Victoria Ave.

Garry McInroy Of Marmora Hurt in Crash

MADOC — A one-car accident on Highway 7, one mile west of Marmora at about 2.45 p.m. yesterday sent a Marmora man to Peterborough Civic Hospital, where he is listed in fair condition today. Garry McInroy, 21, sustained lacerations to both legs and possible back injuries. Another occupant of the car was not hospitalized. It was said the car left the road and hit a rock cut.

The injured man was taken to hospital by City Ambulances of Belleville. Constable Bruce Short of the Madoc Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police investigated.

Hong Kong Vets May Get Higher Pension

EDMONTON (CP)—Paul Pelletier, deputy minister of veterans affairs, said Friday some Hong Kong veterans may have their pensions increased.

Mr. Pelletier was addressing the annual convention of the Hong Kong Veterans Association, a group of men held prisoner in Hong Kong by Japanese authorities during the Second World War.

He said many of the veterans have had their veterans' pensions reviewed and increased during the last year.

He said a parliamentary committee has recommended that Hong Kong veterans with pensions in higher categories receive automatic increases to about $144 a month. Those in lower categories would receive increases of varying amounts.

Mr. Pelletier said these recommendations will go before the Canadian pension commission in September, when they may be approved or rejected.

Book Salesman Claims Malaria Attack Cause Of Crash at Marysville

Magistrate T. Y. Wills yesterday morning reserved judgment until September 6 in the trial of Attila Clifford Sticklo of Carborro who was charged with impaired driving last December. Sticklo was arrested on the charge after the car which he had been driving from Smith's Falls to Colborne struck a bridge abutment near Marysville on Highway 2.

Sticklo, a book salesman, told the court in Thursday's proceedings that he had consumed at least 17 ounces of rum in Smith's Falls before leaving for home the afternoon of December 10. He said that it was when he neared Napanee he felt a malaria attack coming on.

Mr. Sticklo testified that he contracted the disease overseas during World War 2, and that it affects him "about every two months."

When he felt the malaria attack coming, said Mr. Sticklo, he took a quinine pill and headed for a motel. He said that he couldn't remember anything from that point until after the police took him to the hospital.

Under examination by Crown Attorney Graham, Mr. Sticklo was asked if he drank very often.

"No," was the reply. "I'm on the road six days a week in my job — I can't afford to."

"And so you haven't built up a tolerance to alcohol?"

"No."

HAD NO TROUBLE

"And you don't think that's drinking if consumed at home, or as an hour before getting out on the highway affected your driving?"

"I can't say that it was the alcohol — I drove all the way from Smith's Falls and didn't have any trouble."

In yesterday's session, Dr. F. H. Rose of Belleville, who was called by defence counsel Robert Temple told the magistrate that he had examined Mr. Sticklo for a knee injury, at which time Sticklo had told him that he had malaria attacks. In reply to a question by the Crown Attorney, Dr. Rose said that he had never personally diagnosed Mr. Sticklo as having malaria.

Referring to police evidence that Mr. Sticklo appeared to be in a "semi-intoxicated" condition when arrested, Mr. Temple asked Dr. Rose:

"Are apparent symptoms of someone who is suffering from a malarial attack similar to those of someone who drinks an excess of an alcoholic beverage?"

"Yes."

TESTS TAKEN

The Crown Attorney told the court that Mr. Sticklo had shown breathalyzer test readings of 2.0 and 2.2 parts per thousand alcohol in his blood, and that he found it hard to believe that Mr. Sticklo had malaria on the day in question if he did not experience nausea and other discomforts associated with the disease.

Mr. Temple asked Dr. Rose if malarial victims are always nauseous.

Said Dr. Rose: "Never is anything 'always' in medicine."

Mr. Temple also pointed out to the court that if the breathalyzer readings given in evidence were indicative of a patient, Dr. Rose's reading taken at the time of Mr. Sticklo's arrest rather than after he had been in custody for several hours, would have been considerably lower.

Mr. Sticklo volunteered to have the breathalyzer test taken and the police officer who conducted the test testified that at no time did the accused mention that he had malaria.

In his summation, the Crown Attorney said "This man says he has no tolerance for alcohol, but 17 ounces of alcohol does not affect him. I suggest that as he drove along, the cumulative effects of alcohol caught up with him, and that the malaria story is being used as an excuse. There can be no other conclusion but that he was impaired."

Defence Counsel Temple told the court "I suggest that all these things can at the same time be consistent with the evidence of the Crown, and yet consistent with the explanation of the accused that he was a malarial victim. This constitutes a defence."

Around the 'Cat'

The women's section of the Lawn Bowling Club enjoyed a social afternoon on Thursday when tea was served by Mrs. Mary Watkin and Mrs. Jessie Hunter celebrated their birthdays. These women acted as tea hostesses and brought along a big birthday cake which was thoroughly enjoyed by the membership. During the summer bridge hours have been held and on Tuesday Mrs. Doris McGlashan, Mrs. Dora Eldridge, Mrs. Edna Mackenzie and Mrs. Marg Stalker were presented with prizes won during the tournament.

On Tuesday a rink of Mrs. Lil Mascaro, Mrs. Thelma Hoggibbon and Mrs. Betty Vince as skip won the two-game high point prize for representing Kingston. There were 15 rinks in the competition but only Belleville and Kingston were represented from the outside clubs. Another rink from the local club, Mrs. Vera McIntosh, Mrs. Irene Trudeau with Mrs. Lily Herman as skip failed to make the semi-finals. The girls report a good time.

The boys who journeyed to Toronto for the big tournament have returned home but without any of the loot but everyone reports a smashing good time and looking forward to trip next year. They won their share of games in the rinks and doubles but failed to win the rinks that counted. Two men's rinks are taking off for Oshawa next Wednesday to play in the Gold Cup tournament in that city.

The clubhouse is suitably decorated and the beautiful lawns are ready for the tournament to be staged at the local greens today. It will be a mixed doubles affair and 40 entries have been received necessitating two draws. Two rinks from Lindsay will be competing. This is the largest entry received for a tournament in this city this season.

Snap Election Report Said Speculation

TORONTO (CP)—A published report that Premier Robarts is considering a spring general election was described yesterday by a spokesman in his office as "purely speculation."

East Germans Mark Wall's Anniversary

BERLIN (AP) — Steel-helmeted workers marched through tommyguns and flowers today as East Germany celebrated the fifth anniversary of the Berlin wall.

The parade in East Berlin which opened with a speech by Communist party boss Walter Ulbricht, was part of a rally hailing the wall as a victory for East German socialism and a defeat for Western aggression.

Ulbricht told the massed soldiers, workers and spectators, that the East German action Aug. 13, 1961 "saved the peace . . . (and prevented) the planned aggression of West German revenge-seekers.

"The population of the German Democratic Republic justly celebrates this day. The West German imperialists had a defailed political, economic and military plan for the annihilation (of East Germany) worked out.

"The foresight, the cold-blooded coolness and resolute and magnificent leadership of the (East German) government and its allies are to thank that no bullets fell on that day."

Ulbricht's speech was followed by more than one hour of parading along Unter den Linden Boulevard.

But West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt denounced the celebration as "perverse," and West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard predicted that "the wall of shame" will "tumble in ruins" with the eventual reunification of Germany.

A parade through East Berlin by paramilitary units, a rally and a speech by Walter Ulbricht, head of the Communist government, were the pro gram for the celebration.

The Communists this year are not only attempting to the wall for the first time, saying it represents a victory and a success for the Ulbricht regime.

Find Brazil Airlines Delay Mail

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — The Brazilian post office department says it has discovered that mail bags have been taken off airliners in remote airports to make room for more lucrative cargo.

To make sure the public knows who has been delaying the mail, authorities have authorized a stamp which will be placed on the airline, and take the government off the hook.

The stamp announces that airlines get paid according to the number of mailbags delivered to them and not according to the number they turn in at destination.

Most of the delays have occurred at air fields in the Amazon region, where air travel is virtually the only mode of transportation.

SCATTERED DEBRIS resulting from construction of new house by a local building firm has roused the ire of Elizabeth Crescent residents. Debris and paper, said to have been piled in the front yard about a week ago, has since been scattered by children and the winds. Despite complaints to the builder, nothing has been done about cleaning up the mess.

LOCATION of new Bellerville Day Nursery expected to get into operation some time next month will be the Fahey street building formerly occupied by Stradwick's tile firm.

Lease Building for Nursery, Hope for September Opening

Belleville's new day nursery school, which earlier this year was a matter of considerable discussion, will be located on Fahey street and a September opening is hoped for.

City council this week approved the by-law covering the lease of the former Stradwick Tile Co. building. Minor renovations will be carried out before the nursery is opened. Certain equipment will be purchased and the property split by fencing.

Mr. Dan Aitken, city welfare administrator, says the structure has two large rooms with a floor area of just over 2100 square feet and is about as central as could be obtained.

Access to the nursery which is located immediately north of No. 7 Fahey street will be either from Moira or Harriett Streets.

Peaches, Corn In Quantity On Local Mart

A busy Belleville market this morning offered passersby everything from home-baked goods to greeting cards.

Fresh fruit appeared to be popular, with peaches going at $1.60 for a six-quart basket, apples at 85 cents a half peck. A six-quart basket of blueberries sold at $6.50, with quarts at 75 cents.

Buyers could purchase a four-pound tin of honey at $1.25, with two and eight-pound containers also available.

Corn sold again this week at 60 cents for a dozen ears, and cucumbers sold well at 10 cents each and three for a quarter.

A 51-quart basket of tomatoes could be bought for $1.25, with quarts going at 40 cents, pints at 25.

Eggs were up this week at 70 cents a dozen for large, 75 for extra, and 65 for medium.

A large variety of garden produce, including such items as carrots and onions, was available by both the bunch and basket.

Denmark—An outbreak this spring hit 1,000 cattle and 2,000 pigs. All were slaughtered, at a loss of approximately $200,000.

Italy—The disease is taken as practically a way of life by Italians. Slaughtering is virtually unheard of. Inoculation is the most widely used counter attack but little is done to quarantine stock to prevent movement. Agricultural experts say millions of dollars are lost either from Moira or Harriett Streets.

Belgium—Strict inspection of imports of cattle is enforced. Outbreaks have been checked but about 320 cases were reported from September, 1965, until April, 1966.

Centennial Progress

Belleville has not been dozing over its centennial preparations.

The "new look" Zwick's Island is taking shape and a host of other projects is being lined up for next year's celebrations.

Thursday's issue of The Intelligencer gave a broad outline of the exciting 1967 program in the city. It is going to be a busy year, and without doubt the most interesting period in the history of this community.

The display at Zwick's Island of a Canadian National Railways steam locomotive of the Consolidation series built around 1910 for the Grand Trunk Railway will symbolize the city's role as a railway centre.

And from things commercial to the world of art and music, the appearance of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra next spring may be only one of a number of stage presentations by noted performers. Others include Les Feux Follets, the Montreal-based folk dancing group which represented Canada at the Commonwealth Arts Festival in Britain and has built up a big reputation on this continent and overseas.

These and other projects still in the planning stage will be a credit to the Quinte area. The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, for example, has Centennial plans which will be announced in due course. So, too, have the Mohawks on the Tyendinaga Indian Reserve.

It is good to see such plans gaining momentum and to observe that things will start to hop right from the beginning of the year — on January 1 — when the municipal councils have to hold a snow sculpture contest. This will culminate in an Epiphany Day or Twelfth Night bonfire of discarded Christmas trees.

The work that has been put into Centennial preparations by the Centennial committee and by individual organizations shows that this city has talent and spirit in plenty. Much remains to be done, but at the present rate of progress there is cause for satisfaction in Belleville.

Ottawa Disaster

For some inexplicable reason virtually all the dead and injured were taken to the Civic. True, it was the nearest to the accident scene at the Rideau River gorge, but the General Hospital where more than 100 doctors, nurses and other staff were waiting, received only two casualties. One was dead and the other was slightly injured.

At the Civic, the hospital's "pathetic little pharmacy," as one Ottawa newspaper termed it, ran dry. Supplies were borrowed from the General, and some were even brought from Montreal by car.

There were many acts of heroism — like that of the off-duty nurse who swam the Rideau river to assist in the rescue work — but the disaster taught a hard lesson. Assistant Hospital Director Sydney Anderson described the congestion in the emergency ward of the Civic as "something terrific," and said it was obvious from what had happened that the hospital needed more space.

Supports Beatles

The embattled Beatles, back for another North American tour, have at least one champion in this country — the Anglican Bishop of Montreal.

"It is just a fact that people do go for the Beatles more than for Jesus Christ," said the Right Rev. Kenneth Maguire while commenting on Beatle John Lennon's controversial observation concerning the Deity.

Dr. Maguire made a shrewd point when he noted that in the only popularity poll in Jesus' time, He came out second best to Barabbas. "The demands that Jesus made never made Him the Man most likely to succeed."

Of the Beatles themselves, Dr. Maguire said: "Don't take this wrong, but frankly I have always wanted to see a man set to the tune of Michelle (a Beatle hit). I think the Beatles are great."

To be sure, the group may have come up with some lemons of late (like Yellow Submarine), but clearly Dr. Maguire is no square when it comes to bringing occult where it's due. An Ulsterman, he was the youngest bishop in Canada when appointed to his present position at the age of 39 a few years ago.

Big City Life

A Toronto advice columnist, writing on the subject of discussion groups for unattached people, says she received two letters from a man and a woman, both claiming to be very lonely and anxious to meet others, and both living on the same street in Toronto.

There in a nutshell is what big city life is like for many. It is one of the most pressing human problems of this and every age. Often, however, membership of a discussion group provides a happy solution.

Statistics Misleading

Sherbrooke Record

One trouble with statistics is that they can be used to prove almost anything. By the careful elimination of certain data, the supporter of one philosophy, whether it be political, social, economic or even religious, can prove that a particular bit of statistic show beyond doubt that what he favors is absolutely the best and only policy.

But taking the same set of statistics, with other carefully selected eliminations, his opponent can prove the exact opposite.

An example is the recent report of the United States census bureau which is taken by some to prove that Americans are a vast race of immigrants. No less than 37.9 million of them — more than 20 per cent of the total population — were living at different addresses in March, 1965, than 12 months earlier.

Most moves of all during this period occurred in the West, where 27 per cent of the population pulled up stakes and planted them elsewhere. For other major regions, the figures were: South, 23 per cent; North Central, 18 per cent; Northeast, 15 per cent.

But the proponents of the idea that the gypsy way of life is taking over in the Great Republic would be less convincing if they broke down the original figures.

The vast majority of the people who moved did so within the county of their previous residence — indicating they had bought a home, or found a more desirable apartment or perhaps got married and set up housekeeping for themselves.

Another 3.5 per cent moved to another county in the same state and only 3.3 per cent moved between states.

So what this all proves is what you want it to prove.

Crowded U.S. Golf Courses

Cornwall Standard - Freeholder

Seldom, with the possible exception of a holiday or an occasional Sunday, does a golfer in this region have to wait more than 30 minutes—or an hour at the most—to tee off.

But not so in California, where they have to call up for an appointment nearly a week in advance. And even then, there is nothing certain about it.

There are 30,000 golfers in the Los Angeles area each with a reservation card (costing $1) which qualifies them for a starting-time reservation at any of five public courses. They just have in call a certain number between 6 and 8 a.m. They call on Monday or a Saturday date on Tuesdays for a Sunday start.

But, on a recent Monday, while 1,000 golfers got their calls through and did get reservations, there were 32,000 attempts tabulated that failed even to get through on the line.

Hot Water Rinsing Is Best for Dishes

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: A friend of mine has recently acquired a habit of rinsing her dishes in the sink. She uses hot water but the sink is always dirty with grease rings and bits of food when she fills it. Also the rinse water is as soapy as the wash water when she is half done.

I have heard that not rinsing the dishes causes minor illness and would like your opinion. She certainly means well, but her family's health is more important than the few cents she saves on water and gas. — Mrs. S.

• • •

You're perfectly right. The smears of grease and food particles can decay and provide a convenient breeding place for any of the common germs that happen to be around.

Such mischievous germs are the invisible cause of a good many upset stomachs and cases of diarrhea, and occasionally something worse.

Both remainders of soap, or detergent, and all food particles should be thoroughly rinsed away with very hot water — and anyone can test an enormous amount of water for the cost of being sick only one day.

The best way to make hot running water for rinsing so that the dishes (not to mention cooking utensils and silver) will drain very quickly.

Dish towels, while they make nice decoration for bridal showers probably do much more harm than good. As they get dirty and damp, they readily pick up germs and distribute them over dishes.

Hot water and boiling dishes drain dry is the safe way.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: Some time ago your article on mononucleosis appeared in the paper but I didn't clip it, thinking I would have no interest in that disease. Can you reprint it? My son has been infected with it, and I find very little about it in my books. — F. N. L.

You'll get the information (more of it and much quicker) by sending a stamped self-addressed envelope and 20 cents in coin for a copy of my booklet, "Mononucleosis — What It Is and What to Do About It."

Mail requests to Dr. Molner in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 138, Dundee, Ill.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: Are rheumatic fever and St. Vitus Dance the same? Do they both affect the heart in the same way? — Mrs. I. G.

Rheumatic fever — an inflammatory attack caused by a streptococcus infection — sometimes results in St. Vitus Dance or Huntington's chorea, which is a nervous disease. (The jittering usually disappears as the patient grows older.)

Rheumatic fever also very frequently attacks the heart. The valves become inflamed, and as the inflamed areas heal scar tissue remains and interferes with their proper opening and closing. This heart damage is the serious aftermath of some cases of rheumatic fever.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a medium sized lump on the outside of both wrists. The doctor said they are fatty tissues and should be removed, because they will get larger. Have you ever heard of such removal? — I. C.

Your doctor probably said fatty tumors, or lipomas, which are tumors in the fatty layers beneath the skin. They are quite common, are not dangerous, and are removed primarily because (a) they are big enough to be a nuisance, or (b) they spoil your appearance. Removal is a simple operation.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Palos of Buffalo, formerly of this city, have left to spend some time with friends in Peterborough, Lindsay and Persion Falls.

Edna and Bernice Wheeler of Rochester are visiting relatives in the city.

50 YEARS AGO
August 13, 1916

George Holton, barrister and Mrs. Holton and two children, have arrived by motor car to visit friends and also, to spend some time at Prospect Pt. Mr. Holton is an old Belleville boy.

A Tyendinaga farmer, when paying a small account at this office today, remarked that the money was part of the sum he had received for his hogs at a price of 18 cents per pound liveweight. A few years ago, he said, that he received only $4.50 to $5.00 per hundred for pork dressed and ready for the butcher's stall.

Mechanics' Shortage

Brockville Recorder and Times

The familiar problem of "image" is being blamed for the desperate shortage of trained auto mechanics and body repairmen in Ontario. National Employment Service officials and industry spokesmen say the province is short 19,000 mechanics right now and unless drastic action is taken, the shortage will reach 30,000 by 1968.

It seems there is a stigma attached to the profession in the public eye, particularly on the part of parents. To them "mechanic" means a man in soiled overalls with grease caked under his fingernails not to classy enough job, at all, for any son of theirs. Young people are reluctant to enter the trade and qualified mechanics shift to the servicing, sales and executive ends of the automotive business as quickly as openings present themselves.

The apprenticeship program is another obstacle. The Ontario Department of Labor currently requires five years of working with a certified mechanic and 20 weeks at one of six four training school courses (costing a nominal charge). During training, apprentices earn as little as 35 percent of the journeyman's pay — as low as $1.25 an hour. They are sometimes paid less than the man swinging a broom in the same building.

About the mechanics a year are now being graduated under the apprenticeship program, a rate not nearly enough to keep pace with demand in this easy age. Garage owners say wages are the big stumbling block but that increasing the present mechanics' rate of $2.50 to $3 an hour would be difficult. Customers are already charged an average of $8 per hour for work but that amount is needed to cover not only mechanics' pay but clerical staff, management costs and equipment upkeep.

The future looks bleak for tender-boosters. It appears inevitable that they'll be paying more for car repairs — provided they can find a mechanic to do the job.

Gun Carnage In the U.S.

Montreal Star

Each year there are 17,000 fatal shootings in the U. S. In 1964 a total of 8,000 men and women were murdered by firearms, compared with 34 in England and Wales, where stringent regulations are maintained. Dozens of attempts have been made by Congressmen to overhaul the existing laws. But each time the powerful sporting or rifle clubs, in alliance with gun manufacturers, have succeeded in invoking the cry of constitutional liberties.

One can hope that the horror of Austin will not have been wasted, and now an aroused nation will move quickly. A simple set of figures alone should be enough to generate action: Since 1,900, guns have killed 750,000 people in the United States — 220,000 more than the nation has lost in all her wars.

Parliamentary Jet Set Is Go-Go Here and Abroad

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Travelling's in, politically.

Way in.

Get one of Parliamentary status symbol.

If you're an MP, and mind your party—political party, that is—manners, you get to go to all manner of Faraway Places.

For Free.

With the Treasury—the taxpayers' piggy bank—picking up the tab.

That kind of travel is special.

Not just the routine weekly return air or train ticket or car expenses home from Parliament Hill.

That is merely part of the Parliamentary per package for MPs — one of the fringe benefits — which last year, to read the Finance Department's Main Estimates, cost $386,501.

With $422,000 allocated in the new Main Estimates that year for the to-ing and fro-ing from the Capital.

So nearly a half million dollars to get your MP home and back on a pretty regular weekly schedule sounds like quite a price?

Perhaps. But the MPs — and just possibly a goodly number of grateful constituents — contend that is well spent, and that it gets the elected representative back home on a reasonably regular schedule and keeps him in direct personal touch with those who elected him.

What is special is the Treasury-financed flips abroad.

THERE'S A CHOICE

You may join the Parliamentary Jet Set if you observe such basically simple rules as not annoying your Party Whip, prostituting your Whip, or getting too widely into the Government's hair.

Then you're nominated to one of the many official delegations to Commonwealth Affairs. The Commonwealth Parliamentary Association, the NATO Parliamentarians, the Canada-United Arab — American Parliamentary Association, and a few other variations on this Parliamentary Association theme.

Or you may get to go to one more of the several junkets that the Parliamentary Committees do in the name of the public interest.

Such as the three-week tour of Europe by the Commons Veterans Affairs Committee — on which ex-servicemen were the big beneficiaries — made just before Parliament recessed for the summer.

But of all you miss out on one, you usually have a choice, so can latch on to another.

Like Liberal MP Augustin Choquette did.

Choquette was booked to go on the Veterans Committee's European tour, but the maverick Quebec MP was not exactly made to feel welcome aboard because, among other things, he kept denouncing the "firing" of Queen Elizabeth, the severance of Canada from the Commonwealth, Canadian dissociation from all things British, and the establishing of a Canadian nation in the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association.

AT TIMES, RANDY

It isn't just the free flip that makes political life so worth the living. It is the chance to see at first hand the things you've read of Sakkie, Persia; the British carrier fleet and men in the Ypres area; Italians applauded Australian attacks in the Imola sector.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today — August 13, 1941 — Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt, British barrage balloons and exports to Japan; the U.S. announced it would improve and extend Ireland's harbour facilities; 350 RAF bombers raided northern France.

Unjust?

Robertson Davies in The Peterborough Examiner

Some Americans I have talked with say that they are prejudiced against Canada, and that this is unjust, because they have so much money with them. It is true that we double the rights and wrongs of the case, but I think that if they would understand that English people normally wear ties in hotel dining-rooms, and that sweaters are not worn there in London theatres, their welcome might be warmer. England may be a holiday resort, but it is unwise to dress as if skimming.

Hernando Cortez captured Tenochtitlan, capital of the Aztec empire, almost two years ago today — in 1521 — two years after his small expeditionary force had arrived in the city. Welcomed by the superstitious Aztecs as the incarnation of their god Quetzalcoatl, Cortez seized the emperor Montezuma in an effort to control the empire through him, for he held political control and religious conversion. But within months he was obliged to wage a war for survival against the Aztecs, and captured Tenochtitlan after a bloody siege. The Aztec culture rapidly disintegrated, and was replaced in the new land by that of imperial Spain. Cortez rebuilt Tenochtitlan as Mexico City.

"Columbia Shield" was a popular bread tray of pressed glass made in 1876. Miss Columbia was pictured as a symbol of the United States at the 100th anniversary celebration. It was made in Philadelphia. (Arnold Baker's Bread Plate Collection)

Columbia Shield Is Bread Tray with Pressed Glass

By RALPH and TERRY KOVEL

"Hail Columbia" is often heard, but how many can remember the earliest symbol of the free United States, Miss Columbia. She was drawn soon after the War of Independence. Illustrators were searching for a pictorial symbol of the free new land. The unique combination of an Indian princess and a Greek goddess was the result.

At first Miss Columbia was dressed in pure white. She later appeared in a red, white and blue dress with appropriately colored stars and stripes. Miss Columbia was the symbol of all that was true and good. She was often pictured accompanied by Uncle Sam about injustices.

The figure of Columbia is seldom used today. She was most popular about 1880.• A bread plate made in 1876 at the Philadelphia Centennial pictured her with a classic Greek profile and ivy in her hair. The tray was a daisy and button pattern with stars and stripes worked into the design. The tray is shield shaped.

Q. How can we striped the nickle plating from a solid copper lamp?

A. There are several mixtures available in hardware stores that will strip metal. We suggest the safest, most satisfactory method is to have it done by a plater who has the proper equipment and can take all safety precautions.

SUMMER'S WONDERLAND

"What is the grass? . . . I guess it is the handkerchief of the Lord, a scented gift . . . bearing the owner's name somewhere in the corner, that we can see . . . and say WHOSE?"—Walt Whitman.

* * *

In the northern part of Iowa, we motored along a highway which stretched for miles ahead. As far as the eye could see the flat land was covered with a luxuriant green counterpane of wide spacious fields of corn, soybeans and wheat.

Contented cows nestled in tall grassy fields to keep out of the wind that rippled the low flung gray clouds from which a pelting rain was falling. As we passed a flock of sheep deep in a meadow, my husband commented: "They'd better watch out or they'll shrink!"

Suddenly the shower was over. We stopped at Armstrong—a neat, clean white town—an island on a grassy sea. It seemed to stretch out leafy arms in support of the words of Richard Hovey's poem, "I have need of the sky, I have business with the grass."

WEDDING

HOWLAND — KIRKVOLD

RCAF South Side Protestant Chapel was the scene on August 5, 1966, at 3.00 p.m. of the marriage of Terry Linda, daughter of Mrs. T. Kirkvold of New Westminster, B. C. and Edwin Frederick Howland, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Howland of Middleton Park, Sask. Rev. H. Martin was the officiating clergyman and Mrs. Eileen Moore played the wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. Jack McGregor, wore a floor length A - line gown of white peau de soie with elbow-length sleeves and a train falling from the shoulders. Her elbow-length veil with scalloped edges was caught with a lily-of-the-valley headdress and she carried a white Bible crusted with apricot rosebuds.

Mrs. Carol McGregor, sister of the bride was matron of honor and the bridesmaids were Lenore Everett of Galt and Shirley Varga of Kitchener. Miss Linda Kirkvold as junior bridesmaid. The attendants were gowned alike in apricot colored peau de soie dresses with Empire waistlines, floating back panels and matching headpieces.

Jerry Howland of Trenton was groomsman and the ushers were David Dick of Toronto, Kingsley Doolittle of Belleville and John Mulmore of Trenton.

At the reception at 6 RD Social Centre, the bride's mother received the guests, wearing a beige lace dress with chocolate brown accessories. To assist, the bridegroom's mother chose an apricot suit with white accessories and yellow corsage.

On their return, the couple will live in Kingston.

DETECTS MEASLES

A new blood test can tell within 24 hours whether one has German measles infection.

"My grandfather often related how he and his father came out here, from Ayr, Ontario, in the fall of 1868," a Scots fraternal relative with whom we visited briefly, told us. "They bought 'an old farm and 10 miles from here, from a civil war veteran who had been given the land by the government as a reward for his services.

"There was a log cabin — in poor repair, as the old man resided with old hay for a roof and the Des Moines river a few hundred feet away for water, and the timber along the river for fuel. But my father was busy.

"The only possession my grandfather had when he arrived, he said, was a good wife, four small children, $10 in his pocket and a copy of Holy Bible. I still have that Bible.

"Father would walk to the nearest town, 20 miles away for provisions and carry them home in a sack on his back. Sometimes he was only a Post Office then, served by the Pioneer Line and later by stage. My grandparents were leaders of a small group who established our Presbyterian Church, one of the earliest churches in Northern Iowa

We continued our journey westward.

We motored through a world of green rolling land covered with corn and wheatfields that is Nebraska. How neatly trimmed was the grass all along the edges of the splendid undulating highway that rolls on and on.

Nothing but sky blue was above this soft gentle uneven surface. The grass varied constantly and had a pale feathery blue look; castle dotted the landscape; farmbuildings were few and far between.

"I like driving here," said my husband, "I like the way you have the road to yourself."

Here and there we passed fields of sunflowers as we crossed the state of Iowa. The prairie land disappeared into a rise of lovely mountain ranges of the air becomes perfumed with the scent of sagebrush.

The famed Robert Louis Stevenson passed this way by train in 1879, on his trip west, which he described in "From Scotland to Silverado", (Harvard University Press) and of the plains of Nebraska wrote:

"Along the track innumerable wild sunflowers, no bigger than a crown-piece, bloomed in a continuous flower-bed on each hand and straight we might perceive a few dots beside the railroad which grew more and more distinct as we drew nearer, till they turned into wooden cabins, and then dwindled and dwindled in our wake until they melted into their surroundings, and we were once more alone upon the billiard-board.

"The train toiled over this infinitely like a snail; and being the one thing moving, it was wonderful what huge proportions it began to assume in our regard. It seemed miles in length and either end of it within but a step of the horizon."

Stevenson lived in Silverado, "an abandoned mining-town in the wild hill country," and found in that of treasure lavish the story which all the world knows as "Treasure Island."

But for the motorist, the prairie and grassland yield an abundant treasure of pleasure of summer's wonderland.

Parmesan French Stick

QUESTION:

I have some chili sauce left from 2 or 3 years ago. Next/top this has darkened considerably but bottom part looks alright. Would it be safe to use this or might food have absorbed metal from lid even though protected by saran wrap? Jonnie R.

ANSWER:

Jonnie, would you please include your address, preferably on a stamped envelope, next time.

As you need the chili sauce, open a jar and carefully and completely remove and discard the darkened portion. If it is perfectly sealed it probably is edible but looks unappetizing.

QUESTION:

We were served a loaf of French bread which had been sliced and buttered and heated in foil and had cheese sprinkle on top. Could you tell me how to do this at home? My hubby loved it. We have been married three weeks. New Cook.

ANSWER:

Delighted!

PARMESAN FRENCH STICK:

Cut a loaf of French bread into 1" thick slices right through bottom crust. Blend ½ cup butter with ½ tea-spoon garlic powder. Spread each slice with this seasoned butter. Over a large sheet of aluminum foil re-shape loaf and bring edges of foil up around sides and ends to hold slices firmly. Twist foil ends but leave top exposed. Sprinkle top with grated Parmesan cheese. Heat through in oven of 375 deg. Fahr. or place high over coals on grill, or barbecue

QUESTION:

Have you a recipe for "Tiger's Milk" (the Hollywood stars use it). It is an energetic food and non-fattening. It consists of brewer's yeast, skim milk, skim milk powder, concentrated orange juice and probably a few other ingredients. Miss M. G.

ANSWER:

TIGER'S MILK (courtesy Adelle Davis' cookbook "Let's Cook It Right"):

Blend in liquefier: ½ cup fresh frozen undiluted orange juice, 1 cup fresh skim milk, 1 or 2 teaspoons vanilla; 1 to 2 teaspoons safflower or soy oil. Blend at low speed 1 minute; without stopping motor add:

Successful Living

Victor Hugo Found His Soul Grew As Bodily Powers Began to Fail

DEAR DORIS: Not every person over 70 years of age is anxious to lengthen his (or her) life with a measly few years.

Victor Hugo, toward the end of his long, useful life, wrote:

"I feet within myself the future life. I am rising. I know, toward the sky. The sunshine is over my head. Heaven lights me with the reflection of unknown worlds.

DORIS CLARK

"You say the soul is nothing but the result of bodily powers. Why then is my soul more luminous when bodily powers begin to fail? Winter is on my head and eternal spring is in my heart.

"The nearer I approach the end, the plainer I hear around me the immortal symphonies of the worlds which invite me. It is marvelous yet simple. It is a fairy tale, and yet it is history."

And now a few words of my own: True faith in Jesus brings true joy to the old, sick, broken-hearted and hopeless person; to anyone willing to accept "the Way, the Truth and the Life"—JOHN.

DEAR JOHN: The busy-ness of our days clouds the issue. But let's hope that Victor Hugo's "sunshine" will reach every aging soul!

* * *

DEAR DORIS: Can you please tell me some way of getting your sister to mind her cleanliness, (deodorant, bathing, etc.)?

I have no patience at all. I've tried the "big sister" talks. I've tried coming straight out and telling her to smarten up. Mom has tried everything from talks to punishment.

She just doesn't seem to care. It's getting worse every day. Help! I don't want her to be left friendless and smelly one day.—IN NEED OF ADVICE.

DEAR IN NEED: Little Sister is growing up too. It's not boasting she needs, but a hand reached out in encouragement. How long since you talked things over, woman to woman?

Let her know you think she's tops; make her a gift of a perfume worthy of a girl you know will be a winner.

Then read with her the article "Are You Really Growing Up?" (which is on its way to you), with the idea that you will work on what it suggests, as a team.

Make a pact to help each other with hair styles, cosmetics; pointing out where there are things about you that could do with some improvement too.

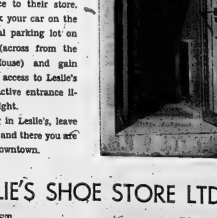
You'll be sisters all your lives. Be the kind that improve with age!

* * *

DEAR DORIS: I have liked this one boy for six months. It seems we are always breaking up. Each and every time I'm willing to take him back even though he doesn't say he's sorry.

Lately I have found another boy who likes me also.

What should I do? Should I always be ready to take him back or drop him for this other boy?—PUZZLED.



DEAR PUZZLED: What puzzles me is how you can be so forgiving to a boy who doesn't even care. Isn't it time to stretch up to your full height and grant your friendship only to persons who show they appreciate it?

Birth, Marriage Rates In Japan Decrease in Year of Fiery Horse

By DAVID BARNETT

TOKYO (Reuters) — This is the year of the fiery horse in Japan and, apparently because of an old superstition, both the birth and marriage rates are dropping drastically.

The 1966 birth rate, in fact, is expected to be the lowest in Japanese history.

The belief is that women born under the year of the fiery horse sodiacal combination are at best aggressive and self-willed, the very antithesis of the Japanse man's ideal wife. At worst, they are believed to be capable of devouring seven husbands each.

Under the old Japanese calendar, there are two sets of signs of the zodiac.

One is based on the Chinese "elements" of fire, wood, earth, metal and water, from which the universe is held to have been made.

TAKE ANIMAL NAMES

The other, also derived from ancient China, gives the names of 12 animals to the year: mouse, cow, tiger, rabbit, dragon, snake, horse, goat, monkey, cock, dog and boar.

Medieval scholars speculated that the characters of these animals and elements could be associated with people born in the corresponding years. Some people were, for instance, wooden cows, or watery rabbits.

With the spread of education, the belief was firmly held that to be born in the year of the fiery horse was bad for girls.

Many of the heroines of Japan's traditional kabuki drama are portrayed as having this ill-starred start in life.

Any single combination of element and animal occurs only once in 60 years. The last year of both fire and horse—known as hinoe uma—was 1906, and now hinoe uma is here once again.

In 1905, 718,200 babies were born. But in the following year of the fiery horse there was a drop of just under 50,000 to 668,150.

In 1907, there was a rise of more than 130,000 to 798,680 registered births.

Abortion was held partly to blame for the sudden drop. But many mothers of girls born in January or December of 1906 registered the births as taking place in 1905 or 1907 so that the marriage prospects of their daughters would not be impaired.

Throughout the years, stories have illustrated the force of the superstition.

In 1828, a double suicide of girls born in the fateful year of 1906 was reported by a Tokyo newspaper. A bar hostess and a blind masseuse, in despair, tied themselves together and drowned.

Concern was so real that a Kyoto University professor checked suicide records and announced that only five hinoe uma girls were known to have committed suicide.

But fears continued. In 1947, the ministry of education decided to make a survey and questioned girls born in 1906. Ninety-five per cent said they had had trouble in their fiery life. But one girl in every 20 interviewed said that she believed her stars had brought her misfortune.

Now, in the age of the computer, the atomic reactor and the laser, when Japan leads 1200 among the world's industrial nations, statistics show that hinoe uma still has its terrors.

In January, 60,772 couples were married, some 8,280 fewer than in January last year.

In February 68,895 couples married, a drop of 11,252.

The decline in registered births is even sharper. In January the rate was 118,177 babies were born, a rate of 20.1 per thousand. In January this year, the number of births was down by 44,210 to 121,967, or 14.6 per thousand.

Ann Landers

Magazine Suggests Various 'Neuter' Names

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You had a letter in your column recently from a lady who claimed she could tell all about a person by hearing his first name (Frank is sexy, Esther is stupid and cow-like, Albert is a jerk, etc.) Your readers might like to know there is a magazine called "Mother To Be And Infant Care" which offers a list of "Neuter" names for the expectant mother who wants to settle on the baby's name before birth.

Some suggested names: Kimberly, Dunezat, Cobb, Brooks, Tracey, Noland, Lindsay, Dale, Wright, Vaughn, and Bailey. Aren't they diffine? sign me — DECISIONS! DECISIONS!

ANN LANDERS

DEAR DECISIONS: I don't mean to knock the magazine, but all those names sound like family names to me. I've always liked the idea of using a family name as first name, but unless the last name gets with it — forget it.

* * *

No kid should be saddled with a handle like Noland Lefkovich or Trevor Papplopolous.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your column on names brought to mind a true story. Maybe you'd like to share it with your readers.

A friend of mine named Joseph Kissinger got fed up with lame jokes about his name, so he went to court and changed his name to MacArthur, who happened to be his hero at the moment.

After a few months he became disenchanted with MacArthur and had his name legally changed to Williams. He got tired of people asking if he was any relation to "Soapy," so he changed his name to Carter.

The jokes about the liver pills bothered him so again he changed his name — to Harrigan. He pulled the court bit so often that his friends are going around asking, "I wonder who's Kissinger now?" — PAUL M.

* * *

DEAR PAUL: Now there's a knee-slapper if I ever heard one! Thank you.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I just celebrated our fourth wedding anniversary. I should say I celebrated it by walking a sick child all night. My husband was away on a fishing trip with his brother.

Andy and I are both 22. I look like 40 and feel like 90. Nothing bothers Andy. He buys whatever he wants for himself and if the bills have to wait he couldn't care less: I haven't had a new dress since we were married. I have been pregnant four times in the past four years. (I miscarried twice and we have two children.) My husband says I don't need any clothes I don't go any place and he is right about that.

What can I do to get him to treat me like a wife and companion instead of a baby machine? — GALLONS OF COFFEE.

* * *

DEAR GAL: According to my arithmetic you grabbed the bargain when he was 18 years old. No wonder you are having trouble. He wasn't ready to settle down — and he still isn't. (Are you listening, students?)

Insist that he go to a marriage counsellor. If he refuses, go yourself and get some help. You need outside guidance.

Lines on Life

Fighting Loneliness

By DR. STUART E. ROSENBERG

We can endure a wide variety of discomfort. We withstand poverty and the perils of physical danger. Yet, life seems to run out into the depths if deep down within us there is a gnawing sense of loneliness.

As children we exhibit the fear of abandonment. We crave the light, shun the darkness. We are comforted when we are certain that a beloved is close at hand. No matter how old or grown we grow, we never outgrow the heart's craving for the understanding and sympathy of someone who cares. We never move beyond the need for the wisdom of Genesis: "It is not good for man to be alone." Indeed, at the very heart of all human bereavement are the aches and pains of loneliness, the forlorn feelings of having been utterly and finally abandoned.

Is there no answer, no therapy for our ills? Are there no ways in which we may fortify our lives against that dark feeling of being adrift on a wide sea, with no one to hold our hand? There are.

First, we ought to understand what causes loneliness. People are lonely because they run away from unpleasant reality. We wish to have limitless pleasure and, often, are unwilling or unable to endure its absence. We cringe before the demands life makes of us. We close our eyes to the sordid, the difficult, and the tormenting.

The tragedy of loneliness finds its effective answer in a single word: love.

But what kind of love? Not the love which is given in order to receive. For if love is only given to be received, when we no longer receive it, we are left all alone, proundly troubled and unhappy believing that we have been rejected. Love must be a free gift; it must be given as a consummate act of faith. What is more: it must reflect confident affirmation of life. Real love says: in spite of my own hurt, I want to help things grow; I want to help the seed take root; I want to see life aspire and achieve. And it says one thing more: "I will labor that life may grow."

This kind of love reflects our embrace of the fullness of life. He who loves in this mature way will never really feel rejected by life.

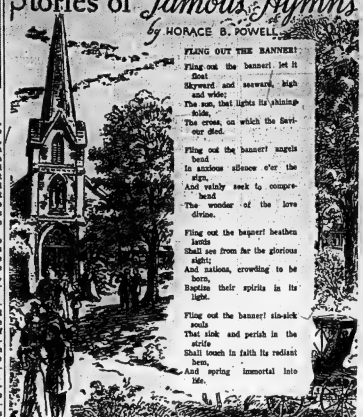
Lighting the Way

By Father S. Cross

THEY DIDN'T GET THE MESSAGE

Cornelio Zucchini of Mestre, in Italy, lived alone. One day he became very ill. Needing help, he tried to attract the attention of his neighbors by beating on his floor with a hammer. He did this for a whole week without success. His neighbors heard the hammering, but thought their friend was just doing some repair work. Finally, Zucchini's strength was exhausted, and the hammering ceased.



At last, a neighbor decided to investigate. Entering Zucchini's living quarters, he found the man lying unconscious on the floor. He was in grave condition, suffering from influenza, a possible stroke, and starvation.

Zucchini's signals were misunderstood. His neighbors failed to "get the message", and he might have died as the result. If his neighbors had been maintaining closer relations with Zucchini, they would have known the meaning of his signals.

Much of our sorrow and sadness could be avoided, if we maintained closer communication with others. But this takes love. Loving people as we should, makes us want to understand them better. Love leads to understanding. By it, we "get the message" more clearly, quickly, and comprehensively.

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

FLING OUT THE BANNER!

Fling out the banner! let it float
Skyward and seaward, high and wide;
The sun, that lights its shining folds,
The cross, on which the Saviour died.

Fling out the banner! angels band
In anxious silence o'er the sign,
And calmly seek to comprehend
The wonder of the love divine.

Fling out the banner! heathen lands
Shall see from far the glorious sight;
And nations, crowding to be born,
Baptize their spirits in its light.

Fling out the banner! sin-sick souls
That sink and perish in the strife
Shall touch in faith its radiant hem,
And spring immortal into life.

Fling out the banner! let it float
Skyward and seaward, high and wide,
Our glory ,only in the cross;
Our only hope, the Crucified!

One day in 1848, girls of St. Mary's Hall, an Episcopal school for young women in Burlington, New Jersey, were planning a flag-raising program.

"We ought to have a special hymn for our ceremony," someone suggested. "Let's ask Bishop Doane to write one for us."

And so to Bishop George Washington Doane they went and the popular founder and director of the school agreed to have a song ready on the appointed day. "Fling Out The Banner!" was the hymn which he wrote. Known originally under the title, "The Banner Of The Cross," it has become one of the great missionary hymns of Christendom.

Bishop Doane, who was named after George Washington because he happened to be born in the same year that America's first president died, was a distinguished nineteenth century churchman. He was only 25 years old when he was called, to a professorship at Trinity College in Hartford, Connecticut. Eight years later he was appointed Bishop of New Jersey.

In 1837 he founded St. Mary's Hall and throughout his life he took a special interest in the activities and welfare of this school. His hymn, "Fling Out The Banner!", was first given general circulation in 1875 when it was published with other hymns, in a volume entitled "Songs By The Way."

A Lift for Living

Marriage Greatest Test of Character

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

So you have reached your wedding day at last!

Today the dear dream comes true. Now the sacred, final word is spoken. From this glad hour the world will know you belong to each other forever. From this blessed day the two streams of your existence will mingle and flow as one, with double their former force.

Marriage is reaching out for the completion and fulfillment in another that you cannot find in yourself. It is love carried to the highest degree, last short of your love for God and God's love for you. Married love is a lifelong conversation that seems far too short, where each tells the other by words, by glances and by deeds that you continue to care, that you understand or will try to understand, that your loyalty and love will never fail when it is needed.

Marriage is a revelation, for it is the greatest test of character ever devised. It offers more opportunities for blunders, for unselfishness or kindly consideration, for fretfulness or patience, for selfishness or wisdom, for severity or tenderness, than any other situation in life. Marriage, like no other relationship, discloses what we are. Beginning this day, you will be exposed to the clearest possible revelation of the flaws and beauty, the little weaknesses and the glorious strength of manhood and womanhood.

But marriage is more, far more, than a revelation. Marriage is a transformation. It makes one person of two people. It enlarges your spirit, broadening and deepening your soul, making room in you for sadness and joy, for tears and laughter, for discord and harmony, sacrifice and gain, struggle and success, for selfishness, concern for others and real love for God. Marriage is an enlargement of life.

MARRIAGE ESSENTIALS

But golden rings do not make a marriage. Neither do civil licenses, or ministers, or altars, or lovely candlelit ceremonies. What, then, are the essentials of marriage?

Your wedded life will be happy if it is a deep and abiding commitment, composed of faith and confidence in each other and mutual respect.

When a married person speaks of his spouse as his "better half" he is careless of his fractions. Your partner in marriage will always be more than half your joy, more than half of your concern in life, more than half of your enthusiasms, more than half your plans for the future.

It is so important that you grow in love as it was that you fall in love. It is so urgent that your love mature and ripen as it was that it bud and blossom. Therefore, encourage love's fulfillment. Shelter it from harsh words and from sullen silence. Warm it with increasing care for one another's comfort, pleasure and peace. Let increasing tenderness enrich its roots and a climate of nourishing goodwill draw forth its unfold ing goodness.

Regardless of the style of your house, let the style of your home be spirit-level, where earth and heaven meet. May the home within your house be a foundation of lasting loyalty. May it possess high ideals. May it be well tilted by truth, fragrant with fairness, airy with delight, laughter, and dreams of a bright future. Let it have windows where the light of love shines out upon a world that is often dark, sorely needing the light you have to give. May the right temperature in your home be maintained by warm hearts.

If children come to bless your days, and pray Heaven they may, may there be time for games and romping on the floor, time for table grace and bedside prayers.

May there always be a welcome at your door, and may you always want to run the last steps homeward.

Finally, remember that a happy marriage is not where two are joined as partners, but three: you, your beloved, and your God. You will need God even more than you need each other, not simply in keeping holy vows but in being what you want to be.

And success in marriage involves far more than finding the right person. It is mostly a matter of being the right person.

Catholics Criticize Church As Part of Cardinal's Plan

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—Operation Renewal 6 Roman Catholic laymen and parish priests frankly criticizing their church.

It is teen - age boys and girls drinking soft drinks, eating ice cream and asking how the church can possibly affect their lives in the nuclear age.

Joseph Cardinal Ritter started the long - range plan last September. Its purpose is to make the second Vatican council's actions and spirit felt on the parish and archdiocesan level.

Laymen and clergy, meeting in archdiocesan assembly, scheduled for sometime in 1967, priests, laymen and members of religious orders who will make recommendations on the mission of the church.

The first step in the cardinal's operation was to see that the people in the St. Louis archdiocese knew what went on in the second Vatican council.

Discussion groups of adults, teen - agers, priests, sisters and brothers were started to study various documents approved by the council. These included the schema on religious liberty and changes in the liturgy from Latin to the local languages.

Committees including a co-ordinating group of laymen, lay women, priests and members of religious orders already have been formed to organize the assembly.

Ten Signs on Single Post

Whatever else might be said about Belleville there is no denying that the city is getting well "signed."

For the past week sign erection crews have been setting up new directional signs along the various highway routes and motorists will no longer have any excuse about not being able to find their way.

There is the possibility, however, that in some instances the city might be just a bit "over-signed."

One example could be at the corner of Bridge and Coleman Streets where west - bound motorists have no less than 5 different directional signs starting at them – all from one pole.

And just to add further confusion the street traffic lights operate from the same standard.

City public works officials said that the Department of Highways had analyzed the traffic and highway situation in the city and had recommended the type and number of signs to be erected.

High-Flying Glamor Stock, Denison Mines, Had Wings Clipped by Low Earnings

By LARRY DWORKIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Denison Mines, Canada's record high - flying glamor stock, had its wings clipped this week following a sharp drop in the company's earnings.

Although other issues fared better, they weren't strong enough to reverse the indexes on Canadian stock exchanges from falling to their lowest levels in more than two years.

At Toronto, Denison plunged 9 to 54. The stock, which has been as high as 60, started its plunge Wednesday on news of lower earnings for the first six months of 1966 of $4,358,000 compared with $6,034,000 last year.

The industrial index, a measure of key stock movements, dropped .94 to 156.05. It fell to 155.53 early Friday, the lowest level since June, 1964.

Loss paced the declined, sliding 1¼ to 21¼. Henry Wingate, loco chairman, said recently he expects earnings in the second-half to be lower.

Other industrials that were down included Chrysler, off 1¼ to 39½, Bethlehem Steel and Paper 1¼ to 27¾ and Alcan ¾ to 25.

Saladia Foods advanced 1 to 12 and Slater Steel ¾ to 34 after Slater announced Friday it had acquired a substantial number of Saladia shares for investment purposes.

STEELS DID WELL

Other steel issues did well with Steico and Dofasco each up 1⅛ to 23⅜ and Algoma Steel ¾ to 29¾.

The base - metal old 5:12 to 22.30 mostly as a result of Donalson's decline. However, Noranda dropped 1 to 52¾ after the company announced it lowered its overseas price of copper to .640 a lang for one year. 4,200.

Western oils, paced by Home Oil, made the only major group gain. The company recently found a large pocket of natural gas in Yorkshire in north central England. Home B was up 1¼ to a high of 34¼ and Home A ¾ to 32¾.

Jaye Explorations was the week's most active issue, climbing 4 to 37 cents on 1,642,501 shares. The stock reached a high of 42 cents but tumbled on news that three drill holes on the company's Yangerda property in the Yukon showed no economic mineralization.

On index, western oils were up 1.09 to 155.08, chiltiks .44 to 187.12, 37 to 114.16 and papers 1.72 to 154.59. Volume was 6,760,852 shares compared with 6,208,226 last week.

Coins Prove Too Pretty; Are Hoarded

ROME (Reuters)—Italy's 500-lire silver - type coins have thrown everyday shopping into confusion.

They are too pretty.

For reasons which no one knows exactly, they have all but disappeared from circulation.

Some people are apparently hoarding them in the belief that their quality and craftsmanship will some day make them collectors' items. The government has tried to counter this by stating that too many were issued for them ever to have a rarity value.

Could Not Hear Beatles For Screaming

CHICAGO (AP)—Beatle fans shrieked through two ear-splitting concerts Friday, drowning out any ideas of censure for the English quartet.

"We love you more than ever," read one sign hanging from the balcony of the International Amphitheatre where more than 26,000 fans watched The Beatles during the two sell-out performances.

It was the quartet's first stop on a North American tour and its first appearance since the publication of John Lennon's remarks that The Beatles "are more popular than Jesus" and that "Christianity will go."

"Say what you think, John," read another sign, in obvious disapproval of the boycotts and bonfires started by publication of the remarks in a teen magazine.

In Birmingham, Ala., the investigator of the Beatles ban, Tommy Charles, station WAGY's co-manager, called off the campaign because of Lennon's apology Thursday night.

'SORRY I SAID IT'

Lennon told a press conference: "I'm sorry, I'm sorry I said it. I never meant it as a lousy, anti-religious thing."

The two Chicago performances proceeded as said a spokesman for the promoting agency.

Some 180 police men were equipped with cotton for their ears and switches "to spank naughty kids." The cotton was used but the switches weren't as no attempt was made to get through the solid line of police around the stage.

A first aid station attendant sent four hysterical girls to hospital and attended to several others who fainted.

The company was scheduled to fly to Detroit today. They will be in Toronto Aug. 17.

Retail Prices For Eggs May Go Higher

TORONTO (CP)—Retail egg prices have been climbing steadily in Ontario in recent weeks and there is every indication the trend will continue, according to federal agriculture department reports and a University of Guelph professor.

Toronto egg prices this week ranged from 60 to 73 cents—16 cents a dozen higher than a year ago. In Kitchener-Grade A large eggs were selling at 76 cents a dozen.

Federal department of agriculture figures show that egg production across Canada is down about five per cent from last year.

Dr. J. H. Pettit of Guelph University said the trend is continuing and for the next several months prices will continue to be high.

A spokesman at the agricultural department here said fewer pullets were hatched last spring than in 1965.

SARGENT FINED

OWEN SOUND (CP) — Edward C. Sargent, Liberal member of the Legislature for Grey North, was fined $75 and costs when he pleaded guilty Friday to flying while his pilot's licence had expired. A second charge of flying while the airworthiness certificate for his aircraft was not in force was dropped. Maximum penalty for flying when a pilot's licence has lapsed is $5,000.

British policemen normally are unarmed except in exceptional cases are arms issued to the police.

The last time three policemen were shot and killed in one incident was 56 years ago in what became the Siege of Sidney Street.

Since then 34 policemen have been killed on duty in Britain—three shot and one stabbed in the last five years.

Your Car

Could It Be Faulty Wheel Bearings?

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

Most car safety guides are too basic, too limited for today's motorist and the threatening traffic conditions he must face. For example, the hazard potential of faulty front wheel bearings is usually ignored. Yet, they often cause dangerous troubles such as wheel shimmy, tramp, vibration, steering difficulties, unsafe tires.

Suppose your car tends to pull toward the left or right. Brakes and tires are the logical suspects, as you've read many times. But a grease-starved front wheel bearing could actually be guilty, and remain undetected simply because this is rarely given mention or service attention.

Or perhaps the car begins to steer hard. So you check for soft tires and if the trouble persists, you vow to have the whole steering system inspected when you get back from vacation. Yet, wheel bearing lube might be the only real need!

Put wheel bearings on your safety maintenance list and they're not likely to give you trouble. A once-yearly grease change is the minimum for the average car.

* * *

S. D. asks: "Is it normal for a car with power steering to emit a rubbing noise when the steering wheel is turned?"

No. This is usually caused by a loose or worn power steering pump belt.

From F. M.: "Heavy smoke often comes from the exhaust of our '65 compact. Is it possible that the car needs a ring or valve job after just 13,000 miles?"

It's possible . . . but it's more likely that the smoke is due to faulty carburetor or choke operation.

B. N. writes: "There's a slight sag in my right front coil spring. Is there any way to adjust or correct this, or must the entire spring be replaced?"

Your garage might be able to adjust the sagging spring with one or two special shims used for this purpose.

A. E. asks: "When front wheels are out-of-balance, what's the most obvious symptom?"

It could be shimmy, wheel tramp, steering wheel shock or bouncy tires.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

When Old Pops Time switches the dial and turns on the Twenty-First Century, sports historians light-pitching their computers should have no trouble deciding the comeback hero of a hell-for-leather 100 years.

Canada's Harry Jerome should get a unanimous nod from the IBM Jocs unless of course Britain's Brian Loudon doffs his lunkmoyer spoon to give his wrath and smile one Caution Clay to earth in heavyweight defeat.

That is about as likely as a Martian hockey team applying for a franchise in the National Millionaires' Circuit.

Of course anything can happen between now and the year 3,000. But I doubt if anything that approaches the sheer guts and determination that was Jerome will give him competition.

His remarkable feat in the British Empire Games trials in Vancouver in July capped a comeback described by his coach as the greatest in track and field this century.

Four years ago Jerome limped away from the BE Games at Perth, Australia with torn thigh muscles and some experts said his days of competitive racing were over.

From the depths of racing and physical despair Jerome rose triumphantly. On that memorable day in Vancouver Jerome vindicated himself. He again reached the world record in the 100-yard dash, 9.1.

In the current British Empire Games at Kingston, Jamaica, Jerome again rose to the heights by winning a gold medal for Canada when he neared to victory in the 100 in 9.4.

But the injury jinx hit him again when he strove for the sprint double in the 220. He tore a leg muscle and finished well back in the ruck.

He now is co-holder of the record with a time of 9.1 seconds with Bob Hayes of the United States and the 100-metre record with a time of 9.5. Hayes, Armin Hary of Germany and Horacio Esteve of Venezuela share the latter with him.

The sprinter broke or equalled the record in the 100 yards fifteen times in his career, in 9.3 seconds, 9.2 seconds and now 9.1 seconds.

His coach, John Miaichiello, says it is the comeback of the century, sharing a feeling with Bill Bewaye, manager of the Universal gymnastic travel team, who said the same thing when Jerome broke the world indoor 60-yard record in 1964 at Portland.

"It hasn't been easy," Minichiello said in an interview. "It is a difficult thing to do, a thing that has been underrated.

"I don't think people realize that sometimes with such an injury you can't walk without a cane afterwards."

Jerome tore a thigh muscle at the Perth Games. He was a month in Vancouver hospital, six weeks on crutches. When he started training again the injured thigh was a full seven-inches thinner than the other one.

Jerome took physiotherapy here then returned to the University of Oregon where he was taking a degree of physical education.

With persistence, despite some pain — and an eerie feeling as he felt the stitches that tied his torn muscles rubbing on the inside of the skin — he trained.

He participated in his first race since Perth in January, 1964, at Toronto. Two months later he broke the listed indoor 60-yard mark.

I WONDER

Speaking of hockey and in this case the Junior B brand, I wonder what Bob Wilson, former chief scout of the Chicago Black Hawks, and now with a Pacific Coast NHL team, is doing in town bobsledding with Jim "Killer" Kathers, one of the brains of the city's junior B squad.

Perhaps he is seeking a tip-off on the winner of tonight's Cheese Stakes harness race. But don't bet on that fact. I asked "Snipe" what was cooking and was told Wilson was here trying to sell lots in the Pacific ocean.

Elaine Tanner Wins 4th Gold Medal

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

KINGSTON, Jamaica (CP)—The finest Canadian team since before the Second World War had 32 medals locked up a gold once to prove its class as the 1966 British Empire Games drew to a close tonight.

Canada's biggest one-day haul — 14 medals—came Friday in swimming, a big in track and and wrestling. Four were gold, six second-place silver and four third-place bronze.

Elaine Tanner of Vancouver won two more swimming championships, GR Noa of St. Catharines, Ont., captured a shooting title in the driving rain and Montreal's Robert Chamberlain took the light - heavyweight wrestling crown.

Only two previous Canadian teams have done better in Games history. The Canadians already are way past their previous post-war best of 43 medals, including nine golds, won at Vancouver in 1954 when Canada was the host country.

In the pre-war years, two Canadian teams—in 1930 and 1934—won more gold medals. Canada was the host country for the first Games held in Hamilton, Ont., in 1930 and won 20 golds. Four years later in London, the Canadians took 16 golds. The 1938 squad got 13.

DREW THREE MATCHES

A late addition to the wrestling team replacing Arvo Wahtra of Toronto, Chambreault took the title without, winning his match, benefiting from a schedule that resulted in the other wrestlers having to wrestle off while the Canadian's three bouts resulted in draws. He also had a bye.

Lightweight Ray Lougheed of Moose Jaw, welterweight Rick Bryant of Burlington, Ont., and middleweight Butch Donison of Regina were the Universal's other weight Peter Michienzi of London, Ont., took a bronze.

The runner-up team member Bos, 42, a former world champion, in the 22-calibre small-bore rifle, prone position, shooting. His score was 587.

Miss Tanner, 18, was due to swim in three finals and Canada's downpour gave her an extra half hour's rest between the 110-yard butterfly and the start of the individual medley, both of which she won. In the medley she broke the Games record by almost 10 seconds.

Elaine collected her third individual gold medal of the Games, something no other girl swimmer including Australia's famed Dawn Fraser, now retired, had ever achieved.

But neither Fraser nor Miss Tanner had to settle for second place behind England's Linda Ludgrove in the 440-yard, the women's 220 - yard backstroke.

That gave her four gold and three silver medals from the five individual events and two relays in which she competed. She set a world record in the 220-yard butterfly when winning the gold and helped establish another in the 440-yard free-style relay victory.

Miss Fraser won four gold medals in the 1962 Games at Perth, Australia, but only two were for individual efforts—in the 110 and 440 freestyle events.

* * *

Her other two golds were from the relay races.

In addition to Miss Tanner's brace of golds Friday, the Canadian swimming team won three silvers and two bronzes.

With the 28 swimming and diving championships completed, Canada was a close second to Australia in the over-all medal count, but the Aussies took the most golds—11. In addition, Australia had 10 silvers, and nine bronzes for a medal total of 30.

Canada wound up with 25 medals—seven golds, 11 silvers and seven bronzes. England, which won all four diving titles, had nine golds, four silvers and nine bronzes for a 22 total.

CAN'T-TOP ENGLAND

Two track and field finals wind up the nine-day Games tonight. England has an unbeatable lead in the gold medals table with 11. Australia with 10 golds cannot overtake the leaders.

In the seven previous Games England won the most golds four times and Australia three.

At Kingston, England has been the only country among the six taking part to have won golds in eight of the nine sports on the program.

At the Games pool Friday, four championships were decided. Two world records were broken by Australians and also one was cracked in a special trial after the swimming program was completed.

One record was equalled, by Miss Ludgrove in her winning 220-yard backstroke effort in which Miss Tanner got a silver.

Miss Ludgrove was clocked in 2:28.3, equalling a mark held by Miss Tanner.

Miss Tanner took the 110 butterfly in 1:06.8 and the individual medley in a Games record time of 2:26.3.

MISS MEDALS

Marion Lay of Vancouver was fifth in the butterfly and Marilyn Carron of Parry Sound, Ont., sixth.

Jane Hughes of Vancouver got the bronze in the medley, clocking 2:34.1, also under the Games record, and Barbara Hommell of Toronto was seventh.

Ralph Hutton of Ocean Falls, B.C., was the big winner of the Canadian men's team. He reached the finals eight times and won eight medals—one gold, five silvers and two bronzes.

Edmonton coach Neill Armstrong said after the game that he was lodging a protest because of a touch-quarter back in the Winnipeg end zone.

Leading 9-7 with only minutes to play, Winnipeg Rowher wanted to the Bombers' Billy Cooper who took the ball a yard inside the Winnipeg end zone. He dropped to his knees as if to concede when two Eskimos piled on him. The referee thought they stopped short they were called for no yards and the penalty cost Winnipeg the point that would have given Edmonton a 10-7 lead.

"We're not protesting the referee's call on the play," Armstrong said. "Being protesting the rule."

Winnipeg was given possession on their own 13-yard line Dave Raimey swept the left end for 36 yards to the Edmonton 41 and four plays and a first down later, Winton kicked his game-winning field goal.

Shamsky Gets Three ★★★★★ Bailey Two ★★★★★

Pirates, Reds Blast 11 Home Runs

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

While Mays got a step closer, the Pirates got a shot of a record and Bob Bailey got a bucket of water in his face.

Each earned their rewards Friday night by hitting significant home runs as the hectic National League pennant race continued.

Mays' home run carried second-place San Francisco Ghosts and Gaylord Perry past Houston Astros 1-0, Bailey's eighth and Shamsky's trio helped Pittsburgh Pirates and Cincinnati Reds tie a major-league record of 11 homers in one game.

The first-place Pirates won the 13-inning game 14-11 and maintained their two-game lead over the Giants.

The homer for Mays was his 27th of the season and 533rd of his career, moving him to within two of Jimmy Foxx, whose 534 is second on the all-time list. After Mays passes Foxx, only Babe Ruth and his 714 remain.

SHARES HOMER RECORD

Shamsky, who entered the Cincinnati lineup in the eighth, gained a share of a modern National League home-run record. By hitting three homers in his first times at bat—they came within four innings—Shamsky joined 35 other NL players who had three consecutive homers 42 previous times.

Bailey hit only two homers, but he added a two-run double in the 21th that gave the Pirates a temporary 11-9 lead. That was before Shamsky's third homer tied the game for the fourth and last time.

For his eight's work in the four - hour, 22 - minute affair, Bailey was rewarded by Pirate Pilant Pirate clubhouse with a bucket of water in the face and a stream of beer poured over his head.

In the other NL games, Chicago Cubs edged Los Angeles Dodgers 2-1 and New York Mets defeated St. Louis Cardinals 6-5.

The Pirates finally won the marathon with three runs in the 13th, the first one by Manny Mota's bases-loaded single.

Shamsky drove in the Reds' last five runs with his homers in the eighth, 10th and 11th.

EXTENDS LEAGUE LEAD

Jerry Lynch extended his major league career pinch - hit homer record with his 18th that tied the game 8-8 in the ninth, and Willie Stargell's homer gave him the margin.

Hits Third In Row

Killebrew Swinging For Homer Title

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

The ball is jumping off Harmon Killebrew's bat again.

Killebrew smashed a two-run homer, his third in as many games and 25th of the season, triggering Minnesota Twins 6-3 American League victory over Kansas City Athletics Friday night.

Killebrew led the league in homers for three straight seasons, belting 42 in 1962, 45 in 1963 and 49 in 1964. His output slipped to 25 last year when he missed seven weeks with a dislocated left elbow. Tony Conigliaro won the 1965 crown with 32 homers.

"I felt like I'm swinging the bat better than I have all season," Killebrew said. "I've hit the ball good at times this year, but the balls didn't fall in like they are now."

In other American League games Cleveland Indians edged New York Yankees 3-2, Boston Red Sox battered Detroit Tigers 13-5, Baltimore Orioles split a doubleheader with Washington Senators, winning the first game 3-2 and dropping the second 6-1, and Chicago White Sox edged California Angels 1-0.

Killebrew's homer helped Jim Perry to the early lead. Perry allowed just five hits, winning his sixth game in 11 decisions.

Two wild pitches by Dean Chance gave Chicago its only run and Tommy John made it stand up to beat California.

It was the eighth straight victory for the streaking White Sox and John, who pitched a four-hitter, ran his record to 11-6.

Carl Yastrzemski keyed Boston's attack with four straight hits, scoring three times and driving in two runs, as every Red Sox starter except the pitcher hit safely.

Robinson's 34th homer beat Washington in the first game, giving Moe Drabowsky the victory in his first start after 29 relief appearances this season. Drabowsky allowed only four hits before tiring in the ninth. Eddie Fisher came on to get the last out.

Homers by Ken Harrelson, Fred Valentine and Jim Landis led the Senators to the nightcap victory.

Cleveland's Gary Bell won his 13th game, beating the Yankees with help from Bob Allen and Luis Tiant in the last two innings. Leon Wagner homered for the Indians.

Casper Leads By One

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP) — Bill Casper's allergies were dormant, but his putter breathed fire Friday and the U.S. Open champion took a one-stroke lead after 36 holes in the $100,000 championship golf classic.

Knocking in six birdie putts of from six to 30 feet and three-putting once, he tried to top it with a buzzing bee, Casper shot a four-under-par 68 over the Upper Montclair Country Club course for a halfway total of 138.

This gave him a one-shot edge over Mason Rudolph of Clarksville, Tenn., and Babe Lichardus, a 37-year-old assistant pro

Rudolph finished with a 70, Lichardus surged in with a 69.

George Knudson of Toronto was fourth with a 71 for 140. TIED HIS PAR

"It was a quiet round," said the 29-yearold Knudson who missed only two greens in regulation and down to save his par on both occasions. He had two birdies, one on a putt of 50 feet.

The game's two muscle men, Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer—failed to make a move back although Nicklaus refused to count himself out of contention.

Big Jack, three-putting two of the first four greens but nailing an eagle on the 515-yard seventh, finished with an even par 72 for 144.

Palmer shot a steady 72, with one birdie and one par, for his second straight 72 and a score of 144.

Gary Player of South Africa shot a 72 for a 141 total.

Galen Cisco will always remember his ninth International League victory in 1966.

The Toronto Maple Leafs' pitcher allowed 10 hits, saw his catcher carried from the field in the fifth inning, and his 4-2 lead nearly slip away in the eighth.

But Bisco finally got the right break when Jim Rusnin's 10th-inning sacrifice fly drove in the winning run as the Leafs edged Syracuse Chiefs 5-4.

Elsewhere, Rochester Red Wings defeated Buffalo Bisons 6 - 2, Columbus Jets retained their first-place hold with a 3-1 victory over Jacksonville Suns, and Richmond Braves downed Toledo Mud Hens 4-2.

100 Attend Coaches Clinic

MONTREAL (CP) — More than 100 hockey coaches from across Canada registered Friday for the first official hockey coaches' clinic ever to be held on a national scale.

The nine-day clinic, which continues to Aug. 20, is sponsored jointly by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union.

Bob Pugh, athletic director at Macdonald College, Montreal, and several hockey coaches have been held in the past on a regional scale but none on a national basis.

"The basic aim is that these coaches will go back and conduct clinics in their own area and spread the coaching and administrative idea they learn here."

Also attending the clinic will be prospective candidates for Canada's national hockey team. About eight players from last year's club will be on hand.

Dan McLeod, athletic director at Royal Military College, Kingston, is clinic co-ordinator.

The Oct. 18-Nov. 6 tour will include Paris, Lyon, Bordeaux, Marseilles, Brussels, Geneva and Basle. Bishop to Become Host of Late Variety Show

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Joey Bishop sat down, a soft drink in his hand, and talked about what is wrong with late-night television.

"Television had a golden opportunity," he said. "But showmanship became an easy way to fill air time. The format became stale. Now there's not even a host."

Movies late in the evening haven't made as much money as they used to, he said, so networks are turning more attention to live programs.

Bishop was taking a break on the set of Who's Minding the Mint? a Columbia movie he expects to finish this month. It is a comedy about a robbery.

When the movie finishes the movie and some nightclub commitments he'll begin preparing to become the host of a late talk and variety show on ABC. Five nights a week, it will be taped in Hollywood.

Bishop will be no stranger to late talk shows. He credits his appearances on Jack Paar's programs with getting him on the road to his present prosperity. Paar often entrusted the show to Bishop when he was out of town.

Late - night movies have robbed television of the chance for experimentation and creativity that live programming permits, Bishop said. He is not pressured by specific persons or formats for his own show and has only a general idea of what he'll try to do.

Bishop's show is unnamed, unstaffed and largely unplanned at this point.

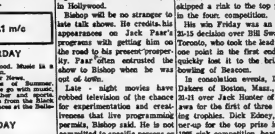
Beacom Captures Singles

TORONTO (CP)—Jack Beacom of Toronto won the Canadian Kodak Trophy Friday night, 1up honor in the singles competition at the provincial lawn bowling tournament.

He has won the trophy three times and is the only man to win it twice in succession. His son, Karl, has also won it twice.

Earlier in the five-day tournament Beacom successfully skipped a rink in the top prize in the four competition.

His win Friday was an easy 21-13 decision over Bill Swan of Toronto, who took the lead with one point in the first end but quickly lost it to the brilliant bowling of Beacom.



In consolation events, David Dakers of Boston, Mass., won 21-11 over Jack Hunter of Oshawa for the first of three Carlton trophies. Dick Edney, runner-up for the top prize in the consolation is specific persons or 1965 rink competitor, beat Toronto's Jack Wilkinson 19-12.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: We have a two week's holiday at the end of August and would be grateful for an interesting plan for ourselves and two children.—Mrs. M., Belleville.

ANSWER: In reference to your letter, and what you have in mind, we suggest a trip to Algonquin Park via Highway No. 62 to Bancroft up to Barry's Bay, and then west on No. 60 to the park. There are a few of the local Chamber of Commerce, camping grounds, and also excellent fishing and swimming. Then you could go to Huntsville, where you could spend a day at one of the lakes. Then on to Muskoka Beach and Gravenhurst on Highway 11. It's lovely there. Then down to Orillia, Barrie and Toronto. In Toronto you could visit the zoo, the museum and High Park, where there is a wild life sanctuary. If you have time, visit Niagara Falls. For booklets and brochures on this trip try the Chamber of Commerce or the Ontario Motor League.

QUESTION: Four of us would like to go on a fishing trip on our holidays and favor Algonquin Park. Can you tell us something about it?—Mr. C. W. T., Picton

ANSWER: Algonquin Park, a 2,700 square mile tract of wilderness, is ideal for canoeists. Portages are numbered and well marked. The Ontario Department of Tourism and Information has planned 27 canoe trips, and the list is free for the asking. Camping in the park costs $1 a day and, for that, customers get a tent site, fireplace, firewood, drinking water, toilets, tables, and, oddly enough, a public beach. For a fee of five dollars the traveller can obtain a sticker for his car which permits him to visit many parks on as many occasions as he wishes, for picnics only. "Roadside Camp and Provincial Parks" is a free booklet that lists camping sites and their facilities. These booklets are obtainable at the local O M L office, free of charge, or from the local Chamber of Commerce. As to fish, you can catch trout, pike, muskellunge, bass and perch. Guides are available if wanted.

QUESTION: We will be taking some friends from the U.S. to Peterborough to visit the Kawartha Lakes. We would like you to tell us something about this area and the shortest way to get there.—Mrs. S., Belleville ANSWER: Peterborough has a population of 47,000 and is the centre of an attractive lake resort area with the Kawartha Lakes to the north, Rice Lake to the south. On the north shore of Rice Lake are the Serpents' Mounds and Indian Reservation. Fishing for muskellunge, bass, pickerel and lake trout is good. Trent University is in Peterborough. On the Trent Canal at Peterborough is the famous hydraulic lift lock, reputedly the second largest in the world, having a lift of 65 feet. The fastest route is to take No. 401 to Port Hope and north on 28 to Peterborough.

GROWING INTERCHANGE

Ramps and overpasses begin to take shape at the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway — Don Valley Parkway interchange. Begun last summer, construction is scheduled for completion by November, 1967. The interchange's 16 miles of two-lane pavement will link the partly finished parkway with the 12-lane freeway.

SAFETY TIPS

Your rear view mirror is a safety device. Use it often.

Why should our son have a newspaper route?

The living is good. Plenty of money, nice home, nice furnishings, another salary raise in sight; we've never had it so good. Why should our son manage a newspaper route?

Most any educator or businessman will tell you why in three simple words: it builds character.

Oftentimes the youngster who grows up in comfortable circumstances and who gets his weekly "handout" from dad never realizes the value of money or the efforts required to make it and manage it, until he's on his own. By then attitudes and habits are difficult to reverse.

But the newspaperboy quickly learns valuable lessons that stick. While making money on a newspaper route is important, the experience of getting-the-job-done-no-matter-what is more important. When through route management, responsibility and self-confidence are acquired at this early age, a newspaperboy has an advantage over other youngsters that no amount of money can buy.

If you're still wondering whether your son would benefit from newspaper route management, ask a community businessman or civic leader, or better still, write our Circulation Department.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For August 14

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Emphasis on security, long-range projects. Good time to examine where you are going — and why. Some stress appears on domestic affairs, getting along with family members.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Be aware of needs of friends, relatives. If sympathetic, you won't be caught off guard. Journey indicated . . . news brought by visitors, or by those you visit, spotlighted.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Check financial resources. Be sure you are not being deceived by wishful thinking. Trust intuitive intellect. Changes are due — they affect income, potential earnings.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Intensified activity indicated. Emphasis now on personal ambitions. Spotlight shines directly — so be ready to speak, assert opinions. Be charming to win way to heart's desire.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): You may find disturbances within seclusion next to impossible. But you love every moment of the excitement, continual! Be sure you know what you are to do — and when. Find time to relax.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Friends may disagree. There is conflict of desire, opinion. Key is to take course featuring change, travel, variety. Don't try to pin others down to final answer yet.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Social activity highlighted. Go next in home picture possible. Have serious, harmonious talk with loved one. Spiritual advisor can help.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Your beliefs are fortified. Now Stand tall. Realize others may simply be testing you. If you intentions crystal clear . . . then you succeed.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): You can uncover hidden factors which advance basic goals. Individualism tried with experience. Don't agree to one. Complete program without studying possible consequences.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): You can gain cooperation from surprise sources. Be willing to give — then you also receive. Project of importance near completion. Consult those who aided in past.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 19): Persons who serve or help you deserve praise. Show appreciation in unusual manner. Remember your health needs. Conditions . . . avoid extremes. Concentrate on pacing, timing.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Your intuition rings bell of accuracy. Be creative. Find individual ways of accomplishing a goal. Avoid methods which are outmoded, shop-worn. Be original, dynamic.

* * *

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for Cancer, Leo, Virgo. Special word to Aquarius: New project can succeed if you personally attend to details.

To order Sydney Omarr's 36-page booklet, The Truth About Astrology, send 30 cents to Omarr Booklet, Box 3240, Grand Central Station, New York, N.Y. 10017.

For August 15

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Creative ways of accomplishing tasks emphasized. In the spotlight are children, ideas, some change in goals. Member of opposite sex could provide inspiration. Keep open mind!

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Focus on interests in home, community. Be aware of basic needs. Don't go too far afield. You can get ahead in familiar territory. One who advocates otherwise is not well informed.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): You can take one of two courses. The first leads to a scattering of forces — it is easy. The other calls for self-discipline. It is more difficult . . . but leads to greater rewards.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Attend to minor matters others are apt to overlook. Accent now on money, discussions of financial activity. Be practical . . . check sources. You could devise profitable plan.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): You suddenly find yourself free of emotional chains, burdens. Now you once again are productive, intelligent in actions. Be grateful! Plan for celebrating new-found freedom.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Day to have meaningful discussion with one you respect. Best not to become involved in crowds, parties or areas of controversy. Take time to probe deep within yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Key is communication with friends. One can help in significant manner. Applies to area affecting desires, hopes, wishes. Fine evening for sharing hobbies, interests.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Diligence necessary between yourself and one in authority. Result could affect job, standing in community. Display sense of responsibility. Volunteer for special project.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Analyze direction in which you are headed. Are you wasting time with someone who wastes your time? You can come to valid conclusions . . . catch up on correspondence.

National Daily Paper Sought By Liberals

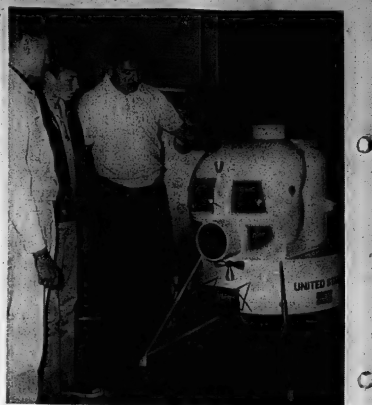
SASKATOON (CP)—A group of Alberta Liberals submitted Friday that public funds be used to establish a national daily newspaper.

During a panel discussion at the Western Canada Liberal conference, Ian Nicoll, an Edmonton high school teacher, submitted a brief urging consideration of a government-supported newspaper.

"This need not be considered if the private press is doing the job," the brief said. "We doubt most Canadian daily newspapers . . . satisfy the majority of their readers, but there must in most cities be hundreds of thousands unable to find the reporting in depth or informed opinion which they would eagerly consume if it were readily available."

A national daily newspaper, supervised by an autonomous public authority, would serve the need, the brief said.

NO REGULATIONS



"We do not suggest that private newspapers should be regulated in any way, nor do we suggest that any public daily publishing venture ought to compete with private newspapers for advertising, because to do so would indirectly threaten the continued existence of private newspapers."

The proposed newspaper could publish entire parliamentary debates, public statements by government and opposition spokesmen and provide balanced reporting in depth on national and international matters.

The brief said it is unfortunate radio and television do not provide an effective means of public education and information.

Daytime schedules of the non-commercial CBC radio network "are almost free of classical music but the stations are listened to by only a small portion of the population."

On television, the brief said the CBC provides only an adequate public affairs service.

WOULD BE ASTRONAUTS — Jim Sloot and John McGreevy, both of Belleville, have the fine points of Lunar Module in the NASA exhibit at Belleville Fair explained by "Brad" Bradley of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce. The local Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring the space age exhibit which is being shown in Canada for the first time.

U.S. Space Flight Exhibit Being Assembled for Fair

Want to go for a make-believe walk jo the moon, or maybe take a peek inside a space capsule such as was used in the recent Gemini flights?

If so the place for you is the National Aeronautical and Space Administration display being sponsored at the fair by the Belleville Chamber of Commerce.

The space age display is one of the features of the industrial exhibit now being put together in the Curling Club building, west of the fair grandstand.

Included in the display are models of the Gemini space capsule, the Apollo, and a model of the weird-appearing vehicle in which it is hoped future astronauts will make their first landing on the moon.

Descriptions of what NASA hopes to accomplish are given with slides and voice recordings.

Other main features of the industrial display at the fair will include the Expo '67 display, which will feature a model of the Ontario Government pavilion and large display by the Ontario Water Resources Commission.

Many displays by local industries, as well as booths by the Highlands of Hastings and the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, are included in what is easily the most attractive industrial exhibit in recent years.

Furnishing Now Underway At Old Macpherson House

NAPANEE — The restoration of the Allan Macpherson house, the county's centennial project, is going ahead steadily, sometimes with a flourish, as when there is a bee-to paint, or to strip off wallpaper or clean up some part of the grounds. Just now there is no spectacular project afoot, but the furnishing committee is working constantly and quietly, locating household items and deciding exactly where they will be placed once the house is ready for them. Some such items have already been received and are in safe storage.

A valuable contribution came last week from Prince Edward County, from the Marysburgh Historical Society. Their project is the restoration of the Rose farmhouse, and six pairs of red and gold damask curtains in their possession were too grand for a pioneer farm home. They are very fine, very bright, and are believed to be hand woven from flax grown on the Huffman farm in Ameliasburgh. The members and of the committee were delighted to receive these from Mrs. William Love, who made a special trip to deliver them. They will be just right for the Macpherson house, which was pretention in its day.

Members of the furnishing committee are all collectors and users of antiques. Mrs. Norman Hutchison, vice-president of the Lennox and Addington Historical Society, Mrs. Hugh Ramsay, Mrs. H. G. Burleigh use them in their homes. Mrs. Selly Earl and Tommy Reidel are dealers in antiques, and Mr. Reidel became so well known that he has been commissioned to furnish a restored home in Maitland.

Newburgh Man Victim of Bridge Tragedy

NAPANEE — One of the victims of the Ottawa bridge disaster was a native of the Newburgh area a few miles from Napanee.

Funeral service for Clarence Beattie, 31, whose home was at 31 Bray St., Cornwall, will be held in the chapel of the Wartman funeral home this Saturday afternoon at 3.00 p.m. Born near Newburgh, he was the son of the late Mr. Charles Beattie, and Mrs. Beattie, who survives.

He is survived, also, by his wife, formerly Shirley Hartan of Marlbank, by five children, Edward, Tony, Archie, Stephen, and Cathy, by two brothers, Robert and Charles, and four sisters, Eleanor, Peggy, Marion, and Joan.

An employee of the Gaffney Construction Company, Mr. Beattie had worked at the Heron road bridge since the beginning of the project. He is said to have been taken to hospital in a pick-up truck and to have been dead on arrival. Eight men were killed in the tragedy, and 53 were injured, according to latest reports.

12 Filipino Nurses Due At Hospital Next Week

NAPANEE — Miss Violet Cambelin, supervisor of the Lennox and Addington County General Hospital, has just received a letter telling her that the Filipino nurses expected here will be arriving the week of August 20. A flight has been arranged for them to leave the Philippines that day, if their visas are completed. No further details were given, but Miss Cambelin expects to receive a telegram telling her when they will arrive in Toronto.

Arrangements have been made by the hospital for the transportation of the nurses to Napanee, if it is necessary, but they may be escorted here by the man who is in charge of bringing them to Canada. No definite arrangements have been made yet for their accomodation while in Napanee, but Miss Cambelin says that she has a sizeable list of rooms and apartments, all from people who have phoned in the information. Some of these may not be available by the time the nurses arrive. In all probability they will first be taken to a motel, and given the list so they can make their own arrangements. People have been very kind in offering their hospitality, Miss Cambelin says.

She herself is looking forward to the arrival of the 12 new members for the nursing staff, as she has had experience with them in other hospitals and has found them to be good nurses and highly qualified. They are screened before being selected to come to Canada, and one of the qualifications is that they must speak and write English fluently. Personality is still another factor which is taken into consideration.

The nurses who are coming are eager to learn our ways, she says, and, in time, many of them will find their way back to their homeland. Miss Cambelin considers its a healthy attitude on the part of the girls, who are more or less continuing their education in an informal way. Some may remain here permanently, but the Phillipines are developing so rapidly that some may feel that there is a bright future for them at home.

Wooden Shoring Believed Cause Of Disaster

OTTAWA (CP) — A resident engineer at the Heron Road bridge, which collapsed Wednesday claiming eight lives and injuring more than 30 workers, said Friday he believes the project's wooden shoring was at fault.

Roland Loretan, engineer at the construction site for M. M. Dillon Ltd., consulting engineers, said the shoring should have been strong enough to support "anything."

Mr. Loretan, junior to Leonard Baird, Dillon's senior resident engineer at the site, who died in the collapse, discounted speculation that improperly cured concrete, unusually bad weather or rushing the job caused the tragedy.

"Certainly, these may have been contributing factors.

"But it is the job of the falsework to support the span until the concrete is dry and the steel reinforcing rods that run through it are tightened and stressed."

The falsework is the mass of wooden shoring built to support the span during pouring of concrete. The bridge's falsework was designed and built by contractor O. J. Gaffney Ltd., but it had to be approved by Mr. Loretan's firm, which designed the $2,380,000 bridge.

Airlines Strike Near End

WASHINGTON (AP)—A settlement agreement in the airlines strike was announced today, subject to a vote of approval by 32,000 strikers against five major airlines.

Assistant Labor Secretary James J. Reynolds said in announcing the tentative contract agreement that a vote by the striking members of the International Association of Machinists (AFL-CIO) would be held "promptly and hopefully tomorrow."

Union president P. L. (Roy) Siemiller said members of the strikers around the U.S. would be called as soon as possible to explain the terms of the agreement and take a vote to possibly end the strike, now in its 38th day.

Terms of the contract agreement were kept secret pending the vote but industry estimates placed the total three-year cost at some $90,000,000, or about eight per cent a year. Top mechanics now make $3.52 an hour, plus fringe benefits that bring a total to around $4 an hour.

Reynolds called the agreement a "memorandum of understanding" and emphasized it was not final until approved by the strikers who voted down a previous agreement negotiated in the White House.

NO PREMIUM

If approved by the striking mechanics, it would bring an end to the long, costly strike, but Siemiller declined to predict the outcome of the vote.

The settlement in addition to containing considerably higher wages and benefits than the rejected White House package also was reported to contain a cost-of-living-wage escalator clause.

The wage escalator had been one of the union's most vital demands from the beginning of the long dispute and its absence in the earlier agreement was a reason given by strikers in many areas for turning down the White House agreement July 31.

Reynolds said the agreement covered all the major issues affecting strikers on the five airlines — United, Eastern, National, Northwest and Trans World—plus all local issues on the individual lines.

The agreement also provided for "orderly return to work procedures" — apparently referring to non-reprisal guarantees by the airlines.

The strike so far has cost the airlines an estimated $300,000,000 in revenue losses. The 36,400 striking and another 30,000 employees laid off have lost upwards of $60,000,000 in wages.

The agreement, obtained by the White House wage guideline figure of 3.2 per cent which the Johnson administration has emphasized in the past as a weapon against inflation.

Today's Chuckle

Wouldn't it be nice if you could go to the movies and see a picture as good as the one that's coming next week?

BANCROFT, Ont. (CP)—Two of five Tolled Sixties rock dealers whose vehicles and rock collections were seized Friday by RCMP officers have voluntarily paid fines and all have had their vehicles returned, an RCMP spokesman said Sunday.

However, the five men still are to meet today with Canadian customs officials.

The seizures took place at a Gemboree—a four-day festival which has attracted rock collectors and dealers from the U.S. and Canada. Six plainclothes RCMP officers took part in the raid.

Inspector W. G. Lambert said each item is examined in a separate tax classification and percentages range between 7½ and 15.

MADE SALES

"These people were selling these rocks, semi-precious stones and jewelry, and in some cases tools they used in the trade, such as chipping tools," the inspector said.

"When we checked we found some items which had not been properly entered through customs. It is all right to bring in rocks for display purposes, but when they're for sale, they're subject to taxes."

The taxes and penalties are subject to review by the customs and excise branch of the department of revenue, the inspector said.

One of the five dealers, H. W. Eckert of Denver, Colo., said he was being fined "for the stupidity of Canadian customs officials."

The five said they thought they had complied with all Canadian customs regulations when they entered the country.

In Ottawa, H. K. Hawkins, chief of the department of national revenue for customs said the five will be given an opportunity to protest the seizures.

"There is a complete investigation after every seizure and we will make whatever adjustment is necessary," he added.

Customs legislation permits police to seize goods and vehicles used in transporting them if there is suspicion that a customs regulation has been violated, Mr. Hawkins said.

The third annual Gemboree has brought an estimated 3,500 persons daily to this community, 60 miles northeast of Peterborough.

Sery. H. J. Maloney, chairman of the Bancroft Chamber of Commerce industrial committee, told Ontario Attorney-General Arthur Wishart and Premier Paul Martin of the incident and was promised an investigation.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Warmer air now returning over the lower Lakes region will create a rather unsettled weather situation for the next few days. Thunderstorm showers ripple along the line separating cool air now over the Northern areas and warm air moving sluggishly northward from southern states.

Some sunshine is expected in southern Ontario and fog will lift but tonight and Tuesday widespread showers and thunderstorms are anticipated.

LARGE CROWD ON HAND

The crowd was easily one of the biggest if not a record opening night assemblage. Prior to the opening ceremonies it was entertained by the colorful Field Drums and Bugles of Canadian Armed Forces Station, Trenton.

The band gave a tuneful concert climaxed with a smart precision drill and other manoeuvres to the skirl of the pipes. It received a fine ovation at the conclusion of the performance.

Opening the Fair on the Saturday preceding the regular four day exhibit is the first in its history.

It was featured by the third running of the Black Diamond Cheese Stakes which marked the evening program of harness racing.

Lieut.-Governor Rowe and his party saw the exciting finish of the event and presented the winner "Scamp Ogden" and its owner, Graham McKitrick of Peterborough, with the handsome Stakes Trophy through driver Ray Lowery.

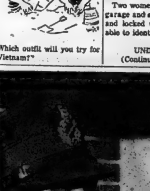
Today the fair got into full stride with "Children's Day".

Tonight motorcycle races are the entertainment feature while Saturday's races will be staged the remaining three nights.

Then, of course, there are the exhibits and the Midway.

Mistakes Kill More Villagers

SAIGON (AP) — Military spokesman reported today two more apparently mistaken attacks on friendly villages in South Viet Nam.



In the first, five villagers were reported killed and 25 wounded in the Mekong Delta Friday. In the second, four civilians were killed and 36 wounded Saturday in the northern part of the demilitarized zone between North and South Viet Nam.

Two other erroneous attacks last week had been reported earlier.

The circumstances of the attack in the Mekong Delta were not clear. A U.S. military spokesman said it had not been determined whether the casualties were caused by aircraft or artillery, but said the villagers were caught in an action involving South Vietnamese ground forces and supporting aircraft and artillery.

One unconfirmed report said a helicopter gunship was in-

Underworld Aids Search For Killers

LONDON (AP)—Armed police flying squads made a series of raids early today after a plea by Scotland Yard's chief to the underworld for help in tracking down the killers of three policemen.

Detectives struck at a number of houses in South and West London in hunting for three men on tips reported to have come from the underworld.

There long has been an unwritten understanding between the Yard and experienced criminals in Britain against carrying guns.

Sir Joseph Simpson, metropolitan police commissioner who heads Scotland Yard, said in a dramatic call for help from everyone in solving the triple murder that has shocked Britain:

"Some of the most persistent criminals don't stand for this sort of thing and sometimes we get such help from them. I would welcome such help now."

MEN VANISH

Meanwhile, Scotland Yard kept an around-the-clock watch of the homes of two men believed members of the gang that killed the unarmed policemen. Both men have vanished.

The tip on the names of the two men came while Simpson was holding his press conference. A man who handed up a back staircase of the Shepherd's Bush police station with his face shielded. He gave a statement concerning the names to detectives.

Within minutes detectives raided a house in West London. One of the two men had disappeared. He and a friend had left home hurriedly Saturday—the day after three detectives were gunned down in a London street.

The other man, whose house in Northeast London also was raided, has not been seen since Friday.

WATCH CLUBS

Besides posting men at their homes, police also put the clubs they frequented and the homes of their friends and associates under observation.

The police said a man at Shepherd's Bush since Friday helping with the investigation.

This man is the owner of the auto concerned in the killings for £15 ($45) only three hours before the murders.

The auto was found Sunday in a garage under a railway arch near Waterloo Station in Lambeth, South London, about five miles from the murder scene. Experts immediately examined the vehicle.

The auto was towed to a laboratory where scientists will search it or dust, fibres, hairs —anything which could point to the men who were in the vehicle at the time of the murder.

Two women who live near the garage and saw the car drive in and locked up Friday may be able to identify members of the gang.

Chicago Whites Riot

CHICAGO (AP) — Club - swinging police were bombarded with curses, bottles and rocks as they clashed Sunday night with hundreds of whites protesting marches by civil rights supporters. At least 38 persons were injured and 32 arrested. Five of the injured were police.

The outbreaks followed three separate parades earlier by some 1,200 civil rights advocates protesting alleged discrimination by real estate firms.

One march was held on the northwest side and two within blocks of Marquette Park, an expanse of grass and playgrounds where whites, spurred by an American Nazi party rally, baited police with chants of "nigger lover," and stoned automobiles occupied by Negroes.

A busload of police arriving at Marquette Park were greeted by bools and profanities. A barrage of beer bottles came from the crowd. Several struck the bus and one smashed a window, showering the police with glass!

The police rushed from the bus firing shots in the air as they pursued the fleeing crowd. Police made several arrests, returned to the bus, were taunted once more, and the scene repeated itself.

Civil rights leaders announced they would meet tonight to discuss plans for the next demonstration.

50,000 Chinese Laboring To Repair Viet Nam Roads

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. bombing of North Viet Nam has forced an estimated 50,000 Chinese laborers across the border to keep road and rail supply lines operating, U.S. authorities say.

Authorities also assume that, in addition to the Chinese laborers in North Viet Nam, more may be working to keep the Ho Chi Minh trail through Laos in operation.

Unknown thousands of Vietnamese laborers are involved in maintaining the trail. This is partially true of those on parts of the sprawling jungle - covered route that have been provided surface base enough for trucks.

At one time, almost 30,000 Chinese and North Vietnamese were being used to keep the Mu Gia Pass open. The pass, some 50 miles above the 17th parallel, is a key point in the supply line from Laos and South Viet Nam, and the North Vietnamese have kept it open despite intensive bombing.

The Communists stretch a labor force along railways with sandbags and crude tools. Restoration work starts within minutes after the bombers leave. If the bombers come back, the process begins again.

Most of the Chinese now employed in North Viet Nam are believed to be strung out along the two major rail lines leading north from Hanoi.

One line runs northwest along the Red River Valley to Kunming, the Chinese terminus of the Burma road. Another runs due north in the Chinese border past above Lang Son, one of the first vital points wrested from the French by the Viet Minh during the French effort to hold Indochina. It is also paralleled by a highway.

Both rail lines undergo daily poundings from the air force, but there evidently has been no systematic effort to wreck them completely since the amount of traffic on these lines is questionable with most supplies for Hanoi coming in through the port of Haiphong.

Legislation

OTTAWA (CP)—In a rare unanimous report, a federal conciliation board today invited the government to introduce legislation to resolve a deadlock between the railways and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen over the critical issue of automation's effect on jobs and working conditions.

"We believe that the differing viewpoints will not be resolved by negotiation," the report said. "The only alternative therefore is legislation."

Four Homes of Non-Union Napanee Workers Damaged

NAPANEE, Ont. (CP) — Police are investigating damage to the homes of four non-union workers who have crossed picket lines at the strikebound plant at Millhaven Fibres Ltd. in this town 25 miles west of Kingston.

Stones were thrown through the windows of homes owned by Mrs. Arthur Kelly, Donald Pringle and Kenneth Scrivens, all of Napanee, and Paul Dudgeon of nearby Selby.

Police chief Harry Benn also has received complaints of picket splashing at several non-union workers' homes and of threatening telephone calls to residents during the night.

Union workers at the plant, members of Local 9870, Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union, went on strike at Millhaven, a subsidiary of Canadian Industries Ltd., July 12 after CIL turned down a wage increase demand of 45 cents an hour.

Picket line incidents have increased tension and the union has a photographer posted at the plant entrance to record what the pickets say "scab" offence against members.

A plant security guard, posted at the Pringle house after Mrs. Pringle was threatened in a parking lot, chased a car with three occupants after rocks were thrown at the house. The guard told police he also heard two gun shots.

A meeting between company and union officials was held last week and a second is scheduled for Wednesday.

Percy Graham And Wife Win Watkin Trophy

Mixed doubles rinks from the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club took top honors in the tournament staged for the Watkin Memorial trophy on the local greens on Saturday. This trophy was donated by the Watkin family in memory of Gordon Watkin, who died suddenly and who was one of the great bowlers developed in the club.

There were 40 entries in the tourney, one of the largest this season and in all, 10 sets of rinks included practically every club in the district and many outside. Percy Graham and his wife, Phyllis, won the trophy with a score of 54 plus nine and incidentally Mrs. Graham was on the rink with Mr. "Ab" Hutchinson when they won the Morley Gait Memorial trophy a week ago. In second place were Mrs. Grace Clapp and Frank Morrell with a score of 53 plus six while Austin Watkin and his eldest daughter, Wendy, were third with a score of 50. Bill Duncan junior and Miss Dawn Watkin, daughter of the late Gordon Watkin were in fourth place with 49 plus four and Mrs. Bill Duncan, senior, followed with 45. All of these rinks were from three games. The last two named rinks were entered from Kingston.

Mrs. Kitty Ovens and Morley Gait of Kingston won the two game high with a big score of 50 plus two while Mr. and Mrs. Ed Muir of Whitby won the one-game high count with a score of 43. Mrs. Lottie McAdoo with Bill Piercy of Kingston had the no-game high count of 27.

During the day the women's section of the club served light refreshments of sandwiches, pies and coffee and did a rushing business. The green's were in excellent condition and the bowlers enjoyed perfect weather for their tournament.

Alleys of Fun, Rides Ready for Fairgoers At the Conklin Midway

The twin corridors, the Great White Ways of the annual exhibition, outreek any of their predecessors for color, entertainment and variety of presentation.

Conklin, the Master of the Midway, is again well ahead of carnival trend this year.

The alleys of fun, old as circuses itself, offer tested and outside attractions that easily compare with the best seen there.

Many units comprise the rides, tented attractions and concessions.

Along the tented avenues, patrons will find varied amusements, something old and something very new.

The risks of rides offers a variety of thrills from the time-honored merry-go-round and ferris wheel, to ultra-modern rocket age gadgets.

Conklin has ingeniously welded education, entertainment and freaks of nature, music and dancing into the tented part of the midway.

They're back again in all their colorful garb; the insistent voices of the barkers, "live" and otherwise; the lively competition of various attractions; the noise and the people.

KIDDY-LAND FEATURE

A boon to parents inaugurated by Conklin sixteen years ago is "Kiddy-Land" a miniature rides entity arranged for the children.

There Mom and Pop can leave Billie Joe and Jane to their own fun under the watchful eyes of careful attendants while they enjoy the "big" Midway and the Fair.

There is everything here from the ubiquitous merry-go-round to an airborne bombers.

If Junior desires a military thrill, he can ride the armored tank, shoot down imaginary enemies and play make-believe soldier.

If he is sportsminded, he can pilot a miniature racing car around a whirling track; drive a baby hydroplane motor boat, or enjoy his own train ride in a slowly moving train complete with locomotive, passenger cars and pullmans.

Always a delight to the kiddies are the swings. These are somewhat different but none-the-less safe and highly amusing.

Then there's the throwback to grandpa's days, something the youngsters will enjoy. It is the new, horse-and-buggy ride, old style new in children entertainment.

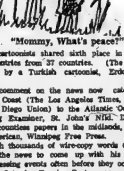
MANY THINGS TO WIN

In concessions rows you can win teddy bears, dolls and other assorted prizes. You can pitch baseballs, toss pennies, hurl rings, shoot rifles, and play the wheels, among a dozen other various attractions of skill and luck.

You can play bingo, eat candy floss, chew on candied apples, "doctipick" French fries, gobble hot dogs and hamburgs — and there are places where you can secure a full-course dinner.

The Midway is here in all its glory. Nothing has been left out. It will be here for three more days, bigger and better than ever.

ATTITUDE COUNTS



EDMONTON (CP)—Parental encouragement is more important than money in determining who continues his education, according to a study by the department of education. A questionnaire of 25,000 grade 11 and 12 students in Alberta found that only one boy in 10 and one girl in seven of high school age did not plan further education.

'First Call' Cartoonist Wins International Prize

Ben Wicks, incisive, witty Telegram News Service cartoonist, has been named a prize-winner in the third International Salon of Caricature at Montreal.

Mr. Wicks' cartoons "First Call" run in 60 North American newspapers as a one panel pertinent comment on the day's news. They appear on the front page of the Intelligencer.

The one which won him his prize showed a Vietnamese child asking her mother: "Mommy, What's peace?"

"Mommy, What's peace?"

He and four other cartoonists share in the contest which drew 210 entries from 37 countries. (The top grand prize was won by a Turkish cartoonist, Erdogan Ozer.)

The pertinent daily comment on the news now catches readers from the Pacific Coast (The Los Angles Times, San Francisco Examiner, San Diego Union) to the Atlantic Coast (Portland Maine Evening Examiner, St. John's Nfld. Daily News.)

In addition to countless papers in the midlands, Detroit News, Chicago's American, Winnipeg Free Press.

By winnowing through thousands of wire-copy words each day he keeps on top of the news to come up with his succinct observations—eye-gunning events often before they occur. Wicks' cartoons appear in Saturday Evening Post, among other magazines.

And as a former cartoon editor of the Post, David A. Lyle, once said: "I regard him as a cartoonist of great professionalism and unusual originality."

Mrs. Geraldine Wensley, A.C.C.M. TEACHER OF PIANO and THEORY ANNOUNCES THE RE-OPENING Of classes in music instruction. Applications for enrolment now being taken. For further information PHONE 962-8842

SAMPLE OF THRILLS — to be expected on Conklin's Midway at the Belleville Fair is suggested in name of this attraction. Fair secretary Ev Gowsell (right foreground) and midway worker discuss preparation of the sideshow attraction.

A marvellous husband,
A wonderful dear boy,
The day I lost him,
I wish you were here.

Two weary hands are still,
A heart that loved us dearly
Is resting from all ill.

Find Being Son of a Star Is Both Help and Handicap

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Is being a star's son a help or a handicap to a young actor?

Both, say Noel Harrison and Randy Kirby.

Noel, 22, singer, actor, Olympic skier and son of Rex Harrison, adds: "For a while I thought I'd never have an identity of my own. Then I realized most clearly that part of my identity is being Rex Harrison's son."

Says Randy, 22, stage actor, radio and television commercial performer and son of TV's Durward Kirby: "It's no longer a handicap. Now it's a help."

The two sons are working together in the first television series for both — The Girl from U.N.C.L.E., an outgrowth of the man from same.

Harrison, whose acting heretofore was in repertory and hit parts of five British movies, plays a secret agent who with Stefanie Powers battles the evil forces of THRUSH. Young Kirby plays a trainee spy.

BROKE HIS NOSE

Each only slightly resembles his father. The London - born Harrison has a shaggy, dark blonde hair, large blue eyes and gracious manners. His nose was broken in skiing, a sport in which he represented Britain at the 1952 and 1956 Olympic Games.

His parents were divorced when he was six, but he calls his father, since married three times, "a good friend." Did Rex Harrison give him any advice?

"He advised me at some length, when I was 12, not to go into show business — then probably decided I wasn't going to take his advice."

Of having a famous father, Noel said: "Through much of my life it was a handicap which I imposed on myself. Then I realized it was a great help. People remember your name, and you can get in anywhere."

The Kirby family moved from Randy's native Chicago to New York along with his father's radio-TV career. Randy acted in school plays at Westchester's Bronxville high and since has stage-acted for five years.

"The first year I used another name, Randy Young, because I didn't want anybody to think I got the job because I was Durward Kirby's son," said the son. He reverted back to the family name because "I've always been extra proud of my father."

Durward Kirby's fatherly advice?

"He told me to treat acting like a business, and if he ever found I couldn't put on the same size hat he'd cut my head off. Also, he said: 'Save your money'."

Home Truths

RCMP Commissioner George B. McClellan believes the fight against crime on this continent is being lost. He says law enforcement is not even holding its own.

In a remarkable address to the American Bar Association's annual meeting in Montreal, the chief of Canada's elite force said it is becoming increasingly obvious that present law-enforcement measures are not effective. Many senior police officers feel that the scales of justice have sagged too much on the side of the criminal, at the expense of society's right to be protected.

"There are many of us who believe that that basic right is being chipped at, chiseled away and eroded."

While acknowledging that the individual citizen's rights should be protected and that any police officer who violated such rights should be dealt with, Commissioner McClellan added, "but don't tie another legal ball and chain to the leg of every policeman in the country."

"Some of us are beginning to wonder who you think the criminal really is," said the Commissioner in a clear reference to legal measures introduced in the United States which make the obtaining of a conviction by police more difficult.

"Murder is becoming cheaper by the dozen," said the Commissioner. "Violence in crime is the rule rather than the exception. Vandalism is practised for kicks and regarded as an evening's fun.

"If you have daughters, as I have, they can't go to a place of public entertainment today without the very strong probability of either being insulted or having to listen to some filthy obscenity around them."

The Commissioner made other pertinent observations on what may be regarded as a general breakdown of public morality, on the lack of discipline among the young, and a lack also of dignity and of respect for human values. Mr. McClellan defended RCMP discipline, which has been criticized as too strict.

Strict maybe, but fair. "When I see the hirsute, unwashed spectacles of young manhood and young womanhood which the Age of the Beatnik has brought upon us, when I see the disrespect for authority that exists and is increasing all around us, I must confess that I find it hard to accept as justifiable criticism of a training school which is turning out young men physically fit, with every man a clean, with their hair cut, their shoes polished and their suits clean and pressed — men who have learned a sense of respect and service, not only to their superiors, but to the Canadian people in all walks of life whom they will serve in the years ahead."

Commissioner McClellan's words should be engraved in every home and in every school. As frank as it is refreshing, his statement is a reminder of what true discipline is — not something that makes regiments, but rather a quality that teaches respect not only for man and his works, but also for law and order.

An Inhibited Lot

French Canadian youngsters staying in the Brantford area say that English Canadians are an "inhibited lot."

They also find them "more conventional, more polite, shyer and more law-abiding than their French-Canadian neighbors."

The impressions of the Quebec visitors to Brantford are probably typical. For one thing they are surprised at the respect paid to traffic lights in Ontario. In Quebec, said one, nobody pays attention to the lights.

This conventionality seems to penetrate into home life in Ontario, according to the visitors. "We have to watch what we say and do here, especially at the dinner table because we found much family life is ritual," said Marilyn Roy, of Rock Forest.

"The family is very polite to each other. They sit down to eat at the same time. They always wait for father. They ask to be excused from the table."

It may be churlish to suggest it, but it is likely that all the youngsters on these exchanges have been counselled to be on their best behavior. Not every home is as smoothly-run as the one described. Nor is such politeness observed everywhere. Still, it is good to know that such conventionality can be observed when the occasion insists itself.

A certain shyness about making friends was another trait noticed by the Quebeckers. Friendships grow more slowly here, whereas in French Canada if two people who have just met like each other "then you are friends as if you had known each other for years."

All in all, these exchanges provide a valuable contact between the young people of the two provinces. They are one of the brighter aspects of relations between Quebec and the rest of Canada. They make sense of the observation that in diversity there is unity.

The British Parliament passed the Second Reform Bill 80 years ago today—in 1867—taking a major step in the development of the modern British political system. The liberal Whigs had begun the fight for parliamentary reform and an extended franchise in the early 1830's, but were repeatedly frustrated by a predominantly Tory House of Lords. Despite a First Reform Bill in 1831, popular demand for a more representative system grew, especially among the growing class of urban industrial workers. By 1866 the Conservative government of Lord Derby and Disraeli was obliged to introduce the reform bill, which extended the franchise, roughly doubling the electorate. The bill eliminated numerous small constituencies and gave increased representation to several larger industrial centres.

1947—India and Pakistan became separate states.

Breast Examination For Cancer Outlined

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please describe the technique used by doctors to examine for lumps or cancer of the breast. If my doctor had not known how, she might have lost her life. I think you would do well to remind women how they can check for this problem.—Mrs. J. B. L.

* * *

If you mean that I have not warned readers not to take chances with a lump, I plead not guilty.

Self-examination is the first line of defence against breast cancer, and there is no adequate substitute for it. Women should be checked by a doctor from every six to 12 months, but they should examine themselves at least once a month. Not every lump will be cancer, but every lump should be reported to the doctor at once.

Without sketches or pictures it isn't easy to explain self-examination, even though it is very simple and specifies only a few minutes. Cancer organizations have free pamphlets, showing and describing how to do it. Some have very effective short motion pictures to show at club or other meetings.

I'll try to sum it up in words: The first step is to stand facing a mirror and to look for any change in configuration of the breasts.

Then lie on your back. Place a folded towel or small pillow under the left shoulder. Keep the left arm down at the side. With the right hand, reach across and explore the outer half of the breast and under the arm. Don't use just fingertips. Use the entire flat area of the fingers.

This part of the examination is extremely important as, as many half of all breast cancers start in the upper, outer quarter. Up to 15 percent are in the second most dangerous area, the lower outer quarter.

After the outer half has been checked, raise the left arm over the head, and with the flat of the fingers explore the inner half, from breastbone to nipple.

Then move the pillow or pad to the right shoulder, and examine the right breast with the left hand.

Not only lumps should be sought, but also any puckering or thickening or discharges from the nipple or any restriction of movement of the breast (unless it is caused by drawing an attachment to the chest wall).

Any repeated advice is never to get panicky if you find such signs. But don't delay either. Most cancers are curable, and in favor of it being something other than cancer, but have it checked at once. The only effective way of curing breast cancer is to find it and have it removed while it is still small.

Dear Dr. Molner: How does one get "cat scratch fever" and how is it treated? Does it leave permanent after-effects?—Mrs. E. G.

As the name implies, it is an infection resulting from being scratched by a cat. Cats at times carry an organism, probably a virus, which afflicts human beings. It is a self-limited disease, runs its course in a week or 10 days, and is not serious. There is no specific treatment for it.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: What could cause hair to grow under the arms and around the sex organs of a 7-year-old girl? She seems healthy other than having some allergies. Does she need medical attention? She has already noticed that she is different from other children.—Mrs. T.T.

Yes, I think she definitely needs attention. This hair growth suggests a glandular disorder.

Since you live in a small community, your best move is to have your doctor refer you to an endocrinologist (specialist in glandular problems) in one of the larger cities.

Those Wide Open Spaces

The Times (London)

Just what are the varied reactions this week to the news from Gatlinburg? Gatlinburg? The first momentary picture is of a town dominated by a vast, new flourishing, and now decaying factory for the manufacture of synthetic gum. But no, that was a man not a place. This Gatlinburg — Gatlinburg, Tennessee — said is by way — is described for the benefit of the less travelled as a small resort town with far more hotel beds than its two thousand-odd inhabitants. Immediately the image changes to one Swiss mountainside with hotels snugly and decorously tucked into its vertical side.

What puts Gatlinburg on the map at this moment, as Our Washington Correspondent reports, is that it is the scene of a public inquiry into an Act, a legislative Act, which Our Correspondent finds "wonderfully romantic." Not words that jump to mind to describe such documents, but this one, the Wilderness Act, will conserve wilderness in the United States to a total acreage exceeding the arable acreage of the British Isles. It is a shattering reminder of what great open spaces are available to Americans. Nevertheless the word wilderness does not immediately suggest the sensible solution that those very trying to keep cars out of these wildernesses seek to preserve.

It is just that wilderness is the word that describes with ugly accuracy what most of us have in a conurbation. What do we want to escape to from a conurbation? A wilderness. For our right little island it must be a national park and that hardly sounds better. Put on top of London the built-up area of which Lord Meath is the heart and on the map the maximum extremities of man's invasion of the land, from touch Birmingham at one end and Dieppe at the other. The Washington-Baltimore - Philadelphia - New York - Boston link - up is even more fearsome in extent. Conurbations or wilderness. Perhaps by the twenty-first century we shall be doing better — in names at least.

Animals Are a Road Hazard

Fredericton Gleaner

In addition to the 85 humans who have been killed on New Brunswick roads so far this year, there have been other highway accident victims, their numbers impossible to take late.

These are the animals and birds, whose pitifully mangled bodies offend the sight and disturb the conscience off every humane and responsible motorist who drives our roads, especially in the hours just after dawn when the carnage of the previous night is being ground into the pavement.

Nevertheless it is obvious to any observer that a large percentage, perhaps a majority, of animal-vehicle contacts could be avoided safely by the drivers involved. It is impossible not to see in the high incidence of animal fatalities on the road an indication of the same recklessness and irresponsibility that is the major cause of other highway accidents.

The driver who does not try to avoid striking an animal or bird, or who — and such cases are not unknown — deliberately runs over it, apparently likes to carry this callousness and irresponsibility over into all his driving habits and eventually cause a disastrous accident.

The collision with the animal may itself be the disaster, since animals do not always get the worst of such contacts. In New Brunswick in 1965, collisions with animals caused 25 accidents resulting in injury to humans and 104 causing damage to property.

This is the time of year in which the animal population, restless and active, is the most apt to come out upon the roads, unaware of the danger. For its protection the conscience and responsibility of motorists must be invoked in the names of kindness and safety.

Carnaby Street "Revolution"

— Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

According to a recent newspaper story-picture feature, there is a revolution under way in London, England, where young people's clothing shops, or boutiques are selling colorful and glamorized "gear" that they like but cater to the youthful set. The shops are situated on London's Carnaby Street and their proprietors are said to be making fortunes from their businesses.

The shops are crowded with hipsters wearing thigh-hugging trousers, girls with leg-colored or button-down, Paisely-patterned or purple, cerise pink denim mini-skirts. Whatever they want in outlandish clothing, they get. Most of the clients are beautiful specimens and they're really all agog about the clothes they can purchase. The shops also attract teenagers, tourists and buyers for the more conservative clothing firms wanting to know what the young people prefer in clothing styles.

The men operates nine shops, has two clothing factories, an estate agency and outlet of property owned by Lords Grade and Delfont. He says he goes for the unusual in men's fashions. One of his more successful lines is the firm will sketch out styles for patrons. One popular and growing request is of solid, sheer, white Italian silk. Price for the suit is $155. Ugh!

The amazing financial successes of these stores have prompted one owner to plan to set up similar shops in Canada, the United States and Sweden.

Harris' Beard Gets the Bird

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Four weeks ago, I began growing a beard. The reasons were simple: curiosity and vanity. I wanted to see how I would look in one, and I hoped that it might give me the authoritative air of a Governor-General or the satyr-like elegance of a Peter Ustinov.

The natural part of growing a beard is the reaction of the public. You would think it is my own business, but you would be wrong. The public looks upon a beard as an intrusion upon its domestic tranquility. If Americans had their way, they would have it off the portrait of Uncle Sam.

In the village where I spend my summers, the comments are friendly but caustic. Am I trying to become a beatnik? I patiently answer that I am not even 30, with as much gray as black in his beard, hardly qualifies for that category. Do I want to look more "artsy"? I just as patiently reply that that is by way — described for the benefit of the less travelled as a small resort town with far more hotel beds than its two thousand-odd inhabitants. Immediately the image changes to one Swiss mountainside with hotels snugly and decorously tucked into its vertical side.

What puts Gatlinburg on the map at this moment, as Our Washington Correspondent reports, is that it is the scene of a public inquiry into an Act, a legislative Act, which Our Correspondent finds "wonderfully romantic." Language Blackout

Saskatoon Star-Phoenix

The French language is recognized throughout the world as that of culture, just as English is among the dominant tongues in commerce. And here in Saskatchewan, we perpetrate an antiquated law, buttressed by rules, regulations, and a misguided and misdirected prejudice, against a language. It is astounding to find a virtual blackout of French on the statutes of this province.

In the spirit of Confederation, it is much more reasonable to have schools based on the recognition of two official languages. Then it is to have public and separate schools based on religious differences.

How About A Little Thrift?

Windsor Star

There can be such a thing as having times too good.

In today's era of high taxation, some of the most common complaints is either that rents are too high or that house payments cannot be met because of the substantial amounts being asked.

There is a way for more government housing with rents geared to income to accommodate those, who, for one reason or no position to purchase homes or rent from private owners.

While there will always be a need for a certain amount of government housing, especially for the school and hospitals, there should be more, effort made toward encouraging home ownership.

Home ownership cannot be accomplished by government campaigns alone. It has to follow some pattern of educating the public on economics. Too often in today's society, the person demanding low rental housing can afford to purchase or rent if he would manage his money properly.

A shining example of how citizens are abusing their high incomes of today can be found nightly in the hotel beverage rooms of any large city. They spend freely almost every night apparently not concerned about tomorrow, but assured that the government should provide housing.

While there is a need for everyone to enjoy life and have time for relaxation and fun, today's society has gone overboard. Not only do people flock to the neighborhood pub for night life, they spend thousands on vacations, color television, stereo sets and many other luxury items.

We don't advocate all work and no play, but do suggest a little more common sense when working out the family budget. Perhaps with a bit of money management, many of us could find home prices and rentals are not the monsters we believe them to be.

A Hard Look at the U.K.

Punch

We ought as a nation to be thoroughly ashamed of the spineless acceptance of the squalid condition of our public services, the inadequacy of our road system, the filth in the railways, the overcrowding of the schools and hospitals, the grossly overworked medical profession, the shabby streets with their miles of slums.

A really determined effort should transform these services within a decade while it is still time.

We could expect people brought up in poor homes and schools to take pride in their pieces of work of their output. It is certainly very difficult to give of one's best when the journey to and from work is beset by exhausting discomfort and delay.

The inoculation of this canker of shame calls for something more than leadership.

We need a government capable of action and words, of Churchillian frankness, zest and powers of persuasion. All three parties lay lip service to the principle that the nation's toughest ought to sound a clarion call for the complete and immediate reconstruction of the social services.

We tinker with housing, land problems, education, the medical services, and each party has knowledge of the others — "yes, but what will it cost? how much will that put on the income tax; can we afford it?"

Loyalists Days Conclude After Successful Week

PICTON (STAFF) — Picton's Loyalist Days, a week - long offering of colorful costumes, entertainment and amusing events, started with a bang on Monday and Saturday night wound up with a "bang-up" evening of entertainment for everyone. Picton ROTARY Club finished off the week with a carnival, Toronto stags show, and dancing. Present for the occasion were Hastings County Dairy Princess, Mayor Harvey J. McFarland, Warden of Prince Edward, Harold Rosser, Norris Whitney, MPP for Prince Edward - Lennox, and the president of the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce, Howard Mallett.

Mayor McFarland drew the lucky ticket on the boat, motor and trailer offered by the Rotarians. A Kingston man was the lucky winner. He will be advised of his luck today and the name announced later.

According to Chamber of Commerce President Howard Mallett, merchants feel the Loyalist Days celebration this year was a much greater success than last year. Certainly the crowds lining Main Street in Picton this past week would indicate that people, young and old, did enjoy the festivities.

Another Mysterious Blaze Damages Barn in Picton

PICTON (Staff) — About $700 damage was done to a barn owned by Mrs. Lucille Nesbitt of Lake Street, in a blaze early Saturday morning, as Picton's mysterious rash of fires continues.

Investigators from the Ontario Fire Marshal's office are still trying to determine the cause of two other barn fires in Picton last week.

Fire Chief Duane Fosbrey estimated the loss at $200,000, when a storage barn containing seven trucks and equipment owned by Michael Plaxe and Elmer Carrow was destroyed by fire early Thursday morning.

The series of fires has now reached a total of eight. Two men were picked up last week by Picton town police and released after questioning. No charges were laid or arrests made.

Picton fire department also responded to a call Sunday at the home of Laura Hemmill on Mary Street where an overheated stove had caused a chimney fire.

URGE BETTER CARS

WINNIPEG (CP) — University of Saskatchewan agricultural engineers H. M. Henry and G. C. Zoerb say more research is needed in tractor cab construction and noise control. They advocate air conditioning to eliminate extreme temperatures, and cab-mounting on two or three vibration - reducing mounts to reduce sound levels which, in many cabs, were found to be high enough to damage hearing.

Guards Do Well At Shoot Meet

PICTON (Staff) — Members of the First Battalion, Canadian Guards from Camp Petawawa are giving a good account of themselves at the current Dominion of Canada Rifle Association competitions being held at Camp Connaught. Sgt. A. S. Lepoe placed first and Gdsm. R. J. Courtney second in the Gagetown competition and S/Sgt. F. H. Hirst captured first place in the Harold L. Borden Memorial competition. All will also compete in the Canadian Armed Forces small arms competition to be held this week.

LIKES SOIL TESTS

SASKATOON (CP) — "Soil tests are not infallible," says Dr. A. A. Rennie of the University of Saskatchewan, but periodic tests enable a farmer to get a "prescription" of the fertilizer best suited for production of top yield and quality. He said nitrogen levels in stubble soil fluctuate widely from year to year, and annual testing of arable; but summerfallowed fields need a test only every five years or so.

Lunar Orbiter Now in Orbit Around Moon

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—Lunar Orbiter is in orbit around the moon—a perfect spot, scientists say, from which to take close-up portraits of the pock-marked lunar surface.

The 850 - pound spacecraft, carrying cameras and other experiments, attained lunar orbit at 11:34 a.m. EDT Sunday.

Spokesman for the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Orbiter swings in an orbit ranging from 119 miles to 1,160 miles above the moon, every three hours, 27 minutes and 36 seconds.

The photo mission includes taking 200 pictures of a 2,000-mile-long strip of terrain along the lunar equator, where nine potential landing spots for U.S. astronauts have been selected.

The first pictures will be taken Thursday and probably will be televised to the public as they come in from the spacecraft.

Hydro Workers Back on Jobs On Projects

QUEBEC (CP) — Construction workers at Hydro-Quebec's Manicouagan and Outardes 2 power projects Sunday voted almost unanimously to accept a new contract offered by the provincially-owned electric utility.

Voting was 97.5 per cent in favor of the proposed contract, union officials in Quebec City said.

Hydro-Quebec announced that work on the sites would be resumed within five days.

The contract previous contract expired in June and some 4,500 men walked on strike Aug. 3.

The contract they voted on Sunday runs three years. Under it, they will receive 12-cent increases Aug. 16, and in June, 1967, and June, 1968.

DID YOU KNOW . . .

that jet aircraft engines are safer and faster due to Deloro Stellite engine blades which must stand up to the blazing inferno and the corrosive blast of exhaust gases? First developed in Canada at Deloro, Ontario, in 1915, these alloys, in use all over the world, use cobalt as their base instead of iron. This makes them more resistant to many types of corrosion than stainless steel. They lose none of their remarkable properties even when red hot. As production machines are made to go faster and faster and heat and corrosive chemicals are intensified to speed modern processing such equipment could not function without such alloys to protect their critical wearing parts. It would not be possible for jet aircraft to fly as fast or as long without cobalt alloys in their critical burning areas.

Princess on 16th Birthday Gets Advice on How to Dress

LONDON (AP) — Princess Anne, daughter of the Queen, becomes 18 today and among her birthday presents was solid advice on how to dress.

Writes columnist Anne Edwards in The Sunday Express, she needn't look like a granny.

"I know all the arguments in favor of royal dressing being dignified and restrained and I agree with them," Miss Edwards says.

"But I don't see why they have been applied to a jolly girl, who is 18 . . . to the extent of making her wear clothes that would suit a woman of 40."

The age of 18 for a member of the Royal Family, who is fourth in line of succession to the throne, brings the first burdens of royal responsibility.

The princess, in her third year at Benenden School in Kent, is anxiously awaiting results of her first major examinations.

She has just taken her 10 level exams—equivalent to a high school graduation.

GETS OWN SUITE

Another sign of approaching adulthood is that the princess has been given her own suite in the third floor of Buckingham Palace.

A Stockholm newspaper says she is being considered as a future bride for Sweden's Prince Carl Gustav, 20. The Swedish royal palace quietly brushed it off.

Friends are saying that when the princess does give serious consideration to marriage she may spurn the dwindling band of Europe's royalty.

She has a precedent in the Royal Family. Princess Margaret, her aunt, wed a commoner—the former Antony Armstrong-Jones, now Lord Snowdon.

Columnist Edwards says that judging by what the princess wears off duty—hipster slacks, eye - catching sweaters and sometimes a Beatles cap—she has the right idea of teen-age fashion.

But she adds: "On formal occasions she wears stuffy hats and motherly suits. The handbag she carries is more suited to a business woman of 30.

"My birthday wish for the princess is that whoever is advising her will let her have her head a little more. I wish they'd forget the matronly royal conventions."

Mrs. Gwen Ritchie Back In Capital as Wife of Canadian Ambassador

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — Gwen Ritchie is coming back to the city where she was married 25 years ago—this time as the wife of the top Canadian in the United States capital.

For Mrs. A. Edgar Ritchie, wife of Canada's new ambassador to the U.S., it's the third time around in Washington and one more chapter in the life of a much-travelled British Columbia native.

Her uprooting began at the age of five when her father left the Big Horn ranch at Nabun in B.C.'s Okanagan Valley where she was born 46 years ago. Before her marriage here in 1941, she had already lived with her family in York and Cambridge, England; Glasgow, and Kansas City, Mo.

Blonde and blue - eyed Mrs. Ritchie, vivacious but with no strong personal interest in Washington's social whirl, plans no major changes in embassy affairs. The big 97-room residence will stay as it is—decorated for an overdue boost in the air-conditioning—and official social life will be about the same as before.

Like most Canadians here, the Ritchies are both dedicated toward the frothier side of Washington society.

MORE THAN ENOUGH

There will be large receptions, small- and medium-sized dinner parties and more invitations than any two people can handle or want to.

Some will be passed down the line for showing the Canadian flag diplomatically at the innumerable national-day celebrations now studding the social calendar. There are 114 other missions here now. Canada ranked about last year's festivity for its July 1 birthday.

There will be visiting firemen from Ottawa of senior rank to be entertained, sometimes as house guests. Mrs. Ritchie's staff will include a officier, chef, maid and extra help as needed.

In advance of moving into the residence at 1746 Massachusetts Ave., Rock Creek Park in September, Mrs. Ritchie has been vacationing at her cottage by the Ritchies' native New Brunswick. The 49-year-old ambassador has been making his initial official; chief, including submission of his credentials to President Johnson.

When she family moves in, it will include three of the four Ritchie children and their dog Cnar, who likes somersaults for a big bag of tricks—but only in Latin.

The youngsters are Heather, 20, who will be staying here at least temporarily after finishing the National Theatre School in Montreal and Stratford, Ont.; Donald, 14, and Hugh, 11, who are going into private schools. The oldest, Gordon, 22, is married and a reporter on the Victoria Times.

ON WAR MISSIONS

The Ritchies were married here in 1941 when they worked in Washington for different British war bodies. Ritchie was with the British ministry of economic warfare mission while she was with the British Air Commission.

Ritchie joined the external affairs department in 1944 but left the department for two years—between 1946 and 1948—to work in his principal field of economics with the United Nations. During this period, he helped set up the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade—an assignment that gave the family a brush with death in 1947.

The Ritchies—including three-year-old Gordon—were returning from a GATT conference in Geneva when the Bermuda Sky Queen ran out of gas and had to ditch in heavy seas. The Ritchies and 89 others — all aboard—were saved by the U.S. Coast Guard after nine hours on life rafts.

LIKE TO GARDEN

Later, the present ambassador headed the external affairs department's economic section between 1952 and 1957 and then served two years here in the National Defence command post of minister. In 1959 they returned to Ottawa when he became assistant undersecretary. More recently, he has been deputy undersecretary, the No. 2 job in the department.

Mrs. Ritchie's hobbies are gardening, reading, handicrafts and, lately, painting. She conducts a family-oriented home with the Ritchie fun times running to skating, sleighing and other non-formal activities.

When here before, she belonged to some of the more solid community organizations. They included the International Neighbors Club, which draws heavily on Washington's cosmopolitan mixture of people, and the Capital Speakers Club, which mines the supply of more interesting figures from the political, business, diplomatic or military ranks. She plans to rejoin ranks.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Mrs. Joe Bennett, 11 Harvey Street, has returned home after spending the past three weeks with her son, Brother Bernardine, who is stationed at Central Library in London, England. Brother Bernardine accompanied his mother on a ten day trip to Ireland.

• • •

Mrs. Jennie Maxwell is a patient in Belleville General Hospital.

• • •

Mr. and Mrs. James Malcolm and boys, 68 Murney Street, and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Meeks of Denbigh have returned from a holiday tour of New Brunswick, Halifax and Cape Breton. While in Halifax they visited Mrs. Malcolm's sister, Mrs. Ivan Graham, Mr. Graham and family.

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES E. LEY

Ley — McDonald

The marriage of Celeste Viola daughter of Mrs. Viola McDonald, R. R. 3, Belleville and Charles Edward Ley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ley of Toronto, took place on Monday, August 8, 1966, in the Presbyterian Church, Trenton, with Rev. Douglas Wilson as officiating clergyman.

The bride wore a full-length gown of white Chantilly lace over taffeta with deep scoop neckline sprinkled with rhinestones, and a full- pleated skirt. Her shoulder-length veil held with a circlet of lily-of-the-valley and she carried a bouquet of pink sweetheart roses.

Mrs. Arlington McDonald, sister-in-law of the bride, was her bridesmaid. She wore a blue lace street-length dress and carried a bouquet of pink mums.

Mr. Arlington McDonald, brother of the bride, was groomsman.

Following a reception at the Queen's Motor Hotel, the couple left on their wedding trip.

On their return, they will live in Toronto.

FITTER PATTERN

Dear Susanna: Right now I have a three-ring binder with 11 pattern illustrations that I have been saving since the spring.

Next September, when the children have returned to school, and I have time for sewing, I'll go through them and send away for whatever I wish to make. Since I only keep the patterns that appeal to me I have no trouble finding something I like.

Of course I date the clippings and discard the older ones, thus keeping my selection up-to-date.

Even my in-laws, who are not easily impressed, appreciate having "Millie's" pattern book to refer to. — Millie

WET AND SET

Dear Susanna: Straight from my hairdresser, I got this tip.

The secret of setting one's own hair between shampoos is to make sure that the very ends of the strands of hair are well dampened before rolling them into the curlers.

The middle part is not nearly so important in this respect. Just concentrate on getting right to the point, no need to mess with Mr. In-Between. — Swelltex

IT'S RE-HEATABLE

Dear Susanna: No one will turn up his nose at left-over, warmed up ears of corn if you camouflage them enough.

Slice the kernels right off the cobs and heat those little golden nuggets in butter and salt. Next place a serving on each dinner plate along with the mashed potatoes and meat. Delicious!

In fact, it's such a good trick I almost hate to tell anyone. — Mrs. V. Sedgewick.

Successful Living

Recreation Needed To Do Better Work

DEAR DORIS: I have three small children and a busy husband who spends six days a week and evenings in his own business. All we seem to do is work, work and more work. The result is tiredness and irritability.

DORIS CLARK

If I try to talk to him about my feelings, it ends up in an argument. If I mention holidays, and ask him when he is going to spend more evenings at home, I am accused of being a nag!

My husband has the freedom to go out for a beer but he seems reluctant to want to sit in the house with our children for a couple of hours for me. We have an argument if I say I want to go to a movie with a girl friend; or to a PTA meeting; or to night school.

We are 6,000 miles away from home and I do not have any relatives to visit and talk to.—PRISONER-IN-HER-OWN-HOME.

DEAR PRISONER: Authorities agree that the rule among many men is to concentrate on money-making and to forget about love, laughter and general good fun. Work is o.k. in its place, but we are not machines.

It could take a long, long time for it to dawn on your husband that he is passing up what life is really for; the enjoyment of wife, family, friends.

It is a psychological fact that he could get more done and to better effect if he were to introduce some relaxing recreation into his life and years.

Show him this column.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: How can I get rid of the stale air of a cigar and pipe smoker? My dad smokes cigars. He is an old man so he stays indoors always. In summer it isn't bad; the windows are opened; but in winter, it's awful.

I need candles, but they doesn't seem to help. Do you think a vent in the kitchen that takes the frying and cooking odors out would help? If you can't help me, maybe some of your readers have had this problem and solved it.—UNBEARABLE.

DEAR UNBEARABLE: It's tough to operate a skillet through a smoke haze. Nothing can beat a vent or exhaust fan—the type which draws the air to the outside. When I spill the beans or the porridge boils over, I'd really be in the soup if it weren't for ours.

* * *

(Is it better to put up with misunderstandings, or to begin talking things over? Let Doris help you see the light.)

Several Ways Of Using Juicy Peach

OTTAWA (CP) — The sweet golden peach has a long and checkered history. In 4,000 years it has travelled from its native China to America, to become a star on TV shaving commercials.

They didn't eat them in China, I just used the wood for fires and threw the fruit away.

But times have changed, and the home economists at the agriculture department have dreamed up several ways to use the juicy peach, fuzzy or skinned.

As a breakfast fruit, peaches can come on alone, or perch on top of cold cereal served with sugar and cream.

In salads, peach halves can cradle cottage cheese, ham or chicken salad. Garnished with a sprig of parsley, they can nestle in lettuce cups.

For dessert, the elegant peach melba combines a poached peach half on Vanilla ice cream, drizzled with pureed raspberries and dusted with macaroon crumbs.

For a less exotic variation, the peaches can be layered with ice cream and berries or jam in a parfait glass, topped with whipped cream.

WOMEN HOLD MANY ROLES

MONTREAL (CP) — Women in many developing countries have gained greater professional status than Western women, says Hazel Bennett, a University of Montreal professor who recently returned from the Middle East. "They have pushed themselves into law, medicine and politics in an effort to better their country."

They Tell of Sticking To 'Two-timing Skunks'

DEAR READERS: A woman who signed herself "Unforgiving in Klamath Falls" wanted to know if it was worth the pain and the humiliation to stick with a "two-timing skunk." She asked to hear from wives who have lived through it. I agreed to print the letters if the wives should write them.

ANN LANDERS

Well — they wrote! I've never had such heavy response to a letter in all the years I've been writing this column. Here is a sampling of the mail:

From Buffalo: I decided to stick with my husband even though I caught him with my best friend. I became so ill I had to be under a doctor's care, but I was determined to keep my marriage together. And I succeeded. How? By giving him the second chance he begged for and vowing never to mention the affair again so long as I lived. That night-mare was 25 years ago. We now have eight grandchildren and a truly good life together. Yes, it does pay to forgive.

Butte, Montana: I'm a wife who forgave and forgot and I thank God I was able to do it. When I learned my husband was carrying on with his secretary it almost killed me but I decided to put my children's welfare ahead of my wounded pride. We now have a fine family, a respected place in the community and a happy home.

Fort Lauderdale: I stayed with a two-timing skunk and it didn't pay off. I kept telling myself I had to put on a good front so the children wouldn't find out. I learned years later that the children knew all along. They were putting on a good front so I wouldn't find out. I am 53 years old now. My looks are gone and there is nothing but a wall of ice between us. I wish I had thrown the bum out 25 years ago.

Los Angeles: Two cat plays that cheating game, it's not for men only. My wife used to dream up the weirdest excuses for leaving me and the kids at night. Then I found a letter she had started to write. It said, "Dearest Darling: The minute the plane left for San Deigo I missed you." No man with self-respect can forgive and forget when his wife runs around with half the fleet. I just hope she takes good care of the kids. They are sweet and innocent. And mine, I think.

Morristown, N.J.: I'm a wife who nearly lost a wonderful man to an adenoidal, gum-chewing tramp. "Unforgiving" wrote that her husband asked her for a divorce just before Christmas. I wonder what the tramp gave her husband for Christmas that his wife didn't. My husband asked for a divorce on my 33rd birthday. I nearly went into shock. But for the first time in my life I took a good look at myself. I had to admit I wasn't much to come home to. I had gained 30 pounds in ten years. I was so busy with my kids, my clubs, my garden and my mother that the house never looked right. The meals were lousy. I was too tired and too irritable to be even half a wife, let alone a decent companion. Instead of calling him names I accepted my share of the blame and it was I who asked for another chance. We are a happy family now and it was a little tramp who taught me one of the most valuable lessons of my life.

Ottawa: Since you know all the answers, Ann, please tell me how does a wife tell the difference between a reformed cheater and a worn-out old man? I'm sorry I stuck. Today I'm his nurse and housekeeper.

DEAR READERS: You've heard only half of it. Tomorrow some teen-agers express their views about a cheating father. See you here. — ANN LANDERS.

CARMEL WALNUT ROLLS

Seven people have just got up from the breakfast table and while four of them wash up I am sitting at the kitchen table to write out the recipe for the Caramel Walnut Rolls which have just disappeared like snow in the sun.

We had five adults to play bridge last night and while I was a fifth I made the dough for the buns. Just before we went to bed I kneaded the dough and shaped the rolls and put them in the refrigerator for overnight.

Seven people buddied around the stove while they baked this morning, peering in every time I opened the oven door.

CARAMEL WALNUT ROLLS

(30)

1 package granular yeast
¼ cup lukewarm water
1 teaspoon sugar
2 cups scalded milk
1 cup sugar
¼ cup shortening
1½ teaspoons salt
6 cups sifted but not sifted all-purpose flour.
¼ cup soft butter
1 cup brown sugar
1½ cups broken walnuts (or pecans)

Add the yeast and 1 teaspoon sugar to the lukewarm water, give them one stir and let stand 10 minutes.

Now Is Time To Transplant Large Trees

MORDEN, Man. — New home owners, anxious to get an immediate "settled-in" effect in the landscaping of their grounds, are willing to pay high prices for large trees. Thanks to modern machinery, notably the tractor and front - end loader, big deciduous and evergreen trees can be quickly and successfully transplanted.

Spruce are among the easiest trees to move, either in May or better still, in August, said H. F. Harp of the CDA Experimental Farm at Morden tells how this is best done.

If the weather has been dry, help the roots by watering the soil prior to moving. Dig carefully to keep the roots intact. Also tie the lower whorl of branches to the main trunk to keep them out of the way of the equipment.

Dig a trench round the trunk, following the perimeter of the spread of branches and far enough out to have an adequate ball of earth round the roots. For a spruce tree 10 to 12 feet high, the ball should be three feet across and about the same depth.

When the tree has been cut loose, wrap plastic or burlap around the ball to hold it together during the actual moving. Dig a hole big enough to take the ball of earth and a little more than a few inches deeper than its previous depth. Remember to soak the wrapping.

With care a large tree can be scooped up by a tractor fitted with a front-end loader and transported safely to a new site.

Face the tree so that it is seen to the best advantage in its new home, leaving the branches tied until the soil has been filled in and made firm. Make a shallow depression around the trunk and soak the soil with a garden hose running at low pressure.

It takes two or three years for transplanted trees to take a firm hold in the soil so they need to be kept upright by guy wires in the meantime. An inch three or four of these wires to the padded trunk and stretch out at equal distances around the tree.

Western Liberals In Fold

SASKATOON (CP) — Western Liberals are still on speaking terms with their national party despite rumors last week they were thinking of breaking away.

After meeting in conferences Friday and Saturday, 400 delegates from Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia sent home after hearing their leaders say most of the objectives had been reached in an attempt to formulate a western viewpoint for submission to October's national party conference in Ottawa.

And at Saturday night's closing banquet, they heard Senator John Nichol of Vancouver, president of the Liberal Federation of Canada, describe Prime Minister Diefenbaker as "one of Canada's greatest prime ministers."

He said history will recall that Mr. Pearson was "the man in our time who understood the dynamics of the country and held Canada together."

Among resolutions passed at the conference were those calling for introduction of a national highway policy, encouragement of the use of television for educational (television, favoring study of the future of closed-circuit television and favoring expansion of radio and TV facilities in the Northwest Territories and Yukon.

ADDED TO UNREST

Premier Roy Thatcher of Saskatchewan said the decision since the longshoremen's strike settlement in Quebec this summer added to unrest through out the unrest throughout the country.

"Surely this conference should have come down in favor of settling up machinery to prevent strikes based on irresponsible demands," he said the answer is to a resolution calling for control to make sure wages and prices are kept in balance with productivity.

Mr. Thatcher earlier was removed likely leader of a possible breakaway group, but he later told reporters the possibility of forming a new Liberal group had not been discussed in sessions.

A suggestion that the government establish a publicly-supported daily newspaper died in a panel discussion.

However, delegates approved a resolution calling for establishment of a free trade area in North America.

Prof. Lloyd Axworthy of Winnipeg was critical of delegates for declaring "in a perfunctory way" with important issues.

Speaking to a resolution calling for a balanced national budget, he said the government should not be committed to a balanced budget during times of economic difficulty.

But the resolution was approved.

Princess Anne Celebrating 16th Birthday

LONDON (AP) — Princess Anne Elizabeth Alice Louise, fun - loving daughter of the Queen, will celebrate her 16th birthday today in a somewhat unroyal fashion in cahpsboard.

The easy-going and tom-boyish princess will spend the day quietly with her father, Prince Philip and her 37 - year - old brother, Prince Charles.

They are staying at a hotel just outside Kingston, Jamaica, where they have been attending the British Empire Games.

A royal spokesman said the princess, who rides well and loves horses, will watch a polo match in the afternoon. Otherwise, nothing special.

It is Anne's first birthday away from England.

The Buckingham Palace spokesman said he had no idea what presents Anne would receive from her parents.

GETS OWN SUITE

His confided, however, that Anne has been now given her own suite—bedroom, bathroom and study—on the second floor at Buckingham Palace.

Before the princess left for Jamaica she posed for the usual birthday portrait.

Afterwards the couple exchanged letters and Michael has since visited Anne at Windsor Castle.

gang. They have been given a day-and-night police guard.

Several other persons whose help may prove vital in the case also are being guarded.

During his press conference, Sir Joseph said he would welcome the help of anyone to find the killers—even help from the underworld.

"Some criminals, I know, will reveal at this kind of crime and I would welcome the kind of help they can give," he said.

Dealing with the rise in demand for Britain's police to carry weapons, Sir Joseph said: "I would be sorry to see the day when Britain's police were armed. It would be a bad day both for the police and the country. It would be a retrograde step. . . ."

The three dead policemen were members of the Flying Squad who drive around in unmarked cars. They had stopped a blue Vauxhaull auto near Wormwood Scrubbs Prison and were about to question its occupants when they were shot.

The killings are believed to be linked with Scotland Yard's latest drive against two highly-organized London and Scottish gang protection and other rackets.

Queen Caught In Britain's Economy Drive

LONDON (AP) — The Queen got caught up Sunday in Britain's economy drive. A controversy blew up over plans to spend about $25,000 ($75,000) to celebrate a royal visit to England's west country, where she is to open a new bridge.

There have been suggestions that guests at a luncheon for the Queen and Prince Philip pay for their meal.

Three parties are involved in the row — transport, economic affairs and the Gloucester County council.

The transport ministry is footing most of the bill—allocating $31,840 for a dais, stands and crush barriers; $2,840 for first-aid and lavatory facilities; $4,760 for a private lunch for 1,000 guests; and $7,500 for flags, bunting, program and a commemorative stone.

The Queen dedicates the Severn Bridge Sept. 8.

FIT A LAWYERIDGE

"The bridge is one of the showpieces of British engineering," said a transport ministry official. "It is not a luxury.

But some members of the Gloucester County council, official host to the royal party, say its share of $21,000 seems too much.

Coun. Percy Walker, a 30-year-old builder, protested:

The council over-ruled Walker but one member, Tommy Harris, 34, suggested those who "go to the bun with the Queen and Prince Philip help pay for it."

The Western Mail, sent to the Chancellor of the Exchequer, said:

"Britain has a very modest lunch—just a buffet affair. I don't think the treasury would object to a large expenditure at this time."

The spokesman also said one Israelis and a Syrian were wounded in a three-hour exchange of fire.

He said an Israeli military patrol arrived at the Syrian coast of the lake today and opened fire on some Syrian posts.

They returned the fire, today damaging the Israeli boat, which was seen to catch fire.

Beatles Barely Miss Mobbing At Cleveland

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Beatles barely missed being mobbed Sunday night as nearly 3,000 screaming teen-age fans swarmed the stage at Cleveland's Municipal Stadium.

The show was halted for about half an hour as the Beatles raced to a trailer behind the stage for about 15 minutes before returning to their seats at the urging of police and a disc jockey.

Stadium officials said the screaming fans caused extensive damage to the Indians' infield.

About 100 of the 150 policemen on duty at the stadium to control the crowd of more than 24,000, rushed to the field to restore order. No injuries were reported.

In Philadelphia, police launched a 13-state search for three local officials of the Student Nonviolent Co - ordinating Committee on warrants charging them with possession of explosives and conspiracy.

The warrants were issued following the questioning of four other persons arrested Saturday police said.

At Charlotte, N.C., a Negro man was shot to death and three other Negroes were wounded in a residential area. Police said, however, there appeared to be no racial overtones.

A crowd of about 300 young persons participated in intervention in a predominantly-Negro area of Los Angeles and threw rocks, bottles and garbage. Police who gathered as police attempted to remove a man standing in the middle of a street blocking traffic, officers said.

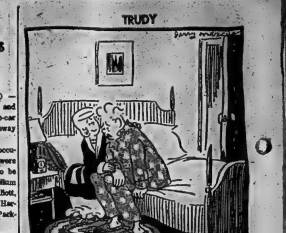
Diet Critical Of PM Formula On Wages

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP)—Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said Saturday he understands an offer of a 4 per cent wage demands by railway workers was "almost arrived at" by conciliation boards before settlement of the longshoremen's strike early this summer.

Railway workers rejected an 18-per-cent wage increase and are threatening to strike next week.



Mr. Diefenbaker said in an interview that since the prime minister proposed to the longshoremen's strike with wage increases of "from 10 to 23 per cent, every working man thinks this is the guideline for future wage increases."

"We are now reaping the adverse effects of this action," he said. "The Pearson formula has highballed Canada into the greatest peacetime inflation she has ever known."

Mr. Diefenbaker called for an across-the-board cut in costs by government and a call by the government to private business, labor and industry to impose "national guidelines" to control costs.

He said government spending now is about $1,000,000,000 more annually than when his government was in power. As a result of rising taxes, he said, the average Canadian now spends 16 hours of a 40-hour work week "working for the state" to pay taxes to all three government levels.

Johnson Sure U.S. Will Win In Viet Nam

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP)—President Johnson says weekend talks with Gen. William C. Westmoreland shored up his conviction that U.S. and other troops "will not be defeated by the Communists in Viet Nam."

A Communist takeover "is no longer just improbable. . . . It is impossible," the president said after he and Westmoreland, U.S. commander in Viet-Nam, concluded a review of the status of the war.

Talking with reporters on the front lawn of the LBJ Ranch, Johnson tempered his statement with these words:

"No one can say . . . how many men will be needed or how long we must persevere. The American people must know there will be no quick victory, but the world must know that we will not quit."

Westmoreland said additional troops will be needed before the end of the year, but that it was impossible to determine now the extent of the increase.

How many of these did you use today?

That's how often you used Bell

Watched TV? Took a trip? Shipped a package? Heard the radio? Read the paper? Took a bath?

One way or another, all of these involve telephone company communications services — and, in most of Ontario and Quebec, that means Bell. It's surprising, once you stop to think about it, how much of what we do depends on telephone service. And 'telephone service', of course, includes television, microwave systems, the transmission of photos, business data . . . practically every kind of information that has to get from one place to another.

Communications Services — an integral part of the Canadian way of life.

Everything Now in Readiness at Fair, Only Weatherman's Assistance Needed

Everything is in readiness, and all that remains is for the Weatherman to co-operate and Belleville Fair could be on its way to some kind of an attendance record.

The fair officially got underway on Saturday night with the Black Diamond Stake Races, but Conklin's Midway and the livestock and other agricultural exhibits did not begin to arrive until Sunday.

All afternoon on Sunday midway workers were busy erecting the various midway rides, sideshow attractions and eating spots.

And a continual stream of cars, trucks and trailers entered the Catherine Street gates, as district farmers and others brought in their livestock and agricultural exhibits.

With Holstein "Black and White Day" scheduled for today, most of the Holstein cattle were on the grounds by early afternoon with attendants giving last-minute grooming in preparation for the judge's eye.

Tuesday the dairy cattle show gets underway, with beef classes scheduled to be judged on Thursday.

Today is Children's Day at the fair, with all midway rides at reduced prices.

It is also 4-H Homemaking and Inter-Club Day at the Junior Farmer building.

Pony judging got underway at 10 o'clock. Also this morning, the Special "Barrow" Swine show got underway.

Experts Say Use of Birth Control Pills Should Be Studied for Harmful Effects

WASHINGTON (AP)—Use of oral contraceptives should continue but various studies should be initiated to gain more knowledge as to their possible harmful effects, an advisory committee of experts has reported to the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

It also recommended that limitations now required on the length of time a woman takes the pills regularly should be discontinued.

"The committee finds no adequate scientific data, at this time, proving these compounds unsafe for human use," the committee said in the conclusion to its report, based on a study initiated last October which dealt with thousands of case records in the U.S.

"It has nevertheless taken full cognizance of certain infrequent but serious side effects and of possible theoretic risks suggested by animal experimental data and by some of the metabolic changes in human beings.

"In the final analysis, each physician must evaluate the advantages and the risks of this method of contraception in comparison with other available methods or with no contraceptive at all."

It was disclosed at a background briefing that a study is under way to determine whether the intra-uterine device—generally called "the loop"—now becoming widely used as a contraceptive presents a special hazard.

CANCER LINK

Cases of cervical dysplasia, possible pre - cancerous condition, have been reported in connection with the use of the device, FDA officials said.

The doctors said the report is "not all-conclusive," that there was a lack of precise data, and that it will take 10 years or longer to determine a possible relationship with cancer and an unknown length of time in regard to possible relationship with diabetes though it is known that metabolic changes do occur.

It was brought out at the briefing that contraceptive pills now are regarded as better than 99-per-cent effective; that "the loop" fails in something like four of 100 women a year; that the diaphragm fails in about 10 to 18 of 100 women a year.

The committee said the drug industry estimates that 5,000,000 in the U.S. used the pills during 1965. Another estimate was that by late 1965, 6,388,000 women had been or were using the oral contraceptives.

Dr. Louis M. Hellman was chief of the obstetrics division of medical experts which had 10 medical expert members and three consultants. Hellman is professor and chairman of obstetrics and gynecology at State University of New York, Brooklyn.

In general, most of the suspected adverse reactions reported involved thromboembolic phenomena, including strokes, thrombophlebitis and pulmonary embolism, and various eye and vision manifestations.

DISCUSS FACTS

The report discussed findings dealing with each category, and other reported possible adverse effects. Some of the observations:

Thromboembolic diseases: The present system of reporting deaths and adverse reactions relies on either the co-operation of physicians or on haphazard filtering of rumors to detail men (drug manufacturer representatives). The latter route is patently unreliable, and the former not much better. Physicians are becoming increasingly fearful of reporting deaths or adverse drug reactions because of possible legal reprisals.

The data derived from mortality statistics are not adequate to confirm or refute a role of oral contraceptives in thromboembolic disease. They do, however, suggest that if oral contraceptives act as a cause, they do so by a relatively small relative to the number of users."

Cancer or carcinogenic potential: Biological studies rule out cancer—"it is to be emphasized that all known human carcinogens require a latent period of approximately one decade. Hence any valid conclusion must await accurate data on a much larger group of women studied for at least 10 years. Furthermore, there is not sufficient evidence to support the hypothesis that contraceptive pills may protect against the development of carcinoma of the cervix."

Regarding breast cancer—"The relationship of the oral contraceptives to breast cancer in the human being is unknown . . . There are data that give contradictory, although not very strong evidence in both sides of the question. . . . There is experimental evidence that estrogens closely related to those used in the oral contraceptives currently marketed will, when given continuously given to dogs and other animals, produce breast carcinoma.

In many but not all experiments the dosage was large on the basis of human therapy. . . . Although estrogens have been increasingly employed for a long time and there has been increasing use of oral contraceptives for six years, there has been no increase in mortality from breast carcinoma.

At the present writing, it seems that if oral contraceptives are at all karcinogenic for the human breast, they cannot be very potent and the occurrence of breast carcinoma from this cause must be extremely rare. Nevertheless, caution and prolonged surveillance are in order."

Other cancers — "Malignant lesions in the pituitary, kidneys, ovaries and bone marrow have been found in animals after treatment with certain sex hormones, but at present there are no human correlates."

Endocrine and metabolic effects: "There is no evidence that prolonged suppression of ovulation . . . will impair future fertility. The effects of prolonged suppression of ovulation, however, are unknown and require further investigation . . . whether oral contraceptives can induce diabetes in normal women or even in those predisposed is not known, nor is it clear to what extent the induced changes in carbohydrate tolerance are reversible."

Miscellaneous and survey: "The question of possible adverse effects on vision is by no means completely solved, but there appears to be no research now in progress at this time. Long-range and carefully controlled studies should be undertaken. . . . Studies show that women who have pre-existing encephalographic changes characteristic of migraine tend to have these abnormalities brought out but not initiated by oral contraceptives."

Communist China Has Not Increased Military Forces In the Last Two Years

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—China apparently has not increased its military forces in the last two years despite the Viet Nam conflict and Peking's repeated charges that Washington is trying to provoke a war.

Chinese Nationalist and United States intelligence sources on Formosa say the Chinese mainland forces—army, air and navy—total 3 million just under 3,000,000 men. This is about the same strength they had in the summer of 1964. The United States started air attacks on North Viet Nam the following February.

Those informants say there has been improvement in the quality of the Communist forces' firepower, including the development of a nuclear bomb, though the Chinese have only limited means to deliver an A-bomb to a target.

For the time being, the informants say, China has no more than 19 planes—all strategic bombers—capable of carrying a nuclear bomb. They say the Chinese are working on missiles but appear to be several years away. In addition, the Moscow-Peking dispute is depriving China of spare parts needed for its Russian MiGs and submarines.

HAVE SPY NETWORK

Chinese Nationalist intelligence officials here say they have a good network of agents in the eastern part of the mainland.

U.S. army officials stationed here also keep a close watch on mainland military activities. The U.S. and Nationalist intelligence reports give this picture of mainland China's military might at this time:

The army has 2,540,000 men, serving in 36 "infantry armies" (reinforced divisions) and 87 regular divisions. These include the three cavalry, six armored, 21 artillery, two rocket, nine antiaircraft and 17 border divisions. Almost all the border divisions are stationed in Manchuria and Inner Mongolia, near China's borders with Russia.

More than 1,000,000 men are concentrated in east China and the coasts opposite the National-ist Chinese strongholds of Formosa, Quemoy and Matsu. Several hundred thousand are posted in south China near the Vietnamese border.

One Chinese Nationalist intelligence source says investigation has been received that 100,000 of these men have been withdrawn since Peiping's Viet Nam in the last few months, but are being kept north of Hanoi. This source said the 100,000 are divided into two anti-aircraft, one infantry and two artillery divisions.

HAVE 1,300 SMALL BOATS

China's navy has 1,300 small vessels, including 30 submarines. Half the submarine fleet is idle because the craft have been cannibalized to supply spare parts for the other half. The navy's 211,000 men include 130,000 marines and 25,000 coast artillery personnel. The main naval strength is in patrol-torpedo boats and fast gunboats.

The air force has about 3,000 planes, but about one-third are grounded because of the spare parts shortage. The regular fleet includes 1,200 Korean war-vintage MiG-15s and MiG-17s and a few more modern MiG-19s and MiG-21s. The navy air arm has 300 MiG-15s and MiG-17s. The main bomber force is made up of 300 Soviet Ilyushin—28s.

U.S. intelligence officials say the Chinese troops seem well fed and clothed, with good training and good light arms, but weak in heavy material, logistical support and transport facilities.

Besides the regular armed forces, China has militia forces believed to comprise about 20,000,000 men and women. The intelligence sources said the militia forces need considerable more training to become an effective field force.

Woman Forced To Pay $1.20 For Turnip

TORONTO (CP) — By the first of the week, Prime Minister Pearson's office will have received a five-pound turnip.

It will be Mrs. J. L. O'Reilly's way of protesting inflation.

Mrs. O'Reilly had to pay $1.20 for the turnip at a Steinberg's market.

"I check the financial pages and found turnips retailed at 25 cents a pound wrote a letter accompanying her parcel to the prime minister.

"Why should I pay $1.20 for this one inferior turnip?"

The market manager told her hot, dry weather had forced the price of turnips higher. The price was close to what the store paid for it, he said.

"Surely if you can import a watermelon from California, ship it all the way up here, then sell it for 99 cents, why do I have to pay $1.20 for this lousy Ontario turnip?" Mrs. O'Reilly asked.

CHARGES DISMISSED

NEW YORK (AP)—Charges against three men involved in a publicity stunt during which a lion clawed and chewed a model's leg at the New York auto show last April were dismissed Friday. The lion tore a gash in the thigh of Nell Theobald, 21, the model, before his jaw was pried open and he was pulled away.

Life in Negro Ghetto Uniformly Poor, Whites Are Generally Accepted

In a privately financed program, 86 college students left their pleasant surroundings as summer congressional interns in Washington and spent two weeks living and studying life in the Bedford-Stuyvesant area of Brooklyn, N.Y. One of them was Chris Hartz, a Stanford University sophomore from Corpus Christi, Tex., and intern with Representative John Young (Dem.-Tex.) Hartz is the son of Edward H. Hartz, president and publisher of the Corpus Christi Caller and the Times. He tells of his experiences in the following article.

By CHRIS HARTZ

NEW YORK (AP)—Nineteen — mostly summer interns fresh from the clean, well-spoiled offices of congressmen in Washington—gathered in an old brownstone house in the heart of Brooklyn's Bedford-Stuyvesant area.

Eager but apprehensive, we had come to work in the congressional program, a privately financed program designed to give college students a close-in look at the problems in the festering Negro tenements.

The two weeks" mission was to "live, breathe, work with and learn from the disadvantaged."

We got an abrupt introduction to ghetto life.

None of us ever had seen raw human shoveled from a truck, some places falling into bones and some on to the street. I saw a delivery man scoop up the scattered hunks of meat from the street and carry it in a shovel directly to a store counter.

Food prices were higher than any of us had seen, yet the quality and condition of the stores was unbelievably poor.

Almost every house we saw was unfit to live in by our standards.

There were no hospitals in an area of at least 300,000 persons. Ambulances took 15 to 30 minutes for an ambulance. There were no doctors.

Some of the 15 boys and four girls in our group may have expected to be called "whitey," but we were surprised at widespread acceptance.

I spent the mornings in small, adult-led groups trying to organize neighborhood tenants to supply pressure on landlords and city agencies. We conducted surveys tried to get residents to talk freely about their hardships, and followed up on major grievances.

Committees we could convince landlords to make repairs for which they were legally responsible, but more often, official prodding was necessary.

Almost half of all Bedford-Stuyvesant families earn less than the $4,382 a year which is the minimum budget for adequate family income. Sky-high rents and prices make this impossible.

Mayor John V. Lindsay sponsored the Brooklyn project with $15,000 donated by individuals and private foundations.

On successive two-week periods, four groups of about 30 each came to Bedford-Stuyvesant. Chris was the third.

Elated with results, the organizers plan to map out three or four more programs for next summer.

Israeli Forces Shoot Down Syrian MiGs

TEL AVIV (Reuters)—Israeli forces today shot down two Syrian MiG jet fighters which attacked a grounded patrol boat in the Sea of Galilee, an Israeli military spokesman said.

He said one plane was brought down by machine-gun fire from the patrol boat and he other by Cannon fire from Israeli Mirage jet fighters.

The incident followed an earlier exchange of fire after the patrol boat ran aground near the Syrian village of Moumas, the spokesman said.

He said the boat stuck some 30 yards from the shore and came under small arms fire from Syrian posts.

The Syrians also shelled it and another boat which came to its rescue. Two Israelis on the grounded boat were mounded.

It was the second air battle in this area in a month. July 14 Israeli spokesmen reported the shooting down of a Syrian MIG over the lake area following an air raid on Syrian engineering work.

(Kuwak radio quoted a Syrian military spokesman as saying that an Israeli military boat had arrived at the Syrian shore on the Sea of Galilee today and opened fire on Syrian posts. They returned the fire and heavily damaged the boat.

The spokesman said the firing lasted three hours and stopped on the intervention of UN truce supervisors.

(He said that one Syrian and two Israelis were wounded.

(The Israeli Air Force, the spokesman said, was unable to interfere in the battle.)

The American League pennant is strictly for the birds. And the Orioles are flying high over Baltimore, the best flying "Maryland My Maryland" has seen since Navy beat Army the first time.

It is no secret around the bistros and bottles of Baltimore that the league race is over. Their "birds" are so far ahead in the flag fandango their tail-feathers look like pinpricks on a bedsheet.

And the Orioles themselves are a swaggering strutting clutch of cockerels ogling proud of the power that has propelled them to the top roost of the coop with nary a disloding threat in sight.

Ask any avid Baltimore fan if their favorite flock compares with the power-laden Yankees of the early thirties and fifties and he'll counter-question, "whoinell are the Yankees?"

And he has a right to be proud. The Orioles have strength at every position. Even the hat-boy in the bullpen is the circuit. They've got hitting, pitching and the confidence of a Camden Clay entering the ring with a midget.

He might wince a trifle if you recall the collapse of the 1964 Orioles. Then he'll tell you the Birds simply run out of gas. The pitching was good but the batters died with their boots on and bludgeons hopelessly sunk.

And manager Hank Bauer's wrinkle-furrowed mug will stretch into a wide grin if you mention the power at the plate.

"The big move for us" he says, "was getting Frank Robinson from Cincinnati. He's been one of the top sluggers in the National League for the past few years and this year's showing proves he can hit as well in the American League as he did over there."

Frank is the bigger half of the Orioles' Family Robinson which garnished with "Powerful" (Powell to youse guys) makes up the most powerful trio of dynamite in both leagues.

The Robinsons are the best of friends and one against the other in friendly baseball rivalry which goes both of them ablaze. And Boog Powell does the bellyflag.

And Bauer can top the second with a stellar quartet of clinchers. He's got Miles Steve Barber and Dave McNally with the starboard sliders Wally Bunker and Jim Palmer. And if things get tough for any of these clutch hurlers there's the relief duo of Stanley Miller or Ed Fisher, two of the best firemen in baseball.

But the real secret of Oriole's success is the hitting. They lead the league in the batboard department with no one even close to them. The Robinson, Frank and Brooks either lead the loop or are in the top ten in RBI's, homers, total bases and batting averages.

A New York baseball writer says "This is no Duke Baltimore team that will rise the pennant. It is a solid club with no weak spots to speak of. With the Yankees down in the dregs of the league, the Orioles could sail along on a pennant crest for at least three more years. This is the one factor that separates the Orioles from the other "Baltimore" clubs. When the Yankee stranglehold on the league pennant like Cleveland in 1954, the White Sox in 1959 and Minnesota last year."

It could be the nucleus of another dynasty. But Hank Bauer views it in a different light. He reflects the cockiness of his bird flock but uses it garnished with caution. He is not concerned about next year. What he wants is to win this year's flag.

"Hell, he says, "it's very easy to get a little cocky when you have a big lead but look what a big lead and big heads did to the Dodgers in 1951. You've got to play one game at a time."

You will recall the historic collapse of the Dodgers was just as much a case as the fantastic stretch drive of the New York Giants in 1951. Fighting tooth-and-nail all the way they blinkled at the "Brave" " 13½ games lead in mid-August until they took everything eventually, climaxed by the historic home-run blast of Bobby Thomson, a shot that echo'd around the baseball world.

BC Captures Top Honors

By DON ANGUS

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP)—The Canadian women's closed golf championship was played last week about as far east on the Canadian mainland as it was possible to go, but the girls from British Columbia carried off the top honors.

Marilyn Palmer of Kamloops, B.C., won the close championship from a partner on the British Columbia match team in a sudden-death playoff Saturday.

The British Columbians had earlier captured the interprovincial team match with a 27-stroke margin over second-place Saskatchewan.

Miss Palmer and Barbara Renwick of Vancouver were forced into a playoff after both ended the regulation 54 holes tied with a 299 aggregate at Dartmouth's Brightwood course.

WIN INTERPROVINCIAL

The interprovincial match championship was won Friday by Miss Palmer, Miss Renwick, Gayle Ellickson and Janet MacWha. Miss Hitchens and Miss MacWha are both from Vancouver.

The only "easterners" to get a look in were the Ontario team which won the national banner team match earlier Friday.

Canadians Won 57 Medals, 14 Gold

By ED SIMON

KINGSTON, Jamaica (CP)—A generation of Canadian athletes came of age at the eighth British Empire Games.

When the Games ended with the traditional singing of Auld Lang Syne Saturday night, old acquaintances had a lot of added teasons of the 1930s to match the achievements of the current crop of Canadian medal winners.

Canada carried off 14 gold medals to match the total number of gold awards gained in three previous Games.

Its over-all tally of 57 medals exceeded any showing by a Canadian team since the London Games of 1934—Sanders all but one of this year's winners were born.

Seven titles were won by the Canadian swimming team, which established itself as second only to Australia in Commonwealth ranks.

Three individual titles and part of a fourth belong to Elaine Tanner, a 15-year-old Vancouver schoolgirl.

LIKE WORLD MARK

She set a world record in the 220-yard butterfly and shared another with her team-ega teammates on the three-man 440-yard freestyle relay team.

She picked up two more individual gold medals in the 110-yard butterfly and the 440-yard individual medley as several others place silvers in the 110 and 220 backstroks and the 440 medley relay.

No female swimmer has ever dominated the Games as decisively.

The Canadian track team struck gold three times, the biggest haul since the First World War. Harry Jerome of Vancouver and Allan Scott of Toronto recorded impressive victories in the men's 100 and 220 women's flat.

Gil Roa of St. Catharines, Ont., had to pick off targets in driving rain in the men's 50 small - bore rifle prone championship.

Canada's eight marksmen came home with five medals. Jim Lee of Vancouver overcame a six-point deficit at the halfway mark to win the centre fire pistol event.

The wrestlers got a title from light - heavyweight Robert Chamberssit of Montreal and a flock of lesser medals came in sight of nine sports on the Games program. Only 25 nations and the Canadian team miss a medal.

Canada's total of 57 medals included 20 silvers and 23 bronzes in addition to the 14 golds. This placed the Canadian team in third place in the final medal table, one peg higher than 1962 when a 13-medal haul was good for fourth.

But Canada had a smaller team in 1962—183 athletes compared with 108 at Kingston.

The Commonwealth gathering of 1,027 athletes from 25 countries took part in 110 events spread over a six-day period with one day of rest.

England won 23 gold medals to recapture the Commonwealth role as the top athletic power from Australia, the 1962 winner. England now has won top honors five times, Australia three times.

The Australians finished second with 23 golds compared with 34 in 1962. As the host country, Australia won 105 medals at Perth.

AUSSIES DROP 33

At Kingston, the Australians captured 72, a net loss of 33 from 1962. England's total of 81 was three better than 1962.

Swimmer Ralph Hutton of Ocean Falls, B.C. won eight medals, one gold, five silvers and two bronzes, more than any other athlete.

Hutton collected five while chasing Australians to world record performances, three of them turned to gold when the Aussies were disqualified for entering the water prematurely in what would have been the world's fastest 440 medley relay race.

The Aussies rectified that error by shattering the mark in a trial swim after the Games ended, marking the 12th world record broken in the pool.

Only one world record was broken in track. That came in the mile relay when a Trinidad foursome, anchored by champion quarter - miler Wendell Mottley, cruised home in 3.02.8, far ahead of the second-place Canadian quartet of Rose MacKenzie of Winnipeg, Brian MacLaren of Winnipeg, Don Domansky of Port Arthur, Ont., and Bill Crothers of Markham, Ont.

Games records were broken in every men's track event, with the exception of the short sprint, along with four field events and the 6,000 - metre steeplechase.

Women broke Games marks in the long jump and shot-put and tied them in the 100 yards swim and the 440 relay. The Aussies set a Games record - and - field honors, winning seven of 11 titles.

The best individual efforts were by Miss Tanner and Peter Reynolds of Australia, each with three golds. Reynolds set two individual swimming world marks and took part in another two by the 880-yard freestyle re-

The next Games in 1970 will be held in Edinburgh, Scotland, where they simply will be called the Commonwealth Games, the word Empire having been officially dropped in 1966.

Jamaica, the host nation for the eighth games, didn't win a single gold.

Three Gold Medals

Elaine Is Commonwealth Queen

KINGSTON, Jamaica (CP)—An unexpected bonanza of 57 medals, 14 of them gold, has lifted the stock of Canadian athletes to its highest level in 32 years.

The success of the relatively youthful team left Canadian officials speaking of Canada's chances in the next two big international meets — the Pan-American Games at Winnipeg and the 1968 Summer Olympics at Mexico City.

Between them they won 15 medals to account for more than one-quarter of the Canadian total in 1962 at Perth, Australia, the Canadian medal total was 31, including but four gold.

Elaine Tanner, a 15-year-old high school student from Vancouver, B.C., was the biggest individual star of the Commonwealth Games, winning three individual gold medals and part of a fourth as the lead swimmer on a winning relay squad.

She added a pair of silvers in individual events to her haul and another relay team which finished second and thus came out of seven events with seven medals.

WON MOST MEDALS

Hutton, who was in the water five 11 or 12 times, Australian swimmers were pushed to second - record performances, came out of the Games with eight medals in eight competitions—more than any other athlete from among the 35 competing nations.

His bag was a gold, five second-place silvers and a pair of bronze medals for third-place finishes. The gold was in the race when Australia's 440-yard medley relay team was disqualified and first place was awarded to a surprised Canadian quartet.

Once all the Canadians added the 220 butterfly and 220 breast medals to their 14 gold medal winnings. Only in cycling was Canada shut out.

Miss Tanner, dubbed Mighty Mouse by her team-mates, won the individual titles in the 110- and 220-yard butterfly and the 440-yard individual medley.

In the 220 butterfly she clipped two seconds off the world record held by Susan Fitz of the United States and came to a gold medal in two minutes, 39.9 seconds flat.

The 108-pound package of perpetual motion also launched Canada to a victory in the 440-yard freestyle relay. Others on the team—which set a world record of 4:18.8 for the event were Louise Kennedy of London and Jane Hughes and Marilyn Corsan of Vancouver.

Miss Lay won the 110-yard freestyle gold medal and Ron Jacks of Vancouver took the gold in the 110-yard butterfly.

GAINED SURPRISE WIN

Jacks, Hutton, Bob Keating of Lethbridge and Sandy Gilchrist of Ocean Falls combined for the surprise win in the 440 medley relay.

Every member of the Canadian swimming team reached at least one event final and all but four returned home with a medal.

Canada's track and field team also had a productive nine days at the Games, returning with three gold medals, three silver and nine bronze. This, too, was the best post-war performance for the squad.

Canadian shooters won two golds and single golds were won by Canadians in weightlifting and wrestling.

Harry Jerome, 25, of Vancouver, ended seven years of frustration in big-time competition when he won the 100-yard dash; Dave Steen, 26, of Toronto, captured the men's shot-put crown, and Abigail Hoffman, 18, of Toronto, scored a surprise when she won a gold medal in the women's 220 on the final slight of competition.

The U.S. team will move along the Davis Cup trail to Brazil for an October match. There will be one more Davis Cup round to be won after that in order to get to Australia for the challenge round.

Jerome Shies At Football

TORONTO (CP) — World Harry Jerome, world record sprinter from Vancouver, follow other world-ranked runners into the violent world of professional football?

"Only if the money was right," he said Sunday.

Jerome was among athletes returning from the British Empire Games at Kingston, Jamaica.

In an interview he mentioned top sprinters Bob Hayes and Frank Budd, both of the United States, who gave up track for football. Hayes went with Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League and Budd is with Calgary Stampeders of the Western Football Conference.

"It would take a lot of money to make me consider football," he said.

"I'd need something like a three-year, no-cut contract . . . and anyone is stupid to play that game for less than $20,000 a year."

It was a relaxed, happy Jerome who borrowed a gold medal from world-mate Robert Chambrault of Montreal — his first — to pose once so he could show his grandchildren.

Jerome, who won a gold medal in the 100-yard dash and ended out of the money in the 220, had praise for Don Domansky of Port Arthur, Ont., a runner he describes as "a comer — a real tough competitor."

Picton Leads Series 3-1

Gray One-Hits Juniors

By Robert Snelfjella

Eldon Gray decided to pitch again for the Picton Kinsmen. Several weeks ago, in his first start for the Kinsmen, he threw a sparkling two-hit victory. In his second start, on Saturday night, he hurled a one-hit, 2-0 win over the Ellis Juniors at the Alemite Park.

The Picton ace got a single to Bob Moon of the Juniors in the sixth ruining his no-hit attempt.

The Picton team gave them a 3-1 stranglehold on the best-of-seven series. Next game is to be played in Picton, on Wednesday.

Bob Ebbier pitched a good game for the Juniors, as he shut out the winners in every inning but the second, and gave up only seven hits over the route.

Picton rabbeo plelief out of runs when Eldon Gray singled and Warren Ostrander doubled, putting them in second and third. Playing-coach Keith Stacey then looped a single into shallow left field to drive in both base-runners.

Gray did not walk a man, and struck out six as he used fine control and a change-up drop to great effect. Only four batters reached base, three of them on errors by the base-runners.

Picton Gray, who scored the winning run, slammed two baseHits for the Picton guns. Ostrander also stroked a pair of hits, while Warren Ostrander lined a double. Leo St. Louis and Eldon Carson had lone singles.

Earlier in the year, Gray pitched four innings of no-hit relief in a 9, and 10 contest which was rained out. Combined with his two-hit and one-hit efforts, Gray has pitched 22 innings of ball for Picton and given up only three hits.

Sonny Ogden Black Diamond Winner

By Half Length

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Sonny Ogden, a handsome four-year-old owned by Graham McMillen of Peterborough, won the third running of the Black Diamond Cheese Stakes here Saturday night.

Driven by Ray Lowery, Ogden defeated field of eight c ually tiring horses to pace the mile in 2.11 3-5, six seconds off the Stakes record, 2.05, 4-5 set last year by Early Lake John.

Lowery was presented with the handsome Stakes Trophy by the Hon. Earl Rowe, lieutenant-governor of Ontario, after winning the race.

He also received a "cooler", the gift of the Fair Board through Quinte Driving and Riding Club president, Gerald Vance.

A capacity grandstand cured that spilled over into the bleachers saw an exciting eight-events program that included a Stakes Consolation event and three elimination races.

Bud Gist, driven by Jack Williams and owned by Joe Coser, Bowmanville, won the consolation race in 2.14 3-5 from a field of eight.

MARRED FAIR OPENING

The racing card marked the official opening of the five-day Belleville Fair. Lieut. Governor Rowe, formally declared the exhibition open prior to the opening track event.

Seven horses were scratched from the Stakes reducing the original field to fifteen starters.

The pari-mutuels were popular, bettors pushing over $17,-000 through the wickets on the daily double paid $32.50 and the quinellas, $26.30 and $16.80.

The prices generally were formful tops being paid by Northwood Dale $19.00 to win the fourth. Mr. Spudboy returned $18.20 to his backers in the second featured eight race.

The Stakes winner Sonny Ogden paid $4.00; $2.50 and $3.30 in the 3-4-5 race and he finished $10.90 to win the second elimination event.

Top honors in the three consolation events formed the field for the Stakes race.

Racing was highly competitive, all but one of the resulting is close, bunched finishes. Photo finish cameras were used in two of the races.

Homestead Joe broke into the lead when the pack got away to a fast start with a pace favorite Little Cherry and Devon Way trailing. Lowery had Sonny Ogden in fourth spot until the quarter when he took the lead and was never headed.

At the half Ogden was in front with Homestead Joe and Cherry behind his sulky. The pack was bunched coming into the stretch and with the crowd on its feet Ogden raced the fast-closing Little Cherry to win the honors by a half-length.

Davy's Wee Lad took over the place spot with Homestead Joe fading back to sixth position.

WON BY EIGHT

Bud Gist which finished behind Ogden, Cherry and Davy's Wee Lad in the second elimination led all the way in the Consolation sweet winning easily by eight lengths over Lady Sterling and Quinte Lad to pay $2.60.

Al Vance drove Don Cobel to a thrilling "whisker" finish in the first elimination, nosing out Joy Gratton who had led the pack within feet of the wire.

Sonny Ogden, Little Cherry and Dave's Wee Lad staged a three-horse thriller in the second elimination after being led the first half by Bud Gist.

Homestead Joe and Devon Way fought it out in the four-horse third elimination finishing in that order ahead of Miss Happy Hal and Dolly Mac Mic.

Northwood Dale which paid top price of the evening $19. won the fourth race in front of Joe Rogan with Debbie Dillon and Say's Abbey Lee push-ing him to the wire.

Joe Hogan drove his second winner of the night when he piloted Dwight Pie under the wire in a tremendous seventh race finish to pay $8.20. Happy Hal Jay was in the six-horse field to the stretch in a battle with Rebel Land Chief. Swift Pie finished a terrific charge to win by a half-length.

Mr. Spudboy and Jacken staged a duel in the second featured race, the eighth event with the former turning back the latter to drive at Leo Law. Jacken finished third.

Beat Nicklaus By Stroke

Rudolph Wins Thunderbird

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP)—Mason Rudolph, a bookish-looking Tennessean who hasn't been in two years, beat Jack Nicklaus by a stroke Sunday for the $20,000 top prize in the $100,000 Thunderbird golf classic.

Trailing most of the windy, rainy final day, the 29-year-old pro collared Nicklaus at the 14th hole, went ahead with a 30-foot putt from the fringe at the 15th and held on for a final round 69 for a 72-hole score of 278, 10 under par.

Nicklaus, defending champion and holder of both the Masters and British Open titles, fell two shots back when he missed a three-foot birdie putt on the next to last hole but he made a bold and dramatic finish on the 600-yard 18th for a closing 70 and 279.

Bill Martindale, the third-round leader, lost his advantage quickly, going one over par on two of the first three holes and blew it completely with three over on the 435-yard 10th.

Martindale, however, sank a 10-foot birdie putt on the final hole for a 74 and a 72-hole score of 281, good for third money of $7,500. Tommy Aaron shot a final 72 for 282.

Jacky Cupit and Dudley Wysong tied at 284 after shooting 73 and 71, respectively. Gary Player of South Africa and Julius Boros won the 283 bracket with George Knudson of Toronto and Jack McGowan.

More Stamps Injured

Tiger-Cats Crush Calgary 21-3

By JIM CREKAR

HAMILTON (CP) — Calgary Stampeder coach Jerry Williams wants more offensive action in Canadian Football League games. The only trouble is he's running out of offence.

Williams, who three weeks ago suggested rule changes that would lead to more scoring, has since lost two of his top backfielders. The latest is Lavell Coleman, knocked off by Hamilton Tiger - Cats' bruising defensive specialists Saturday night during a 21-3 Ticat victory in an interlocking game before 24,765.

Coleman joins halfback Ted Woods and defensive end Jim Furlong, both injured in a 13-6 loss to Ottawa Rough Riders last Wednesday, and end Ham Harrison, hurt in a preseason contest against the Tiger-Cats.

The victory boosted Hamilton into a first-place tie with Ottawa in the Eastern Football Conference, both teams sporting 2-0 records. The loser left the Stampeders last in the Western Conference with an 0-2 mark.

The win was Hamilton's first in league play over Calgary in five years.

It isn't certain how long Coleman will be out. He was a stay of the Stampeder running attack, he suffered a stretched achilles tendon in his right leg. Coleman also hurt a knee in an off-season accident at home and has had it drained 12 times.

The Ticat defence dominated the game, but the offence generated enough spark late in the second quarter and again in the third for two touchdowns by Tommy Grant, another by Ian Patterson and two converts and a single by Don Sutherin.

It was enough to wipe out a 3-0 lead that Larry Robinson gave Calgary with a 43-yard field goal in the first quarter.

Calgary general manager Rogers Leher Saturday tried to plug some of the backfield holes by picking up Willie Rose, who was on a five-day trial with Hamilton. Details of the deal were not announced.

Debuts With Angels

Jim Coates Chisox Nemesis

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Chicago White Sox convinced Jim Coates he was a major league pitcher seven years ago and proved it again Sunday—the hard way.

Coates, rescued from the minors last week by California Angels, beat Chicago 4-0 with a brilliant four - hitter in his first appearance of the season and first major league start in three years.

The 34 - year - old righthander's route - going victory gave the Angels a doubleheader split with the Sox who had taken the opener 4-0 behind Gary Peters' four - hitter.

In 1959, when Coates broke in with New York Yankees, the White Sox were the victims in his first victory.

"I knew I could pitch in the majors after that one," he recalls. "I gave them only three hits, all singles, and we beat Early Wynn 3-1."

But he began to slip and eventually was sent to Seattle of the Pacific Coast League last spring.

GOT INTO BRAWL

There, he won 11 games and was involved in one of baseball's wildest brawls. On May 11 he hit Vancouver Mountier Richardo Joseph with a pitch and the ensuring free-for-all resulted in serious injury to Seattle catcher Merritt Ranew and the suspension of Vancouver pitcher Rosario Santiago.

The next day, Joseph encountered Coates in a hotel lobby and punched him in the face, breaking four teeth.

Elsewhere in the American League Sunday, Kansas City Athletics, New York and Boston Red Sox swept doubleheaders while Baltimore Orioles blanked Washington Senators 6-0 in a single game. The Athletics trimmed Minnesota Twins 5-0 and 4-3; the Yankees beat Cleveland Indians 7-3 and 6-4, and the Red Sox upended Detroit Tigers 8-5 and 5-3.

Saturday, the Indians beat the Yankees 2-1 while Detroit bombed Boston 13-1, California clobbered Chicago 7 - 3 and Washington lost 5-2 to Baltimore. Kansas City at Minnesota was rained out.

Batting — Frank Robinson, Baltimore Orioles' drove in three runs with a pair of homers—his 30th and 30th of the season—and a sacrifice fly in a 6-0 victory over Washington Senators.

Pitching — Denny Lemaster, Atlanta Braves, scattered five hits and struck out 10 — one short of the club record—in beating Philadelphia Phillies 7-0.

QUIT BOXING

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP)—Tyrone Gardiner of Sydney River, N.S., has retired as Canadian lightweight boxing champion after three years. The 20-year-old Gardiner said at his home Saturday night he doesn't have enough time to spare from his service station operations to train.

Bob Shaw Looking For Help

TORONTO (CP) — Goer Bob Shaw of Toronto Argonauts will take a look at two American Football League rejects in hopes of replenishing his injury-riddled Eastern Football Conference team.

The injuries hit the Argos in their 17-6 loss to Montreal Alouettes Friday night. Most seriously injured was import halfback Johnny Counts, who is likely through for the season with a broken collarbone.

Canadian halfback Bob Good suffered bruised chest muscles, Bill Franks has a split cheekbone and centre Norm Stonebrough aggravated a sore ankle.

The new arrivals in the Argonaut camp are halfbacks Dolph Morris and Bill Scott, who reported Sunday and will be around for a five-day trial.

France Won Ski Honors

PORTILLO, Chile (CP)— France went home today with six gold medals, more than all the gold, silver and bronze medals taken by any other country in the world alpine ski championships just concluded.

The French wrapped it up Sunday when Jean - Claude Killy took the men's combined title and the gold medal. He had 50.82 points for the champion-ship. Killy won the men's downhill and slalom events.

Canadians came away empty-handed and defeated. From the beginning of the championships they had been dogged by bad luck. Lucky Nancy Greene, 23, of Rossland, B.C.

She was leading the women's slalom when she fell. She did it again in the downhill and injured her arm and this month stepped her in the giant slalom, in which she finished fourth, the highest Canadian placing.

Heartbroken Sunday was Rod Hebron, 23, of Vernon, B.C. He had a brilliant run in the slalom, finishing the first heat in third place in 53.80 seconds, compared with best leader Bengt - Erik Grahn of Sweden, at 51.20.

On the second run Hebron missed a gate and was disqualified.

"I came too low and missed a gate," Hebron accurately, able to speak through his anger.

Also out of the race was Peter Duncan, 21, of Ste. Agathe-des-Monts, Que., who was just going through the second gate of the first run when he fell and broke his ankle.

Perhaps most dejected of the Canadians was coach Dave Ingraham, 36, of Montreal. He had come with high hopes, particularly for Miss Greene who was ranked first in the world in the slalom and downhill events. During the events he announced his retirement from coaching for business reasons.

Liverpool Shades Everton

LONDON (Reuters) — Liverpool, the English League soccer champions, beat Neighbors Everton, the English Cup holders, to the Football Association Charity Shield match, the traditional prelude to the opening of the English League season next Saturday.

The Scottish soccer season opened with league matches, but heavy rain and leaden skies kept the face away. Celtic, the Scottish League champions, beat Hearts 3-0.

Hill Wins Harewood National

JARVIS, Ont. (CP) — Craig Hill of London, Ont., won the 105 - mile Harewood National auto race Saturday in a 1966 Lotus Ford that had been in mothballs for two years.

Hill completed the 35 1.9-mile laps in one hour, six minutes, two seconds. His $20,000 car, which had never been raced, had been in storage during a legal dispute over the ownership.

Pre - race favorite Ludwig Heimrath of Toronto was forced out of the race when the gearbox on his McLaren Ford gave out. Before he left he drove the fastest single lap, one minute, 8.9 seconds.

Net Adams of Hamilton came second in a Vendel-Cooper Ford and George Eaton of Toronto third in a Comstock Ford Cobra. Both were two laps behind Hill at the finish.

Hal Brown of Lethbridge, Alta., in a Lotus 23B picked up points in the national championship with his fifth-place finish. Brown now has 28 points for the national championship, seven more than George Chapman of Edmonton, a driver in the 13th Saturday's race, also in a Lotus 23B.

Marlene Loses Golf Marathon

SEWICKLEY, Pa. (AP) — "Along about the fourth extra hole I started telling myself it's really not bad to be runner-up," said Marlene Stewart Streit. "This is the greatest tournament in the world."

Mrs. Streit, a 33 - year - old housewife and mother of two from Toronto, was talking moments after losing the longest championship match in the 86-year-history of the USGA women's amateur golf tournament.

The winner was Joanne Gunderson Carner of Seekonk, Mass., who now has won the title more times — four — than any woman in history except for Glenna Collett Vare of Philadelphia, who won it six times from 1922 to 1935.

"Thirty-six holes is an endurance test," said Mrs. Streit after Saturday's match. "I wish it was 18 today." Mrs. Streit led 1-up after 18 holes.

Twice during the long gruelling match Mrs. Carner appeared to have things wrapped up with a 3-up lead, only to see Mrs. Streit battle back and overtake her. Mrs. Carner finally tied it at the 35th hole, and then the two battled shot-for-shot until the 41st when Mrs. Carner won it with a par.

One Away From Foxx

Willie Mays Close To Homer Record

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Willie Mays may be only two trips to the plate away from becoming the second greatest home run hitter of all time.

Mays hit the 522nd homer of his career Sunday in the first game of San Francisco Giants' 2-0 sweep of Houston Astros.

Meanwhile, Manny Mota increased the average to .300 mark in the league, by rapping three hits, including a two-run homer in the ninth inning that pushed first - place Pittsburgh Pirates past Cincinnati Reds 4-3.

Mays's homer placed him one away from tying Jimmy Foxx' 534 and two away from trailing only Babe Ruth on the all-time list.

In other National League games, Los Angeles Dodgers edged Chicago Cubs 4-3 in 14 innings, then lost 10-3 in 10, Atlanta Braves whipped Philadelphia Phillies 7-1 and New York Mets downed St. Louis Cardinals 5-4 before losing 4-3.

REDS BLANK PIRATES

In Saturday's action, Cincinnati Reds defeated Pittsburgh 11-0, St. Louis defeated New York 9-6, Houston whitewashed San Francisco 4-0, Los Angeles defeated Chicago 6-1 and Philadelphia took Atlanta 4-3 and 7-4.

Mays doubled in the Pirates' first run, then snapped a 2-2 tie with his ninth-inning homer. Art Shamsky had sent Mota home ahead 2-1 in the seventh when he bit his fourth homer, a two-run blast, in four consecutive times at bat, tying a major league record.

Mays' homer, his 28th of the season, triggered the Giants to their first - game victory. Bob Bolin and Tom Haller also homered for the Giants, and Bolin pitched a five-hitter.

Len Gabrilson's three - run double in the seventh inning broke a 3-2 deadlock in the second game. Houston's Claude Raymond was the victim of the winning attack.

The Dodgers won the first game on Wes Covington's two-run homer in the 14th. The Cubs had gone ahead 3-2 in the top of the inning with the help of pitcher Bob Miller's error.

Cannifton Wallops Shannonville

Cannifton Flames walloped Shannonville 10-4 on Sunday to take a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven South Hastings series between the two teams.

The winners scored seven runs in the first three frames and added three more later in the game, as they pounded out 18 hits.

Cannifton got a great pitching performance from Butch Clapp, as he was touched for only three hits, while fanning four and walking two.

Larry and Dave Lewis handed out 18 hits to the winners. They managed one strike out and walked four.

Bud Hill, Bill Barberstock and Mike Brant stroked one double each for the losers.

Catcher Court Bralley knocked a double and pair of singles to lead Cannifton at the plate. Gerald Hill, Larry Adams and Eric Emerson had three base-hits each, Don Forsythe a double and single, and Ron Urch two singles. Hugh Petrie doubled and Butch Clapp safelied, to round out the winner's attack.

Weslock Wins Fourth Title

By AL McNEIL

MONTREAL (CP)—Nick Weslock of Bentinck, Ont., won the Canadian Amateur championship Saturday for the fourth time in his 32-year career, with the Royal Canadian Golf Association's title persisted by his opponent's sudden change of form for part of the final 36-hole round.

Weslock, 43, downed Bill Brew of Wethersfield, Conn., one-up in the Seagram Gold Cup and the 1956, which he previously won in 1957, 1963 and 1964.

Brew, a dollberate, calculating golfer for the first 154 holes of the six-day tournament, came out for Saturday afternoon's final 18 holes playing like a whole quisling, fumbling little timing putts and gaMoping down the fairways at an alarming clip.

He reversed of form so disturbed RCGA executive director Jim Gaquin that he asked Brew at the 32rd hole if anything was wrong.

"He said yes, that he was 'exhausted' and wanted to get it over with as soon as possible because he had a seven-hour drive home ahead of him," Gaquin said.

"I went to him at the sixth tee (the 33rd hole) to continue my conversation," Gaquin said. "I told him it was the Canadian Amateur and that he should make a fight of it. I said, 'with a display like this you are embarrassing everyone.' I felt he was also embarrassing the RCGA.

GOT MESSAGE

"Brew just looked at me but I think he got the message across because he immediately slowed down."

The—Connecticut teacher, 18 years Weslock's junior, apparently wanted to play right through at the end of the first 18 holes.

He planned to drive home Saturday night and depart Sunday for Westchester, N.Y., where he will try to qualify for the U.S. Amateur in regional trials starting Tuesday.

Weslock, who came out of the morning 18 holes all even with the U.S. golfer, said he had been "rattled by Brew's attitude" from the 19th to 36th holes.

"I couldn't figure whether he was deliberately out to upset me or not, but as it turned out he was just in a hurry to get home," Weslock said after the match.

The Burlington golfer was down three holes whose time in the morning round but evened the match by the noon break.

Sammy Davis Jr. Fought Way From Poverty to Riches

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Sammy Davis Jr. took a match from his gold watch box and lighted the cigarette he drew from the matching gold cigarette box.

Such baubles mean much to Sammy, who fought his way up from poverty, his talent winning him stardom and riches despite small stature and a homely face.

It also pleases him to recognize such as a recent one in Atlantic City, N.J., when he paid rebuke to an entire dice table because they would not hold frozen during a perform ance.

"I had to," he said. "Those people had paid a lot of money for a performance that I thought was terrific. I mean, I people who see me only once a year; they've got the right to have me do the show in New York or Miami.

"Besides, it was Atlantic City, where I had started, where my mother worked as a hatcheck girl. I owed it to her. The impulse cost him about $4,000—"and the owner thought it was cute." But Sammy had to prove something—to others and to himself.

A FLOOP

He seems determined to continue proving that he can meet any challenge in his profes sional life.

"You've got to do that in this business," he said. "I've seen too many talents work up to success and then coast on it. Maybe that is why I am so definitely. It doesn't. Pretty soon these people look around and find that they've been by them by.

"The show world moves too fast nowdays. Fashions change and audiences change. If you don't keep trying to change with them, forget it, buddy. One exposure on Ed Sullivan and the whole country is through with time. You'd find the audience mouthing the punch line before you try the same joke on them."

As usual, Sammy finds himself locked in heavy scheduling. He was here to record some numbers for his own company, then played a meaty role in a Wild Wild West television series, did a cameo on Batman and was slated for a date at Harrah's Lake Tahoe.

He'll continue with night clubs, concerts and guest shots until he goes to London next year to co-star—opposite Lionel Bon Boy, which he played for 1½ years on Broadway.

Squirts Ousted By Cobourg

Belleville's Squirt "Travelaires" bowed out of the running for the final game of their best-of-three OASA series with Cobourg Saturday, dropping a see-saw battle by a score of 10-8.

Cobourg grabbed a 1-0 lead in the first inning when Bobby Stevenson opened the game with a double, and third man reached home on a fielders' choice. Belleville plated one in the first in the bat of the second when Martin Thiele reached first on an error, Dave Cole walked and Peter Molaski single in the run.

Cobourg had their big inning in the fourth, scoring four times when Irwin opened with a triple, Dunn and McGinn walked and Conners hit, followed with a grand-slam home run to make the score 5-1 for Cobourg. In the fifth, Belleville came right back—in their half, scoring five times on singles by Martin, Cole and Ridley. Dounson reached on an error, Bruce Sutherland was hit by a pitched ball and Martin Thiele tripled and scored on a single by Billy Phillips.

Cobourg added two in the fourth frame on singles by Irwin, Dunn and McGinn's homers. Belleville picked up one to tie it at seven-all.

The sixth inning wrapped up the scoring, with Cobourg plating three, on a walk to Dunn and singles by Irwin and McGinn's homer.

The winning pitcher was Bobby Stevenson, who toiled the distance and allowed eight hits while striking out six and walking three.

David Taylor started for Belleville giving way to Bruce Macdonald in the fifth inning and the latter took the loss. Between them, the Belleville batters allowed 14 hits while striking out two and walking three.

Bantams Lose To Brockville

Belleville SACO lost the first game in the best-of-three series against Brockville in the OASA playdowns at Alemite Field, Saturday. The first score was 8-6 in the ten-inning affair.

Belleville went ahead 1-0 in the first inning, when Lindsay Adams reached on an error, stole second, and came home on Scotty Reid's double. They added another in the fourth frame, when Tom Beecher tripled and scored on John Bevier's single.

Brockville plated three in the sixth, when Swift drew a walk, Bruyere doubled and one out later, Fear and Fullerton followed with successive singles to make it 3-2 for the winners. They added one run in the seventh on a single by Keyes; Haggarty was hit by a pitch and Mc Clure singled, scoring the run in, and the score was 4-2.

Belleville scored three times in the last of the eighth, when Beecher opened with a double, one out later Morton drew a walk, Mike Allore singled and Ron Rodgers tripled to put Belleville ahead 5-4 after eight.

Brockville scored twice in the top half of the ninth when McClure singled, Wright reached on an error by Rodgers, and Fear bunted safely to go ahead 6-5. However, Belleville tied it 6-6 in the bottom of the ninth on double by Scotty Reid and Don Beecher, to force an extra inning.

Brockville put the game away with two runs in their half of the tenth, when McMillan walked, Keyes reached on a fielders' choice, Haggarty tripled and McClure singled.

Starting pitcher was Hodgson, who relieved Wayne Perrier in the tenth. Between them, they gave up five hits, four walks, getting 4 via the strike-out route.

Scotty Reid went the distance for Belleville, striking out a dozen, allowing eleven hits and walking eight.

The second game is the best-three series, will be played in Brockville on Tuesday, August 16th at 6.30 p.m., and, if necessary, the third and final game is set for August 20th.

Shirley Booth Winds Up 5 Busy Years in Series

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Typecasting is more dread by actors than a low Nielsen rating.

"Wait" said Miss Shirley Booth with a smile, "nobody thought Hazel had it; I decided to do it. Maybe it will be all right, but I think that maybe when I'm actually doing the play, that wonderful Taylor voice will come back to me—and, well, why's Tony, has wound up five busy years of playing the title role in Hazel, a comedy that got her an Emmy as well.

In fact, the wiskup of Hazel gave producers a chance to put Shirley Booth back in good drama. The first assignment she accepted was the lead in ABC'S special, "Tennessee Williams' The Glass Menagerie, which will be produced in London in October for broadcast in early December.

Then, the chance to do the Williams play turned up, she said, she was reluctant about that, but

REMEMBERS TAYLOR

"I remember Laurette Taylor in the Amanda part," she added. "I remember that performance so vividly. And I didn't feel as

I wanted to take on something in which I'd just be doing an imitation of somebody else.

"But when I reread it and thought about it, I decided to do it. Maybe it will be all right, but I think that maybe when I'm actually doing the play, that wonderful Taylor voice will come back to me—and, well, why's Tony, has wound up five people will just have to forgive me if it occasionally sounds as if I were mimicking Laurette.

Meanwhile, reruns of Hazel will be on TV channels all over—which provides a steady income for the star.

A widow, Miss Booth enjoys going to movies and the theatre, does a little painting, collects antiques, and is a passionate art collector. Most of all, though, she likes acting.

SINATRA SIGNED SINGER

Singer Trini Lopez says the turning-point in his career came in March when he signed a contract with a record company vividly. And I didn't feel as lpany owned by Frank Sinatra.

Marmora

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Prescott and family have returned home after spending three week's holidays in Cape Sable Island, Nova Scotia and with Mrs. Andrew Quinlan and family in Trois Rivieres, P.Q. On their return trip they met the Franklin bus tour in Halton, New Brunswick.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ellis and Mr. Harry Ellis motored to Syracuse N.Y., over the weekend to visit their friend Mrs. Ira Lapp. They also visited in Rochester.

Mrs. John VanVolkenburg of Marmora attended the leadership instructors course held at Blue Spring Scout Reserve at Acton, Ontario. Mrs. VanVolkenburg has been an active leader and worker with the Cubs and Scouts of Marmora for several years.

Mrs. Lloyd Williams of Blue Sky, Alberta, is renewing acquaintances here.

Mr. and Mrs. James McChestney, David and Jeffrey of El Paso, Venezuela, formerly of Marmora, visited friends here last week.

Mrs. Ashwell Rogers, Clifford and Glenn of Brockville spent spent the first of the week with Mr. and Mrs. John J. Parks.

Mr. William Leonard is a patient in St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Reid and children of Courtice, Ontario, have returned from a holiday at New Liskeard and Sault Ste. Marie and are now visiting their parents here.

Mr. Wilbur Leonard is reported in his 104th annual Old Time Fiddlers contest, Belleville, Madoc and Marmora district.

as long as you like.

The comparison of memories with others is one of the greatest pleasures of life. And perhaps it gives you a feeling of warmth to pause and look back and remember whom—

In 1921 Mary Pickford, America's Sweetheart, starred in a film version of Little Lord Fauntleroy.

In the era of silent movies a juvenile delinquent was a kid who had to be thrown out of the theatre for pitching spitballs at the lady up front who played the piano.

The corner grocery store sold more beef than it did butter. (When you couldn't even afford lard to spread on your breakfast toast, either, you came from a poor family.)

A Stutzbear bed was a sign of prosperity.

Most horses were blinders, and most people went without sunglasses. (The horse that drew the vegetable and fruit peddler's wagon through the neighborhood usually had on a straw hat.)

They the educated suffered from arthritis. Everybody else over 40 suffered from "the rheumatiz."

CARRIED PARASOLS

Young ladies never carried umbrellas. They carried "parasols."

If you stubbed your toe going barefoot in summer, you didn't limp to the drug store to buy a bandage. Mother simply tied a clean rag around the throbbing joint.

Half the girls you knew from high school sewed their own dresses—or their mothers did it for them.

When the doctor made a house call, every small kid in the block yearned to peek into his little black bag to see if it contained anything new baby. (After all, that's where they came from.

The custom of being awakened in the morning by a rooster rather than an alarm clock, as villages will pointed out, was that "you don't have to to remember to wind the rooster."

If a boy didn't have a cent to buy gum, he could always make do by chewing soft tar, gouged from the street in summer.

People seemed to talk more about how to get rid of warts than how to avoid having coronary attacks.

Those were the days: Remember?

Canada's Relations to Russia Rebound From Munsinger Nadir

By JOHN REST

MOSCOW (CP) — Relations between Russia and Canada, which hit a sudden downturn over the Munsinger and Spencer spy cases, seem to have got back on course with the recent visit to Canada of First Deputy Premier Dmitry Polyansky.

However, judging by the record, it would be unrealistic not to expect further periodic squalls.

Polyansky's visit, as head of a Soviet parliamentary delegation, attracted an extraordinary amount of publicity in the Soviet press. Daily accounts, many of them lengthy by prevailing standards here, were carried in both the big national dailies: Pravda and Izvestia.

Some observers say it was the heaviest coverage that they can ever remember having been given to a foreign trip by a government leader below the level of premier.

It would be difficult to pin down a reason for this. But the Soviets were undoubtedly impressed and enormously pleased by the reception given the Polyansky delegation in Canada, where distinguished public figures from Prime Minister Pearson on down lavished attention on them.

(It was not all plain sailing, however.

(At a Canadian government dinner for the Soviet official in Ottawa, Polyansky and External Affairs Minister Martin of Canada engaged in a vigorous verbal exchange over United States actions in Viet Nam.

(Polyansky attacked the U.S. as the aggressor in Viet Nam. Martin replied that the U.S. has "no less interest than our own in promoting peace in the world between all countries.").

PROTEST LODGED

Only a month before the visit the Soviet press accused the Canadian government of fomenting an anti-Soviet campaign over the Gerda Munsinger and Victor George Spencer affairs.

That short, sharp outburst led to the presentation of an official protest to the Canadian embassy here.

Soviet journalists here attempted to spread the word that the Soviet government was considering the stoppage of wheat imports from Canada, pulling out of the Montreal world's fair, and scrapping historical cultural exchanges.

However, just a few days before Polyansky left for Canada the Soviet Union closed a deal with the Canadian wheat board for the biggest wheat and flour purchase in history —$800,000,000 worth spread over three years.

"Let's face it," cracked a while in Canada, and there is every sign that Soviet-Canadian relations here and the Russian officials they have to deal with.

Unless this problem is removed, the weather ahead may be marked by intermittent storms as in the past.

Polyansky himself visited the construction site of the Soviet world's fair pavilion and cultural exchanges will continue.

SEEK CLOSER TIES

The over-all trend of Soviet policy towards Canada is to expand and strengthen contacts, rather than rein curse.

It places great store in such ventures as the new passenger steamship service between Montreal and Leningrad, Soviet participation in the world's fair, and the new Montreal-Moscow air link recently agreed upon by the Canadian and Soviet governments.

Now, the Soviets are showing great interest in an exchange of scientific information and specialists in the field of agriculture.

Judging from a number of recent remarks by Polyansky, the Soviet government takes a highly matter-of-fact approach to the development of relations with Canada.

"We, the basic interests of our countries demand business-like co-operation in all spheres, the removal of rudeness which hamper this," he summed up in his last speech in Canada before leaving.

A recurring obstacle to good Soviet-Canadian relations has been the succession of spy cases in recent years involving Soviet personnel on the staff of the embassy in Ottawa. These invariably drew a chill into contacts between Canadian representatives here and the Russian officials they

Mayor May Reveal Contents Of Police Survey Report At September Council Meet

NAPANEE — The report of the survey of police matters in Napanee requested by the Council has been received by Reeve W. R. Douglas from the Ontario Police Commission. However, its contents will be made public only through the normal channels.

Mr. Douglas, who is the chairman of the Police Committee, has already called one meeting and considers that he has been given the report its first reading. A second meeting is slated for Monday night for more study, and probably others will follow. Suggestions which can be carried out immediately will be put into effect, will be brought before the council, probably in the form of a motion at the September meeting. This is the usual procedure for any matter being studied by any committee, according to information received from the office of the town clerk and from Mayor Lorne Smail. No subject under study is ever given any publicity until it reaches the Town Council.

Not all the items in the report are likely to be brought before the council at the same time, but only those which can be dealt with at that time. Should the report advise changes which would entail large expenditures, these could not be considered by the present council because they are not covered by the budget. They would have to wait until next year when the budget could cover them.

The mayor says that this survey was requested voluntarily by the council at the part of the Council to obtain expert advice on how to improve the Napanee Police Force and its control.

Development More Vital Than Defence

NEW DELHI (AP) — Prime Minister Gandhi today told a Republic Independence Day crowd that the task of achieving accelerated economic development is more important to India than guarding her frontiers.

As she spoke in the heavy monsoon downpour, an earth tremor shook the red Fort and its massive stone walls.

Thirteen people were killed and 34 injured when a three-story house collapsed in torrential rains which followed the tremor.

Police said they might extricate more bodies from the debris during the day.

Mrs. Gandhi deplored the "outburst of disturbances and violence" which has swept India in recent days and said she was "extremely unhappy and distressed at them."

"The labors should not resort to strikes. He should eschew violence even under grave provocation," she said. "Create and not destroy must be our gospel."

Recreation Centre Threatens Prosperity of Da Nang Shops

By JONATHAN FENBY

DA NANG, South Viet Nam (Reuters)—Sixteen shining new buildings forming a self-contained recreation centre in the big United States military base here threaten the formerly prosperous bar - owners and store keepers of Da Nang with a bleak future.

Da Nang, South Viet Nam's second largest city, has been barred to the 35,000 American servicemen in the area since mid-March when the start of the country's political crisis made it inadvisable for them to leave their sprawling base just outside the city limits.

For the first two months after the city was put out of bounds, speculators devoted themselves to building new bars at the rate of five a week, waiting for the day when thousands of thirsty foreign soldiers would pour into town.

That day has not yet come and, say some United States officers, it may never come.

A marine spokesman said there are no plans to allow the troops back into the town.

SOME ARE DESPERATE

Faced with the prospect of running dozens of empty establishments, the bar owners are pessimistic, even desperate, about their future.

Bar hostesses who used to swarm in Da Nang's bars, encouraging soldiers to buy them watery drinks at about a dollar a shot, also are feeling the pinch.

The souvenir shops lining the city's main streets are deserted.

Leather gun - belts, dolls in Vietnamese dresses, and American Confederate flags, all of which used to sell briskly, now hang unwanted outside the stores.

U.S. officers seem happy with the present situation and local officials, while insisting that they would welcome the return of the Americans, admit that Da Nang without the soldiers is a quieter place in which many Vietnamese find it easier to live.

Mao Tse-Tung's 'Thinking' May Be in Command in China But Is He Old Leader?

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

Mao Tse-tung's "thinking" is in command in China today—but is Mao Tse-tung?

The viewer may be no. China's Communists themselves nourish skepticism about Mao's health and position and speculate on the prospects of his departure from the scene. This speculation is encouraged by:

1. A campaign to convince China and the outside world that Mao still functions as head man.

2. Strange differences in pictures of Mao released in Peking, showing him alternately a sick old man and a younger, vigorous-looking leader.

3. An unexplained recall of an edition of the official party newspaper People's Daily reporting a Mao reappearance in Peking, and the subsequent deletion of the item from last Thursday's edition.

4. Extreme measures to denounce as traitors that the people—it is called "the great cultural revolution"—is Mao's own brainchild and that Mao's "thinking" is the locomotive of the purge, and of everything else.

5. Incredible mass rallies, both to denounce those accused as "anti-party," and to whip up anti-American sentiment.

SEE SIGN OF STRUGGLE

A report by the ruling Communist party central committee that Mao appeared before it in Peking for 12 days early this month and won complete vindication of his policies does not itself indicate he is in full control. On the contrary, it suggests that a struggle at the Politburo level has been in progress for some time, reaching a peak which required a long, drawn-out session.

With all this, it is difficult to escape an impression that Mao no longer is in personal command, that his health is far from what the propaganda says it is.

It is not easy to draw hard conclusions from the appearance of Mao in photographs officially released by Peking. But some intelligence sources go so far as to suggest that Mao, 72, has a look-alike. They suggest a double stands in for him in public appearances such as parades, demonstrations and other functions requiring Politburo members to stand for hours, an arduous performance for any man of Mao's age.

Mao looks far younger and healthier in pictures released in May and July of this year than he did in photographs published a year ago. A picture published last October shows Mao looking 10 years younger than he looked last November.

SAY PICTURES FAKED

Peking propaganda recently raised a hullaballoo about Mao swimming the Yangtze River. Its claims for his prowess and endurance went beyond bounds of credibility. Some analysts expressed conviction that pictures released in connection with the celebrated swim were faked.

Huge rallies in the last few months also raised suspicions. Obviously organized by the party, these turnouts of hundreds of thousands in city after city obviously interfered with production and the economy, just as mass turnouts of Hitlerites to denounce "anti-party" elements must have interfered with the educational system.

But the rallies help deflect public attention at a time when it is possible that a struggle is in progress at the top of the power pinnacle.

Mao dropped from public view last November. The last released photograph of him then was of an aging, tired man. The next photograph—six months later — showed a younger-looking man apparently in vigorous health.

It is here that there is a curious coincidence in dates. Party propaganda has dated the current purge to November when it said a crackdown began to eliminate those who failed to abide by "Mao Tse - tung's thinking." By May, the purgers were in full cry and leaders in high places had been toppled. The purge is still going on.

Man Held Since Killings

LONDON (CP)—Under heavy police guard, John Edward Whitney today was ordered held without bail on a charge of murder in the slaying of three police detectives and indications that Scotland Yard had picked up the trail of two others wanted in the cold - blooded shootings.

Handcuffed to two plainclothes policemen, Whitney replied to the magistrate that he had "nothing to say."

Scotland Yard later issued descriptions and names of the two men who, the police said in the legal language of Britain, "they believe can help police in their inquiries."

The two wanted men are Harry Maurice Roberts, 30, and John Duddy, 38. Scotland Yard said Roberts may also be the name of Ronald Ernest Hall and John O'Brien.

MEN CALLED DANGEROUS

Scotland Yard warned all police forces in Britain that both men were "dangerous and known to be armed."

It appealed to the public: "If the public sees either of these two men or knows of their whereabouts we would like them to raise their normal police—and in no circumstances to approach these men."

With a police patrol covering his head, the 36-year-old Whitney was driven to the courthouse from Brixton prison, the same station where he has been held since Friday—the day of the shootings.

Handcuffed to two plainclothes policemen, Whitney was led out of the police station by a back door. Police cars—including one with police dogs—rode in front and behind the wagon carrying Whitney.

Whitney's entry into the court was hidden from a crowd of about 20 or 30 persons who were walking outside seeking admission.

Extra police were posted at all entrances to the courthouse as the crowd began to swell. Only about a dozen people were able to get into the small public gallery.

The court hearing lasted only two minutes and Whitney was held without bail for another hearing Aug. 23.

Even as Whitney, described as unemployed, was being arraigned, police kept up the hunt for two other men wanted in the triple murders.

Hundreds of the two plainclothes policemen, Whitney stood slightly stooped in the defendant's dock to face the charge.

It said he was responsible "with others" for the murders of detectives Christopher Shelpett, David Stanley Wombwell and Geoffrey Roger Fox.

The gunning down of the three policemen Friday near Wormwood Scrubs Prison in West London shocked the British mainland in London's history. Nearly 20,000 police and detectives

U.S. Pioneer VII to Orbit Sun To Investigate Solar Winds

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) Pioneer VII is scheduled to be launched Wednesday into orbit around the sun to investigate "solar wind" — radiation that emerges through interplanetary space, posing a potential threat to astronauts.

The 143-pound spacecraft is to be buried aloft at 11:18 a.m. EDT by a delta rocket. It is to swing around the sun on a path between the earth and Mars, investigating a vast expanse of the solar system.

Pioneer VII is to circle the sun at distances ranging from 92,000,000 to 102,000,000 miles, taking 400 days to complete one orbit.

It is the second of five such probes to be launched over a period of about three years to map the solar wind, cosmic rays and magnetic fields in space. Pioneer VI, launched last December into a sun orbit on a path between the earth and Venus, still is transmitting valuable information which will be correlated with the Pioneer VII data.

The solar wind consists of great clouds of ionized gases that spew constantly from the sun. The clouds contain charged atomic particles — positively-charged ions and negatively-charged electrons.

Un-American Activities Group Ignores Judge's Ban on Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. House of Representatives committee on un - American activities prepared today to defy a federal judge's order against its hearings on anti-Viet Nam war activities in an apparently unprecedented clash between the U.S. Congress and the judiciary.

Representative Joe R. Pool (Dem., Tex.), acting chairman of the committee, said it would meet as scheduled despite the day's order by U.S. District Judge Howard Corcoran. Extra police were ordered posted around the House office building to guard against any demonstrations by peace groups.

Corcoran, acting on a suit brought by the American Civil Liberties Union on behalf of two of 13 persons subpoenaed by the committee, issued a temporary restraining order forbidding the hearing. He blocked the subpoenas and directed that a three-judge federal court be convened to consider constitutional questions raised by the suit.

The justice department, acting in behalf of the committee, promptly asked a three-judge panel of the U.S. circuit court of appeals to throw out Judge Corcoran's order. The judges met in the force-servright and directed the Liberties Union and justice department to file written briefs today.

FACE CONTEMPT ACTION

Refusal to obey Judge Corcoran's order could subject the nine committee members, all named as defendants in the suit, to contempt of court action.

But Pool told reporters: "I will go to jail and stay there until hell freezes over to prove my point."

His statement stand was supported by House Speaker John W. McCormack, who called Judge Corcoran's move "a direct attack on the integrity and independent prerogatives of the Congress."

John Pemberton, executive director of the Liberties Union, filed the suit in behalf of Walter B. Teague Jr. of New York, chairman of the U.S. Committee to Aid the National Liberation Front (Viet Cong) of South Viet Nam, and Dr. Allen M. Krebs, president of the Free University of New York.

Pemberton said the suit was filed because the hearings "appear to us to herald a new period of official suppression of citizens dissent."

The legislation under consideration by the committee would impose fines up to $20,000 and prison sentences up to 20 years against persons who acted to block the movement of U.S. men or material to Viet Nam.

Nationalist Chinese Scheme To Defend Formosa Revised

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—The "Rochesteren Plan"—the U.S.-Nationalist Chinese scheme for defending Formosa—has been revised in the last few months, informed sources say.

Worked out by the U.S. Pacific command in consultation with Nationalist Chinese military forces, the plan provides for military operations in the event of a Chinese attack on this island.

The plan was first drafted after the U.S. - Nationalist Chinese mutual defence accord was framed in 1954. The code name "Rochester" has no special significance.

Details of the latest revision were not disclosed, but pressure by Viet Nam developments were a factor.

The plan basically relies on Nationalist China's military forces. The U.S. defence command primarily is a planning body, but it could receive combat forces and become an operational command in the event of an attack on Formosa.

With a population of almost 13,000,000 on Formosa, Nationalist China maintains an army of 400,000 men. An additional 85,000 serve in the air force and 60,000 in the navy. About 1,000,000 are in militia units and reserves.

China has almost 3,000,000 men under arms, but the nationalists feel their forces are adequate to meet any attack and to keep large Communist forces tied down in coastal defence.

While the nationalists are on guard against Communist attack, intelligence sources here say the Communists are equally worried about a possible nationalist attack. As a result, 1,000,000 troops are said to be stationed on the entire Chinese coast, with 400,000 of them directly opposite the nationalist islands.

24 Passengers, Crew Members Killed in Crash

VIENNA (AP)—The American embassy in Bucharest said today a Romanian airlines passenger plane crashed near the town of Sibiu last Thursday, killing about 24 passengers and crew members.

Nicholas Boldog, a longtime friend of the self-styled nuclear submarinist, said Mrs. Papp was shaken by the news that her husband had been found floating on a life raft in Brest harbor Friday, and she had been alternately crying and hysterical since she was escorted by the external affairs department.

Mr. Boldog said Papp's submarine had taken six years and used an investment of $25,000 to build. He also said it was capable of speeds up to 300 miles an hour.

He said Papp had fled Hungary in 1957 with a special fast boat that was to power the boat. He had hidden the fuel in a cigarette lighter.

Mr. Boldog said he was "shocked" that officials in France had found a train ticket from Paris to Brest when Papp was picked out of the water.

"I don't know what to make of this," he said. "However, there have been so many different stories so far that I won't believe anything this is confirmed."

Friends said Papp spent "almost all of his spare time" working on submarine which was to be powered by six nuclear reactors. He also spent most of his weekly salary of $100 and his wife's pay of $40 on the project.

Steve Radowsky, Mrs. Papp's employer and spokesman for the woman, said he believes Papp destroyed the submarine because he didn't want anyone to get hold of the craft's design."

Two MiGs Give Fight To U.S. Jets

SAIGON (AP)—Two Communist MIG 17s attacked four U.S. Navy jet planes over North Viet Nam today in a short dogfight 70 miles south of Hanoi. It was the farthest south enemy jets are known to have ventured so far in the war.

The MIGs pounced on the navy Skyhawks with 37-millimetre cannon fire, a spokesman said. The Skyhawks took evasive action and broke off contact without firing on the MIGs.

Most of the previous aerial battles with Communist MIGs have occurred north and northwest of Hanoi, the North Vietnamese capital.

U.S. planes flew 132 missions Monday against the north, hitting 17 oil storage depots in the Haiphong area and the southern panhandle. The strikes approached the record 139 missions flown against the north earlier this month.

The U.S. command, in a delayed report, also announced the loss of a third air force plane over the north Sunday. A spokesman said the pilot bailed out and could not be rescued and was listed as missing.

The plane was the 340th reported lost over the north since air action on North Viet Nam began two years ago. The loss of two others Sunday had been announced earlier.

The North Viet Nam news agency said another U.S. plane was shot down Monday while on a mission with other aircraft to strafe a "populated area" near Hanoi, the North Vietnamese capital.

Airline Strike May End

WASHINGTON (AP) — Striking mechanics today receive details of a tentative agreement aimed at settling the strike of five major U.S. airlines by Friday.

The idled airliners said they could resume some flights this weekend if the agreement is approved by the strikers. The strike now is in the 40th day.

P. L. (Roy) Siemiller, president of the International Association of Machinists (AFL-CIO), called the settlement, reached about dawn Monday, "the best ever in one set of negotiations for airlines."

Details of the contract were to remain secret until the 35,400 strikers received a letter from Siemiller in which he said he recommended ratification of the agreement reached with the airlines — Eastern, National; Northwest, Trans World and United.

Civil Rights Leaders Plan More Marches

CHICAGO (AP)—Civil rights leaders say the marches into white neighborhoods of Chicago will continue until Negroes can move into housing wherever they choose."

The promised continuation of the demonstrations came from Albert A. Raby, convener of the Coordinating Council of Community Organizations, at a rally Monday night.

Eight groups of marchers are to go into previously-picketed areas today—three going to Jefferson Park, a northwest side neighborhood, and five going to Gresham and Beverly, a location being the Chicago Real Estate Board.

Meanwhile planning continued for a summit meeting on housing Wednesday. Rt. Rev. Alfred Wedgwood, Bishop Coadjutor of the Episcopal (Anglican) diocese of Chicago, said the conference was called to discuss open housing — not to seek an end to the marches which have led to violence on many occasions.

Five Klansmen Picket Beatles

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Beatles, steering clear of anything political, began their North American tour today, having sent thousands of Washington's teen-agers into cheering fits.

Under elaborate police guard, the quartet from Liverpool, England, arrived Monday night for 32,164 fans in D.C. Stadium.

Among members of the Ku Klux Klan, proclaiming their objection to Beatle John Lennon's remarks about Christianity, picketed the stadium.

Nation-wide Rail Strike Shaping Up

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP) — With a nation-wide railway strike over wage demands already shaping up, the federal cabinet was thrust another critical labor issue Monday that could be even tougher to resolve.

A three-man conciliation board, in a rate unanimous report, invited the government to introduce legislation that would require employers to negotiate with their unions before introducing any new technology affecting jobs or working conditions.

The board had studied a contract dispute between the major railways and the 20,000-member Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen in which the key issue was a union demand for negotiation on any material change in working conditions. The union has warned it will strike, if necessary, to obtain this right.

The report said both sides have agreed on the idea of negotiated work changes. But the union had demanded the right to strike if such negotiations proved unsatisfactory, while the railways insisted on some form of binding arbitration by an impartial body.

NEGOTIATION WON'T HELP

"We believe that the differing viewpoints will not be resolved by negotiation," the board said. The only alternative then is specific implementation from it."

The report was signed by Mr. Justice Willie Little of Parry Sound, Ont., chairman, company nominee R. V. Hicks of Toronto and Douglas Fisher, Ottawa columnist and former NDP member of Parliament who was the union nominee.

William F. Kelly of Ottawa, Canadian head of the BRT, immediately announced a strike vote. Ballot's were mailed Monday afternoon to BRT local chairmen across the country and results will be announced here next weekend. The union represents conductors and brakemen on all of Canada's railways.

The conciliation board also sidestepped any recommendation on the union's demands for a 30-hour week. It said the wage proposals and counter - proposals were so complex that the matter should be left for specialists to decide when it deals with the whole question of railway wage structure.

However, the board said both sides should make an effort to work out an acceptable wage structure. Rates now are based on a formula involving hours, although the union spokesman said recently it was "arbitrarian."

ASKS INCREASE

The union had demanded a 15-per-cent wage boost for conductors and brakemen on passenger trains and freight trains, chiefly on mileage rates. It asked 90 cents an hour extra for yard crews, similar to those on the main-line emphasis is on hours of work.

But it also sought a reduction in the basic work day from eight hours to six, with overtime payment applying beyond six

Galilee Told 100 Dead

DAMASCUS (Reuters) — MAJ-Gen. Hafez Assad, defence minister of Syria, said today some 80 to 100 crew members of Israeli military boats were killed in a fierce battle on the Sea of Galilee Monday.

He also said Israeli naval port installations south of the Sea of Galilee were destroyed.

Assad made a preliminary report to the cabinet at a meeting Monday night on the three-hour battle, the second flare-up of fighting between Israel and Syria in just more than a month.

A military spokesman here said Monday night the Syrian air force destroyed three Israeli boats and set eight others ablaze after turning back Israeli planes. One Syrian was wounded, he said.

An Israeli spokesman in Tel Aviv said two Syrian MiG jet fighters were shot down. He put Israeli casualties at five wounded.

United Nations truce observers in Israel and Syria negotiated a ceasefire.

JERUSALEM (Reuters)—Lt.-Gen. Odd Bull, chief United Nations truce observer, will make a better today to Syria and Israel asking them to observe their armistice agreement, a United Nations spokesman said today.

The spokesman said the issue he would also call on them not to commit any acts violating the agreement such as Monday's armed clash.

Investigation into the clash on the Sea of Galilee continued, the spokesman said. He said the situation on the Syrian-Israeli border today was calm.

Montrealer Who Says He Built Own Nuclear Sub Turns Upon Life Raft in Brest Harbor

MONTREAL (CP)—While Joseph Papp rested in the psychiatric ward of the Brest Naval Hospital in France Monday, his wife and friends in Montreal displayed mixed emotions.

Nicholas Boldog, a longtime friend of the self-styled nuclear submarinist, said Mrs. Papp was shaken by the news that her husband had been found floating on a life raft in Brest harbor Friday, and she had been alternately crying and hysterical since she was escorted by the external affairs department.

Mr. Boldog said Papp's submarine had taken six years and used an investment of $25,000 to build. He also said it was capable of speeds up to 300 miles an hour.

He said Papp had fled Hungary in 1957 with a special fast

BREST, France (CP-AP)—Joseph Papp of Montreal, who says he designed the Atlantic 8 submarine he made himself, is in the psychiatric ward of the Brest Navy Hospital today after telling his story to French authorities.

A hospital spokesman said Papp, a native of Hungary, had a Forte-Brest railway ticket in his pocket dated the day before he was found.

'Aside From His Story, He Appears Normal'

"Aside from his story of the submarine, he appears to be absolutely normal," the spokesman said. "He is not suffering from any physical malady at all. Nevertheless, we've booked him in the psychiatric ward."

Papp was found bobbing off Brest harbor Friday in an inflatable life raft, and hoisted he crossed the Atlantic in his own homemade submarine, which he said sank on a Brittany beach.

Officials said no submarine was found on any Brittany beach.

The Canadian embassy in Paris said Papp had lost his passport and Canadian consular officials would be in communication with him concerning his return home.

The embassy said it had no information indicating Papp made the trip in a submarine.

"It is a revolutionary achievement using a new fuel," he said, Mrs. Papp told police Sunday that the submarine has a "totally new" nuclear power plant.

Earlier Monday, Mrs. Papp told reporters that she had been married to the 33-year-old former Hungarian jet pilot for one year. She said they have no children.

Mr. Boldog said Papp left his home Wednesday after tests on the vessel had travelled to Sorel, Que., where the submarine was being kept.

He said Papp told him he was planning to travel down the St. Lawrence in the submarine and then cross the Atlantic in 12 hours to either England or Scotland.

"He had with him a few sandwiches, his passport, some pills to deal with his appetite and others to keep him awake," Mr. Boldog said.

District Youth Attends Leadership Camp in U.S.

RAWDON — Kelvin Sharp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Sharp of R.R. 3, Stirling, is attending the American Youth Foundation Leadership Camp at Stony Lake, Ocean County, Michigan, for a two week period. Together with a boy from Quebec, he will represent Canada at the third annual of the Leadership Camp, a non-denominational Christian training organization.

Purpose of the camp, sponsored by the Ralston Purina Company is "to assist young people to discover and develop their best selves and then equip them to guide others." More than 2,000 young people from the United States and Canada attended the 1965 camp. This year, 110 scholarships were awarded to deserving 4-H Club work among boys and girls. At the time Kelvin was chosen by the provincial 4-H Club committee to represent Canada at the camp, he had completed 25 4-H projects.

Since the American Youth Foundation Camp is built on the principle of four-fold balance, (physical, mental, social and religious development), the basis for awarding a scholarship is centred on athletic activities, scholarship standing, leadership in 4-H Club and church work.

The two-week curriculum at the camp is comprised of courses in Christian ideals, personal foundations, personal enrichment, leadership principles and practice. The day's schedule is divided between class work and recreation, group games, track and aquatic events.

Kelvin received his primary education at the Allan Public School, Mount Pleasant-Rawdon. This year he was graduated from grade 12 at Stirling-Rawdon District High School and has enrolled as a student at Guelph University.

He is a valued member of Mount Pleasant-Rawdon United Church and a member of the choir. He has a secretary and assistant superintendent at the Sunday School. In 1965 Kelvin was the Hastings County delegate to the 4-H leadership week held annually in Guelph.

United Appeal Sets Objective Of $108,750

The Belleville United Appeal announced its 1966 campaign goal today is set at $108,750.

United Appeal collects funds for 14 health, welfare and recreation agencies in the city and district. Only those from last year's United Appeal members is the addition of the United Community Services of Belleville and District, Inc., and the deletion of the Children's Aid Society. Due to recent legislation the Children's Aid is now completely sponsored by government.

An appeal spokesman said, "One out of three Belleville families need a United Appeal service, and everyone benefits from them."

Last year the Belleville United Appeal collected its highest-ever total of $101,200. This year's goal is an increase of 7.4 per cent over that total.

United Appeal agencies are Y.M.C.A., Belleville Minor Sports Association, Boy Scouts, Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, Canadian National Institute for the Blind, Canadian Red Cross Society, Family Counselling Service of Belleville and Hastings County, Civic Action Committee of Belleville, Multiple Sclerosis Society, Navy League, Rehabilitation Foundation for the Disabled, St. John Ambulance, Victorian Order of Nurses and the United Community Services.

A pamphlet explaining the function and individual objectives of each agency is available at the Belleville Labor Council office for labor.

United Community Services executive director R. L. Purcell attended a "Little League" conference of United Appeal executive directors in Canso que yesterday.

Executive directors from Cornwall, Brockville, Kingston and Belleville attended. The officials discussed mutual problems, policies and agency relations.

Antique Cars To Make Tour Of County

Antique car buffs in the Central Ontario and Bay of Quinte areas are going to have their own special day on Saturday with a tour of South Hastings being planned.

Kenneth Vivian of Shannonville, a director of the Upper Canada Antique Car Club, says that from 15 to 20 antique cars are expected to leave Shannonville at 10 o'clock Saturday morning and will visit Tweed, Actinolite, Madoc and Marmora.

Although close to 20 vehicles are already entered for the tour, Mr. Vivian says more antique cars for the parade would be welcome.

Anyone interested in taking part in the tour is asked to get in touch with Mr. Vivian at Shannonville.

Almost Inch Of Rainfall During Storm

This morning's heavy cloudburst dropped .94" of rain on the city backing up many storm sewers. Showers continued throughout the morning and scattered showers are expected this afternoon.

Two traffic lights at North Front and College Streets were reportedly put out of commission after being struck by lightning.

"RAIN, RAIN GO AWAY" — That must be what the directors of the Belleville Fair were singing this morning following a heavy deluge of the liquid stuff. The normally busy, usually the centre of activity, site, almost deserted at noon today. Rain is supposed to end this afternoon.

Fair Attendance First Day Best in Past Five Years

An early morning deluge dampened the spirits of fairgoers today, but non-the-less officials of Belleville fair expressed satisfaction with attendance for the first few days and hoped for clearing skies later in the day.

Yesterday's attendance figures at the fair were the best in the past five years for a Monday with no less than 7,231 adults paying admission to the grounds. In addition there were 1,100 paid admissions to the grandstand for the motorcycle races. The highest previous Monday attendance was 6,199 in 1964.

Monday, designated Children's Day at the fair and with free admission for children under twelve there were no actual over - all attendance records. One estimate, however, was that close to 15,000 people of all ages entered the grounds.

And the evening traffic and parking jam seemed to substantiate the big attendance.

Streets in the neighborhood of the grounds for many blocks were lined with parked autos and parking space was at a premium within the grounds.

He was Ringgit Marcie of Moira Street, winner of the daily pot of gold. Mr. Marcie won $220, the amount of the daily cash attendance prize.

Today at the fair the big horse show commences in earnest with draft, hackney, roadster, Palomino and Arabians in action.

Also the dairy cattle show gets under way with ringside judging of Jersey and Guernsey. Poultry judging is also on today.

Tonight will see the Junior Farmer Square Dance Competition in the Junior Farmer building, stock again races, and the draw for the third pot of gold.

White Prejudice Against Negro Has Not Lessened

NEW YORK (AP)—A survey published Monday shows white prejudice against the Negro has not substantially lessened in the last three years in the United States.

The survey was conducted by Newsweek magazine with by sent polling teams — including 113 Negro interviewers — throughout the U.S. in 1963 from 1,059 Negroes and 1,088 whites from varying backgrounds.

Some survey results:

—About 88 per cent of the whites object to having a Negro family next door. It was 91 per cent in 1963. It is 69 per cent in the U.S. south now.)

—About 88 per cent of the whites would not send their teen-age children dating Negroes.

—About 16 per cent of whites in general and 42 per cent of southern whites object to asking next a Negro to their restaurant, 21 per cent and 56 per cent, respectively, to using the same washroom and 64 per cent to sitting beside a Negro on a bus and 56 per cent to trying on clothing a Negro has tried on.

—About 62 per cent of whites believe all Negro demonstrations are bad. (It was 53 per cent three years ago.)

—About 50 per cent of whites believe Negroes have looser morals than whites.

—Two of every three Negroes questioned (three out of five in the south) believe their situation has improved in public accommodations. But for the majority, housing remains a sore point.

CORRUPTION CHARGED

SINGAPORE (Reuters)—Yosef Muslaim, Indonesia's former minister of economic affairs, has been charged with corruption and subversion, radio Jakarta said Monday. Muslaim was accused by army strongman Gen. Suharto of having misused billions of rupiahs of "the Indonesian revolution fund," the radio said. He also was accused of having a secret cache of 1,000 rifles and 250,000 rounds of ammunition, the radio added.

Man Remanded Week in Jail For Sentencing

Bud Wayne Britton, 20, of no fixed local address, was remanded in custody for one week in magistrate's court this morning after pleading guilty to a charge of break, entry and theft.

Police testified that Britton was offered a meal and a place to sleep by the assistant manager of a Coleman Street establishment Saturday morning after chicken orders and that, during Britton's association with the manager, he learned where the store's cash receipts were kept.

Police said that Britton was charged August 13 with the theft early that morning of $275 from the store.

Britton told the court that he had found only $175 in the bag taken from the store. He also said in a statement to police after being arrested that he had no money, food, or lodgings at the time of the theft. Investigating police officers found receipts for about $70 worth of clothes in a hotel room occupied by the accused at the time of his arrest, and that he had some $70 on his person.

Wish I could see you once more,

Wish I could say all I would say.
To his beloved cherish and never forget,
Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by his wife Alexandra, son-in-law Fletcher and family.

BORSCHADT — In memory of Comrade Ernest Borschadt, Belleville, who passed away August 16, 1965.

SPENCER — In loving memory of Comrade Jack Spencer, who died August 16, 1964.
It's lonesome here without you,
I miss you more each day,
Memories are sweet, but not the same.
Since time have gone away,
My heart still aches with pain,
To know you're gone forever,
There's a vacant chair that can't be filled,
Since you died not you alone,
But part of us went with you.
The days grow lonely and long,
The years remembered by mother and family.

BRADY — In loving memory of a dear father who passed away August 16, 1965.
Dear Father you are not forgotten,
Though sorrow you are no more,
Memory keeps you with us,
As you always were before.
Ever remembered by daughter Ruth, son-in-law Norris and grandson Billie.

FAMILY GATHERING IN BELLEVILLE includes brother and sister who were separated for 49 years. Walter Anderton (left) was reunited with his sister, Mrs. C. O. Lundberg of 32A Sinclair St. (centre). Another sister, Mrs. Harry Taylor (right) has visited with brother Walter twice since emigrating to Canada in 1947. At left, is Mrs. Anderson and right rear, Mr. Taylor.

Brother, Sister Reunited After 49-Year Separation

A brother and sister were united in Belleville recently after a separation of 49 years. Mrs. C. O. Lundberg of 32A Sinclair St. had not seen her brother, Walter Anderton of Summit, Micklebourgh, Lancashire, England, since 1917. Mr. Anderton and Mrs. Lundberg are making up for lost time, while her brother and his wife spend a five-week vacation here.

Mr. and Mrs. Anderton are the guests of another sister, Mrs. Terry-Taylor and her husband of 102 Wallbridge Crescent. Mrs. Taylor has not been separated from brother Walter for long. She and Mr. Taylor emigrated to Canada in 1947 and have returned to England twice since then.

When Mrs. Lundberg emigrated to Canada in 1917, she recalls the trip by boat took 10 days. Mr. and Mrs. Anderton made the flight from Manchester to Toronto's Malton Airport, in a turbo-prop aircraft in about 10 hours.

CONSTANTLY ON GO

Mr. and Mrs. Anderton term their visit to Canada a very enjoyable experience. They have been constantly on the go since arriving here as their hosts endeavor to show them as much of the country as possible. Their visitors are impressed with the weather in Canada since they are accustomed to temperatures in the 40-65 degree range.

The Andertons describe television over here as a "marvellous". In their district in England, they are able to view only one channel, the BBC. And the licence for TV in England is six pounds per year. But Mr. Anderton does miss his mild and bitters. He observes that Canadian beer reminds him of soda pop.

Things are different in Canada. Mr. Anderton confesses amazement at the fact that Canadians drive to the corner store and when they want to chat with friends, they use the telephone.

"Over home, we walk," says Mr. Anderton.

While in Belleville, he is taking advantage of the opportunity to visit with nieces and nephews including Jack Lundberg, A.N.A.F. Dominion Command president; Ray Lundberg of Woodley Furriers, Mrs. Bob Lloyd (Inez), Mrs. John Brownlee (Gwen), and Mrs. Frank Daniels (Audrey).

Bank Letter Re-opens Old Property Issue

TRENTON — The matter of effigel passing a by-law by the terms of which home owners could enter upon adjoining property to affect "repairs, alterations or improvements" to their own property, was raised again in council last night by a letter from the Toronto-Dominion Bank.

When the bank was taking up temporary quarters in the old Courier-Advocate building on Front Street, workmen were warned not to step on land either owned or optioned by the Quinte Realty Company, one of whose principals is ex-councillor G. A. Weaver.

They didn't. But another snag has arisen. Workmen of the Mastin Cleaning Service, intent upon cleaning the back windows to the building, did go on the property. Now, there is an indication that this or future episodes might lead to prosecution.

At the suggestion of Councillor D. R. Fraser, town solicitor Roderick Campbell will be asked to rule if the wanted by-law covers cleaning services.

Missing Man Being Sought

TRENTON — A 46-year-old resident of Trenton is missing and being sought by police. Ross Clinton Wales of 122 Wilkins St., was last seen in Trenton, when he left his home last Thursday to drill a well in Napanee.

Police say his truck and equipment are in Napanee but there is no trace of the missing man.

C of C Throws Weight Behind Athletic Park

TRENTON — The Trenton Chamber of Commerce has thrown its weight behind the Centennial Committee in an effort to have Phase One of the Centennial Park in that Township completed by June 14, 1967, the cutoff date for government grants on the project.

Among the money raising events being arranged by chamber heads is a junior soccer tournament on Aug. 27 and Aug. 28, when teams from area Ontario communities will compete.

The chamber is also negotiating with the management of the Centre Theatre with a view to providing the theatre for a week-end when all proceeds would go towards park development.

Meanwhile, there will be Centennial Park tag days on August 19 and August 20, to raise money for the project.

By the terms of an amendment to the by-law establishing the community gardens area as a recreation area, the surrounding grounds are now officially termed "an athletic field." This means the Centennial Committee may be eligible for a 50,000 grant. Such things as a softball diamond, a soccer field and a bowling green will be built here.

The amendment to the by-law was passed by town council last night with only Councillor Edward Todd raising objections. The councillor felt it might not be a good thing to remove the jurisdiction of the area from the recreation committee and place its entire fate in the hands of the community garden board.

However, council believed the $5,000 grant against any possible difficulty and decided to pass the amendment.

In other chamber news, Gordon Shoalder has been asked to head up a tourism committee, which will seek to arrange for proper docking facilities for the built behind the chamber office on Front Street.

John Tripp is heading up a five man civic committee to investigate possible uses for the old post office, the possibility of holding a town wide contest to name the new bridge and the posting up of potted trees and flowers in the downtown area.

Council Endorses Twin Idea

TRENTON — Trenton council has agreed to a suggestion brought down by the Ontario Municipal Association and the Union of Quebec Municipalities to enter into a "twinning" program for Centennial Year.

By this program, Quebec centres would be "twinned" up with other municipalities of their size and interests in other parts of Canada. Personnel from the twin communities would exchange visits and ideas.

In this way, the committee set up to twin the cities and towns hopes to create a bond of understanding between peoples in both places.

Horns Make Upset Citizens Nervous, Safe

TRENTON — Children living in the vicinity of Elizabeth Street are "upset and extremely nervous" and the adults aren't far behind, owing to the "extremely loud, blasting horns" of CPR trains which pass over the West Street crossing. At least this is the opinion of upwards of 20 persons living in the area who presented a petition to town council last night, asking that a by-law be passed, prohibiting the CPR from blowing horns here.

Town council was told the CPR is having safety gates built for the crossing and until these were installed, there wasn't much sense of complaining about the safety horns, which, after all, protect the motoring public.

News in Brief

LAND SHOWDOWN

TRENTON — The Trenton Public Utilities Commission, faced with a "showdown" with Murray Township landowner Jack Alyea over a land expropriation dispute, wants council's minute book from 1830 to 1854 available in court to prove a point or so in connection with the legality of the commission as an autonomous body.

However, council doesn't want to take any chances with its official records, and if either the commission or Mr. Alyea subpoenas clerk comptroller O. W. Larry he will take the minute books into court . . . and they leave the court with him.

DANCING BRIDGE

The swing portion of the town bridge is getting "an awful pounding and sways like a Hula dancer" when large trucks pass over it, according to Councillor Paul Tripp.

Councillor Tripp wants the Dept. of Highways brought into the act, but he was told by other councillors last night that an attempt to do this last year had come to naught.

What the town needs, it seems, is a wide scale, far-having nose, it might rent them

The public works committee will examine the problem and come up with a recommendation.

UNPLANNED DEVELOPMENT

Councillor Paul Tripp is worried about unplanned development going on along the Second Dug Hill Road, just over the border from the town's boundary line in Murray Township.

Both the Quinte Planning Board and the Murray Township Planning Board to get together on a "master plan" for the area.

Mayor James MacDonald told council last night that steps had already been taken in this direction.

BOY INJURED

Six-year-old Raymond Van Egmond of R.R. 1, Colborne, is in satisfactory condition in Cobourg General Hospital today following an accident yesterday afternoon on the Dundonald Road, four miles north of Colborne.

The child was driving his bicycle out of a laneway when he collided with a car driven by Roy Arnold Harvey Harrett, 21, of R.R. 1, Colborne.

Raymond suffered a broken left leg and other undetermined injuries.

BOYS AT CAMP

Members of the Trenton Kiwanis Club, sponsoring body for the week at camp, have promised to visit the camp Thursday and take the boys on in a ball game.

SWEET CLOVER SOUP

Sweet clover, which may be of some interest to bees, pigs and cows, isn't of much interest to Councillor Ernest Hall and he wants it removed from a vacant lot on Bay Street, opposite the Royal Hotel.

The public works' men will be asked to see about the removal this week.

Workshop Opens Monday

Local Teacher Ross Jewell At Newspaper-in-Class Course

Ross Jewell, vice-principal of Sir Mackenzie Bowell School in Belleville, is attending a two-week "Newspaper-in-the-Classroom Workshop" which opened yesterday in Waterloo.

Mr. Jewell is sponsored at the workshop by The Intelligencer and the Belleville Public School Board.

About 37 teachers from Canada and the United States are attending. The workshop itself is sponsored by the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers Association and is being held at the University of Waterloo.

Mr. Curran, who also is managing-director of The Star, said the habit of reading newspapers will do much to produce a better informed public. He said newspapers have become more responsible in their attitude toward their respective communities.

T. E. Nichols of the Hamilton Spectator told the workshop that television can provide excellent interpretative information on world affairs but added that newspapers can do it just as well if they try.

"This is going to take a lot of psychology and it is going to cost money," Mr. Nichols said. "And it is going to demand an increasing number of well educated writers who do not simply have to confine themselves to the routine reporting of events in the community — important as such reporting is."

He said newspapers have lately shown more initiative in interpretative writing but added that he didn't think many of us would hesitate in saying we still have a long way to go."

Mr. Jewell registered at the workshop Sunday. He is the second annual representative to attend the conference from Belleville. Sister Mary Fleurette of Nicholson Catholic College attended last year's workshop.

Glen Miller Bridge Unsafe Says Fire Chief

GLEN MILLER — The bridge crossing the Trent River at Glen Miller is unsafe for motorists to use according to Sidney Township Fire Chief John Aquino. The chief made the observation yesterday after firemen had put out the ninth fire on the bridge this summer. Supporting the fire chief's claim are many holes in the bridge planking caused by fires over the years. It is believed the fires are caused by motorists who toss lighted cigarettes from their cars.

The bridge, maintained by Hastings County, has steel plates covering its wooden planking. These plates are loose and in many cases, they have large bolts protruding from them, constituting a hazard for motorists. One steel plate is completely disconnected.

"If repairs to the bridge are not carried out and we are called to another fire there, I will see that the bridge is closed to traffic until it is repaired," said Fire Chief Aquino.

CAUGHT WITH OWN TRAP

PORTSMOUTH, England (CP)—A television reporter arranged a program in which two policemen would pose as water company officials to show housewives how easily thieves could bluff their way into their houses. When the film was broadcast, the reporter found his own home had been chosen, without his knowledge.

ROSS JEWELL

County Health Unit to Open On Sept. 1st

On September 1st, the Hastings County Health Unit comes into being.

It will take over the functions of the Department of Health of the City of Belleville and of all similar Departments in the Hastings County.

The Health Unit will be headed by Dr. Lentz, Medical Officer of Health, who will be responsible to the Board chaired by Mr. Wm. A. Sheroon. The Nursing personnel will be directed by Mrs. J. Hyatt and the Sanitation services by Mr. L. Elsmore.

The Medical officer and his staff will do their best to insure smooth and efficient running of the new organization but initially some slowing down of the services may be expected particularly because of the staff shortages experienced at this stage.

However they feel confident that with co-operation of the Public and especially of the Medical Profession, as well as Civic Authorities, and voluntary organizations, the opening of this Health Unit may eventually become an important step towards raising of the standards of health and well being of the residents of the County.

Big Cheque Being Mailed For Hospital

The Treasury Department of the Ontario Government will shortly be mailing a cheque for $400,037 to this Belleville General Hospital as the first instalment of the provincial capital grant to the hospital's new construction program.

Clarke T. Rollins, M.L.A. for Hastings East reports he has received confirmation of the cheque mailing from Hon. M. B. Dymond, Ontario Minister of Health.

Downtown Area Plans

"Let's take care of what is already there before plunging into costly new expansion plans. . ."

That is the burden of a letter appearing on this page today. It relates to the downtown area and to last week's presentation by the city's consulting engineers, Damas and Smith, of three alternative plans to solve the riverfront access problem.

Details have already been published, but briefly, they propose 1. that the gap left by the Robertson block fire be an access route for a riverfront drive; 2. construction of a new river wall and a pedestrian walkway, and 3. a vehicular bridge across the Moira river north of the present footbridge.

From a long term viewpoint expansion of the downtown area must come, but it is going to be costly. A look at the price tags on the engineers' proposals makes that abundantly clear. They range from $425,000 to more than $2,000,000. Yes. . . two million dollars!

And Belleville does not have that kind of money. However, no decisions are being called for on the plans offered. At least not yet. They are now in the hands of the special committee charged with looking into the riverfront problem.

Whatever its recommendations, the burden of cost must loom foremost in its thinking. Clearly, a few taxpayers are not taking the consulting engineer's suggestions lightly.

Meanwhile, there is no reason why the downtown merchants should not combine their talents in a low-cost effort to brighten Front Street, along the lines of the Norwich Plan in England.

Norwich is a city in the East Anglia region of England. There, the merchants co-operated in a face-lifting operation which involved nothing more complicated than some modest store-front alterations, painting and the introduction of flower boxes.

A number of Ontario communities have undertaken such a scheme as a Centennial project. Some cities in the United States have also adopted it.

This plan for downtown improvement could give a boost to business in Belleville too, providing an attraction for residents and visitors alike, and creating fresh interest in Front Street as a mecca for shoppers.

Centennial Books

And it is the womenfolk who are making all the effort — and incidentally being rewarded for their industry by grants from the Centennial Commission. No fewer than 12 Canadian women, eight of them from Ontario, have received grants.

Two books will deal with the early Indians. A grant of $2,000 for example, goes to Ethel B. Monture of Toronto, an unofficial spokesman for her people, to write about the Longhouse government of the Six Nations Confederacy before and after the arrival of the Europeans. The other book will deal with tribal legends of the Blackfeet. Its author is an Alberta woman, Frances Fraser.

Other subjects include biographies of Canadian women of historical significance (by Vida H. Peene of Toronto); domestic lore from 1790 to 1900 (by Una Abrahamson of Don Mills), and a history of Ontario crafts (by Mrs. H. C. Taylor of Gananoque, president of the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada).

How much of the history of this country remains to be written, and what a wealth of human interest, of activity and customs of the past remains to be chronicled, are indicated in this small sampling of subject matter.

"Spymobile" Tested

Toronto Metro police are experimenting with a British-built, quiet-running motorcycle which is proving invaluable for routine patrol work in the city.

With a water-cooled engine, shaft drive and a big muffler, the machine is virtually noiseless.

Officials have not yet decided whether to purchase the machine in volume, but in Britain it is used by police forces in London and throughout the country. It is also popular with private owners. Its silent performance has earned it the title of spymobile among some police officers.

But the interesting thing about the machine from a British angle and the need of that country to export all the goods it can, is the fact it has been in use for nearly two decades.

Yet in all that period apparently no effort was made by British to export such a machine to this continent. Meanwhile, in the last few years the Japanese have practically cornered the light motorcycle market in Canada.

Britain has a host of products such as this which could help to close its huge trading deficit and ease the financial pressures that now beset it. All it needs are good salesmen, better promotion and faster delivery on goods ordered, to show that its products can still beat the world.

Today in History

Aug. 16, 1966 . . .

American troops under Gen. John Stark decisively defeated a British force at the battle of Bennington 180 years ago today—in 1777—and dealt a severe blow to Gen. John Burgoyne's expedition to New York. Burgoyne, commander of British reinforcements designed to invade the rebellious states from Canada, had already won Ticonderoga and Fort Edward in his drive south to meet Sir William Howe. Knowing that an important supply depot of the Continental army was located at Bennington, Vt., Burgoyne sent two detachments of British, German and Indian troops to seize the stores. Their defeat, on New York soil six miles west of the village, was a factor in the ultimate failure of Burgoyne's campaign, which culminated in his defeat at Saratoga in October.

1879 — The Prussians attacked the French to begin the battle of Vionville-Mars-la-Tour.

1896 — An earthquake in Ecuador and Peru killed 70,000.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1918—British and U.S. troops advanced on both banks of the Somme; Germans attacked Kemmel on the west bank of the Ziota Lipa River; the Canadian 2nd and 3rd divisions were re-armed with Lee-Enfield rifles.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today — in 1941 — Stalin accepted in theory U.S. Roosevelt proposal for a Moscow conference on war supplies; Russians beat off German attacks south of Leningrad and west of Kiev; the RAF bombed the Skoda harbor of Syracuse.

Heart Monitor Makes Nurse's Task Easier

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have just returned home after 25 days in the hospital because of a heart attack. Could you explain a machine they kept on me for about four days? I think it is called a heart monitor. Mrs. B. H. S.

A heart monitor is an instrument, essentially similar to an electrocardiograph except that instead of making a tracing on a strip of paper, the tracing appears on a cathode ray screen — the same sort of screen that a TV set has.

The difference is that doctors and nurses can see instantly if any change occurs in heart action, instead of having to look at the paper tape.

More and more hospitals have coronary care units that are specifically designed for patients who have had myocardial infarctions (heart attacks). The units provide the closest possible attention in the early phase of the attack.

Not all coronary patients need care in such a special unit and not all need the monitor either, but it is extremely helpful in nursing a patient through the first critical period of a severe attack.

As the patient improves the monitor may be disconnected or the patient moved out of the special unit.

Similar monitoring is used after heart and lung surgery.

Dear Dr. Molner: Since gout comes from a kidney disorder — is the acid business — can it be transmitted from one person to another? I enclose the required 20 cents in coin and a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your booklet, "Gout — the Modern Way to Stop It." — Mrs. B. B.

It is true that the kidneys are involved in gout (kidney stones are frequent) but this ailment is not "kidney disease" in the sense of infection. Germs don't cause it.

Hence it is not "catching", and cannot be passed from one person to another. It does, however, run in families, indicator that there can be a hereditary tendency.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: What can I do about sunburn? I get a burn and dreadful sores on my face even though I wear a hat and stay in the shade. Right now my face is so very sore. — Mrs. J.L.

With a skin as sensitive to sun as yours, even reflected ultraviolet light can cause a burn. You doctored, and rightly, on yourself to staying in the shade; but in addition a protective, penetrating materials which screen out some of the rays should help. There has also been work with a drug which slightly encourages tanning in such skins. However, it has not (as some folks hoped) proved to be a quick, easy way to get a deep tan without burning. It has to be used under a doctor's care. It might or might not work for you, but I suspect it would be worth while to discuss this with a dermatologist.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: I had naturally early hair until the births of my two children. Then it straightened out completely. What causes this? I've waited two years, hoping that time and my beautician would restore the curl. — Mrs. W. M.

Pregnancy and anesthesia sometimes (with it) can cause the loss or change in curl, but the reasons are not apparent. Unfortunately I cannot say whether or not time and your beautician will win out.

Letter to the Editor

Front St. and the Taxpayer

Editor,
The Intelligencer

After hearing Thursday night's council meeting and reading the report in your Friday's edition of The Intelligencer, one might begin to wonder where the citizens of this city lost control. It seems that somewhere along the line in the recent past, a few aldermen and a few city officials have completely taken over with a flagrant disregard for the people that pay the shot, the taxpayer.

Notwithstanding the well-meant, but ill-advised intentions of some city council members or the qualifications of Belleville's favorite consulting engineers, Damas and Smith, none of the proposals appear to be downright detrimental to the city in more ways than one.

How could anyone, councillor or engineer make a recommendation to take 25% off what is considered one of the best locations on Front Street and use it for a roadway. Has anyone stopped to compute the projected tax loss to the city in years to come? And how could anyone, councillor or engineer recommend that more traffic be funnelled from the rear of the Front Street stores on to the most congested 200 yards on Front Street, the space between Campbell and Bridge Streets? Surely they must be spoofing!

Instead of throwing up roadblocks and doubts in the minds of prospective developers (of which there are some at this moment) regarding the development of the waterfront area on Front Street, couldn't somebody at city hall offer some constructive assistance in order to get the street looking like it should and to have it produce the tax revenue that is presently being lost?

Isn't it about time Belleville was "given back" to the people that pay the taxes, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Citizen?

"WONDERING."

CPA Rescues The Bolshoi

Vancouver Sun

It was delightfully ironic that Canadian free enterprise was able to rescue a Soviet ballet company in distress.

The second was certainly on enterprise, and Canadian Pacific Airlines is to be congratulated for scrouging an aircraft to take the Bolshoi Ballet company to Montreal when a strike suspended U.S. flights and crowded the Canadian airways.

The ballet was something special for Vancouver and deserved a special effort of appreciation on our part. After all, the 118 members of the company were guests in our country; paying guests, though — prepared to pay any airline to get them homeward bound.

Thanks to CPA the good name of Canadian hospitality is preserved.

Strictly Personal

Comforts of Home at Camp

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Somebody was once asked for the best definition he could give of a contradiction in terms, and he answered "a convention of hermits." I thought of this while driving through one of Wisconsin's state parks yesterday.

Part of the area has been set off for campers, those seeking communion with nature, who want to practice the virtues of solitude and self-reliance in the great outdoors.

But these camping sites are a monumental contradiction in terms, and I wondered what primitive values the campers found in them. For one thing, the tents are crowded upon one another, making a kind of rustic tenement with no privacy whatsoever.

For another, most of these people seem to have dragged with them all the appurtenances they are presumably running away from — heaters and portable TV sets, ice chests and radios and elaborate cooking equipment and a dozen other electronic gets.

There has been a tremendous upsurge in the popularity of camping during the last decade in America; but observers of our national folkways might doubt the camping habit has become heavily urbanized, mechanized, and depersonalized.

Nearly every tent I passed looked like the show window of an expensive sporting goods store.

And everything is consumed — the water supply, the bottled gas, the shower stalls, the organized recreation for the children, the nature movies and talkies through the woods. All this may be comfortable and desirable, but it is one wonders another Thoreau would have recognized it as anything resembling his break with the arts facts of society.

I point out this ironic contradiction not in order to put down the people who presumably enjoy living this way for a few weeks in summer, but rather to suggest that modern society has become so homogenized that even the way in which we "escape" from it inevitably partakes of the same texture as the mode of life we escape from.

Ottawa Offbeat

Mike Starr Could Fill John Diefenbaker's Shoes

By GREG CONNOLLEY
RICHARD JACKSON IS ON HOLIDAYS
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

There are some 6,000,000 Canadians who are getting fed up with the squabbling between the French and Anglo-Saxon elements in our nation.

These of course are those Canadians of origins other than French, English, Irish or Scottish. They are Germans, Poles, Ukrainians, Italians and—you name it.

They make up the other third of the Canadian population. They haven't been all that active politically but now they are beginning to stir.

Their main complaint is that the English and the French — and particularly the latter—aren't good enough Canadians.

These new Canadians look with concern and wonderment at long-established Canadians arguing about language and cultural rights.

They are astonished and deeply disturbed by talk about Quebec opting out of Confederation.

They don't like the apparent weakening of federal authority as Prime Minister Pearson appears to cater to provincial demands in many fields.

Steve Otto, a maverick Liberal MP from Toronto York East, has been a spokesman for these people. He declared that all citizens should place Canada first in their thoughts.

Mr. Otto sharply criticized those elements in Canada that seek to harm national unity. And he spoke of the "evils" of "hyphenated Canadians doing something about it.

Indeed, these new Canadians have formed a Citizens Committee to foster national unity and to oppose those trends of thought that would tear down Confederation.

POLITICAL TREND

But Mr. Otto and his group may never build up enough net get into any direct political activity, nor form a party of any kind.

They could hardly do that and still stand by their defence of national unity. Another Canadian Party, dominated by non-French, non-Anglo-Saxon citizens, could cause great strife in Canada, and perhaps wreck our parliamentary system.

But what these new Canadians say could do is to give their political support — as individuals — to a man/they can admire — a good Canadian, a good leader and with an attractive racial background.

And the national party that comes up with a new leader of that description could get a tremendous blow of support from the new Canadians.

There isn't one among front ranks of the Liberal party but there is a potential standout man among the Conservatives.

He is Michael Starr, the Tory MP from Ontario riding and a house leader in the Commons for the Conservatives.

Mike Starr is 55, a ruggedly handsome man with a friendly, out-going personality. He was born in Canada — at Copper Cliff, Ontario — but his parents were Ukranian.

Though Canadian in every respect, Mike Starr has an aura about him of the great Ukranian heritage. He speaks Ukranian fluently and this has a powerful impact when he is speaking to those Canadians who also have that language.

Mr. Starr worked his way up through the lower echelons of public life. He was an alderman in Oshawa and made a name for himself in city planning around that city in a personal inspection of potholes, street maintenance, sewers and the like.

He was mayor of Oshawa from 1946 to 1952. He ran for Ontario legislature in 1951 and was defeated. But he bounced back in 1952 to get a seat in the House of Commons in 1952 by-election. And he has won six straight general election contests since then.

DIEFENBAKER SUPPORT

Conservative leader John Diefenbaker made Mr. Starr his minister of Labor in 1957 and he performed very well indeed in that arduous portfolio.

He settled some difficult strikes and had a particular triumph in bringing an end to the railway strike. Starr got on the long-distance phone and summoned labor and management to a 2.30 a.m. after 26 telephone calls, the strike was over.

Another of his Department of Commons successes was the Municipal Works Program. This was a Mike Starr conception to help ethnic groups but to great measures of other Canadians.

Mr. Starr is not a party - type and consequently there has been a tendency to relegate him to the backbenches of the Conservative ranks. But he is a man of courage.

The other side of this is that he is not a compromiser and the more people get to know him, the better they like him.

He is a man of vision and some of the long-touted aspirants for the Conservative leadership seem to look refreshingly attractive.

And with a nudge from John Diefenbaker — who likes and admires him — Starr could gain the top office in the party.

He would make an appealing leader, especially to those 6,000,000 Canadians who are not lost in the confusion of the status quo at Ottawa.

Construction Prices Rising

Ottawa Journal

Evidence grows that the Government's efforts to stem inflation are inadequate.

The housewife knows how the food dollar buys ever less. What cost $1 in the year 1939 will cost $1.34 last year and $1.44 today.

It is the same in other fields, especially in the building trades where the pressures of inflation have been obvious for some years.

In his March budget Finance Minister Sharp thought that cheaper money and lower income tax would persuade investors to postpone construction for 18 months or so and thus relieve labor, materials and funds had been eased.

Mr. Sharp said then that he hoped his measures would reduce by about $250,000,000 the demand on the Government's review of public and private investment intentions in January. In July, when another review was made, the indicated increase was higher at $1,772,000,000.

The latest figures, four months after his budget, see the inflationary pressure on construction prices still rising.

The Government review for July said that Canadian business especially are taking a strong effort to expand and modernize their productive facilities to meet the growing demands of domestic and foreign consumers. Canadian manufacturers have been busy with upwards of 50 per cent more in capital work than in 1957 — if they can get the work done.

It is in the national interest that this expansion be carried out at minimum cost and be up to date. These competitiveness in world markets will be assured. The irony is that energetic businessmen, seeking to expand, find costs and consumption soar and delays grow longer. They still push on while Mr. Sharp asks them to go slow.

Investigate 11 Accidents Last Week

Last week, the Belleville O.P.P. Detachment patrolled over 9,000 miles of highway, investigating 11 motor accidents, and issuing 43 charges under the Highway Traffic Act.

Five thefts, two breakins, and two fraud offences were investigated and two charges of assault were laid in connection with four disturbances investigated.

The local O.P.P. last week also apprehended and charged three suspects in connection with the July 22 attempted robbery by violence of a Trenton ice cream establishment.

Pleads Guilty To Charge of Obstruction

"This business of interfering with the police is serious and it's got to be dealt with seriously" said Magistrate T. Y. Wills this morning in passing a sentence on a Belleville man in city magistrate's court.

Johnston Truman Hillier, of Front Street in Belleville was fined $75 and costs after pleading guilty to a charge of obstructing a person lawfully acting in assistance of a police officer."

The charge arose out of an incident July 30, when a city police constable was arresting a man near the South Front and Dundas Street junction for a breach of the Liquor Control Act.

When the man put up a struggle, the police officer called to a passerby to use a nearby police call box and summon assistance from the police station. The constable testified that, as the man started to do so, Hillier shouted "If you use that phone I'll punch your teeth in." Some 25 citizens witnessed the incident.

Said Crown Attorney John Pringle "When Constable was called upon to assist in performing their duty, they should not be threatened against doing so."

System of Selling Market Hogs Outlined to Rotarians by Manager of Sales Division

JACOB R. KOHLER

The system of selling hogs in Ontario by means of a teletype communications system "engenders competition in a truer form than any other system yet devised," according to Jacob R. Kohler, general manager of the sales division of the Ontario Hog Producers Marketing Board.

Mr. Kohler described this system of marketing, unique in the world, in an address to Belleville Rotarians yesterday.

Among the guests were Miss Patricia Shorey, Hastings Dairy Princess, directors of the Belleville Agricultural Society and Professor Robert Forshaw of the University of Guelph.

The teletype system described by Mr. Kohler was developed by the Bell Telephone Company. It consists of a master teletype machine located at the board's head office in Toronto. All offerings are made over this equipment, which is connected with 17 teletype buying machines in a like number of processors' plants throughout Ontario and in Hull, Quebec. On the board of directors of these their own requirements of hogs for slaughter. An eighteenth buying machine at head office is for the purchase of hogs for processors who slaughtered less than 1 per cent of the hogs being marketed in Ontario id the previous year.

The board also buys on that machine for the processors in Quebec purchasing Ontario-produced hogs. All the board purchases the slaughtering requirements of some 13 Ontario buyers and seven in Quebec.

FACED CRITICISM

Mr. Kohler said that prior to the installation of the equipment the board was criticized not only by the packers but some of the producers as well, during the period, from 1953 until 1961, the sales were handled almost entirely over the telephone.

The packers claimed that even though they bid ten or 15 cents a hundredweight more for any offering of hogs, they would not end up the day with extra hogs, but would have to pay the higher price for the balance of their purchase that day.

There were also accusations of allocation, favoritism and lack of mechanical records to prove that hogs were sold to the highest bidder. To counteract these charges the board began investigating other methods of selling the hogs. The result was the teletype system.

"But cost of the system is about $3,000 per month which is covered by a levy on all buyers. The current rate is one and one-quarter cents per hog on the number purchased.

The marketing of hogs produced in Ontario last year amounted to more than $125 million.

In a tribute to the farmer, Mr. Kohler said he had readily accepted new ideas in production methods. His cost had decreased to the point where he had produced food in surplus. He had provided for the people and contributed much new wealth to the benefit of the country.

Speaking of grading, Mr. Kohler said that at present grade standards designate that hog carcasses are either A's, B's, C's, D's, Lights, Heavies or Extra Heavies and a premium of $3 per hog was paid by the federal government on the "A" grade hogs, plus $1 per hundredweight which is paid by the processor for the "A" over the "B" hog.

SOME INCENTIVE

"This gives the producer of the top grade, or "A" hog, $4 per head premium, a worthwhile incentive to produce good quality hogs," said Mr. Kohler.

A former president of the Aberdeen - Angus Association, Mr. Kohler is a native of Kohler, a village near Hamilton named after his German - born grandfather; his son, Ralph Kohler, assistant general manager of the marketing board's sales division, was also a guest at the luncheon meeting.

Dr. Harry Burns, president of Belleville Agricultural Society, introduced Mr. Kohler, and he was thanked by Stan Barber.

Miss Shorey, who will compete for the title of Ontario Dairy Princess in Toronto next week, complimented the Agricultural Society for its exhibits at Belleville Fair. She said the exhibition afforded 4-H members and junior farmers an opportunity to study the agricultural industry in all its aspects, and encouraged them in their own careers in the industry.

She said it also brought the rural and urban communities closer together, and gave urban dwellers a better understanding of the agricultural industry.

The dairy princess was introduced by Lee Grills. Rotary President Dr. J. F. McCorquodale presided.

Susanna's Family Fair

COZY FIRESIDE

Dear Susanna: We build the fire in our logs log - burn in a fireplace right on the base itself — no grate is necessary. What is required though, is something such as a pair of andirons to keep any logs from rolling out on the floor. The answer? Two impressive field stones about a foot or more in diameter placed about one-third of the way in from either side of the opening. They answer the purpose and look magnificent.

Just build the fire in back of them, put the screen in place, and settle back to relax and dream. Great way to spend the evening. — G. I.

SOUND SUGGESTION

Hi Su: The tone of a small transistor radio can be improved by placing it face-down over the open end of an empty water glass.

The thin resny sound gives way somewhat, to more of a big band beat. Try it! — Jean Shelley.

If you have any hints for running a successful household — or any problems — write to Susanna, in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, self - addressed envelope when requesting pamphlets.

Successful Living

Pensioner in Britain Seeks Sister Here

DEAR DORIS — I have been a happily settled immigrant for the past 13 years here, and a source of interest for the older folks in my small home town back in the U.K. On my infrequent visit back I organized a get-together for the old age pensioners and tell them with the aid of slides, of life in Canada. How I am obviously regarded as the authority!

One of the oldsters had a sister emigrate to Canada in July 1924 — and now being alone in the world wishes to contact her sister before she passes from this world. She says it would give her more happiness than anything else to find her. The Canadian sister is a Miss Agnes Jane Barrett, aged around 65, last known address c/o Mrs. Twigg, Huguenders (?), Alberta.

Any advice you can give would be greatly appreciated. Knowing the circumstances in which these old pensioners live, I know how very important it is to them. — WHERE IS AGNES?

DORIS CLARK

DEAR WHERE — Go see those helpful, dedicated workers at the Salvation Army's headquarters where you are. The S.A. has a Missing Persons Bureau and works at bringing together lost relatives all the time.

Or perhaps Agnes will read this column and write to me!

* * *

DEAR DORIS — Could one diet if all she drank was milk? Say about six glasses a day — EXTRA POUNDS.

* * *

DEAR EXTRA — Could she ever! And she'd be in a fair way to go into a decline if she kept it up.

Drastic, ill-advised dieting is far worse than staying overweight. Six glasses of ordinary milk would contain less than 600 calories — half the amount recommended for the daily intake of a reducer; and around a quarter of the amount needed for holding your own.

Tiny babies sometimes gain on a milk diet, for a short while; but to survive, us grown-ups also need what's to be had in meats, vegetable, fruits, and a good deal more.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — Because I am entering high school, my mother has consented to giving me a clothing allowance.

What would you suggest as a moderate amount for a girl of 13 and at what time intervals should it be issued? — CLOTHES HORSE.

* * *

DEAR CLOTHES HORSE — That's about like saying "How long is a piece of string?"

What will the amount be expected to cover? New clothes? Repairs only? Can you sew? What major items do you need right now? How much can your mother afford?

The first item is wonderful. The details must be worked out by you and your mother. For a start, settle on an amount to try, keep track of expenditures for six months, then review the situation and alter it up or down, depending on how you came out.

A girl who starts planning her own wardrobe at 13 gets a head start on being a good shopper and spender. And dresser.

* * *

(There are Canadian resources to help solve your problem. Write to Doris for direction, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Soviet Housewives Want Pensions, Extra Days Off

MOSCOW (AP) — Disgruntled Soviet housewives want pensions, extra days off, less taxes—and more dignity.

"A housewife has only duties and no rights," a former school teacher was quoted as saying by the government newspaper Izvestia.

"Even maids have trade unions, paid vacations, sick leave, but what about the housewives?" Izvestia asked Sunday, noting that working women—but not housewives—have organizations to look after their welfare.

In a letter to Izvestia, one woman proposed that women who are unable to accumulate the full 20 years on the job necessary to qualify for a pension be given credit for time spent at home raising a family.

One woman proposed that the Soviet Union's tax on childless couples not be applied for at least nine months or a year after the wedding.

Plumping for more dignity, another woman wrote:

"I received my (internal) passport and in the space where it asks 'social status' they had written 'dependent.' It sound almost like 'parasite.'

"It would be better if they called me a 'home worker.' That would still imply an element of work."

Department Stores Provide Better Service in Furniture Consumers' Panel Is Told

MONTREAL (CP) — Buying furniture from a department store is more satisfactory than buying it from a furniture store, the majority of consumers said Monday during a panel discussion sponsored by the Canadian Home.

The consumers, from income levels in the $5,500 to $12,000 range, said department stores provide better service with their furniture, including telephone ordering.

The biggest thing in their favor was the charge account the family already had with the department store.

Most of the 20 panel members said they would also use on interior decorating service if one was provided by the department store.

Only two women in the group had engaged the services of a professional interior decorator. Four men were on the panel.

Most panelists said they would allow a $50 margin when buying a $200 item. Less than half said they knew how much they intended to spend when they set out to purchase a major item.

OFTEN PAY MORE

The majority said they end up buying a more expensive model when they go to investigate an item advertised for $100. A few said they are often able to find something less expensive than the advertised item.

The main reason given for paying more was the consumer's knowledge of the merit of the product. Most expressed distrust for the salesman's opinion.

Most of the consumers were satisfied with their present furniture stock, and had kept the same type as when first married.

Several women said they intended to redecorate when their children grow up. Colonial and French Provincial furniture were favored for the change.

All but two said they know what style and color furniture they wanted before they go shopping.

The panelists said they chose their furniture after looking through home decorator magazines or browsing in stores. Many considered the prime of furniture too high and several expressed the feeling one had to pay more for well-known stores.

QUESTIONED ON SOFAS

Half of those questioned thought it more economical to have a sofa reupholstered than to buy a new one, and most felt a sofa should last from five to seven years. They felt a bedroom set should last for life, and that only the mattress should have to be replaced.

Information about stain removal on wood furniture was one suggestion for furniture factags. The type of fabric and the type of wood were others.

Asked what goods were easiest to shop for, most panelists answered clothes or appliances. Furniture and carpeting were named as most difficult because of their permanent appeal.

Only one panelist could name five furniture manufacturers. Most could name only one or two. The panelists were not told in advance the topic they would be discussing.

Asked what they would buy with $500 received as a gift if it was not needed for basic necessities, the majority said they would buy a piece of fine art.

Two panelists said they would use it for a vacation, and four more said they would buy new furniture or carpeting.

Apples Add Zest to Salad Flavor

It's a good thing the old saying "An apple a day keeps the doctor away," isn't literally true. Otherwise the Ontario medical profession would find little to keep them busy. For Ontarians, thanks to controlled atmosphere storage facilities, eat fresh-from apples the year round.

Tens of thousands of bushels of these apples find their way into salads to add color, zest and nutrition to this increasingly popular dish. During 1965 Ontario produced on 37,675 acres, 9,383,000 bushels of apples with a total farm value of $6,250,171. This production was exceeded only by the tomato — another delicious salad ingredient which claims "dual citizenship" in the fruit-vegetable counterpart — which came up with 427,347 tons on 30,096 acres with a total farm value of $13,240,670.

But no matter how you slice it, fruits and vegetables are compatible in salads and provide an almost unlimited variety for the adventurous salad maker. Although — which Salad Month, any time is salad time. Here's two with a good deal of Ontario farm products.

ESSEX SALAD

1 cup shredded raw carrot, 1½ cups finely shredded cabbage, ¼ cup chopped green pepper, ½ cup celery, ½ cup sliced radishes, ¼ cup sliced green onion, 2 medium tomatoes cut in wedges, 2 cups salad mix, 1½ cups diced unpeeled apple, 1/3 cup French dressing, ½ cup commercial sour cream.

Combine vegetables and salt, add French dressing and toss to coat pieces. Refrigerate for ½ hour. Just before serving drain off dressing, add diced apple and sour cream, and toss to coat pieces. Serves 8.

Mother's Care Advised For Hospitalized Child

OTTAWA (CP)—A stay in hospital scares some adults. For a toddler, a few days in the alcohol-scented surroundings can be a terrible time.

"For any child under five, hospitalization can be one of the most terrifying experiences of childhood," says Shirley Post, a graduate nursing student at the University of Ottawa and mother of three small children.

Writing in the Canadian Nurse magazine, Mrs. Post recommends mother-care for children in hospitals, play therapy programs and family - centred nursing education to remedy the problem.

She says mothers should be allowed to stay with their children in hospital.

"The child between 18 and 36 months is at the peak of his dependency on his mother and unprecedented severe trauma when separated from her even for brief periods. They feel abandoned."

Mrs. Post says one hospital which allowed parents to stay with the child has reported "a reduced vomiting, increased child intake, less crying, fewer hallucinations and quicker recoveries.

The mother can look after children's food and release the nurses for more skilled tasks. The nurse is able to observe the child's verbal relationship and can help the mother with suggestions for care after the child goes home.

While in hospital, the child has a real need to play, Mrs. Post says. Play provides exercise and an outlet for pent-up energy.

There is also room for improvement in education for pediatric nursing, Mrs. Post says. They need to know more about well children before they care for sick ones.

"Students are taught how to care a disease but not how to care for a child."

RECOGNIZE HORSEWOMAN

LONDON (CP) — Horsewoman Florence Nagle, 70, has crashed the previously all-male ranks of race horse trainers licensed by the Jockey Club, after a 30-year legal battle which ended in her favor in the High Court. She has trained a stable of thoroughbreds for years under a licence in the name of her head stable lad.

GINGERBREAD MENU

My secretary Shirley's nine-year-old niece was visiting her while I was on a vacation. She took Debbie to the kitchen and played "Fish" with her but one rainy morning was bored and for entertaining ideas until she thought of gingerbread men.

She busied through her Grandmother's prized cookbook and found the very thing and hovered while her little guest did all of the actual measuring and mixing and cutting and baking.

In the current mail is a request from Linda B. asking for a recipe for gingerbread suitable for making gingerbread men with a cookie cutter".

GINGER COOKIES (for gingerbread men and other cookies)

1 cup best quality shortening, 1 cup granulated sugar, 2/3 cup molasses, 2/3 cup warm strong coffee, 5 cups cake flour (unsifted), 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon baking soda, 2 teaspoons ginger, 1 teaspoon cloves, 1 teaspoon cinnamon.

Cream shortening and sugar together in large bowl until light. Add molasses. Measure 2½ cups molasses cup to rinse it out and add and mix in. Tip the unsifted cake flour into the sifter and sift it with the salt, soda and spices into the first mixture and blend thoroughly. Shape dough into three balls and chill at least 2 hours. Roll out one ball of dough very thinly on lightly floured board . . . ¼" thick. Cut out with gingerbread man cutter or star or round cutter. Bake on lightly greased cookie sheets at 350 deg. F.for, 7 minutes. Repeat with remaining two balls of dough.

Yield: Forty-two 3 x 3" men and additional 3" shapes.

Be sure not to overbake these cookies as with the high sugar and molasses content they will burn easily.

Views of Children On Divorce Differ

DEAR READERS: They're still pouring in — letters from readers who have experienced life, first-hand, with an unfaithful spouse. Even their children have written in to unburden themselves. Here is a letter from a teen-age boy in Honolulu:

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Please stop telling parents to stay together for their children's sake. Children don't need a father who runs around and lies and spends money on girls. When mom finally told dad to get out I was glad. You can't imagine how good it is to sleep at night instead of shivering under the covers because your folks are screaming at each other.

Anchorage: I'm only 15 but I have made up my mind to one thing. If I ever get married I will pick out somebody I can live with for the rest of my life. Dad and mother were divorced when I was 12. My sisters were 14 and 11. A boy needs a father. An uncle or a friend or a neighbor won't do. My mother kicked my dad out. He really didn't want to go. I miss dad and I will always resent my mother for what she did. He wasn't what you'd call a great dad but at least he was here and we were a family.

Kalamazoo: I loved my husband but I had to get rid of him the doctor's orders. Whenever he came near me I broke out in hives and they were awful. My divorced him his eczema disappeared so we are both better off.

Detroit: My wife accused me of having another woman for years. When I finally "confessed" and begged her to forgive me she was overjoyed. We've had a good marriage for over 40 years now. What she doesn't know is there never was another woman. I had to invent one to satisfy her.

San Jose: I stayed with my two-timing skunk and I do believe I'm the only one in the world who can tell when he's cheating and stick and examine his lapels for powder marks. I can't break the habit of checking the car crankcase for blonde hair pins. Once a woman is betrayed things are never the same.

Hutchinson, Kansas: Can a cheating husband say something?

I had a woman on the side for years. In fact I had two women — a school teacher for nine months of the year and a summer replacement. But my wife cheated, too, in other ways. She was always too tired or she had a headache or a backache. When her sister visited (which was often) I had to sleep with our son. Considering the summer it is funny how so she spent two months with her parents who had a lake home.

So please remember, Ann, you can't apply all-side rule to people's lives. Sometimes each one is different.

Toronto: My husband's affair lasted six years. Let me assure you he is not a skunk. He is a fine person, a respected physician and a devoted father to our four children. I considered divorce many times. Then I'd ask myself, "What would I gain?" The answer was all too clear. "Very little compared with what I stood to lose." The affair ended in January. Only recently he said to me, "I am thankful you had the wisdom and the maturity I lacked. You saved our home."

Riverside: I've done marriage counseling along with my ministerial work for over 20 years. It is my firm conviction that for the majority of unhappily married people, divorce is no answer. I have recommended divorce for couples who were young and childless. Only both parties declared the situation utterly hopeless. But following the lives of dozens of couples who came to me for counseling I have observed that those who divorced invariably went on to repeat the same mistake. They would have been better off had they remained with the first mistake.

22 New Canadian Books Listed by Publisher

An impressive list of Canadian books is being published in fall, 1966 by The Ryerson Press. In addition to 22 new Canadian books, by established writers, nine Ryerson paperbacks will be published on various subjects from economics to poetry. The Ryerson paperback series was initiated in 1965.

Outstanding among the new Canadian hardcover books are "100 Years of What?" by Eric Nicol and Peter Whalley, a light spoof on Confederation, already published; "The Leafs I Knew", Scott Young's fictionalized story of his years with the Maple Leafs; "Men and Women" powerfully sensitive short stories by Hugh Garner; "Plants From Sea to Sea", a comprehensive volume illustrated in full color and black-and-white including over 1500 species by Prof. F. H. Montgomery, and "Breaking Smith's Quarter Horse", a striking, realistic novel based on author Paul St. Pierre's award-winning television script in his CBC Cariboo Country series. Vancouver Sun columnist Paul St. Pierre has won several fine awards for his immensely popular series based on the tough, humorous characters of British Columbia's Chilcotin Plateau. His first book, "Sons of the Nlamba Drive" received critical acclaim as an excellent outdoor adventure story with "an almost heart-breaking honesty."

Notable books in the field of Canadian literature will be "Modern Canadian Stories", edited by Glose Rimanelli and Roberto Ruberto. Included among the 23 contributing writers who represent "a contemporary and unaffected Canadian voice", are Irving Layton, Margaret Laurence and Hugh MacLennan. Earle Birney has called the collection "an excellent and balanced a collection as one could hope to be given". "The Making of Modern Poetry in Canada", edited by Louis Dudek and Michael Gnarowski will contain essential articles on contemporary Canadian poetry in English. The invaluable collection of essays, papers and addresses is supplemented by explanatory notes.

W. O. Mitchell and Frederick Philip Grove will be included in several Canadian writers represented in the "Anthology of Canadian Literature", edited by H. Gordon Green and Guy Sylvestre, a centennial volume in two parts. The first part covers the period from 1867 to 1967. Jean Le Moyne's Essays from Quebec, translated by Donald Smith and published by Philip Stratford, deals with a variety of topics illustrating the French - Canadian frame of mind. In commenting on the French edition, Gerard Pelletier wrote: "Conversation brings us the certainty that we have in our midst an independent mind."

Other Ryerson fall titles to be published include "Patterns of Canada", edited by Major-General W. J. Megill; "The Great Canada", vignettes of the churches across the countries, edited by John S. Moir; "The James Evans Story" by well-known novelist Nan Shipley, "Gargoyles and Gentlemen", the history of St. Paul's Cathedral, London, Ontario, by Orlo Miller, and "One Hundred —Not Out", the story of Ontario's venerable Canadian Sport by sportswriter Henry Roxborough.

High School Class Builds New Home

WEST PLAINS, Mo. (AP)—A West Plains high school class built a modern home—doing all the work from design to carpeting—and sold it at a modest profit for $20,000.

It's a three-bedroom house, built by 25 members of instructor Clovis Crockett's trades class.

"We do everything," Crockett said. "We design and lay out our floor plans. And we do it all done by the boys."

The house has yellow panelling in the kitchen and family room, a fireplace, indirect lighting and a carport attached.

Asked how the boys completed the house in less than two years, Crockett said:

"When you have 25 boys under control and they are interested in what they are doing, they can do a lot of work."

MANY NURSES WED

MONTREAL (CP)—A recent survey shows 51 per cent of graduate nurses registered in 1965 were married. Although most work part-time, they contributed almost as many hours as their single counterparts. Single nurses are in the majority only in the under-24 and over-60 age groups.

Prairie Girls Form Sea Ranger Crew

EDMONTON (CP) — Prairie girls they may be, but they can read a compass, right a sailboat and forecast weather by the sky.

The group of 30 teen-agers has adopted the name of HMCS Lancaster, an ocean escort frigate sold for scrap and towed to Italy from Halifax in 1964.

They are members of Alberta's only sea ranger crew, a senior branch of the Girl Guides of Canada. Their skipper is Mrs. A. T. Thompson, a Scot with a love of the sea.

By raising money through projects, the girls bought two boats that can be sailed or rowed.

Mrs. Thompson says about eight girls from the group, aged 14 to 21, arrive at her cottage on nearby Pigeon Lake, weekends during summer.

"They sleep under canvas and sail all day," she said. Before joining the rangers, the girls must be able to swim 50 yards. They must be able to swim 100 yards before they can go out in a boat.

Officers of the Royal Canadian Sea Cadets Corps unit Weather help the girls with nautical studies. In addition to regular guide work, rangers are taught about the sea, ships, signalling, navigation and water safety.

Newest in Long List of Barn Fires Quickly Extinguished

PICTON (Staff) — "Foshay's Firemen" beat the "Bug" again last night when they arrived at the scene of Picton's newest in a long series of barn fires and extinguished the small blaze.

The alarm was turned in at approximately 10 p.m. Monday night and firemen lost no time in arriving at the scene. Their work, as in the past few fires, has been hampered to a great extent by spectators rushing to the fire and crowding around areas where firemen are working.

The fire last night occurred at a body and fender shop owned by Clifford Brant of Picton and was located at the corner of Union and Pitt Streets. The garage was only a short block away from the scene of last Thursday's fire which did some $30,000 damage to a storage barn belonging to Prince Edward Dairies' trucks as well as some stock were lost in this fire.

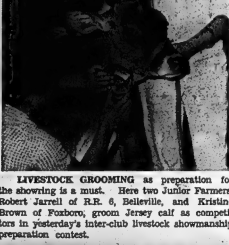
Unified Auto Body is the ninth in a series of fires for which no cause has yet been determined.

The fire last night however had obviously been set. The outbreak occurred at the rear of the two-storey frame structure, which was covered with lined brick. Insulation in the walls near the spot, where the fire had been ignited consisted of wood shavings. Had this fire been allowed very much of a start it could have completely destroyed the building especially if it had reached a new addition containing a paint shop. There were only one two vehicles in the building at the time.

Mrs. Wallace McTaggart turned in the alarm. Fred Stagg stated he had seen two men running away from the garage area about the time the fire was discovered. The prompt service of the Picton Fire Department confined the fire to this one small area (about 3 by 4 feet) and the department under the supervision of Chief Duane Foshay deserves a lot of credit for the way they have extinguished many of the fires and prevented further loss in many cases in adjoining buildings and dwellings in which people were living. So far the fires have only involved uninhabited buildings, it is hoped that soon investigators will have this situation under control. Personnel from the Ontario Fire Marshal's Office in Toronto have been in Picton recently investigating these fires and Picton Town Police are on the alert.

Outboard Club Sponsors Meet At Waupoos

PICTON (Staff) — Picton Outboard Club are sponsoring their annual International Race on Sunday August 23, at Sandy Point Park, Waupoos.



This is an event sanctioned by both the American Power Boat Association and the Canadian Boating Federation and it is the largest outboard racing event held in Canada. In past international races held here large crowds have been in attendance.

The 11 classes of boats will run 22 heats (plus eliminations) with three laps to each heat over a one mile course of what is claimed to be the fastest water in Canada.

Many American as well as Canadian boats will be competing for attractive trophies and prizes at three races next Sunday.

LIVESTOCK GROOMING as preparation for the showring is a must. Here two Junior Farmers, Robert Jarrell of R.R. 6, Belleville, and Kristine Brown of Foxboro, groom Jersey calf as competitors in yesterday's inter-club livestock showmanship preparation contest.

MARK BRIAN of Ajax gives with the all out effort as he tries to lift prize winning squash at the Belleville Fair.

DEBBIE BALDWIN of Consecon, was a double winner in Monday's special barrow show at Belleville Fair, which drew 30 entries in three classes. She is seen here with top Yorkshire hog and also won second spot in the Landrace-Lacombe class.

Finished Market Hogs Exhibited in Special Show By Ontario Hog Producers

Market hogs as they should be finished were exhibited for Belleville fair-goers Monday as the Ontario Hog Producers staged a special barrow show drawing 30 entries from the Bay of Quinte District.

There were 13 Yorkshire entries, ten crossbreed entries, and five Landrace-Lacombe entries, with all hogs of market weight.

Following the show the hogs were sold to Prekwood Breeders Packers of Toronto where they will be slaughtered and scored with score cards for entry in the all-Ontario carcass competition. Hogs from the Stratford district entered in the special barrow shows will also be in the carcass competition.

Prizes in money for the all-Ontario show will be awarded at the annual meeting of the Hog Producers at Toronto next March.

CHAMPIONS DECLARED

At the Belleville show yesterday champion and reserve champions were declared in each of the three classes.

In the Yorkshire Class, Debbie Baldwin of Consecon showed the best hog with Ron Hamilton of R. R. 2, Trenton, placing second.

In the Landrace-Lacombe section Bruce Baldwin of Consecon was first with Debbie Baldwin of Consecon in second place.

Judge for the show was Professor Robert Evans, head of the Animal Husbandry Department of Guelph University.

Ontario Hog Producers' officials in Belleville for the Barrow show were J. R. Kohler, general manager sales division, Nelson R. D. Kohler, assistant general manager, Mr. Alfred Warfield, chairman of Bayfield, Ont., and George Macnerlaw of Chesley, Ont.

The Belleville Fair Board cooperated in sponsorship of the barrow show and Secretary George Read taking an active part in the program.

HOG SHOWMANSHIP must be one of the more frustrating chores in the show ring, but this young man takes it all in his stride as he assists in yesterday's special barrow show at Belleville Fair.

bours, and an upward revision in various arbitrariies.

The railways estimated that the whole package would amount to a pay increase of 30 per cent in road service and 9 per cent in yard service. They rejected the package as excessive and made proposals of their own for a revamping of the pay structure. No details of this proposal were given.

Conductors in passenger service now average about $7,700 a year and those in freight service, average $7,750. Freight brakemen and passenger trainmen earn about $6,600 a year and the yard service workers $5,800.

The wage issue, however, was overshadowed during contract talks by the controversial question of negotiating the changes, the so - called "Freeman clause."

STEMS FROM REPORT

This stems from the report last year by Mr. Justice Samuel Freedman of Winnipeg in his one-man federal inquiry into CNR crew run-throughs of Nakina, Ont., and Wainwright, Alta., after a wildcat strike was called to protest the run-through plan. It would have eliminated crew changes at those two points by longer train runs.

The Freedman report said the CNR was within its rights when it introduced the change. Present labor law gives management the unilateral right to change working methods during the life of a union contract. However, the judge suggested that the law be rewritten to give unions a legal voice in such changes and avoid the conflict now inevitable when such issues arise.

Labor Minister Nicholson has been under pressure from labor groups for eight months in action on the Freedman report but has avoided a direct commitment. Management groups on the other hand, have been lobbying against it on the grounds that other industries could find legal jurisdiction would be subject to such a law without having a chance to be heard on the matter.

Mr. Nicholson returned Monday from a trip to Britain and was expected in his office today. An aide said Monday the minister had not yet read the conciliation board report.

The BRT has been working on a common strike date with 18 other unions representing 96,000 non - operating railway workers. A conference of unions has been called at Montreal next Monday to discuss a date.

tives were thrown into the fight.

The underworld helped. Police said well - known criminals have been donating money as well as supplying information.

MANHUNT CONTINUES

Meanwhile, the fast - moving manhunt—one of the biggest in British history — continued for others believed to have been involved in the slayings which brought calls for the reinstatement of the death penalty for such killings.

British criminals traditionally avoid — and are revolved by — police killing. British police, except in rare circumstances, are unarmed.

Police said Witney has been held since the day the detectives were gunned down.

As the manhunt went into its fifth day, scientists were still examining what was believed to be the killers' getaway car. But they said the murder weapon has not been found.

Fragments searched seven hundredth the city and police recovers posing as customers made the rounds of bars and cafes hoping to find clues in gossip.

MAN SOLD CAR

Police questioned a man who said he sold the car after a struggler less than three hours before the crime for £15 ($45).

It was found Sunday in a dingy garage underneath a railway arch near London's Waterloo Station. Police were tipped off by a woman who saw it being driven in. The woman is under police protection as are other persons who have aided the inquiry.

The murdered men were members of an undercover squad who acted more or less independently and the yard did not know what particular trail they were following at the time they were killed.

British people, with traditional regard for the London Bobby, have been making spontaneous donations to the dead man's families. The total Monday night topped £1,100 ($3,300) with money still pouring in.

The government also is setting up a trust fund for dependents of all policemen killed on duty and hopes to reach a target of £250,000 ($750,000). Anonymous donor gave it a flying start with £100,000 ($300,000).

REDUCE HOURS

LONDON (AP)—New legislation limiting the working hours of British airline pilots was announced by the government today. At present a crew of two pilots can be booked in work up to 15 hours. The new proposals would impose a maximum of 11 hours in 24a.

Union Proposes Workers Take Pension at 60

OSHAWA (CP)—United Auto Workers officials drew up a plan Monday calling for management and the federal government to ease the impact of a proposed layoff of 2,000 workers at General Motors Canada Ltd. plants here.

General Motors announced last week that 2,800 employees will not be recalled for the production of 1967 models. It blamed part of the layoffs on the Canada-United States auto trade agreement.

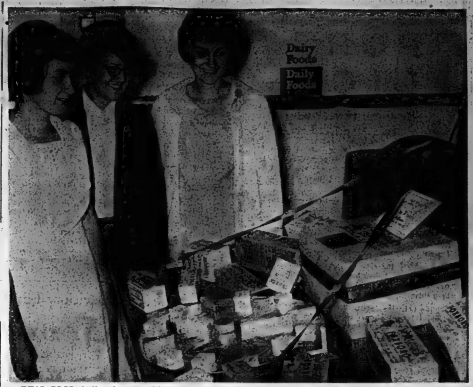
In a press release, George Burt, Canadian UAW director, and Albert Taylor, president of UAW Local 222, outlined the union plan which calls for talks Aug. 24 with federal officials in the office of Labor Minister Nicholson.

In the statement, the UAW proposed that GM agree to permit workers 60 years of age and over to retire without any actuarial reduction in their pension. The union estimated that as many as 1,000 jobs may be retained if the company agrees.

Under terms of the union's present agreement, which expires Oct. 31, 1967, workers may retire at 62 with full pension.

WANTS RETRAINING

The union also plans to ask federal and provincial governments to set up a job retraining program for laid-off GM workers immediately.



In addition, the Ontario government will be asked to advance the completion date of an atomic energy power plant at nearby Pickering and to institute other public works in the district.

UAW officials said they were unsuccessful Monday in getting the company to ask the federal government to cover the laid-off workers under the transitional assistance benefits provided under the Canada-U.S. trade pact.

This move, the officials said, would have meant certain payments weekly while the workers were laid off.

A meeting of the Local 222 members scheduled to be held Thursday to hear the plan.

"While the company blames "a slight decline in the new car market,' a good many Local 222 members are laid off because of the company's decision to transfer the production of the big Buick, big Oldsmobile, heavy truck and Corvairs from Oshawa to the United States," the statement said.

REAL COOL is the cheese and butter exhibit this year at Belleville Fair, the display for the first time being artificially air conditioned. Here Linda Sharpe, Martha Stewart and Helen Sharpe, all of Hilton, view the exhibit.

Fine Dairy Exhibit Is Made Possible By Buying Refrigeration Equipment

Regardless of how hot the weather gets at Belleville Fair, there's at least one exhibit which is certain to remain cool.

It's the cheese and butter exhibit in the Agricultural building where this year, for the first time, the exhibit is air-conditioned.

"We've got the finest dairy exhibit in the history of the fair and one that ranks close to the CNE," Mr. W. Ernest Henderson, district dairy fieldman, said today.

In all there are about 60 entries in the show, including six butter and four cheese displays.

Also this year, for the first time, butter is being judged at the Belleville Fair.

In the past hot weather conditions all but ruled out cheese and butter exhibits. Refrigeration equipment from a now closed factory has been purchased and a corner of the fair building is petitioned off so that the exhibit space can be cooled to about 45 degrees.

Glass panels in the front enable fair-goers to see the exhibit.

The cheese and butter exhibit is a co-operative effort on the part of the Belleville Fair Board, the Ontario Department of Agriculture, and the Hastings County Milk Committee.

Pat Sherry, this year's Hastings County Dairy Princess, will be at the cheese and butter exhibit during the fair, passing out cooking recipes featuring dairy products.

Labor Policies Criticized by Diefenbaker

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government has "staked the fires of inflation in every part of the country" with its labor policies, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said Monday.

Mr. Diefenbaker, who returned to the capital from Prince Albert, Sask., with his wife, said "the exorbitant increases" granted by the Liberal government in recent labor settlements were responsible for current labor unrest and for inflationary tendencies of the economy.

He told a reporter at Uplands Airport:

Police Have Fair Booth

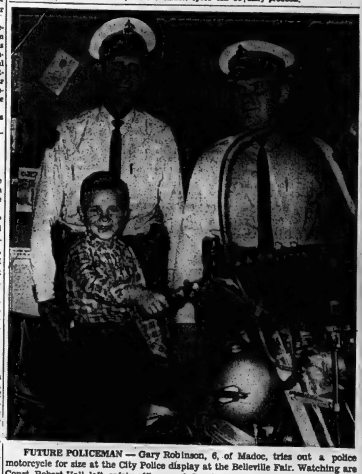
The police display features history, education, safety and traffic.

On duty at the booth are Const. George Cole, traffic officer, and Const. Robert Hall, safety officer.

The colorful booth also features an equipment and small weapons display and an accident location map of Belleville for last year.

The accident location map is a great source of interest to motorists. One woman was heard asking a constable, "Is that little blue pin there my accident?"



She seemed pleased when assured that if that is where she had her accident, then the pin represented her accident. She had that corner all to herself.

A police motorcycle is also on display at the booth, and pamphlets on safety are available there. One pamphlet, "What Every Parent Should Know About Elmer" is a must for parents of school-age children.

The Belleville O.P.P. also have a booth at the fair in the Manufacturers' Building. Their booth features an OPP cruiser and stresses highway safety.

MINT FOREMAN CHARGED

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — An assistant foreman of the U.S. Mint was accused Monday of selling faulty coins to coin collectors. Normally such coins are destroyed and as a result any coaching collectors command high prices. Everett S. Shaw, 38, the assistant foreman, was charged specifically with embezzlement of coins from the mint.

First Day of Horse Show Devoted to Pony Classes

The Horse Show at the Belleville Fair was devoted to ponies yesterday morning and afternoon with twenty-one classes judged. They ranged from a Brood mare and foal to Junior Equitation with the ponies under Western and English tack.

Judge Robert Moggach of Waterdown, Ontario, took considerable time in some classes to make his decision due to the overuse of competition and the number of entries.

Large crowds gathered for harness and saddle events. In most cases the riders or drivers were under fourteen years of age although they displayed considerable experience in the handling of their animals.

Today the Horse show features Hackney, Arabian, Hunter, and Saddle Horses as well as the Percheron, Belgian and Clydesdale Draft Classes.

SPORTSLICES

Curling hefts west of Winnipeg's Great Divide will tell you that "mixed bonspiel" game is sweeping the prairie country even invading public schools and kindergartens.

Hockey addicts say their game has a strong foothold out there where the west begins and is playing second fiddle to no sports alleged leader.

Now along comes the softball magnin who claim their sport is the most popular in the country and be damned if they don't have the figures to prove it.

They say the sport has grown by leaps and bounds since the 12-inch ball caught the public eye in Ontario in the 1920's and its national body says it's been swindling baseball ever since.

The Canadian Amateur Softball Association has close to 150,000 players registered for competition and association official George Lehnert estimates the actual playing total is "five times that or more."

One official says "speed is the main reason why softball has become so popular. People are getting tired of waiting 3½ hours for the end of a game of baseball."

Out in the prairie provinces and British Columbia softball players are sprouting faster than wheat for Russia and China. Alberta, Saskatchewan and part of B.C. have 69,000 registered senior men players, 54,000 women and 43,000 in the 9-17 age bracket.

In Edmonton the moppets are asking who are the Eskimos and they wait in shifts for the use of softball diamonds. More than 90,000 men, women and children are registered in Ontario.

"The game is hot in Ontario" says a western official with a sly dig at the top province. I guess it gives them something to do besides producing hockey stars in the small prairie towns."

Well, apart from that the game has grown to such proportions that the top brass is planning to stage a world tournament for men and women at a centennial project came next year. This will be held in Winnipeg at the same time as the 1967 Pan American Games.

It should be a big affair. Mexico is one of eighteen countries invited to the centennial tournament. Others include the United States, India, Japan, Venezuela and Australia where Lehnert claims the international competition for the first time in 1945.

Association official Lehnert claims the surging popularity of softball's registered membership, which has doubled in the past five years, has led to diamond shortage.

"Look at Winnipeg" he says. "A city of that size and there isn't anywhere you can call a good fastball park. And here's Edmonton, they're playing triple headers from 6 p.m. to 11."

"The game has grown like wildfire," he says. "There must be 14,000 players in and around Calgary alone. Small towns have six or seven clubs and it's so strong in Ontario they claim they invented the game there."

That's the west blowing its horn. Some time we'll another verbal sports concert from this side of the Rockies said, as was noted, that curling was stealing minor hockey out into the prairies reaches. I note the CAHA has no complaints nor has the OMHA in Ontario.

Softball is taking a well-deserved place among spectator sports but its a long way from domination.

Cheesemen Worries All Over

Opening an 8-0 lead, Stewart Warner coasted to an 8-3 win over Black Diamond Cheese to eliminate the losers from Commercial Softball League playoffs last night.

Stewart Warner finished second and the Cheesemen had to win last night in order to keep their hopes alive. They wind up in fifth position.

Junior Day tamed Black Diamond on six hits. He struck out seven and walked only one, receiving errorless support afield.

Don Holoway gave up nine hits in defeat. He struck out half a dozen while pasting out five free tickets.

Pat Glancy sparked Stewart Warner's attack. He poked singles in the second, third and seventh innings. Lois Wannamaker was the only other player with two hits, both singles, while Keith Bertrim hit a double. Claude Carr, Doug Ellis and Junior Day added singles.

Ross Empey was tops in a losing cause. He hit a double and two singles. Pat O'Connor had a double while Jack Francis and Don Holoway raised singles.

With City Hotel and Lightfoots clashing in a sudden-death game to decide third and fourth positions, the pennant-winning Point Anne club will meet that game's winner and runner-up Stewart Warner clashes with the loser.

"Swingin' Boog" Sparks Orioles' Win

BY DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Three swings by Boog Powell were just enough for Baltimore Orioles, but one swing by Andy Kosco was too much for California Angels.

Powell mapped on 11th-inning deadlock with a two run homer, his 20th of the season, to give the Orioles a 4-2 victory over Boston Red Sox Monday night.

Kosco, given a reprieve after apparently striking out, broke a seventh inning tie with a run-scoring single, sparking Minnesota Twins to a 5-3 victory over the angry Angels.

Powell's three big swings preserved the Orioles' 1344 game lead in the American League. Kosco's extra swing sent California manager Bill Rigney into rages.

Wink two out in the Twins' seventh and the lead run on second base, umpire Jim Odom called Kosco out after he swung at a two - strike pitch. But Al Kaline, the umpire at first base, ruled that the ball had tipped Kosco's bat.

RIGNEY INCENSED

A moment later, with Minnesota pitcher Jim Kaat at bat, Rigney tossed a towel and warm - up jacket out of the California dugout, then rushed out himself to do battle with the umpire instead Rigney out of the game, and Kaat lashed a two-run triple, putting the Twins out of reach and insuring his 12th victory—tops in the league.

Two - run homers by Jim Gentile and Chuck Hinton powered Cleveland Indians past Washington Senators 4-3; Norm Cash's 20th career homer helped Detroit Tigers edge New York Yankees 6-5 and Don Buford's run-scoring single in the 10th inning gave Chicago White Sox a 4-3 decision over Kansas City Athletics in other games.

Powell, who has slammed eight homers in his last 18 games, sent the Orioles ahead 1-0 with the first of his three over 40-year-old Cotton in the Las Vegas Convention Centre Monday night.

Ancient Eddie was the sentimental favorite, but a 7-to-5 underdog, and most of the crowd—it was announced as 4,300 but appeared to be more like 2,300—thought he had won the championship.

In the dressing room later, Cotton was the picture of dejection and frustration, the latter a characteristic that has been his life of almost 20 years in the fight game.

"I won the fight," said Cotton.

"I know I won the fight. There's no doubt in my mind about it. Certainly I'd like to fight him again if he will give me the chance."

Rieg officials disagreed with Cotton oper the outcome. Referee Hale Morgan had it 70-67, and Judges Ron Amos and Mike Petrovich had it 69-67 and 68-67, respectively. Associated Press scored it a draw, 69-69.

Matchmaker Harry Markson of New York was on hand to offer Torres a fight in Madison Square Garden Dec. 16 with former middleweight champion Dick Tiger for Jose's title. Torres' adviser, Gaina Young, said he's interested but will decide later.

And a $50,000 guarantee, by far the largest purse Cotton was Dave Vineyard did it for the Red Wings against Toledo Mud Hens over nine innings July 28, and Stan Rahonen kept Richmond Braves hitless through seven innings earlier in the game.

The Red Wings lost the second game of the doubleheader 1-0 to the Blazes, while Jacksonville Suns edged Richmond 2-1, Toronto Maple Leafs defeated Syracuse Chiefs 2-1 in 11 innings and Toledo downed Columbus Jets 4-1.

City Hotel Make The Playoffs

City Hotel overcame a 5-0 lead, dumping Lightfoot Construction 10-7, to clinch a fourth in the Commercial Softball League playoffs last night.

The victory tied City and Lightfoots for third place and the two clubs are scheduled to meet in a sudden - death game to decide the issue, at Trenton Georgs School, tonight.

Lightfoots appeared to have last night's decision in wrap when they jumped ahead 5-0 in the opening frame. But tied it up by the top of the fifth only to have Lightfoots again move in front 7-5 in their half of the frame.

The Hotelmen won it with five runs in the sixth.

Dave Feasey stayed the route for City, combed for 11 hits. He struck out one and walked four.

George Young was the losing hurler before giving way to John French during the sixth - frame City explosion. Young gave up 11 of the dozen hits and nine of the ten runs. He whiffed four and walked three. French walked one.

Doug Hill carried a big stick for the winners, clouting a home run, double and two singles. Doug Moreau contributed a double and single and Billy McGuire poked a brace of base hits. Doug Murray had a triple, Moe Hawkins, Gerry Genereaux and Tom Colohn a safety each.

Joe Clapp, Doug Rose, Don Wood and Don Smith rapped a pair of hits each on Lightfoots' behalf. Frank "Shiner" Murray doubled while Jack Gilby and John French had singles.
